G. P. SPARKS.

Merry Christmas to all.

Rube Sholes, formerly of Tecumseh, is visiting his brother Dudley. It is twenty years since he eat turkey in our villlage, but his long residence at Salt Lake has not ruined his appetite.

The Sunday School concert at the Presbyterian church last Sabbath evening was listened to by a fine audiance. The program was a good one and was finely rendered, the musical portion being especially creditable. The entire affair was an excellent substitute for the usual Christmas tree entertainment.

The funeral of W. T. B. Schermerhorn, late of the Hudson Gazette, was held last Sunday afternoon from the Congregational Church in that village. An immense concourse of people attended, far beyond the capacity of the church, and the services were conducted by all the pastors of the place. The remains were the first to be deposited in the new vault of Maple Grove Cemetery.

THE FALL TERM OF SCHOOL.

Last Friday closed one of the most successful terms of school in the record of the Tecumseh schools during recent years. We have obtained from Prof. Hammond a few statistics which will doubtless be of interest to our readers.

The total enrollment during the term in all the departments aggregates 449, divided as follows. The table gives the enrollment and also the per cent. of attendance in each grade.

Grade.	Enrollment.	Per Cent. Attendance.
A High School	36	98
B High School	30	96¾
Eighth Grade	35	97
Seventh Grade	37	98
Sixth Grade	46	97
Fifth Grade	36	96½
Fourth & Fifth Grade	31	98⅔
Fourth Grade	30	98
East Primary	60	97½
West Primary	64	97
North Primary	38	91

The percent. of tardiness has been less than one per cent. of the total attendance, and most of this can be traced to twelve or fifteen chronic cases. The teachers are required by the rules to be in their respective rooms twenty-five minutes before the opening of the morning session, and twenty minutes before the afternoon session, and their faithful observance of this rule has had a marked effect in promoting the punctual attendance of the pupils.

The number of non-resident pupils on the rolls exceeds by far the number of any previous term since Prof. Hammond assumed charge of the schools, and it is doubtful whether the number has ever been surpassed. Nearly $220 in foreign tuitions were received during the term just closed. The final examinations last week showed a high standard of excellence in all the departments.

Teachers meetings are held once each month, at which an essay is read by some one of them on some topic of general interest, followed by discussion. These meetings have proven to be both interesting and profitable.

The teachers in the primary grades also hold weekly meetings of their own, at which matters pertaining to discipline, instruction, etc., in the first four years are discussed.

Owing to the resignation of Miss Minnie Keeney, the Board have been obliged to employ a substitute and have hired Mr. Fred. Hendershot to fill the 8th grade position during the remainder of the school year.

The holiday vacation will close on Saturday, Jan. 3d., and the session will resume on Monday Jan. 5th., with flattering prospects for a successful winter's term.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

This is good weather for the coal vender.

Dr. Parker is moving from Adrian back to Blissfield.

Remember the Schubert Concert on New Year's night.

Kies Bros. have a new card this week announcing a slaughter sale.

Save your spare change and go to the Schubert Concert on New Year's night.

Mr. & Mrs. Jacob Tallman, of Mount Morris, N. Y., are enjoying a few days visit at Ezra F. Blood's.

There will be a leap year party at the skating rink to morrow evening. Now, girls, this is your last chance.

W. R. Wooden will eat his Christmas turkey in Tecumseh. He arrived in town yesterday and will remain until next Monday.

Read all the newspaper prospectuses in this issue. Pick out the papers you want and then call at the HERALD office and subscribe for them.

The Adrian Record asks: "What will the boys and girls find to do during the two weeks of school vacation?" Go to the skating rink, of course. Ask us a harder one.

David Boyd, who has been stopping at Hillsdale for the past few months, has returned to Tecumseh, and will now take his bread and butter and lodging in this neighborhood.

Capt. Foster gives an elegant Christmas dinner at the Lilley House to-day. The menu is all that the most exacting epicure could wish for. He will doubtless have a large family of guests this afternoon.

Will Harding, whose shoulder was broken by an accident a few days ago, is getting along well. It is a bad fracture however, and he will be compelled to carry his arm in a sling for several weeks.

P. W. Adams and wife arrived in town last Thursday and will remain until after the holidays. When they left their home at Middletown, Del. on Wednesday morning, they had beautiful June weather and upon arriving here on Thursday afternoon they found zero weather and sleighing.

Adrian Times: The fellow who was engaged to teach school in district No. 9, Rollin, began business without a certificate and, afterward, circumstances so shaped themselves that he failed to pass before the board of county examiners. The district, being thus minus an educator, has decided to "hire a girl."

The announcement of the Detroit Free Press appears in to-day's HERALD. No eulogy of the Free Press is required at our hands. By common consent it stands at the head of Michigan newspapers, and it is recognized as one of the ablest exponents of Democratic opinion in the Northwest. Republicans who wish to read the other side, can not find a better paper, and every well regulated Democratic family keeps a copy of the Free Press in the house.

We are in receipt of an elegant menu of the Christmas dinner to be given to day at the Burnett House in Toledo. We regret exceedingly that a previous engagement will prevent our attendance. But if landlord Burnett will fill a cracker barrel with the roast duck, baked rabbit, farina fritters, malaga grapes, oyster patties, chicken fricassed and other et ceteras left over and ship the same to our address by express, we will agree to give him a local notice gratis and use extra exertions to take dinner with him on New Year's day.

Adrian Times; Last Saturday, J. K. Boies & Co., the Hudson merchants, utilized an appartment in the upper portion of their store to good advantage. The necessary details were arranged, and every customer who visited the store was invited to the room mentioned and to partake of a cup of hot coffee and some cakes. Over 500 cups of coffee were thus given out and the store realized the largest day's trade in years. Although the amount sold to any one person was small, the day aggregated over $1,000 as the gross receipts of the store. A cup of hot coffee is very grateful after a ride in the cold.

Adrian Times: Saturday morning, just before the board of supervisors adjourned, Mr. Dewey, in behalf of the board, presented County Clerk Hunter with a handsome gold-headed cane. With the presentation, Mr. Dewey made some appropriate remarks, during the course of which he recalled the uniform courtesy and respect with which Mr. Hunter has always treated the board. He presented the cane as a slight testimonial of the high appreciation in which the supervisors hold the out-going clerk. Mr. Hunter, although thoroughly surprised, replied in a hearty manner, and the board adjourned with the best of good feeling.

J. M. Bloomer, proprietor of the Toledo Sunday News was in town last Tuesday on business connected with his publication.

Dr. H. L. Stewart is at home during the holidays. He is devoting most of his attention now to his lumber business at Summit City, which is prospering.

We are glad to learn that E. B. Wood, Esq., is on the gain and will soon be at his office desk again. His business is now well cared for by Fred B. Wood.

Lyman Thorp is home for Christmas. He is selling his patent parer and corer in Ohio and is meeting with good success. He will return to that state after the holidays.

The second entertainment of the Library Lecture Course, which comes off on the evening of Jan. 1st, bids fare to eclipse the first one, which was a grand opening of the course.

Attention, Ladies of Tecumseh and vicinity. Now is the only opportunity of securing Hats and Bonnets desirable in shape and color. You will find for the next 10 days Felt hats 75cts. $1,25. Best Fur Felts $1,50 at Mrs. N. R. Brown's.

During a short visit at Addison last Saturday we called at the office of the Courier and found Bro. Marvin full of business. He seems to be well satisfied with the progress the Courier has made since he started its publication.

Mrs. Wm. Tilton has a fine lot of house plants, which are in a thrifty condition. They are well cared for and have not been touched by the frost this winter. It would repay any lover of window gardening to call and see them.

Last week A. W. Slayton, Secretary of the Mich. Flooring and Handle Manuf'ng Co., Summit City, Mich., made a large sale of lumber for the company, consisting of birch, maple, elm and black-ash, in amount something over 500,000 feet.

The school in Dist. No. 5, Raisin, taught by Hattie Scoutt, closed last Friday. A large company met in the evening at the pleasant home of Jas. Colvin. Games, recitations by the school, and music, rendered the evening enjoyable to all present.

Adrian Record: Just as freckles have come into fashion we have found in some of our exchanges receipts for removing them. Adrian girls don't hanker after such receipts. The girl without freckles now looks with envious eyes at her more fortunate and freckled sister.

Adrian Record: Work on the court house will go on all winter. Plastering will begin as soon as the weather will permit. All the doors will be made and the finishings will be gotten ready this winter. It is expected that the building will be ready for occupancy by September first, although the contract does not call for its completion before December first.

John J. Neeley who owns a fine farm of 240 acres, two miles from South Boardman in Kalkaska Co., has just returned from a trip to Kalkaska Co., having gone up there to effect a lease of his farm. He was the guest of Sheriff Morrell while there and brought back a few samples of the apples which that county produces. They were selected at random from Mr. Morrell's bins, and are fine specimens of perfect fruit. Mr. Neeley has left a half doz. specimens at the HERALD office. People who are in doubt about apples growing in that latitude should call and see them.

The success of the former masquerade has prompted Mr. Cash to give another party of the same kind at the rink, which has been fixed for Tuesday evening next, Dec 30th. A prize, consisting of a pair of nickle plated club skates, will be given to each of the best gentleman and lady characters represented, to be decided by a committee to be selected by the audience. Good music will be provided. The ladies will mask at the dressing room of the rink which will be reserved especially for their use. The gentlemen will mask at the X. B. D. club room, over VanAntwerp's store, and thence march to the rink. No one, except maskers, allowed on the floor until after nine o'clock. Grand entrance at 7:30. Admission 25 cents. Skates free.

NOTES FROM THE PACIFIC.

SAN JOSE, Dec. 10, 1884.

EDITOR HERALD,—

In my last letter I think I got as far as Salt Lake City in our trip across the Continent. At Ogden we changed cars and embarked on the Central Pacific which runs from here direct to San Francisco. Fifty miles from Ogden we come to Promontory, which is noted as being the place where the Union Pacific building west, and the Central Pacific building east, were joined together with a rosewood tie and gold spike, the latter we are told being driven with a silver hammer. My children wanted to get off and look for the spike but the conductor told them they wouldn't have time, besides he did'nt think they could find it. Beyond Promontory we passed over the Alkali desert, the home of the sage brush and jackass rabbit. This is by far the most unpleasant part of the journey. The soil is a mixture of alkali, salt and sand, the air is filled with alkali dust, your eyes begin to smart, your throat becomes dry and parched and altogether you feel remarkably uncomfortable. This feeling is intensified if you happen to step from your Pullman car into one of the ordinary passenger cars of the train; the difference in ventilation strikes you at once. While in the Pullman it is decidedly unpleasant, in the passenger car it is almost unbearable. But when we consider it a hardship to cross this desert in a Pullman car going at the rate of thirty miles an hour, what must the early Pioneers have suffered crossing this same desert trudging alongside their loaded wagons up to their ankles in sand and dust with clouds of the same flying all around them filling their noses mouth and eyes and clothes with this horrible alkali dust, their teams panting for water, no water to be found for miles and miles in this dreary waste, the road on either side lined with the skeletons of horses and cattle which have perished by the way? Travelers to the Pacific coast may well rejoice that the Rail Road has done away with the old modes of transportation and all their attendant hardships and suffering. In a few hours we shake the alkali dust from our feet and go whirling up into the Sierras. Here is scenery grand, beautiful and majestic, varied by an occasional dash through ten or twenty miles of snow sheds. These sheds are undoubtedly very useful to keep the snow off the track but we found them quite disagreeable necessities, first because they shut off our view of some of the finest scenery in the world, and secondly because they fill with smoke when the train is passing through them, which renders the air unpleasant for breathing purposes. With what intence satisfaction do we draw in full long breaths of the rich bracing mountain air on emerging from one of them, and how soon our joy is changed to woe by a plunge into the next one. Presently our engineer twists the tail of his fiery steed, the Critter utters a yell, which is taken up, multiplied and hurled back by the disgusted mountain peaks, as if in protest for this rude invasion of their solitude. The brakemen shouts Truckee, and then we all rejoice, for our journey is nearly completed; we have crossed the line and have entered the Golden State. From Truckee to Summit, the highest point in the Sierra Nevadas reached by the railway, is fifteen miles and as the train boy remarked "up hill all the way you bet ye." Summit is seven thousand and forty-two feet above the level of the sea. This town will never be a temperance town; it was on a high when it was built and it has been high ever since. At Colfax we had our first introduction to the Hoodlums of California. They are described by travelers in this country as young men with a mission, the said mission being principally to engage in all sorts of mischief, to get drunk as often as possible, and make night hideous with their hoots and yells, and on all occasions to throw rocks and curses at unoffending Chinamen. We had retired for the night and had begun to lay in our stock of "Tired nature's sweet restorer," when as we rolled into Colfax at once arose so wild a yell within that dark and narrow dell, as if all the friends from Heaven that fell had pealed the battle cry of Hell. After Walter Scott has written the above lines descriptive of an unearthly yell, my pen declines to make the effort and I must humbly borrow them for this occasion, being satisfied that they alone justly and fitly describe this war cry of the Hoodlums. Our first thought as we sprang up in bed was of Indian tomahawks and scalping knives. We tumbled out of our berths, ran out on to the car platform and beheld a band of about twenty nondescript looking individuals circling, yelling, singing, hooting, dancing, heads, legs, hands, feet, arms and tongues all combining to produce such an exuberance of noise and motion as would have made a Howling Dervish sick with envy to behold. After resting a moment they joined hands and dancing in a circle sung at the top of their most musical voices the following chorus.

Oh, I am a Hebrew, Hebrew, Hebrew,
Hebrew till I die;
Born and raised in the Hebrew church
And fed on Hebrew pie.

No more sleep for me that night; the elegant refrain of Hebrew, Hebrew, kept ringing in my ears till we rolled into the depot at Sacramento. Here we were met by our brother Dr. William A. Patterson. He is a full fledged doctor now, having graduated at the California Medical College and is exercising unlimited patience while patiently waiting for patients, however he thinks he has got a foothold now, and expects in a few years to work up a fine practice. Talking about doctors I am greatly surprised at the fees they get here for their professional services. Statistics show that there are more doctors to the square inch in this state than any where else, and you would naturally think that competition would bring down their prices, but no sir, three dollars a visit is the price charged by all, good, bad and indifferent. In San Francisco some of them get even more than this; so you see if a doctor gets one good paying patient in the course of the year he need not starve, although the patient might before he gets the doctor paid up. There is no excuse for these excessive charges, as it does not cost but a little more to live here than in Michigan. Eggs, butter, potatoes and sugar are perhaps one third higher while all kinds of fruit, vegetables flour and meat are lower. Clothing, hardware, crockery and the generality of merchandise are just as cheap here as in Tecumseh. Mechanics get about the same wages here as there, two dollars a day being about their limit. But why the doctors charge three times as much as the ordinary eastern fee is past my comprehension. Perhaps by earnest enquiry among the profession I may be able to find out, and if so will give you the benefit of my researches in my next letter.

Yours Truly,
JAMES W. PATTERSON.

Auction Sale.

Cordelia M. Adams, administratrix with will annexed, of the estate of Peter R. Adams, deceased, will sell at public vendue, at her residence, corner of Chicago and Ottawa streets, in the village of Tecumseh, on Friday, January 2d, 1885, at 10 o'clock A. M. the following property: 400 acres of land on section 2, in the township of Raisin. This will be divided to suit purchasers. Also 135 acres of land on section 14, in the township of Clinton. This is good timbered land with a large quantity of black walnut. Also the three story brick store and lot on the north side of Chicago street in the village of Tecumseh, now occupied by O. P. Bills' bank and other tenants. Also building and lots on the corner of Evans and Kilbuck streets in the village of Tecumseh, known as the old Cummins Carriage Factory property.

Also a portion of lots 75 and 76 of the original plat of the village of Tecumseh, being the vacant lots east of the Central School building. Also a lot twelve by five rods on south side of Chicago street, east of Division street and west of Globe Mill Race, in the village of Tecumseh. Terms of sale—On the Clinton land, one-half cash and balance to suit buyer; on all other property, one third cash and balance on long time to suit the purchasers.
Abe Hanford, Auctioneer.

TECUMSEH & FRANKLIN FARMERS' CLUB.

At a meeting held at the residence of Henry Wilson, on Tuesday evening, Dec. 23d., there was an association organized under the above name. A constitution and by-laws were adopted and the following officers were elected for one year:

President—B. Hurry.
Vice Prest.—Lewis Waldron.
Secretary—Henry Wilson.
Treasurer—Hamilton Hoag.

The following were appointed as committee on program: L. Waldron, James Updyke and Mrs. B. Hurry.

The following order of exercises was announced for the next meeting to be held at the residence of B. Hurry on Wednesday evening, Jan. 7th, 1885.

Music—Mrs. Wm. Waldron.
Declamation—Clarence Hurry.
Sec. Reading—Mrs. Walter Osborn.
Essay—Mrs. H. Wilson.

On New Year's night, Jan. 1 next, the second entertainment in the Library Lecture Course will be given at the Opera House by the celebrated Schubert male quartette, consisting of J. L. Johnson, First Tenor, Homer F. Stone, Second Tenor, John R. Tyley, Baritone, Geo. H. Iott, Bass. Assisted by Miss Dora Henninges, Mezzo Soprano. The gentlemen are all first class vocalists and Miss Henninges ranks among the few great singers of the world, and is equally at home in concert, oratorio or opera. Miss Henninges is a tall, a most superb woman, with graceful, statuesque gesture, and possesses a rare rich full toned mezzo soprano voice, which has been well trained under the best masters. The Chicago Tribune says: "She is a singer of whom America ought to be proud."

There is a by-road in Norvell township about one-half mile in length that has a curious history. On this small space has lived five men who were sort of hermits. The first had 18 children but preferred living in a shanty alone, and was found dead in his bed. Another was found insensible and soon died; the third was also lately found dead in bed. The other two took wives. A few weeks ago on this road could be seen three crops of wheat in stacks, being Anthony Holmes' entire crops for 1882, '83 and '84.—Manchester Enterprise.

The Raisin Valley Seminary.

This Term of school closes on Dec. 24th, with Literary exercises, beginning at 10 o'clock A. M. The present enrollment is 93, a much larger number than for several years past. The next term of School begins on Monday Jan. 5th, 1885, and promises to be unusually large and successful. A very few students can still be accommodated in the building, and good boarding places near the school building can be secured by applying soon. Review classes in nearly all branches required to teach in district schools, will be formed.

It Can Cure

It is a fact that remedies almost without number already evince the claim to cure all the ills that afflict suffering humanity. Thousands have found them powerless to work a cure for them.

No diseases have so baffled all attempts at cure as those of a Rheumatic and Neuralgic character. A large number of testimonials in our possession, however, attest the fact that in these diseases the Anti-Rheumatic Compound has made its most decided and wonderful cures. In fact, in the majority of cases of Rheumatism and Neuralgia they have been considered beyond the power of medical skill to cure.

And yet we say both can be cured, and that ATHLOPHOROS will do the business. The best proof that we can adduce to show that it has done it,

It Did Cure

Rev. S. R. Downer, D.D., pastor Third Congregational Church, New Haven, Conn., Rheumatism has kept him from the pulpit four of five Sundays at a time. He says he had tried all that regular medical skill could give. He took the first bottle of Athlophoros [illegible] Sunday, the second Sunday he was able to preach, and has been cured since.

Rev. William P. Corbit, D.D., pastor Grace M. E. Church, New Haven, Conn., said he had suffered [illegible] from Rheumatism, [illegible] Athlophoros cured him, and he believes it to be infallible.

H. S. Chandler, of the N. Y. "Independent," says: A most obstinate case of Rheumatism [illegible] which he had suffered for a year and a half.

Rev. W. R. Evans, Washington, D. C., says: "I [illegible] in the light of a [illegible] medicine. It ought to be spread throughout the land."

It Will Cure

The great question is, Will it cure me? We [illegible] Bottle entire, and if not satisfactory [illegible] of your druggist, [illegible] Athlophoros. We [illegible] that it will do [illegible] to try anything else, but order at once [illegible]

KING'S EVIL

Was the name formerly given to Scrofula because of a superstition that it could be cured by a king's touch. The world is wiser now, and knows that can only be cured by a thorough purification of the blood. If this is neglected, the disease perpetuates its taint through generation after generation. Among its earlier symptomatic developments are Eczema, Cutaneous Eruptions, Tumors, Boils, Carbuncles, Erysipelas, Purulent Ulcers, Nervous and Physical Collapse, etc. If allowed to continue, Rheumatism, Scrofulous Catarrh, Kidney and Liver Diseases, Tubercular Consumption, and various other dangerous or fatal maladies, are produced by it.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Is the only powerful and always reliable blood-purifying medicine. It is so effectual an alterative that it eradicates from the system Hereditary Scrofula, and the kindred poisons of contagious diseases and mercury. At the same time it enriches and vitalizes the blood, restoring healthful action to the vital organs, and rejuvenating the entire system. Unagreat

Regenerative Medicine

Is composed of the genuine Honduras Sarsaparilla, with Yellow Dock, Stillingia, the Iodides of Potassium and Iron, and other ingredients of great potency, carefully and scientifically compounded. Its formula is published to the medical profession, and the physicians constantly prescribe AYER'S SARSAPARILLA as an

Absolute Cure

For all diseases caused by the vitiated state of the blood. It is conceded to be the most profitable drug, for the cure of any other preparation for which like cures are claimed, and is therefore the cheapest, as well as the best blood purifying medicine, in the world.

LONG SEAL-SKIN CLOAKS.

Long seal-skin cloaks promise to be the first choice in dressy wraps this winter, because they are now fitted to the figure, and made in all the varied shapes in vogue for the richest velvet and cloth garments. The long dolman, covering the wearer from head to foot, is now made in several designs, and the weight formerly complained of as too great for the shoulders is equalized by the use of an elastic belt inside the lining, which also serves to hold the back of the waist close to the wearer in the graceful way in favor. This closely fitted back and sides of the waist, with or without fullness below, while the fronts hang straight and loose, is one of the features of new seal cloaks. The high full shoulders are also introduced for those to whom they are becoming, and the sleeves are large, so that the cloak may be easily removed; these graceful elbow sleeves open squarely at the wrist or else they are cut flowing in the Oriental shapes. Lengthwise trimmings of a different fur in front and back are in great favor, and the border at the foot gives a rich finish, but this cross border must be omitted if the wearer is short, as it detracts from the apparent height. Full trimmings about the neck and arms are objectionable for stout figures, hence, instead of a separate collar, the trimming is now set on the lining around the neck without any seal fur beneath it; this makes the wrap less clumsy about the throat, and for similar reasons many stout ladies prefer the plain velvet-like seal in its rich beauty without any additional trimming. The untrimmed seal garment is also chosen by economists whose best outlay of money is in a garment of fine fur cut in a new and stylish shape, to which trimming may be added hereafter to effect some change required by fashion. Trimmings of short close furs, such as natural beaver and otter, are commended to stout ladies, while the luxurious long fleeces are becoming to those who are slight; among these are the royal sables in plain bands, or of tails in rows, or else pendent below the border, the dark fisher-tail, the black fox, silver-fox, the blue fox, which has stone-colored tints, or the black marten, which is effective yet not costly, and is now thoroughly deodorized.

Brown satin very slightly quilted is the lining most used, and in some garments there are gayer tints, and all quilting is omitted in order to make the garment more flexible. Bars of seal with loops of passementerie cord are the fastenings most used. Among these rich clocks is the Ristori, with partly fitted back, open below the waist, square sleeves, and double-breasted front, with Russian collar; this is of an elegant cut that may be worn plain, but it is also shown with the rich borders just mentioned. The Galatea is a long slender cloak with the back as closely fitted as if made of cloth; the high-shouldered sleeves extend far into the back, and have seal-skin cuffs added when there is no border of other fur; it has also both a standing collar and one that is turned down. The Gretry is only three-quarters fitted to the figure, and has flowing Oriental sleeves; both this and the Galatea are made more youthful and slender-looking by lengthwise trimmings. One of the newest models, called La Favorite, is shaped like the mantle-redingote illustrated in the Bazar, with the waist tight behind, while the full skirt is pleated in below; the front hangs straight, and the high sleeves are close to the arms, with deep cuffs trimmed around at their top near the elbow. This full back of the skirt is excellent with bouffant costumes. These garments also have the fronts trimmed with a fold of seal-skin, next which is the fox or sable border put on in a roll like a binding, and continued around the neck to represent a boa.—Harper's Bazar.

FALL PIGS.

What to Do to Make it Profitable to Keep Them Through the Winter.

The best method of carrying over fall pigs is a timely question with farmers just now, and should be closely looked into. It is not good policy to have fall pigs, but farmers can not always avoid them. Early spring pigs that can be fattened for market by Christmas are the most profitable; but the farmer will occasionally find a lot of small pigs on his hands, and he must make preparations to winter them over. This should be done in the most economical way. Good shelter should be the first thing provided, and something else besides corn fed. To make the cheapest pork that, when fattened for market, costs the least per pound, the pigs must be crowded from the start. Keeping them growing with the cheapest food is the secret of success. As during the winter a large per cent. of the food consumed is taken up in maintaining animal heat, good shelter is one of the most saving elements in wintering over fall pigs. Where pigs have the run of a good pasturage during the summer or green rye or clover, it requires but little grain to keep them in growing condition during warm weather. But during winter this can not be had and as a consequence an extra amount of other food must be provided. As said before, shelter is one of the essentials in economically wintering over pigs. It should be warm and dry, yet constructed so as to admit of good ventilation. As to feed, I have found corn meal, wheat bran, roots or chopped oats far cheaper food for carrying over pigs than corn fed alone in the grain. A slop made of any one of these, whether fed warm or cold, is more economical than grain. Keep the pigs in a growing condition. It will cost less to keep them growing and maintain animal heat than if they were allowed to run down and then build them up again. Pigs kept in this way will be in good condition to run on the pasture the following spring and summer, and make extra hogs the second winter.—N. J. Shepherd, in Kansas City Live Stock Record.

"Words fail to express my gratitude" says Mr. Selby Carter, of Nashville, Tenn., "for the benefits derived from Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Having been afflicted all my life with scrofula, my system seemed saturated with it. It came out in blotches, ulcers, and matter sores, all over my body." Mr. Carter states that he was entirely cured by Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and since discontinuing its use, eight months ago, has had no return of the scrofulous symptoms.

FOUR POINTS

Prepared by an entirely NEW METHOD. Composed of the PUREST MATERIALS. WILL NOT INJURE THE FABRIC. WILL CLEANSE WITHOUT RUBBING.

You can do a large washing without any rubbing; use the boiling process instead. You can save Time, Labor, Fuel, Soap and Clothing.

DIRECTIONS FOR USE.

Cut up fine and dissolve one half bar in half gallon of hot water. Pour half this dissolved soap into a tub with just sufficient hot water to cover a boiler full of clothes. Then put the clothes to soak, rubbing plenty of soap in the most soiled parts. Be sure that the soaking water is hot; soak the clothes half an hour, stir them occasionally so that they may get the full benefit of the hot suds; pour the remainder of the dissolved soap into the boiler, adding sufficient water to cover the clothes; wring them lightly out of the suds. Soap the stained spots and place loosely in the boiler; boil half an hour, rinse well, blue and hang to dry. Do not crowd the boiler too full. The same boiling water may be used for the boiled, only a little rubbing required after soaking. This soap will cleanse clothing as thoroughly as any other without the use of the boiler. We prefer and recommend the boiling process as in itself a cleansing process, saving labor, the wear of the washboard and being the best disinfectant known, it is easier to boil the dirt out than to rub it out. You can cleanse perfectly the finest fabric without injury; the finest point lace curtains. Soak point lace in hot suds made with this soap, press water out with the hand; boil 4 to 5 minutes in clean suds made with this soap, rinse thoroughly, press carefully between the folds of a towel, roll in a dry towel, and iron between pieces of old flannel. Soak carpet over a sheet to dry; no strong rubbing required.

Be sure and ask for ELECTRIC-LIGHT SOAP, and take no other.

THE HARLEM RAILROAD.

Valuable Suggestion of Interest to Men Employed on all Railroads—Read it If You Would be Benefitted.

No man is better known along the line of the Harlem R. R. than Conductor Trowbridge. He writes as follows:

CONDUCTOR'S ROOM, HARLEM DEPOT.
NEW YORK, Feb. 1884.

Dear Sir—I take pleasure in saying a word for Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy. I have used it for two years for dyspepsia and derangement of the liver, and can say with emphasis that it always affords prompt and complete relief. Favorite Remedy is pleasant to the taste, thorough in its effects, never producing the slightest disagreeable or sickening sensation. Yours truly,

R. C. TROWBRIDGE.

But Mr. Trowbridge is not alone in his praise of Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy. Favorite Remedy is a positive cure for malaria as well as indigestion. Read the following from R. A. Campbell, foreman of the sorting room in the Montgomery paper mill:

MONTGOMERY, Orange Co., N.Y., Mar. 4, '84.
Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.

Dear Sir:—I have used for some time your valuable medicine, Favorite Remedy, for malaria, and it has proved an effectual cure. After having tried a great many other medicines for a disorder of this kind without avail, I find Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy affords complete satisfaction, and I do heartily recommend it to all who suffer as I did. R. A. CAMPBELL.

Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy is a positive cure for malaria, kidney and liver diseases, and for all those ills peculiar to women.

FASHION NOTES.

What Is Being Worn by Ladies Who Keep Pace With the Latest Styles.

All brown furs are in high favor.

High full shoulders are the rule for dressy wraps.

The long sealskin dolman is the bold winter wrap.

Porphyry is a new shade of red between brick and garnet.

Chenille trimmings are in favor both for bonnets and dresses.

Hudson Bay sable tails form the borders of many fine fur wraps.

In lieu of sealskin jackets short mantles of sealskin will be worn this season.

Necklets of velvet, satin, metal, and all sorts of materials are worn by women, young girls and children.

All fashionable wraps, long or short, are held in at the waist line in the back by straps of ribbon or elastic.

Among new lining furs comes a long, crinkled, white fleecy fur called Chinese.

Muffs are sold to match capes, fichus, collars, and pelerines of seal or other furs.

There is a revival of taste for the delicate æsthetic colors, and the newest jerseys are brought out in these shades.

Scarlet flannel will probably be fashionable this season in Europe, if not here, as it is said to be preventive of cholera.

The fastenings of mantles and cloaks of seal are carved antique heads in wood or stained ivory or fine passementerie.

Capotes and Funchons without strings are worn; but, for all that, a stringless bonnet is not in good taste. If one objects to strings she should wear a hat.

Fichus of velvet, silk, satin and lace—"Manons" they are called in Paris and London—are much in favor, being worn with either low or high necked dresses.

A new woolen lace, colored or ecru, cream and white, run with gold thread, is one of the latest fancies coming from Paris prior to the outbreak of the cholera.

The borders of short sealskin mantles are of mink, with pendant tails, sable tails, brown marten and plucked beaver or otter in dark shades of brown.

Paris has been cleaner, sweeter, more elegant and gayer than ever this fall, but for all that the terrible cholera has invaded it. Where will fashionable Paris go?

Astrakhan cloth is one of the mid-winter novelties; it is of pure wool, with a rough, curly surface in imitation of Astrakhan fur, and comes in black, brown, gray and dark green.

A pretty seal fichu or pelerine brought out this season reaches like a scarf mantle almost to the waist line in the back, and has half-long pointed fronts, is edged with seal fringe, and has a high collar and fancy clasp.

The corsage of dressy evening toilets is frequently formed entirely of white, colored, or black bugle beads woven in the lace foundations so thickly as to cover the surface and forming hexagons, squares and other geometric figures on the same.

Those magnificent shot silks with velvet broche flowers, in cut and uncut pile, are in favor for the court trains of chaperons' dresses. They are combined with plain shot silks to match the grounds of the broche, the plain silk forming all of the toilet save the train, which is frequently detachable.

An exquisite novelty in a bridal dress worn by a Boston bride consisted of a trained robe of pure white satin, elaborately embroidered with fine-cut steel-bead tassels and fringes. These, with the many diamonds worn, gave the toilet the appearance of being powdered with diamonds.

The favorite finish for gentlemen's umbrella handles is the knob of black and yellow called the tiger's eye. The test of an agate is that when struck with another is shows a tiny crescent or circle under the surface. It is well to know this, as imitations of tiger's-eye agates are sometimes sold for the real stone.

The highest novelty in lace window-curtains demands the work of three nations of Europe to make it. The batiste, of which the body of the curtain is made, is manufactured in England. The hand-made lace braids and flowers must come from Brussels, and the arrangement of the same, the designs of curtains and finish must pass through French fingers. N. Y. Sun.

BEFORE AND AFTER.

A Married Man's Opinion of the French Tax on Bachelors.

"I notice that they are going to tax bachelors in France," murmured Dora, reading from the paper David had just laid down.

"That isn't right," frowned David, biting nervously at his after-supper cigar: "their lot is hard and unhappy enough as it is."

Dora got up and kissed David at this suggestive remark. They had been married only a few months.

Time swept on in that calm and relentless fashion for which time is celebrated, and Dora is the mother of a six-weeks-old baby. At intervals, also, David is reminded that he is joint proprietor in this family acquisition, which has a studied ambition for sitting up nights in company with its fathers.

"I was thinking," mused Dora softly from her easy chair "I was thinking about that item we were reading last winter. I wonder if they really do tax the bachelors in France."

"I don't know," returned David, who was warming some sort of a mixture in a little tin dish over a spirit lamp, "but," he added malevolently, as he tipped the mixture over just as it was warm, "they ought to make them pay something for the luxury."

And Dora sighed as she asked if it wasn't about time to mix the food.—Rockland Courier-Gazette.

An End to Bone Scraping.

Edward Shepherd, of Harrisburgh, Ill., says: "Having received so much benefit from Electric Bitters, I feel it my duty to let suffering humanity know it. Have had a running sore on my leg for eight years; my doctors told me I would have to have the bone scraped or leg amputated. I used instead, three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven boxes Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and my leg is now sound and well." Electric Bitters are sold at fifty cents a bottle, and Bucklen's Arnica Salve at 25c. per box, by C. A. Wright & Co.

As late as 1840 there were but seven vocations into which New England women had entered; in 1884 the number was 317.

Time Tried.

Time tried and true is Dr. Bigelow's Positive Cure, which combines the good qualities of all the best cough remedies without the defects of any of them. It cures promptly, thoroughly and permanently, all coughs, colds, croup, whooping cough, influenza, bronchitis, hoarseness, incipient consumption, and all throat and lung diseases, healing to the lungs; safe and pleasant for children. Price 50 cents and one dollar; trial bottles free of Baker & Hall.

The Great American Chorus.

Sneezing, snuffling and coughing! This is the music all over the land just now. And will be until June. "I've got such an awful cold in my head." Cure it with Ely's Cream Balm or it may end in the toughest form of Catarrh. Maybe you have catarrh now. Nothing is more nauseous and dreadful. This remedy masters it as no other ever did. Not a snuff nor a liquid. Applied by the finger to the nostrils. Pleasant, certain, radical.

There are more than 600 varieties of the chrysanthenum, the national flower of Japan.

Catarrh.

Is a very prevalent and exceedingly disagreeable disease, liable if neglected, to debelop into serious consumption. Being a constitutional disease, it requires a constitutional remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, acting through the blood, reaches every part of the system, effecting a radical and permanent cure of catarrh in even its most severe forms. Made only by C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.

A scientific paper asserts that it is water and not food that makes people fat.

C. A. Wright & Co. state that indigestion prepares every one for disease, but guarantee Acker's Dyspepsia Tablets to cure all forms of indigestion.

DAKOTA TROUBLES.

The Sheriff of Roberts County Asks Governor Pierce for Arms—An Armed Mob Threatening to Burn Travers, the County Seat—Accidental Shooting.

BISMARCK, Dak., December 23.—Another dispatch was received from the Sheriff of Roberts County to Governor Pierce Sunday afternoon from Travers, Dak., as follows:

Your telegram received. We can't get guns for the citizens. There will be an armed mob of 150 organized men, who will be here in twenty-for hours, saying they will burn the town and hang every man in it if we don't give them the balance of the records. Your immediate attention will save property and bloodshed.

The Governor said he looked upon it as an incident in the quarrels between the towns and doubted if a dozen men were engaged in the unlawful features of it; that he should telegraph the Sheriff if any armed mob or other persons gain possession of the property or records unlawfully, to get a warrant for the recovery of the records and for the arrest of the men, and he (the Governor) would aid, if need be, by all the power at his command, to enforce the warrant. But until some more urgent necessity becomes apparent for the use of troops the call will be declined. The courts, he believes, will do exact justice and all will find most satisfaction and certainly most credit for themselves and for the Territory in awaiting judicial action.

WAXAHATCHIE, Texas, December 23.—An accidental shooting occurred yesterday on the farm of A. O. Finley, seven miles north of this place. Two young men, named Goodwin and Angell, were handling an old unloaded pistol. Goodwin snapped it at Angell and the weapon was discharged, sending a bullet through Angell's head, inflicting a mortal wound. In his fright and frenzy Goodwin ran home and swallowed, with suicidal intent, a teaspoonful of morphine. He will no doubt die.

No Truth in the Reports.

MONTREAL, Can., December 23.—The report sent out from here charging gross misconduct on the part of priests and nuns connected with convents, and of priests violating the sanctity of the confession are shown to have been false. The only story that can be at all substantiated is the one in which a priest entered his pulpit under the influence of liquor. The case against Father Pepin, charged with attempting improper liberties with girls who came to him in confession, was dismissed Friday, the evidence against him being contradictory, and, as the judge said, evidently manufactured. The reference to convents seems to be of the same nature, as no names are given and no investigations can be made.

South American Trade Commission.

NEW ORLEANS, December 23.—Ex-Governor T. C. Reynolds, the Hon. S. O. Thacher and Secretary W. E. Curtis, of the South American Trade Commission, have arrived here from the City of Mexico, where the commission spent two weeks. Its sessions were attended by President Diaz, who assured the members that he wished to do everything possible to build up the commercial relations of the two countries. The commission has been at work since September last and has visited New York, Baltimore, Philadelphia and San Francisco. The members will remain here about two weeks and then sail for Central America.

An Eloping Wife Took Everything.

Assassinated by Negroes.

GALLMAN, Miss., December 23.—Saturday evening William Sumrall, a respected and wealthy citizen, living near here, was called to his door by three negroes in a friendly tone of voice, and asked to read a letter for them. He began to read, when all three opened fire on him with revolvers. Sumrall fell dead. The murderers then robbed the house of $1,500 and escaped. A posse of one hundred men started in pursuit, but it is not known yet whether the fiends have been captured.

Flint Glassworkers.

PITTSBURGH, December 23.—Over two hundred members of the Flint Glassworkers Union, representing almost every district in the United States, thoroughly discussed the question concerning the recent reduction in the scale of prices. At their meeting in this city Tuesday night, they again resolved not to accept the proferred scale, and will stay out on a strike to the bitter end and that no overtures looking to a compromise, would be entertained.

Forefathers' Day.

BOSTON, December 22.—Forefathers' day was observed Saturday afternoon by the New England Club. At their dinner they entertained Governor Robinson and Lieutenant Governor Ames, Governor Hale, Governor Waller, Governor Bourne, Mayor Martin, President Bruce, of the Senate; Speaker Marden, of the House; Judge Russell, President of the Pilgrim Society of Plymouth, and many others.

A Forger Arrested.

DETROIT, December 23.—James R. Williams, a lawyer and land agent of David City, Neb., who absconded in October last after forging $20,000 in notes, was arrested at Woodstock, Ont., at noon yesterday by S. H. Still, an officer. Williams refuses to to return unless extradition papers are procured. He left a wife and five children behind him in Nebraska.

Pratt's Loss $2,000,000.

NEW YORK, December 23.—It is stated on good authority that the loss to Pratt's Astral Oil Company by the burning of their works yesterday reaches $2,000,000. Their extensive machinery was of the most improved and costly patterns and the stock of oil on hand was enormous, owing to the depression in the trade, which made shipments small of late.

Hotel Building Falls—One Man Killed.

NEW ORLEANS, December 22.—Yesterday morning one of the immense hotels being built near the Exposition was blown down. Frank Green was killed and two others fatally wounded. The men were bracing the building up as it was thought to be unsafe. The loss to the building is heavy.

Hog Cholera.

WHEELING, W. Va., December 23.—The hog cholera, which raged so in this and Brooke County, has abated and is expected to be eradicated within a few days. The disease has now broke out over the river. Seven hogs have died near Bridgeport within the last few days.

DESTRUCTIVE FIRES.

Eagle Lye Works ... ...awaukee Burned—Oil Tank Explodes Setting Fire to a Refinery.

BALTIMORE, December 23.—The furniture factory of Graham & Schmitt was partially destroyed by fire Monday evening. Loss $25,000. Captain William Dunn, of Truck Company No. 1, was badly injured.

MILWAUKEE, December 23.—A fire yesterday morning at the corner of East Water and Chicago streets destroyed the Eagle Lye works, and Deforme & Quentin's soap factory. Total loss about $100,000.

NEWARK, N. J., December 23.—Shortly after the workmen quit work at the Union Oil Company's building, Neptune Avenue and Newark Bay, last night, one of the small oil tanks exploded, setting fire to the building. Damage to building and works $30,000; insurance unknown.

CHICAGO, December 23.—Fire last night in the building at 128 and 130 Fifth Avenue, occupied by Albert Stern, dealer in notions and furnishing goods, and Schraeder & Newzelt, pantaloon makers, caused a loss of $25,000; fully insured.

Rescue of a Shipwrecked Crew.

BALTIMORE, December 23.—The steamship America, arriving in this port, reports the full particulars of the rescue of the crew of the Norwegian bark Yugre on her last outward bound trip from Baltimore to Bremen. On December 7, in latitude 43 degrees 30 minutes, longitude 31 degrees, the America noticed a large amount of wreckage afloat and shortly afterwards sighted a dismantled hulk rolling about on the high waves. Through powerful glasses it was seen that a number of men were clinging to the rigging. Five volunteers were soon off to the rescue. It was with the greatest difficulty and heroic struggling with the high sea, that they finally reached the Yugre and took from the rigging the nearly famished crew, composed of the captain and eight men. The rescued men stated that their vessel had been caught in a gale and became water logged. For five days they had subsisted on a little bread soaked in sea water and were nearly exhausted when taken from the wreck.

Prisoner Shot to Death in Jail.

NEW ORLEANS, December 23.—In Madisonville, just across Lake Ponchartrain, William Flutas tendered a fifty-dollar Confederate note to a small boy in a store in payment for goods and went home. The authorities went to recover the goods, but Flutas barricaded his residence and made a desperate resistance with a pitchfork. A number of shots were fired into the building, but Flutas held out twenty-four hours. On his way to jail he swore he would kill every one engaged in his arrest upon release. The threats had their effect, and on Sunday night a crowd surrounded the jail and shot the prisoner to death. He was dangerous and overbearing and had shown symptoms of insanity. He killed a man a year ago but was acquitted.

Yale Sophomore Awards.

NEW HAVEN, December 23.—President Porter, of Yale, announced yesterday morning the names of the following men as winners of the Sophomore Composition prizes: First Prize—William Kent, San Raefael, Cal.; Yan Phou Lee, Fragrant Hills, China; W. L. Phelps, New Haven; J. N. Pomeroy, San Francisco. Second Prizes—A. F. Gates, Lebanon, Conn.; G. E. Hill, Stamford, Conn.; C. H. Ludington, Jr., New York; J. R. Sheffield, Utica, N. Y. Third Prizes—C. L. Brownson, New Canaan, Conn.; R. J. Tenks, Newport, N. H.; J. W. Middlebrook, Wilton, Conn.; J. H. Put, Brooklyn, N. Y.; H. P. Perkins, Harvard, Mass.

Gasoline Tank Explosion.

SOUTH FRAMINGTON, Mass., December 23.—At 1:40 o'clock yesterday morning, while Bradley Childs, manager of Odd Fellows' block, was filling the gasoline tank in the celler, the gas ignited and an explosion followed. Windows were blown out, partitions broken down, show cases smashed and a large stock of crockery destroyed. Twenty feet of the rear brick wall was moved four inches. Childs was badly cut about the head, and the hair burned off. Two boys seated in front of the building were thrown to the opposite side of the street.

Four Thousand Miners on a Strike.

MONONGAHELA CITY, Pa., December 23.—The coal miners all along the Monongahela River, as anticipated, went out on a strike for an advance of half a cent per bushel on the price of mining. By noon it was known at the miners' general office, in Pittsburgh, that the strike had begun in earnest and that nearly four thousand men had quit work. The operators assert rather than concede the advance they will close down their pits indefinitely.

The Weavers Did Not Respond.

WOONSOCKET, R. I., December 23.—All the machinery of the Manville mills was started up yesterday morning but only the operatives in the carding and spinning departments, with six weavers out of six hundred, responded; so it is thought a shut down will again take place. The weavers seem united in their demand, and will not return to work if the cut-down is persisted in.

Arrested for Murder.

NEWARK, N. J., December 23.—Everett Shepardson was arrested late last evening on suspicion of having shot Augustus Gibbings, the farm laborer at Dr. N. H. C. Vail's residence at South Orange, December 13. The prisoner made a statement upon being arrested, but the coroner refused to make it public.

Whole Family Suffocated.

ALBANY, N. Y., December 23.—Burt Earl and family, consisting of his wife and two children, residing at 132 First Street, were suffocated with coal gas Sunday night. When found Earl and the youngest child were dead. Hopes are entertained for the recovery of Mrs. Earl and the other child.

A Candidate for the United States Senate.

ALBANY, N. Y., The Evening Journal yesterday printed a letter from William M. Evarts, in which he expresses his readiness and desire to be considered among the candidates for election by the Legislature to the United States Senate from New York.

Arrested for Illegal Voting.

BUFFALO, December 23.—Richard C. Gunning, of the insurance firm of Crosby & Gunning, has been held for trial in $1,000 bail at the next term of the United States Court in Albany for illegally voting in this city at the last election.

Frozen to Death.

MARQUETTE, Mich., December 23.—Thomas Godley, aged fifty years, a wealthy English mill owner, started to go from this place to the village of Harvey, four miles distant, and was caught in a snow storm and frozen to death.

Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly

The opening number for January, 1885, commences the new volume brilliantly, and the publisher seems determined to maintain the character of this popular magazine as the most varied, comprehensive and the cheapest periodical published. Among the finely illustrated articles are: "The Rise and Fall of a Great Party," by W. A. Croffut; "A Midwinter Cruise Among the Antillies," by W. S. Hughes; "Our Vanishing Game-birds" by H. W. DeLong; "A Stroll through the Island of Jersey," by Professor Charles A Joy; "Prussia's First King," by Alfred H. Guernsey; "In the Cork Forests of Spain;" "Hibernation of Mammals" by J. Dunn; "Troubadours Ancient and Modern," by F. Hueffer; "Reminiscences of Lamartine," by Richard B. Kimball, author of St. Legar," etc., etc., etc. The serial "The Death Mark," is continued, and there are short stories, poems, sketches etc., by favorite writers; an abundant miscellany, 128 quarto pages and over 100 illustrations. The price is only 25 cents a number, or $2.50 a year, postpaid. MRS. FRANK LESLIE, 53, 55 and 57 Park Place, New York.

THE

Chicago Weekly News

AND THE

TECUMSEH HERALD FOR $2.25

THE CHICAGO WEEKLY NEWS is now an eight page, sixty-four column paper. It is the largest "dollar weekly" in America. Its eight broad long pages present each week a mass of choicely selected matter, containing much to suit each of the varying tastes of the family circle. First and foremost it gives ALL THE NEWS, complete as to details, yet concise in form. Its connection with the CHICAGO DAILY NEWS (member of the Associated Press) gives it facilities for news gathering unsurpassed by any journal in the country. Its MARKET REPORTS are specially complete and thoroughly trustworthy. Particular attention is given to agricultural and home matters. Every issue contains SIX COMPLETED STORIES, and a regular installment of an original story by some well-known English or American author, exclusively secured for the CHICAGO DAILY NEWS. Condensed notes on fashions, art, industries, literature, science, etc., etc., appear regularly.

Few papers in the country are so extensively quoted by the press in general for its bright and humorous paragraphs as the Chicago Daily News. These are all reproduced in the WEEKLY NEWS. In its editorial expression the paper speaks from the standpoint of the INDEPENDENT journalist, thereby escaping the temptation to support or condone the questionable under the pressure of party allegiance. Mere partisan extremists will not like it; the fair-minded and thoughtful of all parties will appreciate and value its candid statements of facts and conclusions, all calculated to qualify the reader for the formation of his own intelligent opinion. The political events of the year to come promise to assume such a character that a thoroughly truthful and impartial record becomes all important rather than a partisan one, colored and perverted to individual liking.

In all its departments the CHICAGO WEEKLY NEWS aims to present an enterprising, impartial and entertaining family newspaper of the very highest grade.

WHAT OLD SUBSCRIBERS SAY

When they Renew their Subscriptions.

William Cannons, Pontiac, Oakland County, Mich., says: "I think it is the best paper in America."

L. A. Welch, Sullivan, O., says: "It is better than many of the $2 papers."

James P. Malone, 253 St. Charles street, New Orleans, La., says: "In comparing your paper with others I receive, I must say yours, the CHICAGO WEEKLY NEWS, is good, better, best. I would sooner miss a meal than a number of the News. It is the newspaper of the day. It's true to its name."

Alfred P. Foster, Woodbull, Henry County, Ill., says: "It is one of the ablest papers published."

W. W. Rhodes, Adrian, Mich., says: "I don't want to miss a number. It is the best paper for news I have ever seen."

Peter Lansing, Postmaster, Saunders County, Neb., says: "I like THE WEEKLY NEWS. It is full of readable and valuable news, and although I am in receipt of nine weekly journals, I am constrained to adopt THE WEEKLY NEWS as No. 10, because of its non-partisan attitude in politics, giving me the gangrelled truth concerning the actions of all political parties."

M. E. Davenport, Palmyra, N. Y., says: "It is the cheapest and best paper I ever read."

Mrs. L. Schouan, Hannibal, Mo., says: "I like your paper very much. I get six other papers, but do not like them as well as the WEEKLY NEWS."

W. R. Law, Mansfield, Tex., says: "I am highly pleased with the NEWS, for I get politics presented to it in such a way that I get both sides of the question fairly set forth, which is utterly impossible to get in a strictly party journal of either side."

Its size and character considered, the CHICAGO WEEKLY NEWS is the cheapest weekly in America. ONE DOLLAR A YEAR, postage included. Our special Clubbing Terms bring it within the reach of all our subscribers. Specimen copies may be seen at this office. Send Subscriptions to this office.

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.

CLINTON CHAPTER.

Ray Conklin and wife, of Manchester, spent Saturday and Sunday in Clinton.

Ned Newcomb, of Blissfield, is visiting his sister, Mrs. J. T. Clark.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Mensing, of Tecumseh, have been spending a few days at the Lancaster House.

A short service was held at the M. E. church Sunday evening. The programme which was to be given was postponed till Jan. 4th on account of so few being present, owing to the unpleasant weather.

C. F. Field and family, of Tecumseh, spent Christmas at J. S. Kies'.

Mrs. Loana Tuttle is spending the holidays in Tecumseh with her sister, Mrs. E. G. Cook, and other friends.

Prof. Laflin and family are in Ypsilanti this week.

William Burtless and family ate Christmas dinner at John Hause's.

Mr. E. Palmer came home from Sheboygan, Wis., for a short visit to his family.

S. W. Demuth reports an excellent holiday trade in spite of 'hard times.'

The Episcopal social will be held Friday evening, Jan. 2nd, at the residence of D. H. Silvers. Every one is invited, and teams will be provided all those wishing to come.

Henry Lancaster has been seriously ill from dyspepsia. He has been confined to the house for several days, but is gaining slowly and hopes soon to be about again as usual.

E. Van Da Mark went to Cleveland last Monday morning. He has been re-engaged to travel for the firm of Adams and Jewitt, manufacturers of paper sacks, of that city. It is the same company for whom he had worked several years previous to his late engagement with an Eastern firm.

Rev. Mr. Barnes, from Williamston, Mich., who has been engaged as pastor of the Congregational church of this place, preached from that pulpit last Sunday morning and evening. He is having the parsonage prepared for his family who are expected here shortly.

John Ed. McCollum has distributed some very handsome cards during the holidays. He is an industrious and ambitious man and seems to be meeting the success which every one wished him when he started in business here.

Clinton is having more than her share of weddings this week. Invitations have already been issued for the marriage of Miss Ella M. Bartlett and Chas. F. Clark, on New Year's eve, and for Miss Sarah Kishpaugh and Will H. Dove, New Year's night.—Further particulars next week.

The Clinton Local is now making its appearance regularly every Saturday and looks as though it had become a fixture of Clinton. The proprietor, C. K. Spafford, has taken the east room of the Reynold's block and has fixed it up nicely, where he will hereafter print the Local. Success to his enterprise.

C. S. Burroughs continues making needed improvements on his drug store. The latest are new counters extending from the door to the prescription case on the west side, and half the length of the store on the east side. By a few such changes he hopes to make his place of business pleasant and attractive to his customers as well as convenient for himself.

Some of our merchants were the recipients of valuable and useful presents on Christmas day. John Ed. McCollum received from the firm of whom he purchases the greater part of his goods, an elegant chinchilla beaver overcoat. His opposite neighbor, J. B. Hause, was presented, by his partner, D. M. Bainbridge, with a handsome gold watch. His good fortune did not end here however. On going to the Christmas tree which the Congregational ladies had provided for their sabbath school, he found awaiting him another present in the shape of a watch chain from his wife.

The annual supper given by the Masons at their hall on Saturday evening, Dec. 27, St. John's day, was a success in every particular. About eighty persons were present, which, owing to the inclemency of the weather, was many more than were expected; and each and every one enjoyed themselves. The fraternity seem to thoroughly understand the art of making their gatherings entertaining and pleasant. A committee had been appointed the night before to prepare a programme which was carried out very successfully. Part of it was presented before supper and while the tables were being prepared the second time, the period usually spent in impatient waiting, was made to seem unusually short by the remainder of the programme. "Golden Years" was sung by Dr. Burchard and wife and Mr. and Mrs. E. Van De Mark. After that came "Darius Green with his flying machine," by Miss Laura Clark who is always warmly welcomed on the stage by virtue of her well known ability as a reader. Misses Ella Bartlett and Floy Rich sang a duett. Of what followed, the solo by Mrs. Josie St. John and the essay by Mrs. Laflin, which was well written and excellently read, were especially enjoyed. The supper, as usual, was faultless, and all retired to their homes pleasantly impressed with the entertaining qualities of the Masons.

ADDISON ATOMS.

Who shall be postmaster? appears to be the question before the village now a days.

Ex. Deputy Sheriff Crandall proposes to build a skating rink here as soon as the weather will permit.

The G. A. R's at this place are on the war path again and announce an elocutionary entertainment to-night, Tuesday.

The few of our citizens who went to Adrian and Hudson to purchase holiday goods return with the announcement that goods are sold cheaper here than at those points. We believe the same is true of staple goods as well.

Christmas passed off here with the usual accompaniments of gifts, oysters and kisses; just as it did when Santa Claus was a kid and first started in his mission.

A Chrisfmas tree laden with gifts rich and rare was reported at the Kempton homestead, while numerous other private entertainments in the village sufficed to make the day one of which brevity appeared to be the only requisite to perfection.

RIDGEWAY RAMBLES.

Quite like spring for a day a two.

How sudden the snow disappeared.

Mrs. E. A. Wilson, of Vasser, arrived at Mr. W. R. Wilson's on Friday evening.

Prof. H. C. and E. A. Wilson and wives are at Lansing this week attending the teacher's institute.

Frank Allen, Agt. at Jerome, spent Christmas with friends here.

Mr. Edgar Freer, of Mason, is visiting relatives and friends here.

Kelly, Stevens & Co. shipped a double deck car load of hogs Monday to Buffalo. They were a very fine lot of porkers.

Mrs. Dr. Nelson and Mrs W. J. Clack, went to Dundee Tuesday to visit friends.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Jackson left Tuesday morning to visit Mr. E. A. Palmer at Hillsdale.

The friends at Britton will give a box entertainment at the Christian church, Britton next Tuesday evening Jan. 6th 1885. The ladies will please furnish a box containing eatables for two. A cordial invitation to all.

The election of officers for the Sunday school will occur next Sunday. Officers, teachers and members of the S. S. board are requested to be present.

The box entertainment given at the church on Friday evening of last week, for the benefit of the Sunday school was a very pleasant time for all present. Mr. and Mrs. Santa Claus being present made it very amusing for the little ones. The receipts amounted to $12.00.

Wednesday afternoon of last week relatives and friends, upwards of 50 or more, gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Florance to celebrate their fifth marriage anniversary. After a social chat, refreshments were served, consisting of various eatables after which all enjoyed the pleasure of the occasion. The young couple have two fine little boys to welcome them on life's journey. The presents were very fine, and are as follows.

Father Florance—Paper holder.

Mother Florance—Stew kettle and crystal cake server.

Tommy and Montie Florance—Two little rocking chairs.

Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Hall—Corner Bracket.

Mrs. Sarah Norcross—Fruit dish.

Mr. Wm. Cox—Damask towel.

Miss Minnie Kelley—Damask towel.

Mrs. Ali Machum—Damask towel.

Miss Cora Kelley—Napkins.

Mr. and Mrs. J. McIntyre—Butter knife.

Mrs. Morris Kelley—Floursifter.

Miss Marris Kelley—Tidy holders.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Linn—Dress pattern.

Miss Clara Norcross—Toilet set.

Mr. and Mrs. Mesler—Chromos.

Miss Minnie Montgomery—Individual castor.

Dewitt, Rhoda and Lou Arner—Towel rack.

Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Bowen—Paper holder.

F. G. Florance—Clothes ringer.

J. H. Norcross—Comb set.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Culbertson Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. Chas. A. Pocklington—Camp chair.

The Literary Society of this place has reorganized and will present the following program at its next regular meeting, which will be held in the lecture room of the M. E. Church, on Friday evening, Jan. 2, 1885:

Music—Gospel Song.
Devotional exercises.
Recitation—Miss Mary Osgood.
Reading—Miss Belle Barlow.
Song—Dewitt Arner.
Recitation—Mrs. Chas. Gove.
Essay—G. P. Waring.
Music—Miss Vina Underwood.
Declamation—David Gibson.
Short Address—Rev. W. J. Clack.

RECESS.

Debate—Resolved, That the Electoral College should be abolished.
Aff.—G. D. Arner, A. E. Palmer.
Neg.—Peter Sharp, T. H. Temple.
Music—Miss Josie Clarkson.

Admission free. As the program is a little long, the society will be called to order promptly at 7:15 o'clock.

A cordial invitation is extended to all. BY ORDER OF EX. COM.

That School Meeting.

The man that wrote the item in relation to the special school meeting held in Ridgeway on the 22d inst. scored a point as follows.

He says; "the meeting was quite largely attended but nothing of any importance was done." Now, we can't tolerate any such ignorance and shall have to build to educate the man or send him away again. The facts are the meeting was largely attended and the business for which the meeting was called was attended to. The motion to reconsider the action of the annual meeting brought out considerable discussion, but when put to vote was carried by an overwhelming majority, after which the school house craze was practically voted to death.

TAX PAYER.

TIPTON TOPICS.

The ground was broken and the work of grading commenced on the long talked of depot on Tuesday, the 30th ult. If the weather is favorable and nothing further occurs to hinder the work Tipton will be a genuine railroad town in a short time.

R. P. Buttrick has a new telegraph clicker in his house, connected with the C. T. line.

The January thaw was a little premature and has effected a complete change in the mode of travel and the aspect of the country.

Franklin has two pastors with the suggestive names of Rev. Storms and Rev. Wall. Both are young men of ability and enthusiastic workers.

The M. E. church gave a concert on Christmas eve. which was well attended and a pleasing entertainment; and the Congregationalists held their jug-breaking exercises on Christmas night, which was also a decided success.

Mrs. H. Learnard and W. Learnard and wife started for Southern Kansas on Monday. We wish them prosperity in their new home.

MACON MUSIC.

"El" Hendershot is home from the University to spend holidays.

Mary Richart is home for the holidays.

Milan Sage and wife went to Vermontville last week to remain over Christmas.

Shooting-match at the corners Dec. 24th. By the noise made some one ought to have got a turkey.

A Happy New New Year to all.

The "open winter" has struck us—softly.

On account of the inclement weather, the Christmas concert was not held as announced.

Last Friday evening a few of Will Hatch's friends took him by surprise. The evening was very pleasantly spent with plays and games till a late hour, when each returned to his respective home. May Will enjoy may more surprises.

The pound social for the benefit of the band boys was held at the residence of Wm. Osgood last Tuesday.

The most interesting discourse we have had the pleasure of listening to lately was delivered last Sunday by Rev. Mr. Kerridge. He gave a history of Methodism, showing its marvelous growth during the last century, the influence exerted by it in breaking down prejudices, correcting the morals of society, especially of the 18th century, doing away with licentiousness and a perverted literature and bringing the world back to a true religious status.

HOLLOWAY HASH.

Latest sensations are: first, lots of mud, and secondly, a twelve pound boy at John Gordon's. Say, John, hurrah for Cleveland.

Brad Parker is getting better.

On Christmas day Dr. Begel administered chloroform to a lady at Raisin Center, a sister of Mrs. Frink and extracted sixteen teeth. Guess she is glad that Christmas don't come but once a year.

The Bulls and Bears have had another set to and the result is that the bottom has fallen out of the candy market. It reached twelve and one-half cents per pound, and several counties to hear from. The boys who buy the article seem to rejoice over this state of affairs. Well, it is an ill wind that blows no one good.

That long looked for load of coal has arrived at last and now we shall expect to see peace restored in several families.

A house belonging to a German named Chris Kamerer, who lives two and one-half miles south-east of Holloway in the corner of Blissfield was destroyed by fire one night last week. Part of the household goods were secured and it is thought the house might have been saved if the supply of water had not given out.

P. M. Lossing had the misfortune to have one hog break its leg and another its leg and back one day last week. Well, Philo, we are sorry for you, and if you will let us know when you will have a rib baked, we will try to get there and help you out on it.

Bert Arner is home during holidays and looks natural as ever. Guess club hash agrees with him pretty well, at least he don't seem to lose flesh very fast.

We noticed the genial face of our old friend Lon Squires on the treet to-day. We can't see but that he looks just as he did before he got married. But then, it takes time for trouble to change a man's looks very materially.

SPRINGVILLE SIFTINGS.

The Springville Skating Rink is now advertised for opening on Monday evening Jan. 5th.

The Club dance at the Springville Hotel on Christmas night was a success—forty-five couple in attendance. The next one will be on Jan. 9th, '85.

The Misses Dowling, daughters of late R. J. Dowling of our town, arrived at San Francisco on the 18th inst. on their route to Sidney, New South Wales, where they expect to make their future home.

Santa Claus was around Christmas distributing carcasses of sheep and other eatables to the needy.

The storm of Saturday and Sunday has carried off the snow and made water for farmers and millers.

Marion Ladd, our blacksmith, starts out soon on the road selling a patent article for blacksmith's use. They say it has merit.

There is but little news around. The closing up of the year 1884 has caused a calm so that we can look back on the past, and perhaps make better calculations for the future in all transactions of life. Hoping that we may all pass through the coming year in prosperity and happiness, is the wish of all Springville.

ALPHA.

The components of Dr. Bull's cough syrup are daily prescribed by the ablest physicians, whose success is due to the specific influence of these components. Dr. Bull's cough syrup skillfully prepared for immediate use, is for sale by all druggists.

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.

CLINTON CHAPTER.

Ray Conklin and wife, of Manchester, spent Saturday and Sunday in Clinton.

Ned Newcomb, of Blissfield, is visiting his sister, Mrs. J. T. Clark.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Mensing, of Tecumseh, have been spending a few days at the Lancaster House.

A short service was held at the M. E. church Sunday evening. The programme which was to be given was postponed till Jan. 4th on account of so few being present, owing to the unpleasant weather.

C. F. Field and family, of Tecumseh, spent Christmas at J. S. Kies'.

Mrs. Loana Tuttle is spending the holidays in Tecumseh with her sister, Mrs. E. G. Cook, and other friends.

Prof. Laflin and family are in Ypsilanti this week.

William Burtless and family ate Christmas dinner at John Hause's.

Mr. E. Palmer came home from Sheboygan, Wis., for a short visit to his family.

S. W. Demuth reports an excellent holiday trade in spite of 'hard times.'

The Episcopal social will be held Friday evening, Jan. 2nd, at the residence of D. H. Silvers. Every one is invited, and teams will be provided all those wishing to come.

Henry Lancaster has been seriously ill from dyspepsia. He has been confined to the house for several days, but is gaining slowly and hopes soon to be about again as usual.

E. Van De Mark went to Cleveland last Monday morning. He has been re-engaged to travel for the firm of Adams and Jewitt, manufacturers of paper sacks, of that city. It is the same company for whom he had worked several years previous to his late engagement with an Eastern firm.

Rev. Mr. Barnes, from Williamston, Mich., who has been engaged as pastor of the Congregational church of this place, preached from that pulpit last Sunday morning and evening. He is having the parsonage prepared for his family who are expected here shortly.

John Ed. McCollum has distributed some very handsome cards during the holidays. He is an industrious and ambitious man and seems to be meeting the success which every one wished him when he started in business here.

Clinton is having more than her share of weddings this week. Invitations have already been issued for the marriage of Miss Ella M. Bartlett and Chas. F. Clark, on New Year's eve, and for Miss Sarah Kishpaugh and Will H. Dove, New Year's night.—Further particulars next week.

The Clinton Local is now making its appearance regularly every Saturday and looks as though it had become a fixture of Clinton. The proprietor, C. K. Spafford, has taken the east room of the Reynold's block and has fixed it up nicely, where he will hereafter print the Local. Success to his enterprise.

C. S. Burroughs continues making needed improvements on his drug store. The latest are new counters extending from the door to the prescription case on the west side, and half the length of the store on the east side. By a few such changes he hopes to make his place of business pleasant and attractive to his customers as well as convenient for himself.

Some of our merchants were the recipients of valuable and useful presents on Christmas day. John Ed. McCollum received from the firm of whom he purchases the greater part of his goods, an elegant chinchilla beaver overcoat. His opposite neighbor, J. B. Hause, was presented, by his partner, D. M. Bainbridge, with a handsome gold watch. His good fortune did not end here however. On going to the Christmas tree which the Congregational ladies had provided for their sabbath school, he found awaiting him another present in the shape of a watch chain from his wife.

The annual supper given by the Masons at their hall on Saturday evening, Dec. 27, St. John's day, was a success in every particular. About eighty persons were present, which, owing to the inclemency of the weather, was many more than were expected, and each and every one enjoyed themselves. The fraternity seem to thoroughly understand the art of making their gatherings entertaining and pleasant. A committee had been appointed the night before to prepare a programme which was carried out very successfully. Part of it was presented before supper and while the tables were being prepared the second time, the period usually spent in impatient waiting, was made to seem unusually short by the remainder of the programme. "Golden Years" was sung by Dr. Burchard and wife and Mr. and Mrs. E. Van De Mark. After that came "Darius Green with his flying machine," by Miss Laura Clark who is always warmly welcomed on the stage by virtue of her well known ability as a reader. Misses Ella Bartlett and Floy Rich sang a duett. Of what followed, the solo by Mrs. Josie St. John and the essay by Mrs. Laflin, which was well written and excellently read, were especially enjoyed. The supper, as usual, was faultless, and all retired to their homes pleasantly impressed with the entertaining qualities of the Masons.

ADDISON ATOMS.

Who shall be postmaster? appears to be the question before the village now a days.

Ex. Deputy Sheriff Crandall proposes to build a skating rink here as soon as the weather will permit.

The G. A. R's at this place are on the war path again and announce an elocutionary entertainment to-night, Tuesday.

The few of our citizens who went to Adrian and Hudson to purchase holiday goods return with the announcement that goods are sold cheaper here than at those points. We believe the same is true of staple goods as well.

Christmas passed off here with the usual accompaniments of gifts, oysters and kisses; just as it did when Santa Claus was a kid and first started in his mission.

A Christmas tree laden with gifts rich and rare was reported at the Kempton homestead, while numerous other private entertainments in the village sufficed to make the day one of which brevity appeared to be the only requisite to perfection.

RIDGEWAY RAMBLES.

Quite like spring for a day a two.

How sudden the snow disappeared.

Mrs. E. A. Wilson, of Vasser, arrived at Mr. W. R. Wilson's on Friday evening.

Prof. H. C. and E. A. Wilson and wives are at Lansing this week attending the teacher's institute.

Frank Allen, Agt. at Jerome, spent Christmas with friends here.

Mr. Edgar Freer, of Mason, is visiting relatives and friends here.

Kelly, Stevens & Co. shipped a double deck car load of hogs Monday to Buffalo. They were a very fine lot of porkers.

Mrs. Dr. Nelson and Mrs W. J. Clack, went to Dundee Tuesday to visit friends.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Jackson left Tuesday morning to visit Mr. E. A. Palmer at Hillsdale.

The friends at Britton will give a box entertainment at the Christian church, Britton next Tuesday evening Jan. 6th 1885. The ladies will please furnish a box containing eatables for two. A cordial invitation to all.

The election of officers for the Sunday school will occur next Sunday. Officers, teachers and members of the S. S. board are requested to be present.

The box entertainment given at the church on Friday evening of last week, for the benefit of the Sunday school was a very pleasant time for all present. Mr. and Mrs. Santa Claus being present made it very amusing for the little ones. The receipts amounted to $12.00.

Wednesday afternoon of last week relatives and friends, upwards of 50 or more, gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Florance to celebrate their fifth marriage anniversary. After a social chat, refreshments were served, consisting of various eatables after which all enjoyed the pleasure of the occasion. The young couple have two fine little boys to welcome them on life's journey. The presents were very fine, and are as follows.

Father Florance—Paper holder.
Mother Florance—Stew kettle and crystal cake server.
Tommy and Montie Florance—Two little rocking chairs.
Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Hall—Corner Bracket.
Mrs. Sarah Norcross—Fruit dish.
Mr. Wm. Cox—Damask towel.
Miss Minnie Kelley—Damask towel.
Mrs. Ali Machan—Damask towel.
Miss Cora Kelley—Napkins.
Mr. and Mrs. J. McIntyre—Butter knife.
Mrs. Morris Kelley—Floursifter.
Miss Marris Kelley—Tidy holders.
Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Lum—Dress pattern.
Miss Clara Norcross—Toilet set.
Mr. and Mrs. Mesler—Chromos.
Miss Minnie Montgomery—Individual castor.
Dewitt, Rhoda and Lou Arner—Towel rack.
Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Bowen—Paper holder.
F. G. Florance—Clothes ringer.
J. H. Norcross—Comb set.
Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Culbertson Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. Chas. A. Pocklington—Camp chair.

The Literary Society of this place has reorganized and will present the following program at its next regular meeting, which will be held in the lecture room of the M. E. Church, on Friday evening, Jan. 2, 1885:

Music—Gospel Song.
Devotional exercises.
Recitation—Miss Mary Osgood.
Reading—Miss Belle Barlow.
Song—Dewitt Arner.
Recitation—Mrs. Chas. Gove.
Essay—G. P. Waring.
Music—Miss Vina Underwood.
Declamation—David Gibson.
Short Address—Rev. W. J. Clack.

RECESS.

Debate—Resolved, That the Electoral College should be abolished.

Aff.—G. D. Arner, A. E. Palmer.
Neg.—Peter Sharp, T. H. Temple.
Music—Miss Josie Clarkson.

Admission free. As the program is a little long, the society will be called to order promptly at 7:15 o'clock.

A cordial invitation is extended to all. BY ORDER OF EX. COM.

That School Meeting.

The man that wrote the item in relation to the special school meeting held in Ridgeway on the 22d inst. scored a point as follows.

He says; "the meeting was quite largely attended but nothing of any importance was done." Now, we can't tolerate any such ignorance and shall have to build to educate the man or send him away again. The facts are the meeting was largely attended and the business for which the meeting was called was attended to. The motion to reconsider the action of the annual meeting brought out considerable discussion, but when put to vote was carried by an overwhelming majority, after which the school house craze was practically voted to death.

TAX PAYER.

TIPTON TOPICS.

The ground was broken and the work of grading commenced on the long talked of depot on Tuesday, the 30th ult. If the weather is favorable and nothing further occurs to hinder the work Tipton will be a genuine railroad town in a short time.

R. P. Buttrick has a new telegraph clicker in his house, connected with the C. T. line.

The January thaw was a little premature and has effected a complete change in the mode of travel and the aspect of the country.

Franklin has two pastors, with the suggestive names of Rev. Storms and Rev. Wall. Both are young men of ability and enthusiastic workers.

The M. E. church gave a concert on Christmas eve. which was well attended and a pleasing entertainment; and the Congregationalists held their jug-breaking exercises on Christmas night, which was also a decided success.

Mrs. H. Learnard and W. Learnard and wife started for Southern Kansas on Monday. We wish them prosperity in their new home.

MACON MUSIC.

"El" Hendershot is home from the University to spend holidays.

Mary Richart is home for the holidays.

Milan Sage and wife went to Vermontville last week to remain over Christmas.

Shooting-match at the corners Dec. 24th. By the noise made some one ought to have got a turkey.

A Happy New New Year to all.

The "open winter" has struck us—softly.

On account of the inclement weather, the Christmas concert was not held as announced.

Last Friday evening a few of Will Hatch's friends took him by surprise. The evening was very pleasantly spent with plays and games till a late hour, when each returned to his respective home. May Will enjoy many more surprises.

The pound social for the benefit of the band boys was held at the residence of Wm. Osgood last Tuesday.

The most interesting discourse we have had the pleasure of listening to lately was delivered last Sunday by Rev. Mr. Kerridge. He gave a history of Methodism, showing its marvelous growth during the last century, the influence exerted by it in breaking down prejudices, correcting the morals of society, especially of the 18th century, doing away with licentiousness and a perverted literature and bringing the world back to a true religious status.

HOLLOWAY HASH.

Latest sensations are: first, lots of mud, and secondly, a twelve pound boy at John Gordon's. Say, John, hurrah for Cleveland.

Brad Parker is getting better.

On Christmas day Dr. Begel administered chloroform to a lady at Raisin Center, a sister of Mrs. Frink and extracted sixteen teeth. Guess she is glad that Christmas don't come but once a year.

The Bulls and Bears have had another set to and the result is that the bottom has fallen out of the candy market. It reached twelve and one-half cents per pound, and several counties to hear from. The boys who buy the article seem to rejoice over this state of affairs. Well, it is an ill wind that blows no one good.

That long looked for load of coal has arrived at last and now we shall expect to see peace restored in several families.

A house belonging to a German named Chris Kamerer, who lives two and one-half miles south-east of Holloway in the corner of Blissfield was destroyed by fire one night last week. Part of the household goods were secured and it is thought the house might have been saved if the supply of water had not given out.

P. M. Lossing had the misfortune to have one hog break its leg and another its leg and back one day last week. Well, Philo, we are sorry for you, and if you will let us know when you will have a rib baked, we will try to get there and help you out on it.

Bert Arner is home during holidays and looks natural as ever. Guess club hash agrees with him pretty well, at least he don't seem to lose flesh very fast.

We noticed the genial face of our old friend Lon Squires on the treet to-day. We can't see but that he looks just as he did before he got married. But then, it takes time for trouble to change a man's looks very materially.

SPRINGVILLE SIFTINGS.

The Club dance at the Springville Hotel on Christmas night was a success—forty five couple in attendance. The next one will be on Jan. 9th, '85.

The Misses Dowling, daughters of late R. J. Dowling of our town, arrived at San Francisco on the 18th inst. on their route to Sidney, New South Wales, where they expect to make their future home.

Santa Claus was around Christmas distributing carcasses of sheep and other eatables to the needy.

The storm of Saturday and Sunday has carried off the snow and made water for farmers and millers.

Marion Ladd, our blacksmith, starts out soon on the road selling a patent article for blacksmith's use. They say it has merit.

There is but little news around. The closing up of the year 1884 has caused a calm so that we can look back on the past, and perhaps make better calculations for the future in all transactions of life. Hoping that we may all pass through the coming year in prosperity and happiness, is the wish of all Springville. ALPHA.

The components of Dr. Bull's cough syrup are daily prescribed by the ablest physicians, whose success is due to the specific influence of these components. Dr. Bull's cough syrup skillfully prepared for immediate use, is for sale by all druggists.

TECUMSEH MICH JAN [illegible] 1887

THE NEW YEAR'S PEACE

I saw [illegible] year
I saw [illegible]
[illegible]
Stooping [illegible] white
[illegible]
Heaven
"[illegible] Old Year is [illegible]
Her sins [illegible]

Then January, with a child's grace
[illegible]
And with her robes that shone like frost
[illegible]
And swift Sunset began as sunshine in her face
Stood like an angel purer than the snows.

Her merry greeting rang
Like music through his cottage, and once more
His face grew bright—more bright than ever before—
And lifting up his face to God he sang

I saw her kiss poor tear-worn cheeks, and bring
Light to the mourner's eyes.
I saw the sad turn from their pain and sing,
I saw the weary hearts in Hope's purer spring—
That sweet Siloam that flows from Paradise.

O January! month of joy! we hear
On every side thy voice:
It flows out upon the air with its life and cheer,
The future waits for all men bright and clear—
Each rising sun cries to the world: "Rejoice!"

He treasures not our sins who rules in Heaven.
Time with an angel pen,
Each day blots writes that one sweet word
"Forgiven"
On every heart that for the right has striven
Peace, kind as snow, makes fair the paths of men.

SALLY'S S'POSEN.

A "Right Regular" and "Truly-uly" Happy New Year's Day.

It was the night after Christmas. The dear parents, who had expected to be at home several days before the blessed Christmas eve, were yet detained away; and the children had hung up their stockings and taken them down, too, for the first time in their lives, with no loving parents' smile of surprise, sympathy and joy to enhance the value of each Christmas favor.

"It must have stormed furiously up there, and papa and mamma are snowbound very likely," said Georgie, as he fetched a wood box behind the kitchen stove. "In that case, they may not get away from the mills for another week."

"Oh!" cried both the twin pairs. "It will be Happy New Year before that time. They'll have to come home. Merry Christmas hasn't been half merry; and Happy New Year won't be happy at all without mamma and papa."

George and Mary exchanged glances and smiled. They felt as the twins did; but they forebore to say so.

"It is turning colder," Mary said, presently. "Did you split a good lot of wood, Georgie?"

"Yes; and you burn two or three good lots. We must let the dining-room fire go out and contrive to eat in the kitchen. Can't we?"

"I suppose we'll have to," said Mary, with a faint sigh. "It is growing colder every hour. Hear that dismal blast! We must all be as brave as ever we can. Oh! I hope papa and mamma are not worrying about us."

"Bud and I will go to the timber to-morrow, and drag up a big lot of fagots," said Bije. Bud and Bije were the ten-year-old twins. "Mrs. Mason doesn't get any wood but fagots. She says they burn capital. She and Neddy drag them up with a rope."

Mary smiled.

"They live so near the woods, little boy," she said. "Yet you may try to get one load to-morrow; for I am sure I shall need much firing. There, Bije, don't crowd the yeast jug so, or you'll tip it over, and we'll get no light bread to-morrow. You're copying after Jim, coddling down in a corner for a nap. Hop up. Let's have our Bible reading, and then we'll cover up the fire and go to bed."

"Don't get the blues, 'Molly,'" said Georgie. "You never care to go to bed before nine o'clock, unless you're blue over something. Papa and mamma are able to take care of themselves. You know papa said that was a rough country and the traveling accommodations were almost none, even in good weather. Now, it must have stormed up there; and they can't get any one to convey them over to the stage. I think I see just how it is."

"So do I," said Mary. "But it is perplexing. I wish they were here. If they shouldn't get home by New-Year's Day——"

"You oughtn't to cross bridges before you come to 'em," said Bud, sagely, as Mary paused as if impressed with the necessity of discomfort contained in the implied possibility of that small "if."

George and Mary looked at the twins in amazement, for a moment; and then both laughed heartily.

"You little Solomons," said Mary. "Where did you get so much wisdom?"

"Mrs. Mason," replied the twins, gravely. "We told her the split wood was most gone, and may be if George couldn't chop faster, and papa and mamma didn't come home pretty soon, we'd freeze to death."

"Oh, you horrid youngsters!" said Georgie, grimacing at Mary.

"And she said then we ought to be very good, so's to be prepared to die if we had to; but that the timber was chock full of fagots, and we could all turn out and drag, same as she did; and we oughtn't to cross bridges before we come to 'em, and nobody but fools would choose to sup sorrow through a long tube."

"Good for Mrs. Mason!" said Mary. "Let's profit by her wisdom. Surely we're not fools, so we'll sup no more on fools' diet. And we won't cross our bridges before we come to them, shall we, Georgie?" "We'll do our very best, and thank God for His blessings, and even if it comes to keeping our New Year's Day without papa and mamma, we'll do our best toward that. Won't we, little ones?"

And the little ones being all wide awake now the Bibles were opened and the reading and the prayers were offered reverently, during service to the good God in whose care the little travelers was left, and at an early hour they were all soundly sleeping.

For three days and nights the snow fell steadily. On the fourth day a furious wind heaped and piled and tossed the snowy drifts. Then the wind shifted and fell, and the fierce, bitter, stinging cold came down.

On the first day, holding Mary to her promise, the twins had worked heroically; and though the snow almost blinded them as they toiled in the teeth of the storm over the half mile of open road that stretched between them and the timber, they accomplished a mighty work, and brought a load of fagots that delighted Mary's eyes.

The little lads were dripping with perspiration, however, and Mary would not let them make a second trip, though they begged lustily, but made them sit behind the kitchen stove till they were thoroughly dried, and she rewarded each with a large apple turnover.

George chopped faithfully for an hour or two every day, and when the fierce cold came, he had a good sized pile of wood. Yet, to his dismay, it consumed away rapidly. The cold was terrible. Frost covered the windows, and in the room where no fire was kept the cold was benumbing. Mary said her fingers felt as if they were freezing, while she hastily made the beds.

"And we're going to have a truly-uly Happy New Year," cried little Sallie, as Mary set about her preparations for the feast in good earnest. "Let's tell s'posens' while we're stoning the raisins and cutting the citron. Won't it be fun?"

And Bud and Bije chiming heartily with the note, Bud at once began to s'pose what he would do, if he were a great Indian chief who had snow-shoes that would carry him over the deepest snow that ever fell, and Bije s'posed he was the Governor of the State, and indulged in many amendments to the prevailing order of things. Little Jim s'posed he was sister Mary. In that case he thought he would cook sausages and buckwheat cakes three times a day, and let the children eat all the bits of citron that fell slantwise on the plate.

"Why, most of 'em fall that way!" said Sally. "You'd be a Tom Gip, wouldn't you?"

Then Sally s'posened: and Mary said hers was the nicest and jolliest s'posen of all. "A right, regular Happy New Year's s'posen," George added.

How hard they all worked, and how cherry with chatter the bright kitchen was for two days before the feast.

On the eve of New Year's Day the great turkey was plucked and hung up, the chickens dressed, the pantry shelves stocked with pies and cake and krullers, and Georgie's favorites, raspberry tartlets.

"We're tired; but we're ready for to-morrow," said Mary. "And we can't have our New Year's dinner in the kitchen, Georgie. Not if I have to go out in the moonlight and chop wood myself. We must have a dining-room fire."

"Which reminds me," said Georgie, with a mock groan, as he took his cap and mittens and went out. Mary heard the blows of his axe long after the little ones were tucked away in bed.

In the morning a second snow-storm was raging.

"Dearie me!" sighed Mary; "if it keeps on at this rate they will never get home."

"Oh, they will arrive in the spring, no doubt, or by Fourth of July, at furthest," answered Georgie, dryly. And Mary blushed; for she remembered that she had resolved to keep the feast with a cheerful mind. So she sighed no more, but prepared the breakfast, not forgetting little Jim's sausage and buckwheats, for which the small lad was hilariously thankful.

After the morning's reading all hands set merrily to work. Georgie fed the fires, and ran down cellar and up for the vegetables and apples and nuts; and he lifted the heavy pots and kettles, and even tied the legs of the plump turkey when Mary had prepared it for the oven. Bud and Bije brightened the silver and scoured the knives until they shone, while Jim and Sally cracked and picked the walnuts and hickories, and heaped a glass dish with the meats. So busy were they all that the clock struck twelve before they took any heed of time. The dining room blazed cheerily, and the silver and glass on the table sparkled in its light, while in the sitting-room Mrs. Lester's white chrysanthemums bloomed bravely, as if there were no snows nor bleak north winds.

"It is getting milder," said Mary, as she rose from the oven, where she had been basting the turkey, her cheeks all aglow with the heat of the stove. "And now everything is doing beautifully, and I may as well dress for dinner. Come, Sally," she cried. "Dodie will watch the dinner, while we dress up in our pretty clothes. That was part of your s'posen, you know. And then we'll tend stove while Dodie and the boys tidy up."

"O, s'posen my s'posen does come true!" almost shrieked Sally, as she sprang to follow her sister to their chamber upstairs. She did scream out delightedly as she entered the room; for lo! a bright fire was blazing on the hearth, and the atmosphere of the room was warm and pleasant.

"Oho, Oho!" she cried, in ecstasy. "Another part of my s'posen has come to pass. Don't you remember, Mary, I said, 'and s'posen when we went shivering and shuddering up to our cold room to put on our pretty clothes, lo and behold somebody had been and made a lovely fire?'"

"You precious little midget!" said Mary, squeezing her tightly in a loving hug. "You shall wear your very best blue sash to-day. You're such a little cheerbody."

"Mary," said the little lass, "I didn't go to sleep right off last night. I prayed to God a long time. I asked Him to make Geordie's arms strong to cut lots of wood—so that may be we could have a nice fire to dress by, and I asked Him to please let you give me the nuts to crack, and—but it's part hasn't come true yet, and the other has. I asked Him to let every bit of my s'posen turn out sure enough. Oh, Mary, won't it be just the sweetest Happy New Year, if He does?"

"Well, it's possible that He may," answered Mary, relenting to the child's sweet hopeful trust, yet expression of doubt, "but we must expect to have no nothing that we ask for, you know. Some things are better kept from us for a while. We must say 'Thy will be done.'"

"I do," said Sally, cheerily. "But I guess God tended to the whole of my prayer, as long as He paid attention to the least specific part of it. I believe my s'posen will come true. And so does Jim."

When the clock struck two, and Mary was smoothing over her mashed potatoes and turnips with nicely-seasoned cream, preparatory to giving them a brown in the oven, and Georgie was arranging the pickles and cranberry sauce on the table, with an eye to the color-effect, and the turkey was done to a turn; when all eyes were on the savory-smelling cooking-stove, a great stamping was heard on the outer porch, and in another moment the door was thrown open, and the fullness of Sally's s'posen was realized, when who should pop in, just in time to sit down in their places, but the dear papa and mamma, who had been kept away so long by the storm, and were not sick, nor lost, nor anything, but just hungry as hungry could be for all the children they had left at home and a big taste of the children's New Year's dinner.

There were happy eyes, merry voices and grateful hearts about that cheerful table. Mr and Mrs. Lester heard with delight of their children's mutual helpfulness and bravery. Both parents and children contributed to the pleasure of the after-dinner hour with stories of their several experiences.

And of all the stories, the sweetest and most precious to the listeners, and the only one twice told, was that of little Sally's Happy New Year's Spoken. For it was the true story of a child's simple faith, and its lesson was received into hearts tender with gratitude and love.—Mary E. C. Wyeth, in N. Y. Independent.

THE COST OF TRAVEL.

A Texan Who Speculated Five Years Ahead on a Trip to New York.

A long, raw, specimen "grey," with mud covered boots, and little flakes of cotton dabbled all over his clothes and ornamenting his red, shaggy beard, sidled up to the Union Depot ticket window last Monday, and asked if the ticket agent was in.

"Yes, sir, that's me," responded Charlie Lusk, trying to size up the inquirer. "What can I do for you?"

"Wal, Cap'n, I wanted ter find out the price of a ticket to Noo Yok. Yer see——"

"Yes, sir," interrupted Charlie, with a bland smile. "I see. Forty-four sixty-five is the fare; we can——"

"Wal, Cap'n 'lowed I'd take a trip when I got things sorter settled up like and——"

"Perfectly right; now, Colonel, let me show you some of our routes. We have a splendid line of routes just in," and Charles brought a bundle of folders down on the window shelf. "Now, here's Fort Worth," he continued, tracing the route with his index finger, "you take our road to St Louis, then——"

"As I was sayin', Cap'n," interrupted the stranger, "I thought me an the ole woman and the boys might go to Noo Yok——"

"Oh, yes. How many are there in the family?"

"Countin' me and the ole woman and all of the boys there's eight."

"Eight!" and Lusk's smile grew blander as the corners of his mouth disappeared behind his ears, while he looked up at the ceiling and mentally calculated what his "commish" would amount to. "Yes, Colonel, we can fix you up. When did you want to start?"

"Wal, Cap'n, I don't zactly know," replied the "grey," as he reflectively wiped his nostril on the ball of his thumb, while the agent nonchalantly tried the stamp on a folder to see if it was correctly dated. "The old woman's been diggin' at me to take 'em on a trip when I got paid up. Yes see, I bought everything on credit when——"

"Yes, yes, I know; that's all right. Now what route would you prefer east of St. Louis?"

"Wal, I don't jest know. Yer see, Cap'n, I bought on credit when——"

"Oh, yes, I see. Now we have several choice routes east of St. Louis. What do you say to the O & M.?"

"That's jest it, Cap'n. I'm owin' 'em so durn much that I be dad gummed if I think I'll get away for five years; but you might lay them ere tickets one side for me and I'll come and get 'em when I'm paid out. Yer see, I bought——"

Brain Weight Fallacies.

The interesting discussion in regard to the weight of Turgenieff's brain includes an important article on the general subject of the weight of the human brain by M. Nikiforoff, the eminent Russian scientist, according to whom it is a fallacy to assume that the weight of the brain has any influence whatever on the mental faculties. It ought to be borne in mind, he says, that the significance of the brain weight should depend upon the proportion it bears to the dimensions of the whole body and to the age of the individual. It is also equally important to know what was the cause of death, for long disease and old age exhaust the brain; thus showing the slight significance of mere weight.—N. Y. Tribune.

—The season of the year is upon us when regrets are in order from the people who have no evergreen trees and shrubs sprinkled about their homes to enliven the dreary winter aspect.

A Corn-Husking Festival.

How vividly to all those of us who were born in the country comes the remembrance of husking time. We waited for it as the gala day of the year. It was called a frolic. The trees having for the most part shed their foliage, the farmers waded through the fallen leaves, and came through the keen morning air to the gleeful company. Dry husks which had silvered every thing during the night began to melt off of the top o' the corn-shocks. While the farmers were waiting for others, they stood blowing their breath through their fingers or thrashing their arms around their body to keep up warmth of circulation. Roaring mirth greeted the late farmer as he crawled over the fence. Jokes and repartee, and rustic salutations abounded. All ready, now! The men take hold of the shock of corn and hurl it prostrate, while the mice and mice which have secreted themselves there for warmth attempt to escape. The withe of straw is unwound from the corn-shock, and the stocks, heavy with the wealth of grain, are rolled into bundles, between which the husker sits down. The husking-peg is thrust in until it strikes, and then the fingers rip off the sheathing of the ear, and there is a crack as the root of the corn is snapped off from the husk, and the grain disimprisoned is hurled up into the sunlight. The air is so tonic, the work is so exhilarating, the company is so blithe, that some laugh, and some shout, and some sing, and some banter, and some tease a neighbor for a romantic ride along the edge of the woods in eventide in a carriage that holds but two, and some prophesy as to the number of bushels to the field, and others go into competition as to which shall rifle the most corn-shucks before sundown. After a while the dinner-horn sounds from the farm-house, and the table is surrounded by a group of jolly and hungry men. From all the pantries and cellars and perches of fowl on the place the richest dainties come, and there is a carnival and neighborhood reunion, and a scene which fills our memory, part with smiles, but more with tears, as we remember that the farm now belongs to other owners, and other hands gather in the fields, and many of those who mingled in that merry husking scene have themselves been reaped "like as a shock of corn cometh in his season."—Dr. Talmage, in Frank Leslie's Sunday Magazine.

For Want of a Latch.

"For want of a nail the shoe was lost;
For want of a shoe the horse was lost;
For want of a horse the rider was lost—
And all for the want of a horse-shoe nail."

This is said to be originally taken from actual history—of a certain aide-de-camp whose horse fell lame on a retreat and delayed him until the enemy overtook and killed him.

Another actual case, embodying the same lesson against the lazy and shiftless habit of "letting things go," is related by the French political economist, M. Say.

Once, at a farm in the country, there was a gate, enclosing the cattle and poultry, which was constantly swinging open for want of a proper latch. The expenditure of a penny or two, and a few minutes' time, would have made all right. It was on the swing every time a person went out, and not being in a state to shut readily, many of the poultry were from time to time lost.

One day a fine young porker made his escape and the whole family, with the gardener, cook and milk-maid, turned out in quest of the fugitive. The gardener was the first to discover the pig, and in leaping a ditch to cut off his escape, he got a sprain that laid him up for a fortnight.

The cook, on returning to the farm-house, found the linen burned that she had hung up before the fire to dry; and the milk-maid, having forgotten, in her haste, to tie up the cattle in the cow-house, found that one of the loose cows had broken the leg of a colt that happened to be kept in the same shed.

The linen burned and the gardener's work lost were worth fully a hundred francs, and the colt was worth nearly double that money; so that here was a loss in a few minutes of a large sum, purely for want of a little latch which might have been supplied for a few half-pence.—Youth's Companion.

Use of Arctic Explorations.

In three hundred years there have been some two hundred arctic voyages, for various purposes and with various dates. The Greely expedition was but one of thirteen expeditions. Five hundred men passed two winters within the polar circle, and nineteen of them only were lost. And Lieutenant Ray says that the result of the observations of all these expeditions will be the doubling of the world's knowledge of the magnetic forces. That is to say, as Rev. Brooke Herford states in his admirable sermon upon this subject: "Not one of all the thousand and ten thousand craft sailing to and fro among the many lands of earth but will be a little surer of its compass, a little closer in its reckoning, a little safer, than it ever was before." Is this worth nothing? Is not the risk, the loss, even amply recompensed? But also, as Mr. Herford points out, the moral qualities, the patience, the courage, the self-denial, the faith, the endurance, developed by these Northern researches are incomparable. "There is simply no other chapter in the history of human doings compared with it. Beside it the adventures of commerce and conquest look greedy and base, the stories of chivalry are mere tinsel, the long heroism of the Crusades seems a fevered frenzy." Cui bono? is not an argument to discourage the restless soul which the prospect of peril inspires, nor will the pathetic story of the patient and generous endurance, amid apparently remediless suffering, which the record of the Greely expedition discloses dismay or deter other Greelys from daring the same dangers. The arctic story is one of the saddest, but it is also one of the noblest, in the annals of human heroism.—George William Curtis, in Harper's Magazine.

A MARVELOUS STORY

TOLD IN TWO LETTERS.

FROM THE SON: "28 Cedar St., New York, Oct. 28, 1882.

"Gentlemen—My father resides at Glover, Vt. He has been a great sufferer from Scrofula, and the inclosed letter will tell you what a marvelous effect has had in his case. I think his blood must have contained the humor for at least ten years; but it [illegible] show, except in the form of a scrofulous [illegible] on the wrist, until about five years [illegible] from a few spots which appeared [illegible] time; it gradually spread so as to cover his entire body. I assure you he was terribly afflicted, and an object of pity, when he began using your medicine. Now, there are few men of his age who enjoy as good health as he has. I could easily name fifty persons who would testify to the facts in his case.

Yours truly, W. M. PHILLIPS."

FROM THE FATHER: "It is both a pleasure and a duty for me to state to you the benefit I have derived from the use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Six months ago I was completely covered with a terrible humor and scrofulous sores. The humor caused an incessant and intolerable itching, and the skin cracked so as to cause the blood to flow in many places whenever I moved. My sufferings were great, and my life a burden. I commenced the use of the SARSAPARILLA in April last, and have used it regularly since that time. My condition began to improve at once. The sores have all healed, and I feel perfectly well in every respect—being now able to do a good day's work, although 73 years of age. Many inquire what has wrought such a cure in my case, and I tell them, as I have here tried to tell you, AYER'S SARSAPARILLA. Glover, Vt., Oct. 21, 1882. Yours gratefully,

HIRAM PHILLIPS."

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA cures Scrofula and all Scrofulous Complaints, Erysipelas, Eczema, Ringworm, Blotches, Sores, Boils, Tumors, and Eruptions of the Skin. It clears the blood of all impurities, aids digestion, stimulates the action of the bowels, and thus restores vitality and strengthens the whole system.

DR. A. FRASER'S MAGNETIC OINTMENT.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Burns, Sore Throat, Lameness, Rheumatism, Piles, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Bronchitis, Croup, Sciatica, Rheum, Chilblains, Affection of the Spine, Erysipelas, Nervous Irritation, and all disorders attendant with Inflammation.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve and ligament searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years,

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to transmit their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should be perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Prices 25 and 40 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

ELECTRIC LIGHT SOAP

INDIANAPOLIS, INDIANA.

ATKINS SOAP COMPANY.

TO THE WOMEN OF AMERICA.

We appeal to the intelligence and good management required to save your strength and take this method to place in your hands an agent, which, with absolute safety to the fabric, will wash clothes with less work than any other in the world.

ATKINS ELECTRIC LIGHT SOAP SAVES WOMEN.
ATKINS ELECTRIC LIGHT SOAP SAVES CLOTHES.

Wash as you please, and it will make you its friend. Soak, boil and don't rub; or soak, rub and don't boil. We advocate dispensing, so far as possible with the washboard, because it wears the clothes out and wears you out. The soap contains no mineral to give it weight, and no pulp to give it size; therefore frequent boiling will not yellow or injure the clothes, but soaking and boiling with ELECTRIC LIGHT SOAP does clean and disinfect them. One thing is certain; it produces glorious results, is an economical soap and is so pure and harmless that the writer washes his head with it without injuring a hair, and he isn't bald either. Try it in the Laundry, Kitchen and Bath. Ask your grocer for it and take no other.

—Martin Murphy, one of the oldest and best known pioneers of California, died recently at his home in San Jose. He went to the Pacific over forty years ago from Missouri, leading the first emigrant train across the plains. He engaged in cattle raising and continued in the same business to the day of his death, when he owned eighty thousand acres of land in four counties, and was worth over three million dollars. He never invested a dollar in mines or mining stock speculation.—San Francisco Chronicle.

—Sheriff Bishop, of Cloverdale, Cal., recently started to Guerniville, to capture a prisoner. On the way he met a person who asked for a ride. He assented, and in a short time was confiding his mision to the stranger, and wound up by asking him if he would get the prisoner drunk. The stranger agreed, and after tapping the Sheriff for five dollars for expenses in securing the required "drunk," took his departure, with the understanding that he would meet the Sheriff at an appointed time and place. The Sheriff was there at the appointed time, but the stranger was not; and a very good reason he had for not keeping his appointment, as he was the very man whom the Sheriff started to arrest.—San Francisco Call.

—Johnny, how many hours are there in a day?" asked Colonel Verger of his son, who is attending lectures at the University of Texas. "Twenty-three hours," was the reply. "What has become of the other one?" "I don't know, but I heard the teacher say the days were one hour shorter than they used to be.—Texas Siftings.

—"Oh, dear," sighed a woman who was always complaining about her health, and who was never, under any circumstances, without some serious ailment, "I feel so wretchedly this morning. I think I am the most unfortunate woman alive." "Yes," said her husband, sympathizingly, I feel very sorry for you, indeed, my dear. I don't believe there is a woman in the world who enjoys such poor health as you do."—N. Y. Sun.

I remarked to an old farmer back in the country, whom I had not seen for several years, and whose farm, in the meantime, had improved wonderfully, that his place was so changed I hardly knew it. "Yes," said he, "I've been fixin' up a little. The old woman pestered me to death about the garden, and so I slicked it up a little, and fixed about the house, and it looked so nice I went at the farm fences and the brush, and saved more manure, and kept killing the weeds, and the crops got better, and so I kept going on, and things do look pretty good now. Wife takes a paper, and I take one, and I get time to read it too, and I used to think that I hadn't time for anything." And so he ran on, seemingly much pleased with what he had done, and his life and his home without doubt the happier for it. Examples of a like kind may be found all over the country.

Do you wish freedom from aches, pains, sores, etc.? Then purify the blood, strengthen the urinary and digestive organs, build up your broken down constitution by using Dr. Guysott's Yellow Dock and Sarsaparilla. It is gratifying to know that among intelligent communities this simple harmless, yet effective remedy sells faster than many humbug bitters, iron medicines and pretended kidney cures, all of which so rapidly weaken and ruin the stomach, liver, bowels, and kindeys by exciting these delicate organs to unnatural activity.

THE WONDER

Is becoming universal as to how such an immense sale could be created in Lowell for Hood's Sarsaparilla. But, my friend, if you could stand behind our counter a week and hear what those say who are using it, the reason would appear as clear as the noon-day sun. The real curative power of Hood's Sarsaparilla demonstrates itself in every case where our directions are faithfully regarded. We would that we might get before the people a fractional part of the confidence that is expressed to us every day in this medicine by those who have carefully noted (without prejudice) its effects upon the blood and through that upon the whole system, stimulating all the functions of the body to perform the duties nature requires of them. Try a bottle and satisfy yourself.

Cold Hands and Feet.

LOWELL, Feb. 3, 1879.

Messrs. C. I. Hood & Co.: Gentlemen—About one year ago my daughter commenced taking your Sarsaparilla. At that time she had very little appetite; could take no long walks, and her face was badly broken out with a humor. She was low-spirited; troubled with cold hands and feet; her blood seemed to be poor, and she was in a condition which caused us great anxiety. After taking one bottle of your Sarsaparilla she began to improve; and she now has a good appetite and can take much longer walks. Her humor is nothing compared with what it was one year ago. She is in better spirits, is not troubled with cold hands and feet as previously. And I attribute this improvement in her condition largely to your Sarsaparilla. She has taken six bottles, and intends to continue its use. I was inclined to oppose the trial of it at first. I now have great faith in it as a blood purifier. Very truly yours,

TECUMSEH, MICH., JAN. 1, 1885.

The country seems to be laboring at present under a severe epidemic of economy. Every body is trying to liquidate and nobody has any money.

Some people claim that the vice-presidency is a barren reality. And yet Mr. Hendricks kissed forty-six Ohio girls at one sitting a few days ago.

It is thought that the Holcomb trial will last two weeks longer. The Crouch tragedy is getting to be rather an expensive luxury for Jackson county.

Gil R. Osmun has assumed his duties as private secretary to Governor Alger. We shall miss Gil's witty and newsey items in the state columns of the Evening News.

Dr. Mary Walker called upon Gov. Cleveland the other day. As the Doctor, who is a spinster, called during leap year, the Governor wisely slid out of the back door.

The Democratic faction fight in Ohio is likely to deprive that state of a cabinet position. The Ohio Democrats are never quite so happy as when fighting among themselves.

The Republicans have a good working majority in the present legislature. Will they practice what they preach, and give the people a chance to vote on a prohibitory amendment?

The Cincinnati Enquirer observes: Only think what stacks of Christmas presents Grover Cleveland would have received, if he hadn't refused that Newfoundland dog and flagon of rum!

If Uncle Josiah's term lasted about two or three months longer, about one half of the state's prison officials could be dispensed with. Uncle Josiah seems determined to extinguish the closing days of his term.

It is said that more soap per head is consumed in the United States than in any other country. That is not strange. In addition to private consumption, soap is one of the principal motors in this country used in carrying elections.

The date now fixed for the collapse of this sublunary sphere is Monday, Jan. 5. This will be rather rough on the army of Democratic office seekers, but it will be a great satisfaction to the "ins" to go to "kingdom come" before they are turned out.

To young and old, rich and poor, high and humble, handsome and homely, with charity for all and enmity toward none, we extend the compliments of the season to the patrons of the HERALD, and wish them each and all, a happy new year.

The town clerk of Clinton has paid for 918 woodchuck scalps, during the last year. We wouldn't cast any insinuations not at all. But isn't it possible, barely possible that a few Franklin and Tecumseh and Macon and Bridgewater woodchucks may have strayed into the Clinton bailiwick.

Bob Ingersoll, during a recent lecture in Chicago, asked in his most eloquent and sarcastic style: "What minister ever did as much for the world as Darwin?" A wag in the audience yelled out, "Burchard!" The Colonel joined in the roar of laughter that followed and proceeded without comment.

The New York World remarks: Mr. Cleveland regrets Newfoundland dogs, slippers, casks of whiskey, barrels of apples, bald eagles, owls and even hickory canes, but he accepts all the advice in regard to the cabinet given him. This advice, when carefully written out, is placed on a sharp file. The file is about full.

A minority in Plymouth Church is attempting to boycott Henry Ward Beecher for his action in the late political campaign. Persons who have listened to the burning words of the eloquent preacher in behalf of free speech and equal rights will hardly sympathise with this attempt to ostracize him. Beecher made Plymouth Church what it is, but the old veteran is willing to go if his congregation wish to discard him. Plymouth Church without Beecher would soon crumble to pieces.

EQUALIZATION OF TAXES.

As the time approaches when our citizens must pay their taxes, and the incoming Legislature are likely to look over and revise our tax laws, we feel like making a few suggestions upon the subject, namely

That, if this License system, to which we are from principles entirely opposed, is by the voice of the people decided to be continued, then is it any more than just and right, that a strong, effective law should be formulated, enabled and enforced too, absolutely requiring every saloon keeper and seller of intoxicating drinks, in any of its forms, to first give to the public good and ample and sufficient bonds to protect them against all injury not only but all increased taxes and expenses in any way incurred, directly or indirectly, from the prosecution of their business, as the dispensers of intoxicating drinks?

Is there anything unreasonable or unfair about this? Is it right for any one to attempt to make gain out of a business, which largely increases the public expense, and then leave it to others to pay the bill?

But it will be said, that this would ruin every saloonist in the land, and we suppose it would, but what of that? Can it be right for any one to prosecute, and then throw upon the public the expense of a business, which if paid by themselves alone, would result in their financial ruin?

In other words, has any one, in this free country, and with due regard to the greatest good to the the greatest possible number, any right to attempt to make a gain, which only can be made at the expense of others, and can that be a legitimate business which seeks to do this?

We think not. And it seems to us that it is high time that the public at large came to think so too. We have allowed ourselves to be deceived and cajoled in this matter long enough. All this talk about sumptuary laws, and interfering with legitimate rights, and legitimate business is mere subterfuge in view of the actual facts in the case.

No one doubts that the sale of intoxicating drinks entails an enormous expense upon the public, not less than four-fifths of all the criminal and pauper expenses which we have to pay, and not at all commensurate with the small gains secured, and is it, can it be the legitimate right of any one to seek to make these small gains, such expense to those, who have, and can have no possible interest in the business?

The question answers itself, and it seems to us, that it is none too soon for the public to learn to face the facts, and to call things by their right name, and the more those engaged in the business combine, and plot together to force it upon the public, the more resolutely themselves to determine that it shall not be forced upon them.

The power and the remedy are in our own hands, whenever we choose to act, and until we do this choose, we have no one but ourselves to blame for the melancholy results of our own inaction.

VERBUM SAP.

MERRY CHRISTMAS IN MACON.

The Sunday School of South Macon Reformed Church, held a concert on Christmas eve. The evening proved to be fine, and a good audience was present. The following program was rendered:

Voluntary—Miss Martha Linton.
Prayer—Supt. C. S. Foote.
Reading—Christmas Greeting—Miss Neady Russell.
Singing—By the Congregation.
Essay—Miss Sarah Hunt.
Recitation—Emma Bailey.
Duett—Silent Night—Mrs. Joseph Osborne and Miss Josie Clarkson.
Responsive Reading—Luke 2. 8-20.
Singing—The Shepherds—Class of Young Ladies.
Recitation—The Angel's Song—Camilla Mead.
Singing—By the School.
Responsive Reading—Math. 2-1-2.
Recitation—The Three Kings—Miss Martha Linton.
Inst. Music—Miss Hattie Osgood.
Christmas Carol—By the School.
Address—By the Pastor, Rev. Chas. S. Dutton.
"Feed my Lambs"—Sung by eleven little girls.
Responsive Reading—Ps. 72-2-17.
Singing—By the Congregation.
Collection.
Doxology and Benediction.

It was the generally expressed opinion that the concert was a decided success. "Feed my Lambs" rendered by eleven little girls was one of the most interesting exercises of the evening. The Pastor's address was to the children. He took them on an imaginary trip with Santa Claus around the world, describing the Christmas customs of various countries on the way. The church was tastefully trimmed with evergreens, and hung with pictures. Thanks are due to the faithful few who took upon themselves the work of decoration.

A druggist in New Richmond, O., Mr. E. J. Denham, writes us the following: "I consider Dr. Bull's cough syrup is the best thing made. I use it altogether in my own family and can therefore recommend it.

A CHRISTMAS FAMILY GATHERING.

By cards of invitation issued about three weeks ahead by William and Rosilla Bradley, all their sisters and brothers, and some of their descendants were invited to celebrate Christmas of this year at their home in Franklin. Of the seven survivors of Deacon Bradley's large family, all were present except Mr. & Mrs. P. H. Nichols of Battle Creek. By a late accident, Mrs. N., was obliged to resort temporarily to the use of crutches and could not well come. The other six, with their partners, and Almira Bradley, widow of Asahel, deceased, were all present. The six survivors present were Wm. Bradley, Mrs. J. J. Adam, Mrs. Wm. Rundell, Mrs. Electus Rundell, Mrs. C. Cooper and Mrs. S. G. Aten. Robert Cairns and wife, as a brother and sister of the host and hostess, and Henry Wilson and wife as a son-in-law and daughter, were invited and were present. Mr. Frank Edson Bradley, wife and three children, and Childs Wells, wife and son, and Alden Rundell, wife and daughter, were also on hand. The post of Chaplain of the ceremony was filled by Mr. Wm. Caldwell, accompanied by his wife an old friend of the family. Everything went off lively and pleasantly, and all present had a delightful visit which they will long remember.

CHURCH DEDICATION.

The rededication services of the F. W. Baptist church of Rome occurred on the 18th. Prof. Dunn, of Hillsdale, delivered one of his most eloquent sermons. The church, as completed, consists of a kitchen in the rear of the basement, the prayer and conference 30 by 30 and 9 feet in the clear, the addition to the entrance of the church and the auditorium. This latter room with its frescoed ceiling and walls, its stained windows and its carpeted floor presents to the worshiper each Sabbath morning a very inviting appearance. No pains or money have been spared to make the building one of the very best edifices among our country churches. It is pleasant, convenient and substantial. The heating apparatus, from the store of Wilcox Bros. & Co., is a perfect success. The ladies' aid society deserves very much credit for the heroic part borne in the good work. The chairs for the conference room, and the chandelier and carpet for the main audience room, were provided by this society, the latter being from the store of Jas. V. DeFoe. Through the indefatigable efforts of these noble Christian workers, Brothers Stevens and Aldrich, and the wholesouled generosity of our people, we were permitted to dedicate our church free from debt.—Adrian Times.

The HERALD corps of township correspondents has received some valuable additions lately. This department of the paper will be carefully looked to, and improved upon from time to time.

Prof. H. C. Wilson and Miss Aggie Willett of Blissfield were married Dec. 28th. The groom is a graduate of our High School and the bride a sister of Miss Grace Willett, one of our present teachers.

HE WANTED TO GET POSTED.

A tall seedy looking stranger stepped up to the postal order window of the post-office the other day and with the air of a man having a heavy load on his mind, opened a conversation with Bert Waring, the clerk.

"Is this 'ere the post office?"

"Yes Sir."

"Be you the postmaster?"

"No Sir; I am a clerk."

"Dew ye take in letters here?"

"Yes Sir."

"Do ye sell envelopes?"

"Yes Sir."

"And postage stamps too?"

"Certainly, Sir."

"Do ye sell ten cent stamps?"

"Yes, how many will you have?"

"Wall, I don't want none to-day. My old woman has gone up North a visitin' and if she don't get back on time I'm going to write her a rearin' old letter. There is so many eloping these days I thought I'd better prepare for the wust and get posted."

RINK RACKET.

The rink is open every afternoon and evening this week and business is lively.

The polo game, which was played on Thursday evening of last week, was a new feature and something that had not been witnessed in this village before. It was played by the senior and junior clubs of Manchester.

Last Friday evening, the young lady skaters gave a leap year party, which was well attended. The ladies sustained the role assumed by them to perfection, and taken all in all it was one of the best evenings seen at the rink this season.

The second masquerade took place on Tuesday evening and was a perfect success. Some of the characters were finely made up, and a large number of maskers was on the floor. Among the most attractive characters were an Indian chief, sailor boy, Bro. Johnathan, two or three darkies, John Chinaman, a dude, an Irish washerman etc. P. W. Adams, C. M. Burlingame, and J. H. Smith were chosen as the committee to award the prizes. They had a delicate and hard task to perform, as there were so many excellent characters to choose from. The prizes were finally awarded to Levi Hayden, Indian chief, and Emma Aten, Irish woman. The Manchester band furnished good music, as they always do. After the unmasking, a large number of other skaters took the floor and enjoyed the sport. The benches allotted to spectators were crowded.

Mrs. S. H. Merritt and Miss Gussie Burlingame, of Cadillac are spending a few days in Tecumseh. Their old friends here are right glad to see them.

If the wicked alone stand on slippery places the entire population of Tecumseh could have been enrolled among the righteous last Saturday afternoon.

David Phelps is spending the holidays at his old home in Tecumseh.—He now fills a responsible position in the Auditor's office of the Pullman car works at Chicago.

Although the holiday trade has been good with most of our merchants it has not come up to that of last year. Considering the stringency of the times, however, they have fully realized their expectations.

Geo. F. Bangs is manufacturing and selling a patent bosom stretcher and self-adjusting ironing board. It is a most useful household article, and the price is only sixty cents. Every family should have one.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Raynor Lilley, of Cleveland, ate their Christmas turkey at Lucius Lilley's. Mr. Raynor Lilley's business duties as secretary of the Cleveland-Paper Co. cut his visit short, and he was compelled to return on Friday.

Mr. Geo. Heesen owns a fine clothing store, is agent of the American Express, a member of the Common Council, and is blessed with the possession of three accomplished and charming daughters. Santa Claus visited his house on Christmas and left three elegant gold watches, one for each of the girls. Now, young men, don't all speak at once.

Dr. A. L. Dingman, of Lansing arrived in town last Saturday for a brief visit.

Dr. Geo. Ferguson is remodeling the interior of his store, putting in new shelving, drawers etc., which will greatly improve its appearance.

Thos. Murphy and John Gordon, of Macon, paid a holiday visit to Alex. Sherard at his new home in Homer. Alex. has a good farm there and is doing well.

The late cold snap has ruined the peach crop. The peach crop is always ruined at this season of the year, but it pans out pretty well in September.

We print this week a portrait and biographical sketch of Thos. Nast. This new feature will continue for a few weeks at least, and we hope to make it permanent.

Gainsley & Co. our enterprising Dry Goods firm, announce their great annual clearing sale in this week's paper. Read their card on the eighth page. Heed it and be wise.

One of our rich and handsome old bachelors received a christmas present of a silk-trimmed, double-action, self-adjusting, steel-spring corset from the Holloway corset factory.

We send out a large number of sample copies this week to persons who do not now take the HERALD. Those receiving a copy will please consider it a polite invitation to subscribe.

Thos. Wyrill, the Janitor of the school buildings, kept the Central school well warmed during the recent cold weather. The furnaces are in good condition and he knows exactly how to manage them.

In the selection of Mr. Fred Hendershot to fill the vacancy in the 8th grade of the schools, the School Board have acted wisely. Mr. Hendershot is well qualified for the position and we predict his success.

Mr. C. S. Lester preached an excellent sermon at the Baptist church last Sunday evening. Mr. J. O. Heck will occupy the pulpit next Sunday morning. Both of these gentlemen are students at Kalamazoo College.

John R. Clark has commenced the first bureau lecture engagment of his life, embracing the next six weeks and including all the large cities of Canada and some lecture courses in Pennsylvania Ohio and Indiana.

Guy Davidson, Frank Davidson's son, attended the turkey shoot at Macon on the 24th inst. and took down two fine turkeys out of three shots. No use talking. Frank, all boys are smarter than their fathers in these days of internal improvements.

Mr. DeLano, landlord of the Patterson, has made arrangements with Lavern Bidwell whereby his hack line will run to and from the hotel in connection with all trains on the M. & O. road. The hack will also run to Lake Shore trains when guests desire it.

That Tecumseh will have the electric light at an early day is a fixed fact. One hundred lights have been spoken for. A plan is now on foot to organize a stock company here and increase the number of lights and it is more than probable that this last plan will be adopted.

The public installation of officers of Tecumseh Lodge No. 69 F. & A. M. will take place to-morrow evening. The program will consist of music, an oration by Rev. Geo. W. Hudson, and the installation of officers by Lucius Lilley, to be followed by social and refreshments.

James Cook, of Raisin, has entered the employ of the Walter A. Wood Harvester Co. He will have the supervision of all local agents in the Eastern portion of Michigan. Mr. Cook is peculiarly fitted for this service, being both a practical farmer and a good business man.

The last, but not least, leap year party of the season was given Tuesday evening at Armory Hall. About thirty couples were present and enjoyed themselves until the we' sma' hours. The young ladies are to be congratulated on their successful management of the party, especially the committee in charge, Misses Lora Reynolds and Nellie Cole.

Capt. Foster gave an elegant dinner at the Lilley House on Christmas day, and he was favored with a large company of transient and home guests. It is needless to say that they were all in the condition of an uncarved turkey when the meal was finished.

Thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Milton S. Pitzer of Quenemo, Kansas, for an "at home" card. The bride was formerly Miss Janie S. Monaghan of this village, and her many friends here will extend their congratulations. The parties announce themselves "at home" after Dec. 31st. 1884.

Will Harding's injured shoulder has improved so rapidly that he has taken his arm out of the sling, and is able to shake hands again. Will left yesterday for Albion to enter Albion college, where he expects to take a full course of study. We wish him success and have no doubt he will achieve it.

A few of our business men dropped into The Patterson at nine o'clock last evening and indulged in a New Year's Eve. supper. Plates were laid for twenty-six guests. Landlord De Lano proved himself to be au fait in getting up evening suppers and dispensing hospitality. Our old Tecumseh friend, P. W. Adams, was one of the company.

The Sunday School of St. Peter's church held their Christmas festivities at Armory Hall last Saturday evening. Supper was served at five o'clock, followed by a May pole, music and social. Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather, the little folks and the old folks were on hand in goodly numbers, and passed a very enjoyable time.

A picnic dinner will be served after the services. All members are requested to be present with their families and friends and participate in an enjoyable time. The Hon. T. F. Moore, of Adrian is expected to be present and act as Installing officer and also to give a lecture in the evening at 7½ o'clock. It is hoped that all in this vicinity will attend this lecture as Mr. Moore is one of the very best Grange lecturers in the field. Admission free.

M. J. MARTIN, W. M.

Yesterday forenoon about eleven o'clock an alarm of fire was sounded, and the whole town was out in less than no time. It proved to be the residence of Geo. Kemp, on Kilbuck street, near the water works. The fire caught in the second story from a defective chimney. John J. Orr seized his Babcock, jumped into a buggy and was on the ground within five minutes after the alarm, and soon had the flames subdued. The engine and hose carts were on hand as soon as they could be hauled through the mud, but their services were not needed. The damage by the fire was slight, but the house and contents were pretty well shaken up. As the wind was blowing a gale at the time, it is fortunate that the fire was got under control at once, or a disastrous conflagration might have followed.

Barton W. Spears, M. D., of the city of New York, is now stopping, with his wife and daughter, with his friends at Brooklyn, Mich. He was the first printer's Devil on the Tecumseh Democrat in 1836. Then he finished his trade with the old Adrian Watchtower. He studied medicine with Dr. Spaulding. He was engaged on the Detroit Free Press, the Columbus, Ohio, Statesman, and the Chicago Times. As a physician he has traveled over the most of Europe and this country. He visited last week in this county, and he was greeted with much favor by his old friends at Adrian and in the county. The great ability and high social qualities of himself and Mrs. Spears, make him a great acquisition to our community, and we hope to see them often among us. We welcome him as an old printer and a progressive American.

CLIPPINGS AND CONDENSATIONS.

Morenci enjoyed a turkey hunt on skates one evening last week.

The Christmas number of the Boy's Weekly is an eight page sheet.

Addison has a new skating rink, with John Crandall as manager.

Alonzo Clark, of Clinton, is spending a few days in Cincinnati and Chicago.

Hudson cries for a new depot. The present sickly structure is behind the times entirely.

It is expected that the new County Court house will be finished about the 1st of next September.

The new freight and passenger house at Palmyra will be finished and ready for occupancy to-day.

The Clayton people are bound to have a town of their own to be carved out of Dover and Hudson.

It is said that the contractors who are building the new Court House will lose ten thousand dollars.

Blissfield has two roller skating rinks. One of them can take the place of the long talked of roller mill.

The Bohemian oat cause is flourishing at Morenci. The Bohemians had a big oyster supper there last week.

Mr. Frank B. Cressy, the managing editor of the Michigan Prohibitionist, was formerly pastor of the Baptist church at Hudson.

The boys in school district No. 5 of Cambridge have organized an oath-bound pistol-carrying club. Mr. Avery, the teacher, has taken vigorous measures to squelch the new movement.

The Adrian Record of Saturday said: Leap year is nearly over. The girls should take time by the forelock. Would'nt it have been better if they had taken some young man by the forelock.

Sheriff Whitmore will appoint Frank Teachout to the position of Under Sheriff. This is a most excellent selection. Frank is well qualified in every particular and will fill the bill exactly.

The Adrian Record says: Fallet, the marshal of Morenci, tips the scale beam at 325 pounds. Councilman Salsbury does the same thing. Such men add great weight to the dignity of the village government.

The Hudson Gazette will be published by Schemerhorn Bros. sons of the deceased proprietor. They both have a practical acquaintance with the business and will keep the paper up to its present high standard.

Hudson Post: A game of polo, at the roller rink between the professional men is being agitated. The doctors are expecting to physic the lawyers, and the lawyers expect to serve an injunction on the heads of the medics.

The way freight on the Fayette branch was abandoned on Christmas day and about a dozen passengers who intended to go West to eat turkey found themselves in a dilemma. They could view the landscape scenery at Grosvenor all day or foot it to Blissfield or Palmyra.

Morenci Observer: Prof. Wilson's class were practicing the rhetorical exercises at Medina academy on Friday evening of last week and so heavily did the orator come down on the subject that the stove tipped over, and for a few moments there was a sharp panic in view of the possible cremation of those ancient, classic halls. The Prof. however, took matters cooly and soon reduced the flames to their normal condition.

Adrian Record: Judge Howell has rendered a decree in certain drain cases that have been submitted to him. The decree perpetually enjoins the county treasurer from collecting any taxes levied for the construction of said drains. Of course there will be music by the full orchestra and language profane on the part of those who constructed the ditches. This will simply relieve the feelings, but will not add wealth to the pocket-book. The drains in question are the Baxter avenue and Sutton drains of Ridgeway & the Smith drain of Risa.

Adrian Times: Probably the most bashful young man in the county lives in Palmyra township. The family in which he finds a home is blessed with a charming little daughter, of few summers and sunny temperament, of whom the young man is very fond. As the holidays approached he felt the propriety of offering his juvenile friend some Christmas testimonial of his regard and a cudgelling of his brain decided the purchase of a doll. On the "night before Christmas," after the child had retired, he observed her Christmas stocking hung in a prominent position, and that active preparations for filling it were being inaugurated. He thought of the doll. "Mrs.——, I have a doll up stairs which ought to go into the stocking."

"Indeed! How lovely of you. Bring it right along. She will be delighted."

"But—well, but—it—it isn't dressed."

THE BRITTON POST OFFICE.

EDITOR HERALD.—We were surprised to see an article in last week's Adrian Times on the post-master business at Britton. Our republican friend is mistaken in supposing that there are a few anxious democrats who think the 4th of March a long time to wait for the post office. With regard to the petition mentioned the article says: They started a petition of twenty six names; fourteen of them do not get their mail in this office, six were family relatives and two names were unknown, we think the other four were misled. The fourteen, we think had good reason for not getting their mail here; the six family relatives are persons who are a credit to the village of Britton, and some of our republican leaders here are only too glad to borrow money from the relatives when occasions requires. Two names were unknown; there are some names in Britton known too well. As regards the four who were misled, we will not say much about them. All men make mistakes sometimes. If our postmaster had not been misled he would have voted the Democratic ticket and then perhaps the cry would not have been raised, "How are the mighty fallen." O. X.

FLASHES BY C. T. LINE.

Clinton Gillett of Dundee, has been visiting friends in Tecumseh and Clinton.

Wm. Harding, who had his shoulder dislocated by being thrown from a carriage, is able to be around again.

Last Tuesday Mr. Wm. Mudgett started from town with a load of hay, which he had well bound on. Just as he was turning the road by M. E. Conklin's the wind struck it and turned it over. He got some chains, and with the assistance of neighbors, he drew it back on again. We must be living in a prairie country.

AYER'S PILLS.

A large proportion of the diseases which cause human suffering result from derangement of the stomach, bowels, and liver. AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS act directly upon these organs, and are especially designed to cure the diseases caused by their derangement, including Constipation, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Headache, Dysentery, and a host of other ailments, for all of which they are a safe, sure, prompt, and pleasant remedy. The extensive use of these PILLS by physicians, in their practice, proves their efficacy in the principles in which they are based by the medical profession.

These PILLS are compounded of vegetable ingredients, and are free from calomel or any other injurious ingredient.

"A Sufferer from Headache writes:
"AYER'S PILLS are now entirely my one and sole constant companion. I have been a sorely afflicted Hop Headache sufferer for 10 years. AYER'S PILLS are the only thing I expect to do the work. One does will generally prove my relief, and two will insure total relief. They are the most effective and the easiest to take of any medicine I ever knew. Nor do they leave any bad effects behind them, as do most cathartics. I always do so when occasion offers."
W. L. Pope of W. L. Pope & Bro., Franklin St., Richmond, Va., Aug. 8, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S PILLS in numberless instances, and to my knowledge not by word, but have never known them to fail to do a speedy and perfect result. We constantly keep them on hand at our store, and prize them as a safe, sure, and easy cathartic. Yours, etc., FOR DYSPEPSIA they are invaluable."
J. L. HAYES."
Mexia, Texas, June 11, 1881.

The Rev. FRANCIS B. HARLOWE, writing from Dedham, Mass., says: "For some years past I have been subject to costiveness, which, in spite of the use of much medicine, I could not relieve. I suffered increasingly from this cause, until some months ago I began taking AYER'S PILLS. They have entirely corrected the costive habit, and have vastly improved my general health."

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS correct irregularities of the bowels, stimulate the appetite and digestion, and by their prompt and thorough action give tone and vigor to the whole physical economy.

A FLORIDA PHENOMENON.

Captain Asher puts out the Florida volcano, and the romance of the poor Seminole lingering in the land of his fathers is lost. At the same time his story adds to the attractions of the lovely land of fruit, flowers and wonders. Perhaps from these sulphuric pools came the healing virtues which laid the foundation for the legend that in Florida flows the waters of eternal youth. Captain Asher was in search of palmetto logs on the Ancilla River when he descried the smoke or cloud from a point in the distance. Remembering the many reports he had heard about this smoke he determined to unearth this mystery, if possible. So calling his crew together and packing up their traps the party pushed their way in small boats up the Ancilla River. They traversed up the river, or creek, for it hardly deserves the name of river, for miles. After ascending from its mouth about twenty-five or thirty miles, he judges, he was brought to an abrupt halt by a rock barrier in front. Upon investigating he found that the river ended and was lost underneath the ground. Seeing that the smoke became more distinct at this point, and seemed straight ahead, he had the boat hauled up to the bank and sprang ashore, determined, if possible, to pursue his investigation on foot. As he sprang on shore he gave an exclamation of surprise. Scattered at various points were huge rocks, towering many feet above his head—a thing unheard of in Florida. Mr. Asher describes some of these rocks as being as large as an ordinary dwelling and apparently hollow, containing much water. He describes them as being of a flinty appearance, and when struck with an iron or steel instrument to emit thousands of sparks. A mile or two further on were seen numerous rocks that were formed into round basins, their sides being smooth and beautifully polished. Mr. Asher sprang upon the top of one of these basins. As his foot came in contact with the flinty substance a hollow sound was emitted from the rock. Calling for a pole, and it being handed to him, he placed it in the center of the basin. What was his surprise on drawing the pole to the top may be easily imagined when he discovered that the rock, being hollow, was filled with a strong sulphuric water. Pursuing their way through the bog on hard ground some distance, then again scratched and bruised by the underbrush, and fighting mosquitoes that seemed to resent this intrusion of their dominion, they presently came to where the river issued from its underground covert and pursued its way onward, to again disappear in the bowels of the earth. Every few hundred yards these pools would make their appearance, and from them would issue white, misty clouds that would ascend heavenward, seeming in the distance to be clouds of smoke. The water in these pools was as clear as crystal and filled with beautiful fish. He caught a great many of the fish and attempted to drink some of the water, but it was unpalatable—nauseating to the smell and taste. He spent several days wandering around these points, and he says he never before thought there was such a place in Florida. He says that the rocks are separated by a distance of about 200 feet, and rear their black, grimy heads to Heaven from a level plain of marshy soil. There are no indications of there having been a hill, much less a volcano, in this section, and the smoke or cloud seen so often is simply the vapor rising from the sulphuric pools.—Detroit Free Press.

SHOP SAVINGS.

A very suggestive sight was witnessed a short time ago in a visit to a large manufactory of machinery and tools. The outlet to the sink had been closed, and the large drain pipes had to be removed and cleansed. The result of that cleaning was a surprise to the proprietors, although it was not so to at least some of the workmen. If a list of the articles found in the drain pipes and at their outlet in the tail race was made it would be almost like an inventory of the small parts used in the manufactures of the establishment. There were hundreds of pieces of broken files, taps, reamers, drills, parts of machines and tools spoiled in the working, and a wagon-load of cotton waste. The water closets had been used as convenient "catchalls," "scrap heaps" and "glory holes." How much the establishment had lost in this way could not readily be estimated, as much of it must have been swept away by the stream and much of it buried out of sight.

It is surprising how much may be saved in the shop by judicious attention to little things and by handy appliances for saving. An establishment that works up brass and iron in about equal proportions for more than a year mixed the drillings, turnings, and filings of both metals indiscriminately, and dumped them out of doors as useless rubbish to be got rid of. A separating machine was suggested, and now one of the proprietors declares that it paid for its cost within three weeks. It is self-operating, requiring only the occasional supply of the chips and the removal of those already separated. The mixed chips pass through a trough in a thin stream before a revolving cylinder composed of horse-shoe magnets; the brass chips drop in front into a box, and the iron and steel chips are carried on the magnets to the under side, and are brushed off by fixed brushes into another box. Before being separated, these mixed chips were worthless; after being separated the iron chips had a marketable value, and the brass chips a value ten times as great.

In a large manufactory of machine screws, where two barrels of oil a day is not an uncommon amount to use, if all the machines were supplied afresh, three-fifths of this amount—sometimes more—is saved for further use. This is done by a small centrifugal machine. The chips, soaking in oil, are dipped into the little cup-shaped receiver, the cover closed, the belt started, and the oil comes in an almost invisible horizontal sheet against the sides of the enveloping pan and runs into a tank ready for use. The chips are cleaned so nearly that they barely soil the hands.

In a certain machine shop worn out and broken files are placed in a transverse holder on the grindstone frame, held against the face of the stone by springs, given a traverse by a belt and a spiral cam, and the result is bits of smooth steel just adapted for forging, to boring oar cutters and keys, with a further result of keeping the stone trued.

In brass manufactories there is unavoidable waste of the metals in the scoriæ of the melting furnaces, in the rolling mill department, and the wire drawing. Whatever of this waste, with the sweepings, can be gathered is put into large mortars and subjected to the impact of pivoted pestles until the whole is pounded to a dust. Then it is floated in a running stream of water through a chute over riffles, which catch the heavy metallic particles and allow the lighter trash to pass off. The metallic residuum, packed in crucibles, with luted covers, gives back a profitable percentage of solid brass to be reused.—Scientific American.

PENSACOLA.

If the Southern tourist will leave the beaten tract of travel at Mobile, and go by steamer to Pensacola, he will enjoy a very pleasant break in the monotony of railroading. Mobile and its bay are full of historic landmarks, and when the steamer leaves Fort Morgan, and heads to sea for the short run down the coast, there is much that is of interest in the marine landscape.

The approach to Pensacola, as the Mary Morgan runs in, is of ever-varying beauty. Long lines of sandy beach and dark woodland point in converging lines to the distant harbor. Closer in is the tall light-house pointing finger-like heavenward, with a background of dark trees and peeping cottages, below which runs, like a ribbon of satin, the snow-white beach for miles. Presently the long ocean swell ceases, and we are passing the forts. On the left are the ruins of Fort McRae, now only a few massive arches of tough masonry tottering amid the surges rippling under their gloomy shadows, while opposite is Fort Pickens, gray, straight-faced, and sturdy, crouching, as it were, on the land's end of historic Santa Rosa Island. In spite of its battle record it looks quite modern, with the great guns gazing vigilantly out to sea. In the distance the remains of Fort Barancas lie, sleeping with the memories of General Jackson and the Spanish commandant who blew it up at the capture of the place by the American army in 1812.

As we enter the harbor we find it land-locked and of immense magnitude, its further shores appearing as if on the horizon. It is a shelter for the navies of the world.

To the left appears the town, fronted by the massive buildings of the navy-yard, the great derricks holding aloft boilers for expectant hulls. The size of the place can only be guessed at from the steamer's deck by house roofs and distant spires.

The lower part of the town has an essentially nautical flavor. The sandy streets are filled with a motley crowd of mariners. The talk is of ships and cargoes, and the bell of the Norwegian chapel, nestling almost under the yard-arms of the ships at dock, mingles with the forecastle bells striking the hour, tolled maybe by some ancient quarter-master of a sexton; and strangely out of place seems a back-country ox-cart, whose great broad wooden-tired wheels and crates of "gonies," or land-turtles, rolls silently over the sand.

The wharves are immense structures thickly laced with car tracks, walled in by masses of closely packed shipping whose interlocked spars and masts are as a forest through which a road is cut out. Here the smaller iron steamers, those "ocean tramps," nestle beside the great three-masters to secure a share of the vast forests of lumber annually exported, which by train loads continually pour on the docks.

Out on the broad harbor are fleets of vessels clustered about great timber rafts which have been floated out to them, and from which their gaping holds are being rapidly filled. Tugs are towing out rafts to one's further distant. Here are two just spreading their wings to sail. There is one just arrived and dropping anchor, and in the offing more are inward bound. It is an animated scene rendered doubly delightful by a balmy air, a cloudless sky, and the odors of pine freshly cut.—Harper's Weekly.

Shortsightedness.

The original cause of myopia seems to be the application of the eyes to near objects; in other words, the poring over books and handicrafts. When the eyes are directed to a near object they are turned in, or rendered convergent, so that the axes of vision meet upon it, and this position is maintained by a muscular effort which if continued, alters the shape of the eye, in the direction of elongation. Manifestly, the alteration will be most easily effected during youth, when the tissues of the body, including those of the eye, are comparatively lax and distensible, and it will also be most easily effected among those young people whose tissues are exceptionally weak, by reason of inadequate food or of unhealthy descent or surroundings. Badly lighted schools are the great manufactories of myopia, the bad light compelling approximation of the books or other materials of study.—London Times.

—A band of gypsies went through the Northwest buying up uncontrollably vicious horses. A stock was thus obtained at trifling cost. Then the attempt was made to tame the beasts. Some of them became tractable through clubbing, but others bit and kicked until two men were killed and several hurt.—Chicago Times.

—A shoemaker of Utica, N. Y., has completed a mechanical curiosity, consisting of two houses each six feet square. Inside of these houses are different wooden figures working at trades. There are nearly 200 of these figures. The motive power is a small three horse power engine.

Downright Cruelty

To permit yourself and family to "Suffer!"
With sickness when it can be prented and cured so easily
With Hop Bitters!!!

Having experienced a great deal of "Trouble!" from indigestion, so much so that I came near losing my Life!
My trouble always came after eating any food—
However light
And digestible,
For two or three hours at a time I had to go through the most
Excruciating pains.
"And the only way I ever got"
"Relief!"
Was by throwing up all my stomach contained. No one can conceive the pains that I had to go through, until
"At last"
I was taken. So that for three weeks I lay in bed and
Could eat nothing!
My sufferings were so that I called two doctors to give me something that would stop the pain; their Efforts were no good to me.
At last I heard a good deal
"About your Hop Bitters!
And determined to try them."
Got a bottle—in four hours I took the contents of
One!
Next day I was out of bed, and have not seen a
"Sick!"
Hour, from the same cause since.
I have recommended it to hundreds of others. You have no such "Advocate as I am."—Geo. Kendall, Allston, Boston, Mass.

THE Chicago Weekly News
AND THE

THE CHICAGO WEEKLY NEWS is now an eight page, sixty-four column paper. It is the largest "dollar weekly" in America. Its eight broad, long pages present each week a mass of choicely selected matter, containing much to suit each of the varying tastes of the family circle. First and foremost it gives ALL THE NEWS, complete as to details, yet concise in form. Its connection with the CHICAGO DAILY NEWS (member of the Associated Press) gives it facilities for news gathering unsurpassed by any journal in the country. Its MARKET REPORTS are specially complete and thoroughly trustworthy. Particular attention is given to agricultural and home matters. Every issue contains SIX COMPLETED STORIES, and a regular installment of an original story by some well-known English or American author, exclusively secured for the CHICAGO DAILY NEWS. Condensed notes on fashions, art, industries, literature, science, etc., etc., appear regularly.

Few papers in the country are so extensively quoted by the press in general for its bright and humorous paragraphs as the Chicago Daily News. These are all reproduced in the WEEKLY NEWS. In its editorial expression the paper speaks from the standpoint of the INDEPENDENT journalist, thereby escaping the temptation to support or condone the questionable under the pressure of party allegiance. Mere partisan extremists will not like it; the fair-minded and thoughtful of all parties will appreciate and value its candid statements of facts and conclusions, all calculated to qualify the reader for the formation of his own intelligent opinion. The political events of the year to come promise to assume such a character that a thoroughly truthful and impartial record becomes all-important rather than a partisan one, colored and perverted to individual liking.

In all its departments the CHICAGO WEEKLY NEWS aims to present an enterprising, impartial and entertaining family newspaper of the very highest grade.

WHAT OLD SUBSCRIBERS SAY
When they Renew their Subscriptions.

William Cannons, Pontiac, Oakland County, Mich., says: "I think it is the best paper in America."

I. A. Welch, Sullivan, O., says: "It is better than many of the $2 papers."

James P. Maxine, 243 St. Charles street, New Orleans, La., says: "In comparing your paper with others I receive, I must say yours, the Chicago WEEKLY NEWS, is good, better, best. I would sooner miss a meal than a number of the News. It is the newspaper of the day. It is true to its name."

W. W. Rhodes, Adrian, Mich., says: "I don't want to miss a number. It is the best paper for news I have ever seen."

Peter Lansing, Estella, Saunders County, Neb., says: "I like the WEEKLY NEWS. It is full, readable and valuable news, and although I am in receipt of nine weekly journals, I am constrained to adopt THE WEEKLY NEWS as one, because of its non-partisan attitude in politics, giving me the unadulterated truth concerning the actions of all political parties."

M. E. Davenport, Palmira, N. Y., says: "It is the cheapest and best paper I ever read."

Mrs. L. Schonag, Hannibal, Mo., says: "I like your paper very much. I get six other papers, but do not like them as well as the WEEKLY NEWS."

W. R. Law, Mansfield, Tex., says: "I am highly pleased with the News, for I get politics presented in it in such a way that I get both sides of the question fairly set forth, which is utterly impossible to get in a strictly party journal of either side."

Its size and character considered, the CHICAGO WEEKLY NEWS is the cheapest weekly in America. ONE DOLLAR A YEAR, postage included. Our special Clubbing Terms bring it within the reach of all our subscribers. Specimen copies may be seen at this office. Send Subscriptions to this office.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

Gathered from All Quarters.

CONGRESS.

SENATE, December 23.—Immediately after the reading of the journal the Senate went into executive session and awaited the action of the House on the amended Naval bill and adjournment resolution; but on being notified that the House took no action on the former bill, adjourned until January 5.

HOUSE.—There were less than a hundred members present. Mr. Randall called up the resolution for a holiday recess and the Senate amendment fixing the time from December 24 to January 5, which was adopted, and the House at 12:35 p. m. adjourned to January 5. As the House took no action on the Senate amended Naval Appropriation bill the appropriations for the navy will lapse on and after the 31st of December.

WASHINGTON.

The Board of Trustees of the Columbian University, at a special meeting a few days ago, upon the unanimous recommendation of the faculty of its Medical Department decided to admit women to the study of medicine in the institution with all the privileges of instruction accorded male students.

A circular is being prepared by the Secretary of the Treasury under the terms of which the navy yards throughout the United States will be closed on December 31 and remain closed until appropriations for their maintenance are made by Congress. The workmen will be suspended with the understanding that those whose services are indispensable may continue and take their chances of reimbursement by Congress.

A decision has been rendered by Comptroller Lawrence, in which he held that the Otoe and Missouri Confederate Indian tribes are entitled to receive five per cent. interest on the removal fund provided by the act of March 3, 1881, and expended for their benefit under the direction of the Secretary of the Interior.

The Naval Court of Inquiry appointed to investigate frauds in the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery and to examine the methods of purchasing supplies in the other bureaus, has made a preliminary report that they found no reason to believe the frauds practiced in the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery had extended to other bureaus.

Under the provisions of the recent circular relative to the disinfection of imported rags, the Secretary of the Treasury has appointed Francis McNally and Charles Kanny inspectors of rags at Alexandria, Egypt.

The reports of the Bureau of Statistics to the Secretary of the Treasury shows that during the month of November the exports of the United States were valued at $78,776,666, and the imports at $45,173,792, the excess of exports over imports being $33,602,876. This is a greater excess than has occurred during any previous month of this year.

According to the report of Director J. W. Powell, of the United States Geological Survey Corps, during the season which closed the latter part of November there were surveyed in the New England section 658 square miles; in the Apalachian section, 17,466 square miles, and in the South-western section 15,000 square miles.

THE EAST.

Thomas W. Holder, of Dorchester, Mass., arose from bed on the morning of the 26th, swallowed a dose of laudanum, placed a towel saturated with chloroform over his mouth and returned to bed. He was soon discovered, but died within an hour. He received good wages and was worth $6,000. No cause for the suicide is known.

While enjoying a sleigh ride on the 26th Anna Brown, aged fifteen, daughter of Charles H. Brown, of Keene, N. H., was killed at Ingall's Crossing by a passenger train. The horse was also killed and the sleigh demolished. Her father was engineer of the freight train following the passenger train, and was first apprised of the accident by seeing his dead horse and broken sleigh beside the track.

Thomas Van Valin, aged 104 years and eleven months, died at Syracuse, N. Y., on Christmas Day. He was a pensioner of the war of 1812.

Eleven barges containing 3,000 tons of coal, in tow of the tug Ives, of New Haven, Conn., foundered off Penfield Reef on the night of the 26th. No lives were lost. The coal was valued at $30,000.

Business failures in the United States during the week ended the 26th number 278, against 305 in the preceding week and 260, 242 and 161 in the corresponding weeks of 1883, '82 and '81 respectively.

Mrs. William H. Diefenderfer, living near Shimersville, Lehigh County, Pa., was recently poisoned by soap lye, which got in a cut in her hand, and at last accounts she was at the point of death.

Mrs. Ellen Johnson has commenced action in the Kings County (N. Y.) Supreme Court to recover $10,000 damages from Lydia F. Hannon for enticing her husband, William Johnson, from her and eloping with him to Galveston, Texas. Mrs. Hannon owns property in Brooklyn valued at $10,000, which she is trying to dispose of through an agent at a sacrifice, thereby attempting to defraud plaintiff. Mrs. Johnson is endeavoring to prevent the sale of the property.

The New York Board of Railroad Commissioners have notified the Utica & Black River Railroad Company that if they fail to comply with the orders of the board relative to special freight rates, the case will be reported to the Attorney-General.

Dr. George H. Atkinson, of Brooklyn, N. Y., suffering from blood poisoning, superinduced by a scratch from the nail of a patient whom he was visiting a short time ago, died on the 27th ult.

The statement of the New York associated banks for the week ended December 27, shows the following changes: Loans increase, $1,531,000; specie increase, $1,818,000; legal tenders decrease, $1,102,000; deposits decrease $171,000; circulation decrease, $67,000; reserve increase, $258,000. The banks held $40,944,000 in excess of legal requirements.

The funeral of the orphan children who lost their lives by the late fire at the Brooklyn Asylum, took place on the 27th ult. The charred remains of twenty-one victims were placed in three coffins and taken to the Church of Our Lady of Victory, where they were placed in the main aisle. The edifice and altar were draped in mourning and the church was crowded. Rev. Father Mahony celebrated solemn mass, assisted by Revs. Fathers Creighton and Brosnan. The remains were interred in the Cemetery of the Holy Cross.

Herman Eilsen, a saloonkeeper of New York City, was arrested a few days ago by a custom house official for attempting to ship thirty-one pounds of gunpowder to Cuba on the steamer Saratoga. There was no label or mark upon the bag to show the explosive nature of its contents. Commissioner Shields held Eilsen in bonds of $40,000 for trial.

Secretary Flannery, of the Miners' Union, has declared the Monongahela River miners' strike off, and requests the miners to return to work at former wages.

About forty years ago Sedgwick L. Plummer graduated from Harvard College and from the Dana Law School. His father left him $50,000, which he soon squandered in riotous living, and recently died a pauper in the almshouse at Gardiner, Me.

The loss by the burning of Waterman's furniture factory, Charlestown, Mass., on the 27th ult., is estimated at $95,000; insurance $65,000.

A. N. Curtis, a prominent citizen of Sharon, Pa., and a well known philanthropist, died on the 28th ult., aged fifty-six.

Great destitution is reported among the iron ore miners in Berks and Lehigh counties, along the line of the Eastern Pennsylvania Railroad. Eighty per cent. of all the mines in that district are idle, and the wages of the miners who have work amount to the merest pittance. At least four thousand persons are in destitute circumstances, and many families are reported on the verge of starvation.

The value of imports (exclusive of specie) at the port of New York for the week ended December 27 were $4,907,000, of which $1,440,000 were dry goods and $3,466,000 general merchandise.

One hundred saloon-keepers were arrested at New York City on the 28th ult. for violating the excise law by selling liquor on Sunday.

WEST AND SOUTH.

William Shirker, late teller of the Second National Bank of Ironton, O., who was indicted on nineteen counts for the embezzlement of $26,000 of the bank's money, was found guilty in the United States Court on three counts, charging false entries, whereby the bank lost $3,000.

Near Lazan, Tex., on the 25th Dr. L. H. Cocke, his cousin, Miss Lyons, and their coachman were stopped by a highwayman, who relieved Dr. Cocke of fifty dollars and a gold watch. Miss Lyons wore a diamond brooch and other valuable jewelry, but the highwayman said he did not rob ladies. As he dashed into the woods he shouted to Dr. Cocke, "We shall meet again."

A notorious counterfeiter named Miles Ogle was arrested at Memphis, Tenn., on the 25th. Three thousand dollars in ten-dollar counterfeit bills on the Third National bank of Cincinnati were found on his person. Ogle has already served terms in the penitentiaries of New York, Ohio, and Pennsylvania for counterfeiting.

The La Porte (Ind.) Savings Bank closed its doors on the 25th and was placed in the hands of a receiver. The assets are about $90,0000; liabilities $15,000 less. It is said the depositors will be paid in full.

Judge Evans, United States District Attorney for Texas, returned a few days ago from Fort Bliss, whither he had been sent by the Governor of Texas to look into the title to that property. He thinks the title to the property and about $50,000 worth of improvements are in great danger of being lost to the Government, and says he will be compelled in his report to reflect severely upon the action of certain United States Army officers who located that post some years ago. The title to the entire property is in jeopardy. The heirs, having arrived at maturity, are now pressing their claims. Evans says although Congress recently appropriated $40,000 for improving Fort Bliss the whole improvement is not now worth more than $5,000 or $10,000.

Herman Gowan, alias Henry Holbrook, arrested in Minnesota on the charge of embezzlement of the funds of H. R. Weisner & Co., of York, Pa., whom he represented in Boston, has returned.

Cornelius Aultman, one of the leading citizens of Canton, Ohio, and a well-known manufacturer, died suddenly at his home on the 26th, after an illness of only a few hours.

The dry goods store of John Voght, at Deshler, O., together with several stores adjoining, were destroyed by fire on the 26th. Loss $75,000; probable insurance $40,000.

During a Christmas festival at Summerville, S. C., Mrs. Francis David, a prominent church lady, killed Mrs. Lizzie Way, a beautiful young married lady, by stabbing her with a pair of scissors. She was jealous because of Mr. David's supposed too great admiration of Mrs. Way.

Henry Bunn, a merchant of Stevenson, Ala., on the 26th discharged the contents of an old army musket, loaded with buckshot, through the head of a customer named John Bailey, scattering his brains over the ceiling. The affair occurred in the former's store. Bunn claims it was accidental, though he had previously had trouble with Bailey.

Watt Henry, aged thirty, so brutally beat and pounded his wife in his saloon at Akron, O., on the 24th, that she died the next morning. Henry was arrested.

On the 27th ult. three train wreckers were arrested and jailed at Purvis, Miss. The next night a mob of fifty masked men forcibly entered the jail and took them out and hanged them. The prisoners confessed their crime and said they thought it was a freight train, and decided to wreck it in order to steal what goods they wanted for Christmas. They did not intend to wreck a passenger train, and were sorry it was done. They also admitted wrecking a freight train at the same place for the same purpose one year ago.

While in a fit of mental despondency a few days ago Mrs. Williams, living near Dahlgren, Hamilton County, Ill., threw one of her children, a little girl, into a well and, attaching another still younger to her dress, jumped in herself and all were drowned.

A fire at Racine, Wis., on the morning of the 28th ult. totally destroyed the Blake Opera House Block, a five-story brick, the handsomest and largest building in the city. It consisted of an opera house, hotel, Carey & Flannegan, proprietors; a drug store, owned by W. H. Vilas; a restaurant, owned by Miss Lena Johnson; Wood Bro.'s hardware store, and the Telephone Exchange. Every room in the hotel was filled with guests and the upper story was occupied by servants. Three persons were burned to death. They were Mr. and Mrs. Russell P. Glover, members of the Thompson "Beggar Student" Opera Company, and Mrs. T. A. Patrick, the housekeeper of the hotel, in connection with the opera house. Loss on the building $100,000; insured for $48,000. The occupants of the building all lost heavily, but the exact amount had not been ascertained.

A brutal murder was committed in Jackson, Putnam County, O., on Christmas evening. John Fishback, a man of dangerous character, killed his wife during a quarrel, splitting open her head with an ax. The three sons of the murderer fled for their lives, as he also threatened to kill them.

John Baldwin, aged eighty-five, founder of the Baldwin University at Berea, O., died on the 28th ult. at his home in Baldwin, La. A few years ago Mr. Baldwin went to Louisiana, where he purchased a plantation and founded a college for colored people, and at the time of his death was extensively engaged in the sugar refining business.

Cass Carlin, a prominent citizen of Findlay, O., and his youngest child were killed at Ranch Sixty, near Miles City, Montana, a few days ago. Carlin had the child in his arms at the time and was conversing with the Sheriff of the county, who with a posse was searching the country for a gang of desperadoes. A stray shot passed through the bodies of both, killing them instantly.

FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

There was considerable disturbance during the election at Panama on the 24th. Several persons were killed and wounded.

The Catholic Church and the house of a priest at Corletos, Galicia, were entered by bandits a few days ago for the purpose of pillage. Failing to get any money they tied the priest in a heap of straw and burned him to death.

At Bally Duff, County Waterford, Ireland, a few days ago the vault of Colonel Hilliers, formerly Inspector General of Police, was broken open and Mrs. Hilliers' coffin taken out and thrown into the glen.

The French Chamber of Commerce recently adopted resolutions protesting against the proposed increase of corn duties by France and declaring itself in favor of free trade.

A Halifax, N. S., dispatch states that the Government steamer Lansdowne arrived there on the 26th bringing intelligence of another disaster on one of the outstretching sand bars, involving the loss of six lives. The French brig A. S. H., from St. Pierre, bound to Boston with a cargo of fish, struck on the north side, two miles from the main station on the 26th. Four men were washed away and lost, and two others were drowned in attempting to reach the shore during the night. The sole survivor reached Halifax by the Lansdowne.

Bottitz Brothers, large corn merchants at Vienna, failed on the 27th ult. and subsequently committed suicide by shooting themselves with revolvers.

The latest intelligence from General Wolseley states that he has decided to abandon his attempt to reach Shendy by the desert route from Korti, thus cutting off the great bend in the Nile. The difficulties of the way seem to him to be too great to be surmounted with the resources at his command. Instead of the desert route he will use the route from Merawch to Berber, likewise through the desert, but much shorter than the other. He has accordingly changed his base from Korti to Merawch. This change places the relief of Khartoum two months further into the future than was expected.

Details of the recent earthquake shock in the Spanish provinces of Granada and Malaga show a far greater loss of life and property than at first reported. Several places were partially destroyed. Official returns from the province of Granada state that 526 persons were killed by the earthquake there, and in Malaga a hundred. In Alhama over 350 bodies have already been recovered. In Periana sixty bodies were recovered. Many persons died from fright.

The French Senate has adopted a clause of the Budget establishing the principle of taxation on religious bodies.

The English postal authorities report that nearly four million Christmas cards were sent and received through London, Liverpool, and Manchester alone.

LATER NEWS.

THE residence of the Hon. W. H. Norris, in Ozark County, Mo., was burned on the 28th ult. and Mr. Norris perished in the flames. The family had all escaped from the house when Mr. Norris re-entered to save an old family relic, but was cut off by the flames and fell suffocated by the smoke. He was burned before the eyes of his wife and children. Mr. Norris had represented Ozark County four terms in the State Legislature and was a highly respected and very popular man.

FOUR young men entered a restaurant at Mt. Pleasant, Pa., on the evening of the 27th ult. and calling for oysters, they directed the cook to put the contents of a bottle they handed him into the stew, which he did. The bottle contained alcohol. They ate the oysters and also drank a quantity of the alcohol sweetened with sugar. Next day they were all taken sick and two of them, Joseph Randolph and Charles Smith, died. The other two are in a dangerous condition.

SAMUEL GEDDES, aged fifty-three years, of Boston, while trying to get out of bed to admit his wife (who had been out nursing a sick friend), caught his feet in the bed clothes and fell to the floor on his head, breaking his neck.

The Locust Gap and Locust Spring collieries, operated by the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad Company, at Mount Carmel, Pa., have suspended indefinitely. Two thousand men are thrown out of employment.

DEVILLO HUBBARD, a prominent Democratic politician of Marshall, Mich., and a member of the last Democratic National Convention, died on the 29th ult. He leaves an estate of half a million.

THE business portion of Kentland, Ind., was destroyed by an incendiary fire on the 29th ult. Loss about $50,000; mostly insured.

THE Secretary of the Navy on the 30th ult. received a cable message from Admiral Davis at Nagasaki, Japan, announcing the death on board the Trenton of Naval Cadet T. V. Torrey, of Illinois.

THE Coroner's inquest over the body of James Shea, the schoolboy whose death was attributed to injuries at the hands of Miss Bradner, a school teacher, at Nanticoke, Pa., resulted in a verdict that he died of chronic pleurisy. Miss Bradner was fully exonerated, being out of the building at the time the boy fell down stairs.

A SAN FRANCISCO paper has received a dispatch from Lordsburg, N. M., stating that Captain H. W. Howgate passed through there on the 28th ult. en route to the Malone mining camp on the Burro Mountains. The correspondent says he is sure it was Howgate, as he served seven years under him in the signal service.

What a Mississippi Pilot Says:

Capt. D. M. Riggs, who is well known at New Orleans and along the Mississippi river says: "I have been suffering from dyspepsia for the past five years, and from broken rest by severe pains in the bowels and kidneys. I tried every medicine recommended for these diseases without success. At last I used a bottle of Brown's Iron Bitters, which proved a perfect success in my case. It cures all liver, kidney and malarial diseases.

A Great Discovery.

Mr. Wm. Thomas, of Newton, Pa., says: "My wife has been seriously affected with a cough for twenty-five years, and this spring more severely than ever before. She had used many remedies without relief, and being urged to try Dr. King's New Discovery, did so, with most gratifying results. The first bottle relieved her very much, and the second bottle has absolutely cured her. She has not had so good health for thirty years." Trial bottles Free at C. A. Wright & Co's Drug Store. BROOKLYN BALLAST.

The rain falls fast as tears of children. Sighted by Kris Kringle and a wintry sky seems intent on washing away the memory of a Christmas that has in many cases been kept with singing prelude of gladness that no heart could be found so dull enough to vibrate to its transparency.

There was a suitable celebrating breaking affair at the Presbyterian church, which filled their treasury thirty dollars worth, besides leaving over a majority of population that never can be filled again, and the All Saints Sunday-school here, perhaps from and sharpened souvenirs of friendship than ever before. Custom and civil exercises were manifested as of old however though one branch of the hallowed tree was starred with a spirit of unforgiveness as bitter as that which stings to ask the mercy which Governor Begole unlocks prison doors with. Anger blossoms are as conspicuous as sunflowers for church bouquets but I confess a preference for the daisies, sky glimpses, clover perks and meadows and world at large which the Governor flings into dingy cells, and whatever weight of denunciation may be placed on him by those not in digestion of an instrumental quality of mercy, the thankfulness of those who are can tip up. What if it, or any other person, or for place is a little longer too often is inherited away by the vegetal hate that pursues the wrong doer, and so the punishment comes as near with the crime of a greater crime to warrant it is seldom mentioned aloud, but he has not twenty-five years behind the bars is mentioned with vengeance satisfaction, or he has got his just desserts, is said with as much apparent thankfulness as if he in the case of the fellow was thanked an enemy [illegible]

FARMERS SOCIAL CLUB.

Dec. 29th, the Farmer's Social Club met at the residence of Mr. John Fisher. Although Mr. Fisher has one of the largest residences in the township it was well filled with a very enthusiastic audience. The Program heretofore announced was carried out in full. The essay written by Miss Ida Rector, was a kind of forecast of the discussion, as it was a comparison of farm and city life, and was really a good description in itself. Song of Grace Gillespie was both sweet and musical for a child of her age, being only ten years old. Before the club entered upon the discussion of the question, pleasures and profits of farming, as compared with other pursuits in life, Mr. Madison Graves of Palmyra, was introduced and addressed the club upon the question of importing German labor. After hearing the address, the committee on exercises for the next meeting made the subject of introducing German labor the question for our next discussion.

As E. L. Russell was not present the discussion was opened by Mrs. F. C. Rector who said there was no class or occupation as independent as the farmer and did not think the farmer or farmer's wife need to work any harder than those in other occupations. Thought our Michigan the Garden of the World.

Mr. Fisher was brought upon a few and like Moses Sparton. Thinks it is most honorable way of getting a living and believes where machines are used that farming was very profitable.

Mr. Schroder said as a class there was far less percentage of failures among the farmers than any other class of workers, and certainly the pleasures were with the farmers.

Mr. R. B. Gillespie believed there was more money in most other occupations than there was in farming. But people drift into channels to which they are adapted. Had measured himself and found that the farm was his place. Would like to have the millionaires pointed out among the farming fraternity. It is hard work for both men and women.

Mr. Griswold has seen all these fine farms around us brought into the state they now are from the wilderness, and very few of them had ever changed hands because their owners were obliged to sell. In fact there were but very few failures among the farmers whereas of those who engage in the mercantile pursuits about three out of a hundred succeeded. Mr. Griswold takes a great deal of pleasure in farming.

Club adjourned for two weeks to meet at the residence of Mr. John Kinsey, Jan. 9th, at 1 P. M. Exercises for the next meeting:

Music—Choir.
Essay—Fred Rendelshot.
Recit. Music—Grant and Henry.
Duet—Grant Schroder.
Select Reading—Mrs. Johnson Hoyle.
Question—What be both profitable and pleasant for us to import foreign labor? Led by the President.

THOMAS NAST

Thomas Nast, or as he is better known as Tom Nast, who proved such a [illegible] Blaine clever [illegible] was born in Landau, Bavaria, 1840. With his parents he came to the United States in 1846, settling at Arcadia, Ohio. He was of a [illegible] and entered Frank Leslie's Illustrated Newspaper. He and [illegible] had through [illegible] for drawing. He took a six months course of instruction under Theodore Kaufman, and was able to make drawings which were good enough for the wood engravers of that day. Located upon from the advanced position of the art of today, they are to say the least, up to the standard. In 1861 Nast went to England to illustrate the Heenan Sayers prize fight, his sketches appeared upon the N. Y. Illustrated News. Immediately after this he went to Italy to follow Garibaldi and entered Naples with him. He was present at the sieges of Capua and Gaeta and made war sketches for the "Illustrated London News," the "New York Illustrated News" and "Le Monde Illustre" of Paris. Returning to New York he began in 1862 a series of war and political sketches in Harper's Weekly and has since continued upon the staff of that journal. In 1868 he executed for the "Ballo Opera" in New York, 60 caricatures of prominent artists, actors, and politicians. Some of the pictures were 4x6 ft., and all were finished in water color in 30 days. In 1873 he appeared as a public lecturer in the leading cities of America, illustrating his remarks with illustrations upon the board. He has besides his work for Harper's Weekly, illustrated a number of books, among others Nasby's "Swingin Round the Circle," "The Tribute Book" etc. etc. He has made numerous illustrations for "Phunny Phellow." He is under contract to the Harper's at a salary of $20,000 a year. He is a remarkably fast workman and since the death of John Leech undoubtedly stands foremost in the field of political caricature. In the Cleveland-Blaine campaign of 1884 he was unwontedly bitter and for the first time in its history Harper's Weekly became antagonistic to the republican party in a presidential contest. The position of the journal had the effect of alienating many supporters from the republican ranks.

An injunction has been granted by Judge Charles H. Truax, Superior Court of the City of New York, restraining and enjoining Messrs. M. B. Folland and Charles Moss from publishing, issuing, circulating, or selling an edition of Dante's Inferno, translated by Cary, illustrated by Gustave Dore, which from size, form, color and illustrations upon the cover, size, color and form of case in which the same are offered for sale, arrangement of text and notes upon pages, and of illustrations, shall tend to mislead the public into the belief that in purchasing the defendants' book they are getting the said book as published by the plaintiffs, Cassell & Company, Limited, 753 and 741 Broadway, New York. In connection with the above, Messrs. Cassell & Company announce that they are the only authorized publishers of Dante's Inferno and Purgatory and Paradise, and Milton's Paradise Lost with all the illustrations from the original designs by Gustave Dore.

E. Scott (Jr.) favors us with a copy of the Sligo Chronicle containing the death notice of a very aged lady of that city.

On Saturday the 6th inst. died at her residence on the Mall, Sligo, Mrs. Eliza Rutherford, widow of Surgeon James Rutherford R. N. who predeceased her more than twenty years. The deceased lady was a member of a very old Sligo family and was highly esteemed for her kindness and generosity. She reached a very advanced age, supposed to be at least 98 years, but tradition rumors that she had passed 104. Up to within a very short time of her decease Mrs. Rutherford retained her recollection and intelligence. She was well acquainted with many scenes of the French invasion of 98 and could talk of them almost to the last with clearness.

A THRILLING STORY.

As Told by a Merchant in Troy, N. Y.—A Surgical Operation Avoided—How a Father, Wife and Daughter Escaped an Awful Doom.

Of the hundreds of accounts of remarkable cures wrought by Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, none have appeared so purely astonishing as the following. The persons mentioned are among the most highly respected in the city of Troy. And the story is told by the father with a fervor interesting to all our readers.—Ed.

TROY, N. Y.

Dr. Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.:

Dear Sir—My daughter was afflicted with a tumor or growth of Fibroids. It produced a wasting pain, so that she could not walk upright. Her physicians pronounced it so bad that an operation was necessary, but fearing I did not survive it, some of the physicians claimed that it was useless to attempt it. In fact, one of them said he did not think she could live a week. Hearing of Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, working so thoroughly on the blood I determined to try it, for if the medicine could do what doctors had failed to do and surgeons had refused to undertake, I am sure it would. The result of this trial was the complete cure of my daughter of this dreadful malady. Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy alone effected it. We used nothing else, for other things had completely failed. My daughter today enjoys as good health as any girl of her age in the county. My wife also was very poor in health, and had some liver difficulty with which she had suffered a long time until she became very much reduced in flesh. A trial of Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy had resulted in the complete restoration of her health, which she had not enjoyed for years. She had gained in flesh and strength and thus secured perfect health, and this is due entirely to Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy. As for myself, being engaged in the grocery and commission business, which makes it necessary for me to test the quality of different articles like butter, etc., my sense of taste and my stomach were seriously impaired, everything seemed to taste sour, and I learned of dyspepsia in its most severe form. I tried Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy. The first bottle afforded immediate relief, and from that day to this I can say that Favorite Remedy has restored me to perfect health. These are facts which I claim prove that Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy is the best medicine in the world for those afflicted with the above difficulties. If any one in the city of Troy doubts the truth of these statements let him come to me and I will prove them. I have recommended Favorite Remedy to hundreds and with the same good results.

Yours, etc., WILLIAM WINDSOR,

CLINTON CHAPTER.

Robert Codling is at work for Dr. Burchard in his gun factory.

R. R. Kinney who has been at work in Frank Brown's tin-shop for some months past, has gone to Camden Mich. to visit his father. He expects to return in February and has rented Mrs. W. P. Wastell's house on Chicago street.

Prof. Laflin and wife, and Miss Ida Fullerton returned from Ypsilanti Saturday last and school duties were resumed Monday morning. The school seems to be in a more prosperous condition than ever before and the ambition exhibited by Prof. Laflin in trying to make his school pleasant as well as profitable to his pupils, and the deep interest he has in the Literary Society go to show how much at heart he has their welfare.

Mrs. J. C. Burroughs has been quite ill for several days.

The six months baby of J. White has been very sick with inflammation of the lungs and at last accounts was no better.

J. B. Hause attended the funeral of a fourteen year old son of Mr. Manly in Franklin, last Monday.

Mrs. John T. Clark and daughter left Clinton for Blissfield last Thursday for a week's visit to her mother's Mrs. Dr. Newcomb.

S. W. Demuth thinks of enlarging his store in the spring on account of increased trade.

B. O. Randall and Co. are invoicing their stock of goods this week.

Mrs. A. B. VanDeMark and mother, Mrs. Jane VanDeMark, were quite sick with colds the fore part of this week. Mrs. Geo. Kies, of Tecumseh, visited them Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lancaster drove to Tecumseh Sunday to visit their daughter.

The dances at the skating rink do not seem to meet with very great success. The one which was advertised for last Wednesday night has been indefinitely postponed.

C. S. Burroughs and wife expect to go to house keeping soon.

Lovers of the "light fantastic" expect a grand good time the 23d of January. There is to be an old fashioned masquerade party at the Town Hall on that evening. No gloves, no programs, nothing formal to interfere with the perfect enjoyment of all who wish to engage in the pleasure. Geo. VanGieson, Victor Haywood, and Albert Kishpaugh are the executive committee and wish to assure the public that no pains will be spared to make this the event of the season. The older people are especially invited as their presence is always needed to add to the enjoyment of the occasion. As good an orchestra as can be obtained will be there, and supper will be furnished for all. Every one put on a mask and go. Let us make up once more and sustain Clinton's reputation of giving the largest and best parties of any town in the county.

Mrs. J. E. McCollum and Miss Lucretia Reynolds visited Adrian last Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Clark returned from their visit to Mt. Pleasant Mich. last Tuesday. A reception will be given them Friday evening, January 9th, at the residence of Mrs. Louise M. Clark.

On Thursday evening January 1st, 1885, a large number of invited guests assembled at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Kishpaugh to witness the marriage of their daughter Sarah to Will H. Dorr. They were married by the solemn and impressive ceremony of the Episcopal church, Rev. Joseph St. John officiating. After the vows and promises that were to bind those two souls together forever, had been given, the united pair received the congratulations of their many friends and relatives. An elegant supper was then served to which every one tried to do full justice. The presents which are always an accompaniment of such an occasion, were unusually rich and costly, showing the high esteem, in which the bride and bridegroom are held by the people of Clinton. The decorations were very pretty and quite novel. A floral hammock was suspended in the arch between the parlors, and above one end of it, a wreath of roses hung by large loops of white satin ribbon. On the wall just above the hammock, in both rooms were the words, "Until death us do part." Among the guests from abroad were Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Fisk of Detroit, Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Celler of Tecumseh, Mr. Wilkerson and family of Dundee, and Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Kishpaugh of Raisin Center. Mr. and Mrs. Dorr left on the evening train for Jackson, from thence to Detroit where they were to spend about a week. We wish them many happy years.

The Rev. St. John of the Episcopal church, will preach on Sunday morning, Jan. 11th, from the text "Wo be unto us if I preach not the gospel." Come out and hear him.

Dr. Cameron has taken the rooms over the store of B. O. Randall & Co., where he now has his office. The public will please take notice. Office hours from 9 to 12 o'clock A. M. and from 1 to 4 o'clock P. M. when not professionally engaged.

TIPTON TOPICS.

The Methodist pastor and wife were not a little surprised on New Year's eve to see a number of friends file into the parsonage with twenty-five yards of new carpet. The carpet was presented to Mrs. Storms in a neat and appropriate speech by Mrs. J. Fridd, as a New Year's present from the ladies of the society. The gift was very acceptable and highly appreciated, not only because of its val- [illegible] cause it was needed, but also especially because it was [illegible] expression of the kindly [illegible] and good will of the people.

The new depot at Tipton is no longer a myth, a visionary scheme, product of a deranged imagination, but is, or rather bids fair soon to be, a veritable reality. The side track is being laid and the foundation for the depot.

Let some enterprising man come into the place and establish a harness shop, a boot and shoe shop or a clothing and dry goods store. There is plenty of room for the place to grow, —but be it understood no saloon will be tolerated.

Who shall be the post-master under the new administration, is the all absorbing question of a number of citizens who are chiefly interested. "Jerry" looks dubious, John looks hopeful, "Dr" thinks perhaps maybe others are thinking about getting some disinterested party to start a petition. Mean while——.

RIDGEWAY RAMBLES

Mud! Muddy! Muddiest!

As this is the week of prayer the social will hold over a fortnight.

Prof. E. A. Wilson and wife returned to Vassar Saturday to commence his school there Monday.

The Literary Friday night was largely attended and the program was very interesting and was successfully carried out.

Mr. Jonas Rappleye, of Ypsilanti, made friends here a visit last week.

Mr. Geo. Wilber, of Ypsilanti was the guest of Mrs. J. D. Freer over New Years.

Mr. and Mrs. Dr. Gifford, of Vienna, called on friends here New Years. The Doctor is looking hearty.

Mr. Alonzo Webster, of Pittsford, Hillsdale Co. called on relatives last week.

Mrs. E. Rappleye, of Dundee, visited friends here Friday. Her health is very good for her.

Martin Palmer commenced his school at Britton Monday.

Miss Nellie Freer commenced to attend school at Tecumseh Monday and will board with Mrs. C. A. Sharp.

Mr. John Waring, of Paw Paw, formerly of Tecumseh, called on relatives and friends Monday.

Mr. Warren Jones plough'd the last day of 1884 and says it turned over nicely.

It is said that it is the habit of the Martin to change its abode in the winter but it isn't so with a Martin of this place.

The Sunday school board met Sunday after S. S. and the following officers were elected for the ensuing year.

Supt.—Dr. D. W. Loree.
Asst. Supt.—Henry Williams.
Sect.—J. D. Arner.
Asst. Sect.—Miss Ada Loree.
Treasurer—Mrs. G. W. Jackson.
Chorister—G. P. Waring.
Organist—Miss Ella Jackson.
Asst. Organist—Belle Barlow.

Tuesday was seen what is seldom seen, a beautiful rainbow, directly in the North. It was visible about 11 A. M. the plainest.

G. C. Arner went to Milan Monday to visit friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Jones went to Ypsilanti Saturday to attend the funeral of their cousin Miss Emma Hall. She was an Indian missionary in New Mexico. She died Saturday Dec. 27th after a short sickness, with heart disease. The remains were sent to her home at Ypsilanti, and the funeral was held at her residence on Pearl St. Saturday afternoon. She leaves a large circle of friends who mourn her loss.

Sunday evening, Dec. 28th, Prof. H. C. Wilson and Miss Aggie Willett of Blissfield, were united in marriage at the M. E. church, Blissfield, by Rev. E. A. Bray, after the evening service. They, in company with his brother, Prof. E. A. Wison and wife of Vassar, attended the Teacher's State Institute at Lansing, Monday and Tuesday, returning to his home at Ridgeway, Wednesday, Dec. 31st. His parents made them a reception on New Years night when friends upward of 50 or more, gathered to congratulate the Prof. and spent the evening very pleasantly. Refreshments were served, after which Misses Belle Barlow and Ella Jackson furnished some music, when all wished the Prof. and his bride a happy journey through life and departed for their several homes. The Prof. returned to Blissfield Friday and commenced his school Jan. 5th, with a new zeal.

The Literary will hold its next meeting Friday evening, Jan. 16, in Waring's Hall, when the following Program will be carried out:

Music—Society.
Prayer—Rev. W. J. Clack.
Recitation—Miss Linnie Corvell.

Reading—Dr. R. H. Nelson.
Recitation—Miss Fannie Schwab.
Music—Lou Arner.
Essay—Miss Ella Cadmus.
Dialogue—By three Boys.
Recess of ten minutes.
Music—Miss Ella L. Jackson.
Debate—Resolved, That the right of suffrage should be given to women. Aff.—Martin Palmer. Neg.—William Stewart.

A collection will be taken to defray the necessary expenses.

BY ORDER OF COM.

BROOKLYN BALLAST.

What will the New Year bring me? is a query that doubtless haunts the minds of most of us when we cross time's threshold and hurry forward to meet a baggage train, never derailed by mis-placed switches. As there was no fear of our daily express getting mislaid either, nothing was left to do but patronize rink and theatre. Fancy skaters, Paul and Mamie, exhibited feet-fall and a fair number of skillfully performed tricks on wheels, to a large assembly who gave their money and time freely during holiday week to rolling around the circle.

Monday evening the Firemen were welcomed by a full house, and probably played as well as expected for the hall was again packed Friday night, when the play was repeated. The hall was refitted and scenery painted by McColl for the occasion, and to Robert Irwin Post G. & M. belong the glory and cash. Good music was contributed by Hart Brothers, but the Firemen have a just claim to all criticism offered them, and good natured ly refuse to relinquish their right.

We have no Farmer's Social Club or Literary society organized yet, but people off their skates are debating this question: Is a wife's exclusive ownership of a home, her husband has paid for, or vice versa, as conclusive to the welfare of a family, as equal property interests? Will the Griswold—Fisher—combinations lend us their opinion of one-sided absolute home rule.

FRANKLIN FACTS.

Snows, mud, rain, froze.

The Bohemia-noat man is numerous.

The side-track is completed and the depot building is daily expected. It is said to be all framed ready to put together when it arrives. Although the weather was not favorable yet the people turned out and did the grading in four days, last week, with teams and scrapers.

We are pleased to learn by the newspapers, that so many men are resuming work in the factory's of the east, and that nearly all kinds of produce is advancing in price. It begins to look as if we had passed the worst of the hard times. We ought to profit by such lessons.

Charles Manly, whose illness we mentioned last week, died on Saturday evening at 7 o'clock. He was about 13 years of age. The funeral was on Monday. Rev. Mr. Storms conducted the service. It was attended by all his school mates, the teacher dismissing school so that the scholars might pay their last respects to their companion who was so suddenly called from among them. The doctors differed as to the nature of his malady, but he suffered terribly.

SPRINGVILLE SIFTINGS.

The dancing party at Ayer's Hall, on New Year's night, was a failure on account of bad roads.

There is to be a club dance at the Springville Hotel, on Friday evening, the 9th.

The Ayer's Hall is now in order for the Skating Rink, having placed a new maple floor there.

The Methodist church is still on the increase in attendance under the preaching of Mr. Storms.

Chas. Vaughn and Willie Breese returned on Monday to attend the Raisin Valley Seminary.

Miss M. Booher spent a day last week visiting Mrs. Hannibal Coborn of Franklin, one of her old mates.

The opening of the Springville Skating Rink on Monday evening, was a grand success. There was over one hundred in attendance; some sixty were on skates. Wednesday and Friday evenings there is to be another exhibition.

The past week has been very quiet; bad roads and more or less rain keeps people at home.

H. R. Case has been around and bought the best of the live hogs about here; he shipped a carload from Brooklyn, Tuesday P. M.

Wheat is on the advance, bringing 75cts. in this market. As confidence is restored all things will advance in price.

ONSTED ODDS.

There is some talk of forming a stock company to build a store to rent.

Mrs. L. H. Sheeler has been quite sick but is slowly recovering.

Frank Glenn, of Chicago, who came home to visit his parents, was taken sick last Sunday. At present he is better with good prospects for a speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Daniels have just returned from Battle Creek and Marshall and vicinity, where they have been to visit friends.

Fred Glenn went to Fowlerville nearly two weeks ago with a horse and cutter. As he has not yet returned, we suppose he is waiting for it to snow.

FLASHES BY C. T. LINE.

B. F. Norcross has his instrument in and it works fine.

Congregational social at T. M. Hamburn's Thursday afternoon and evening.

Mrs. Pawson will have an auction sale of goods on Friday.

There are now twenty-five operators on the C. T. line.

Farmers are not advertising sales one quarter off, but they are selling wheat on that basis.

Mrs. Almira McCollum returned Saturday from Hudson.

Chas., son of F. and H. Manley, died last Saturday.

A private letter from Mart Whelan, Florida, reported him as settled on his farm there and doing well, but had rather live in Michigan.

Mrs J. F. N Bowen out of curiosity kept a record of her baking for the year '84, which shows it takes something to satisfy the inner man. This is for a family of eight on the average. Loaves bread 437. Pies 173. Doughnuts 845. Cookies 3,003. Cakes 124.—This is saying nothing about meats, biscuit, vegetables, puddings etc.

They have the side track built at Tipton.

TALK OF THE TIMES.

Under this heading the CHICAGO WEEKLY NEWS has introduced a novel and exceedingly valuable feature. In these days of constantly increasing development of telegraphic communication the world over it is becoming more and more a question among newspaper readers as to what they shall not read as well as what they shall. The Editor of to-day is expected to save his readers reading as well as to give it. With an understanding of these new conditions the progressive Editor of the CHICAGO WEEKLY NEWS presents each week a short, condensed chapter which recounts the world's history during the preceding week, on all the most important subjects of general interest to American readers. The work is admirably done and exactly meets what the busy American reader requires.

But words are futile and so—but out it pass!
For thou art only false as other men,
I hate thee not as I do Lent—thee then,
Early last spring.

Why, false one, see!
Then once was warm enough for any clime
And now, how slight art thou—that sweet time—
In August last, when sunstrokes filled the sky,
And for the sake of other coats I wore thee
by:
Thou smotherest me!

And now! the breath
Of chill November makes me wish thee warm:
Dead leaves in shivering eddies 'round me
swarm:
Thou art as cold as frigid Greenland's snows,
And every one who sees thee laughs and knows
I'm freeze to death.

SQUAW'S ROCK.

The Tragic Events from Which It Took Its Name.

Those who are acquainted with the upper portion of the Russian River Valley can not have failed to remark a peculiarly precipitous bluff, some five hundred feet in height, which overhangs the western bank of the stream at a point about ten miles north of Cloverdale and six of seven from Hopland or Sanel. Those who have ridden in the stage from Cloverdale to Ukiah at the present day over the new toll-road running along the eastern bank of the river, gain a clear view of this precipitous bluff while passing over that portion of the road known as the Blue Slide—a geological freak which lies just opposite to Squaw's Rock, and has acquired its reputation from the glacier-like movement of the blue clay composing that portion of the river-ward slope, necessitating continued repairs of the roadway, and constituting the acme of thorn in the side of the stage drivers who ply between Cloverdale and Ed River. Either the driver or some fellow passenger, if you happen to be traveling on the stage, will probably volunteer to give you the traditional particulars of how the Squaw's Rock acquired its name. These particulars, however, are usually extremely meagre, and all that seems to be certainly known about the matter is that, some forty years ago—before the discovery of gold, in fact, and when white settlers were few and far between—an Indian maiden was beloved by a white youth, the affection being mutual, but distasteful to the maiden's tribe, who put every obstacle in the way of a union; that the maiden was eventually compelled to marry a suitor chosen for her by the tribe, and that, in a fit of despair, she threw herself, like another Sappho, from the top of the precipice which bears her name, and was dashed to pieces on the bowlders of the river's bed. This poetic legend might still have remained shrouded in historic vagueness had not chance thrown me in the way of obtaining further particulars from an authentic source, which invested the story with a tragic and dramatic force which was not hinted at in its original form.

Some years ago, while living in the neighborhood of Cloverdale, I made the acquaintance of an Indian of more than ordinary intelligence, whose natural reticence was thawed by some services which I was enabled to do him, and whose confidence I won far enough to succeed in making him unfold in a disjointed manner the real history of the occurrences from which Squaw's Rock took its name, and which I now reproduce for the benefit of my readers, weaving the story into a more connected form than was given me by old Santiago.

It was some time in the twenties that John Willard, the captain of a trader, who brought the commodities of civilized life into Monterey, and there bartered them for hides, got tired of his seafaring life, as many more have done before and after him in California, married himself to a senorita with broad acres and fat kine, and settled down into a steady-going rancher in the valley of the Russian River. A son was born to the pair, a stalwart youth, whose robust, out-of-door vaquero life made him both strong and handsome. It was universally conceded that Frank Willard, at the age of twenty, was as fine a specimen of a youth as could be found north of the bay, or, for that matter, south of it either. His free and generous disposition made him as great a favorite with the male portion of the community as his good looks did with the female. Of course, at that susceptible age it was only natural that he should pay particular attention to the latter, and as compatriots of his own station were not numerous in those thinly settled regions, perhaps it was but natural that he should cast his eyes upon such females as there were. The paternal hacienda of the Willards lay in the neighborhood of the Healdsburg of the present day; and to the north in the vicinity of Sanel and Ukiah there dwelt at that time a strong tribe of Indians, remarkable for fine physique and in all respects considerably above the average of Californian aborigines. During one of his equestrian wanderings young Frank Willard came upon one of the rancherias of this tribe, at that time situated upon the western bank of the Russian River, and within a few hundred yards of the precipice now known as Squaw's Rock. It was there that he encountered Benita, daughter of Big Bull, one of the sub-chiefs of the tribe, a maiden of rare beauty, with a complexion as pure and clear as a Castilian and a form of wonderful symmetry and grace. At that impressionable age to see was to love. Young Willard saw his fate, and the flame was reciprocated. But there were the usual difficulties in the way. Not only were the youth's parents scandalized beyond expression at the idea of their son allying himself to an Indian, but the Indians themselves, with true tribal pride, resented the idea of such a union. Still love, as usual, laughed at locksmiths, and Frank's absence from the hacienda upon riding expeditions of questionable utility became more and more noticeable as the weeks wore on. There were stolen interviews with Benita in the chaparral near the rancheria, at one of which the loving couple were surprised by the old chief, when Frank was warned that such interviews must cease forever, under pain of the direst resentment of the tribe. The fair Benita had, he was told, been betrothed to Domingo, a gallant of her race, and the nuptial ceremony was to be performed in the course of a week, on which occasion a grand fandango was to be held, at which the whole tribe would participate. From that time forth Benita was not permitted to go outside the bounds of the rancheria, though a solitary horseman, presumed to be Frank Willard, could still be seen daily riding among the adjacent hills. At length the day of the fandango arrived. The large adobe building in which the orgy was to be held, was filled at an early hour of the evening with as motley an assemblage of squaws and bucks as ever appeared at such a gathering. The weeping Benita was led in, bedecked with as much poor finery as the wardrobe of the tribe afforded, and at her side stood Domingo with a triumphant expression on his coarse and repulsive countenance. Dancing was engaged in around a fire built on the ground in the center of the building (it was winter), the smoke from which ascended in wreaths to the cone-shaped ceiling through a hole in which it issued to the open air. Squaws danced with squaws, and bucks with bucks, as the invariable custom is. Under the influence of agardiente, of which there was a liberal supply, the orgy waxed wild and furious. Suddenly it was remarked that Benita had disappeared while Domingo was engaged in dancing. In an instant a deafening howl was set up, and the motley gathering rushed pell-mell from the building, spreading hither and thither with pine torches and glowing firebrands in quest of the missing maiden. Presently a shout went up from an outlying quarter. A general rush was made thither. Just at the limits of the rancheria stood a horse, on which was seated Frank Willard, while running towards it, and now only a few yards away, appeared Benita. A second or two more and she would have reached the horse and been swung into the saddle by the strong arm of her lover, when, hapless fate! an arrow whizzed through the air, piercing the flank of the animal. With a bound the spirited beast leaped forward, the abrupt movement throwing the poor youth out of the saddle. In an instant he was on his feet, with one arm round the maiden, while with his revolver he covered the approaching Indians. Six shots rang out in sharp succession, and three swarthy forms fell groaning to the ground. But what chance had the poor boy against the superior numbers of the now maddened barbarians? Frank was quickly overpowered, bound with rushes, and a council held over his prostrate body. Some counseled despatching him instantly then and there, but this was overruled by the older heads of the tribe.

After a short consultation, four of the stoutest Indians raised him from the ground and began to bear him out of the rancheria. They took the direction of the river, making straight for the precipice which overhangs it at a height of 500 feet, followed by the entire tribe. Arrived at the edge of the bluff, the two stoutest Indians took the body of the youth by the head and feet, and swinging him backward and forward three times launched him out into the stream, whose hoarse murmur could be heard 500 feet below. The next instant a female figure sprang forward from the throng of Indians that had pressed close up to the brink of the precipice, and, with a wild, despairing shriek, leaped down after the body of her lover.

It was Benita. Her body was found next morning, dashed into an unrecognizable mass upon the bowlders below.

The body of poor Frank Willard was found a few days later some miles down the stream, caught on a snag below where Cloverdale now is. There were no marks of violence on it, as he had been swung clear into the river, which was then in flood, and as the rushes with which he had been bound had been washed off there was no evidence that he had been murdered in the way he was. It was thought he had been wounded while attempting to ford the swollen stream. It was early in the forties when the incident happened. Most of those who took part in it are, doubtless, by this time either dead or dispersed. My informant, old Santiago, did not admit having taken any overt part in the matter, so I could only thank him for his narrative, and for having given new interest to the precipice known as the Squaw's Rock.—Robert Duncan Milne, in San Francisco Argonaut.

—The Kansas Supreme Court's decision that a husband is not responsible for slanderous words spoken by his wife when he was not present, seems to assume that he would be responsible if present. It was the old common law right of the husband to restrain his wife's tongue by personal chastisement that made him responsible for his wife's utterances. Since that right has been abolished, there seems to be no basis for holding him responsible for what she says whether he is present or absent. It would be a solemn mockery for the law to presume that the mere presence of a meek and bald-headed husband can silence a wife when she is inclined to do the talking for the whole family.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

A LAND OF ALL LANDS.

Louisiana the Most Cosmopolitan State on the Continent.

If the great World's Industrial and Cotton Centennial Exposition was located in New Orleans for no other reason, the widely diversified and cosmopolitan character of its inhabitants would be reason enough. Not in any other city on this continent are as many nations and peoples gathered together, maintaining their national individual characteristics, and at the same time blending as part of a generous American citizenship.

While Germany and Great Britain are largely in excess of all other nationalities, France is not far behind in point of influence, and these three form the controlling sentiment in our foreign-born element, and are notably powerful in local politics. In our census returns, however, there are no blanks. Any nation that has representation in any State of the Union is represented here. Settled by the French a little more than a century and three-quarters ago, Louisiana early absorbed large numbers of German and Spanish, and East and West India people. Her German coast and lake and Bayou des Allemands bear testimony to the staying qualities of the former. The Spaniards have vividly impressed their individuality upon the most permanent of our past century development, while all over the State, from La Chinch to Barataria, still exist the groups of people, close keeping and isolated, who attest the tenacity of the latter's growth when transplanted upon our soil.

A large Italian colony, many thousands strong, monopolize the retailing of nuts and fruits. Austrians, Turks and Greeks by the hundreds haunt our waterways and gulf coast, our fishing banks and our oyster reefs, where the Chandaleurs doubtless remind them of their own archipelago on the island-dotted coast of the Western Adriatic. The Canary Islanders of St. Bernard divide their time between gardening and fishing. The Frenchmen from the Pyrenees—the Gascons—are the meat-sellers of the markets. The red signs of the industrious Chinese washermen are conspicuous in a hundred places in the city. The colony of Choctaws from their tribal commune across the lake, in St. Tammany, supply the market with baskets and bead-work and herbs and medicine roots. Perhaps the only well-kept Greek Church on the continent is maintained here by the Russian colony, where strangers are welcomed with the traditional hospitality of this faithful people. Of Mexicans, Cubans and Central and North Americans, many hundreds here are our cigar-makers and sellers. A Malay colony was planted on the shores of Barataria Bay many years before the war. They live by themselves under their own strict rules, knowing no law and violating none, selling fish to the city markets, and comfortable in their bamboo-thatched cabins built after the model of those of their ancestors a thousand years ago.

Representatives of the most enlightened of these nations have their social and benevolent organizations—the British, French, Spanish, Italian, Portuguese, Russian, German, Scandinavian, etc.—and will be prepared to extend to their fellow-countrymen a sincere and hospitable welcome as they come hither to attend the Exposition. No one can come here from abroad without the greeting of his own spoken tongue, and the hearty tender of hospitality's bread and salt—even though they come from far Cathay, from frozen Greenland or the sands of Araby.

In this connection some figures may be interesting. The census of 1880 gives Louisiana a population of about 940,000, of which there is an excess of 2,500 females over males. Of this 940,000, 455,000 are white and 484,000 colored. Of this white 455,000, nearly 55,000 are of foreign birth. Of this 460,000 white people remaining, 342,000 are natives of this State, leaving 58,000 to be credited to the various other States of the Union; 15,000 of this came from Mississippi and 10,000 from Alabama. The other 33,000 are divided among all the other States and Territories. There are 2,800 New Yorkers and 1,300 Ohio people. Massachusetts, Indiana and Illinois each has 600, Maine 300, New Hampshire and Vermont a trifle over 100 each, and so on. The children of these States domiciled in Louisiana, and part of her proud and loyal citizenship are already forming their State associations to welcome hither and care for the people of the places of their birth.

The Exposition will bring to New Orleans for the first time in their lives hundreds of thousands of people to whom all our ways are new and strange—people to whom this is a veritable El Dorado, full of marvelous sweetness of climate and temperature, and of unbounded wealth of agricultural and industrial possibilities. They will be charmed at the social harmony of our community, its complete unity of purposes and interests, and yet astonished that their ideas find tongue in every language spoken in the known world. All nations will find a welcoming voice in familiar tones. Every hillside of New England and every Western prairie has its representatives holding welcome, and all dwelling happily together in a community where each maintains for all others the most complete freedom of thought and action, rendering too happy ever to go away from it the dwellers in this golden Southland of perennial summer.—Cor. Louisville Courier-Journal.

A MOLE-CATCHER.

A Man Who Never Grows Weary of His Singular Occupation.

A mole catcher is a picturesque personage, more interesting in his life and surroundings than many better known or prettier types of life. He can hold his own with many gamekeepers and the country characters which abound where leaves are green and fields are plowed and waters are clear, though he has nothing more terrible to hide in the earth than a wooden trap, and all the skill he possesses is his own experience of cunning. He follows his work as silent as the moles themselves, and his humble earnestness would stand many a preacher in good stead. We might, with a little wit, make fun of his old clothes, his leather gaiters, his soiled knees, his battered hat and rough hands, and compare him to a scarecrow; but the moment we talk to him we find what a store of strange observations have been gathered up by those cute eyes, observations which his wife at night by the fireside alone shares, and we begin to consider what an immense debt we dwellers in cities owe this rustic for keeping down the moles and preserving the crops. As you travel on the highway you see the rude mole-catcher down on his knees at work, with his hands in the soil blessing the ground by playing havoc with the black vermin; and wherever the marks of his knees have been the land progresses, and grows green in springs. His hands are so stiff with rheumatics that they can hardly close and his eyes are always among his feet, "as if," he says with a wan smile, "he was in search of half a crown he had lost in his young days." Yet in fact his occupation is an artificial one, and has been brought about by high farming and game preservation. "Weasels," he remarks, "destroy moles like smoke. God has aye one vermin to keep down another!" The gamekeepers having destroyed many weasels, artificial means have to be taken to destroy moles. Looking from the window of a railway carriage at a solitary figure on the fields, you would think he was about the most lonely and wearisome work on the face of the earth; but old Jim says: "Man, I never weary. I'm aye seeing something new. Faith, the moles'll no allow one to be idle or weary. So I whiles think my auld watch has ta'en fright an' leaped an hour or two, the time flees by so quick. You set a man to kill moles, an', faith, he'll never weary." "It's fine," continued he, and the remark was that of a healthy man, "it's fine to be tired at nights after a long and a hard day's work, and to fa' asleep as your cheek kisses the pillow. A hard day's work has a good night's rest." Any open-air work like mole-catching makes one sane-minded and moderate in thought, and gives one a natural life.—Good Words.

A RAVENOUS APPETITE.

The Show Elephant That Eats Tobacco and Woolen Clothing.

"Yes, Gypsy here has some queer tastes and habits."

The speaker was the manager of a circus which is quartered in this city for the winter. The Gypsy referred to was a large-sized nine-year old elephant who stood close by, playfully throwing hay over his back. A few minutes before the manager had dropped from his pocket a briar-wood pipe that had seen over a year of service and was by no means sweet. Gypsy saw the tempting morsel, and calmly reached out his trunk for it, put it into his mouth, crunched it up, and while doing so rolled his eyes about with every appearance of satisfaction.

"Gypsy," continued the manager, "has exploded the theory that all elephants hate tobacco. A common idea used to prevail that if a person gave an elephant any of the weed the animal would never forget the insult and would have its revenge if it took years to accomplish it. I have given Gypsy pound after pound of plug and fine-cut, and instead of resenting it he, figuratively speaking, cries for more."

"Has he a fondness for eating any other odd things?"

"Yes. He is like the camel which Mark Twain describes that chewed up Mark's coat. We do not dare to leave any old clothes lying within reach of his trunk. Gypsy will take just about three minutes to get away with a coat. A pair of pants will disappear down his throat in just four minutes, and he will masticate an overcoat in about ten minutes."

"Has he any preferences as to the quality of the goods?"

"I never noticed that it made any difference whether they were imported or domestic, basket pattern or corkscrew. I have remarked, however, that if the garment was old and greasy Gypsy seemed to tackle it with greater zest than if it were new.

"But I wish you could be here in the morning when he gets up. You see, the keeper of the animals makes his bed on the ground in the near vicinity of the cages. Gypsy always lies down on his bed of straw close by. In the morning, when he thinks it is time to be up and stirring, the animal will reach over with his trunk and run it over the keeper. If that fails to awake him the elephant will pull the bed-clothes off, and he will keep that racket up until the man is fully aroused."

"Yes," spoke up the keeper, who stood near, "and he has a bad habit of nearly always waking up about an hour before I am ready to get up. It's no use kicking, though, for he is a very determined animal and always has his own way."—Philadelphia Times.

JENKINS' EARS.

How It Caused a War Between England and Spain.

On April 9, 1731, the English vessel Rebecca, Captain Jenkins, is visited by the coastguards of Havana, who accuse the Captain of smuggling military goods. They find none on board, but they ill-treat him by hanging him first to the yard and fastening the cabin boy to his feet. The rope breaks, however, and they then proceed to cut off one of his ears, telling him to take it to his King. Jenkins returns to London and claims vengeance. Pope writes verses about his ear, but England does not choose to quarrel with Spain just then, and all is apparently forgotten. Eight years after some insults offered by the Spaniards to English vessels brought up again, the topic of Jenkins' ear. He had preserved it in wadding. The sailors wept about London wearing the inscription "Ear to ear" on their hats. The large merchants and ship owners espoused their cause. William Pitt and the Nation in general desire war with Spain, and Walpole is forced to declare it. The consequences are but too well known. Bloodshed all over the world, on land and sea. Jenkins' ear is indeed avenged. If the English people were poetical, says Carlyle, this ear would have become a constellation, like Berenice's Crown.—Contemporary Review.

AYER'S Cherry Pectoral.

No other complaints are so insidious in their attack as those affecting the throat and lungs; none so trifled with by the majority of sufferers. The ordinary cough or cold, resulting perhaps from a trifling or unconscious exposure, is often but the beginning of a fatal sickness. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has well proved its efficacy in a forty years' fight with throat and lung diseases, and should be taken in all cases without delay.

A Terrible Cough Cured.

"In 1857 I took a severe cold, which affected my lungs. I had a terrible cough, and passed night after night without sleep. The doctors gave me up. I tried AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, which relieved my lungs, induced sleep, and afforded me the rest necessary for the recovery of my strength. By the continued use of this PECTORAL a permanent cure was effected. I am now 62 years old, hale and hearty, and am satisfied your CHERRY PECTORAL saved me.

HORACE FAIRBROTHER."

Rockingham, Vt., July 15, 1882.

Croup.—A Mother's Tribute.

"While in the country last winter my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with croup; it seemed as if he would die from strangulation. One of the family suggested the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, a bottle of which was always kept in the house. This was tried in small and frequent doses, and to our delight in less than half an hour the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the CHERRY PECTORAL had saved my darling's life. Can you wonder at our gratitude? Sincerely yours,

MRS. EMMA GEDNEY."

159 West 128th St., New York, May 16, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL in my family for several years, and do not hesitate to pronounce it the most effectual remedy for coughs and colds we have ever tried. A. J. CRANE."

Lake Crystal, Minn., March 13, 1882.

Byhalia, Miss., April 5, 1882.

Palestine, Texas, April 22, 1882.

No case of an affection of the throat or lungs exists which cannot be greatly relieved by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and it will always cure when the disease is not already beyond the control of medicine.

DR. A. FRASER'S MAGNETIC OINTMENT.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Burns, Sore Throat, Lameness, Rheumatism, Piles, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Bronchitis, Croup, Salt Rheum, Chilblains, Affection of the Spine, Erysipelas, Nervous Irritation, and all disorders attendant with Inflammation.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years,

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should be perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Price 25 and 40 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

Wash as you please, and it will make you its friend. Soak, boil and don't rub; or soak, rub and don't boil. We advocate dispensing, so far as possible with the washboard, because it wears the clothes out and wears you out. The soap contains no mineral to give it weight, and no pulp to give it size; therefore frequent boiling will not yellow or injure the clothes but soaking and boiling with ELECTRIC LIGHT SOAP does clean and disinfect them. One thing is certain; it produces glorious results, is an economical soap and is so pure and harmless that the writer washes his head with it without injuring a hair, and he isn't bald either. Try it in the Laundry, Kitchen and Bath. Ask your grocer for it and take no other.

—"Darling," he whispered, as the clock sadly struck two, and he still sat there trying to impress her with his love, "there is one thing I so much desire. Would you let me take something that would be eternally sweet to my remembrance?" "I don't know," she coyly replied, making a move as if to fall on a thirty-cent shirt-front, "but there is one thing you could take that will fill my happy cup to overflowing." "What is it, loved one?" ready to catch her; but only a cold answer came, that sounded like the bottom of a coal-box in December. "You might take your leave."—Atlanta Constitution.

Four Distinct Climates in Mexico.

The Republic of Mexico contains an area of 741,600 square miles, or 474,624,000 square acres, and a population of over 11,000,000 souls, and enjoys four distinct climates:

The temperate; from the plateau to the higher plains, such as the plateaus of Anahuac, Toluca, Durango and Shichahua.

The cold; among the mountain valleys of the States of the interior, where hailstorms are frequent, and where the inhabitants require artificial warmth during the night.—Detroit Free Press.

Found No Poison.

Dr. Samuel K. Cox, D. D., Practical Analytical Chemist, Washington, D. C., who made thorough and careful analyses, reports that there is neither morphia, opium, emetics nor poisons in the Red Star Cough Cure; that it must prove a boon to those whose systems shrink from the use of such compounds, and especially to mothers, who justly dread the evil, and, at times, fatal effects of these dangerous drugs. He further states it is not only free from all opiates, poisons and emetics, but a thing which not one cough preparation in ten can boast, but is altogether an original and most happy combination of the best remedial agents, and is as harmless as it is effective.

Dairymple, the famous Dakota wheat grower, says his crop this year cost him about 35 cents a bushel.

Dr. J. T. Baker, a physician of New Castle, Pa., writes: "During the past eight years, I have had opportunity for studying the effect of Mishler's Herb Bitters upon my patients—those who have suffered from dyspepsia, loss of nervous energy, diarrhœa, etc. I have never known it to fail in effecting the most radical cure, and I have never known it to fail in effecting the most radical cure, and I have no hesitation in pronouncing it the most efficacious remedy discovered for diseases ensuing from a disordered stomach, liver, bowels, lungs and heart."

PURE IS THE ABSOLUTE NECESSITY OF HEALTH. BLOOD

THE marvellous results of Hood's Sarsaparilla upon all humors and low conditions of the blood are proven by the cures effected by this, the best BLOOD MEDICINE. Such has been the success of this article at home that nearly every family in the neighborhoods have been visited by the same disease, scrofula, vitalizing it at the blood, and renovating the whole system. Hood's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, Hood's Sarsaparilla cures dyspepsia. Hood's Sarsaparilla cures biliousness. A peculiar point in Hood's Sarsaparilla is that it builds up and strengthens the system, while it eradicates disease, and as nature's great assistant proves itself invaluable as a protection from diseases that originate in changes of the seasons, of climate and of life.

The bottom has been struck at last, in trade, and prices are again on the rise.

Will Gov. Cleveland attend John Kelly's political funeral? This question demands an immediate reply.

Gov. Alger can now sympathize with Gov. Cleveland. What a nice thing it is to be a dispenser of the offices.

At last Ben. Butler has been heard from. He denies the rumor that he is about to embark in the book business.

A Republican paper down in Pennsylvania sagely observes that Henry Ward Beecher still expects to go to heaven.

The epidemic which threatened to depopulate the state's prison has happily been checked. Gov. Alger has taken the helm.

The editor of an Ohio paper declares that he wants no more wood on subscription. For a regular diet he prefers some other food.

Among the good things accomplished in the whirligig of the last campaign is the collapse of John Kelly and the crippling of Tammany Hall.

Gen. Grant faced the rebels for four years, and never quailed in battle.—But he is now wrestling with five physicians, and the poor old veteran is getting the worst of it.

Gov. Begole has retired. He has done some good things and made some mistakes. His administration will stand as an illustration of the folly of attempting to make a square peg fit into a round hole.

Gov. R. A. Alger—We take off our hat and tender our politest bow.—May our beautiful state prosper under your guidance and may your name be enrolled among the best of Michigan's governors.

A newspaper philosopher in Kansas says that there is a wide unfathomable chasm between what you want and what you get. That is true.—Blaine wanted to get to the White House, but he got left.

Sam. Randall is growing aristocratic since his trip through the South.—He appeared in the House last Monday attired in a brand new suit of clothes, with a fashionable stand-up collar on and his boots blacked.

Our legislative Solons have gathered at Lansing and the legislative mill will soon begin to grind. Let us hope that the members will leave their political garments at home. Give us a short, practical, business session.

John R. McLean, of the Cincinnati Enquirer, on the eve of his departure to visit Gov. Cleveland, gave his bride a necklace of forty-one diamonds worth $80,000. Well! Well! This should be a warning to young ladies to choose editors above all other men.

Let congress come to the relief of that noble old soldier, Gen. Grant, without delay. Let party bickerings cease for one day, and let both Houses unanimously pass a liberal pension bill for his benefit. The American Republic must not suffer the disgrace of allowing the foremost soldier of the present age to become an object of charity.

Gov. Cleveland's letter to the civil service reformers has the ring of the true metal. Fidelity to duty and fitness for the position will be the test of official merit. The shibboleth of his administration will be this: Public office is a public trust. If Gov. Cleveland will sharpen his hatchet and hew to this line, he will be the strongest and most popular President since Abraham Lincoln.

The New York Sun observes: And suppose that at the right time it should be made to appear to the satisfaction of Mr. Cleveland that the whole mass of Federal officeholders, "instead of being decent public servants, have proved themselves offensive partisans and unscrupulous manipulators of local party management," wouldn't they all have to be turned out?—Wouldn't everybody be satisfied then, except the men removed? The civil service reformers would be pleased, and the Democrats who got the places would be reconciled, and an era of general good feeling would set in.

MASONIC INSTALLATION.

The Masonic Lodge of Tecumseh held a public installation and festival last Friday evening. The lodge room was tastefully decorated with evergreens and extra seating was provided for those in attendance.

Shortly after seven o'clock the assemblage was called to order and the following program was prosecuted:

Quartette, by Geo. Tansley, James Stevens, Mrs. L. I. Bidwell and Miss Bertha DeWolf, with Miss Jennie Root at the organ.
Prayer—Rev. Geo. W. Hudson.
Address—By Rev. Mr. Hudson.
Solo—Miss Mollie Kemp.
Installation of officers by Lucius Lilley.
Music by Cornet Band.
Refreshments and Social.

The entire affair was finely arranged and very handsomely executed. The music was good, the oration excellent, and the installation ceremony was rendered by Mr. Lilley in his usual happy manner. Among the visiting brethern present was W. David Woodward of Clinton. The list of officers installed appeared in last week's HERALD. The refreshments were abundant in quantity and excellent in quality. In addition to the members of the Lodge and their lady friends a large number of outsiders were present, who seemed to enter heartily into the enjoyment of the occasion. The members of the order certainly have reason to feel satisfied with the manner in which the entertainment was carried out. For the benefit of those who were not present, we have obtained Mr. Hudson's oration, which we herewith present in full.

THE INFLUENCE OF MASONRY.

Upon no theme can we find more diverse, not to say contradictory, opinions than upon Masonry. Many people—good people—and perfectly honest and intelligent are dead sure that the whole system is evil and only evil. They really imagine that it is a kind of Pandora's Box, replete with every evil that can menace the peace of the state and the welfare of society. Other people, just as honest and just as intelligent, speak of the system in the highest terms. They affirm that they know whereof they speak, and and that they find no evil in it at all.

It may, yea it must seem strange to the uninitiated that there should be such diverse opinions about that which is good. They reason something like this: "If the system is clearly good why cannot all people see it alike? People are not accustomed to contend about the sunlight, whether it is light or darkness." Very true, but suppose that some of them are in the dark while others have the light. Those in the dark would hardly be expected to enter into encomiums upon the light they do not see. So with Masonry.

The adverse criticisms upon Masonry come from those who do not know the system. I need not remind you that it is not open to the eyes of the curious. For good reasons it is a secret organization. Now you know that there is a class of people who are trying to pry into every secret, and peer into every unexplored corner. If they are unable to penetrate the veil which obscures their vision, they set imagination to work to fill up the realm beyond with conjectures. And the more impenetrable the mystery, the darker and the more terrible are their conjectures. They deal thus with Masonry. Here they say "is a system which is veiled by the sworn secrecy of its members." It must be an awful system, else why so carefully veiled. Then they conjecture, and surmise, and suspicion. They give imagination unbridled rein. We need not wonder therefore, that they give the system a terrible character. You all know what terrible work a lively imagination can make, when entirely divorced from facts. I am not surprised at the reputation which such people give to Masonry. I am only surprised that they have not painted it darker. I wonder that the quid nunes have not painted it as all as a set of terrible beasts, howling about the full moon of every month to regale ourselves on human flesh. Such people are capable of distorting anything which they cannot understand.

The criticisms and opinions of such people have awakened prejudices in the public mind against our Fraternity. There is no disguising the fact that many look upon us with fear and apprehension. They regard us as a kind of "kingdom within a kingdom," an element banded together to promote our selfish interests at the expense of the rest of humanity. Then, of course, we must admit that we have had some unwise defenders, worse still, we have had a great many unw thy members whose lives have brought a reproach upon us. Put all these things together and we can readily understand why many good people should be more or less afraid to have anything to do with us.

I confess to you to-night, that your speaker entered the lodge the first time with considerable of hesitancy and misgiving. I had long held the determination to become a mason, but so many good people had said such hard things about Masonry that I scarcely knew what to think. Some said: "Never enter a lodge; it is evil and only evil, and if you once get in there you cannot break away." Before I gained the consent of my better nature to enter, I had to resolve that if I found it as some of my best friends had warned me, an evil system, I would stop as soon as that fact should become manifest, and quit it forever. You see that I have not turned my back on the system yet. And I here affirm to-night, that I have yet to find the first thing in Masonry opposed to the conscientious discharge of my duties as a man, a citizen and a Christian.

Nor is this all. The more I know of the system, the more I admire it. I suppose that men can be masons without beholding any beauty in its workings. You know there are people who cannot see any beauty in the most exquisite piece of art. They can look on the thundering torrents of Niagara, or the snow capped summits of the Alps without any sense of grandeur and sublimity. Masonry cannot change this. But to him who has the windows of his higher nature open to receive the glimpses of grandeur and beauty and the lessons of wisdom, which struggle for an entrance, the workings of Masonry will ever be a profound study and delight.

Some have said of it "O, it is only a secular selfish institution, a kind of mutual benefit association." Well be it so. I have only this to offer, that if it be "secular" and "selfish," it has a wonderful sprinkling of the "religious" and "spiritual" in it. To some it may be simply a series of unmeaning ceremonies, and many may engage in them with no higher ambition than to gain the friendship and esprit de corps of the Fraternity, and reap what advantages they can from their connection with Masonry. We know that there are men who can see in the religion of Jesus Christ only a low, level, but we cannot, therefore, affirm that Christianity is only a secular institution. No more should any one affirm that Masonry is only a secular institution. I maintain that the system is replete with lessons of wisdom, and its ceremonies instinct with profoundest spiritual truths.

Masonry, as its name implies, is a system of instruction based on the operative masonic art. It makes every man a builder in a higher sense than working in brick and stone and mortar. It makes him the builder of a temple of virtue, it makes him a polisher of human character. It gives every man a work to accomplish. It lays down rules to enable him to accomplish that work. It gives him a goal to be reached. In short it gives every man an object to be attained and an ideal to be reached. It makes every tool of the masonic art an "object lesson" to impress some spiritual duty and truth. How such a system, which sets forth such worthy objects to be attained, and impresses the highest truths in such a simple way, can be called "secular" and "selfish" I cannot well understand.

I have often been asked why so many Methodist ministers are masons. I think I have the answer. Masonry is based on systematic work. It puts "method" into our work by giving us work and laying down rules for its accomplishment. Masonry teaches "method." Therefore it is easy for "Methodists" to be Masons.

Now let me briefly emphasize some of the teachings of Masonry.

IT TEACHES US OUR DUTY TO GOD.

1. The first lesson taught on coming into a masonic lodge is trust in God. And it is impressed in such a way as never to be forgotten. The candidate then learns that faith in God lies at the foundation of Masonry and of success in every important undertaking. When he goes further he learns that faith must govern in all his works. He is taught never to mention the name of God except with the profoundest reverence. Here let me remark that I have never been able to understand how any true mason can be guilty of profaning the name of God. It is wholly unmasonic and opposed to the plainest teachings which he has received. Again

2. Masonry teaches reverence for God's revealed word. In the lodge room the open Bible is never out of sight. It is recognized as the great Light of Masonry. Moreover, the ceremonies of the lodge trace very largely the thread of Old Testament history. I have no doubt that many who come into the lodge, learn more Bible history than they ever learned in all their lives before.

Thus Masonry is not agnostic, nor skeptical. It believes in divine revelation, in a God who has made known his will. It recognizes the Bible as our guide. It adores God as the great Architect and Governor of the Universe, who has laid down rules in the Bible to govern us in our lives. As the master-builder lays down designs on the trestle-board for his underworkmen, so has God according to the teachings of Masonry, laid down rules in the Bible to govern us, and guide us in the work of life.

3. It leads to communion with God. Along with trust in God, the Mason learns the duty of prayer. He is to call upon God to guide him in every undertaking. He is to call upon God for succor in time of danger. He is to implore God's blessing upon his brethern.

IT TEACHES US OUR DUTY TO OTHERS.

But Masonry does not stop with faith and piety. It does not teach a one-sided dogma. It teaches our duty to man as well as to God.

It is thought by some that Masonry affords a kind of protection to wrong doers; that masons are banded together against the state or for one another against the state and everybody else. They are banded together it is true; but Masonry takes it for granted that all who share its privileges will be peaceable, law abiding citizens. Indeed the true mason cannot be the disturber of the peace of society. He cannot plot against the laws of his country. He cannot be a murderer, or a libertine, or a brawler or a drunkard. One of the "lights" of masonry teaches him that he must circumscribe all his desires and keep every passion within due bounds. He cannot be a cheat and a swindler, or a liar or a slanderer, because another light of Masonry teaches him that he should square his life by the rules of virtue and honesty. By the level he is reminded that all men are created free and equal, and that he is not to hold himself above his fellow men. By the plumb he is admonished that he should walk upright before the world and before God. By the trowel he is reminded of the words of the Son of God: "Blessed are the peacemakers," and is admonished that instead of stirring up strife he is to allay strife and spread the cement of kindness in society everywhere.

I repeat it, Masonry lays the foundation of peace and good order in society by its lessons and its influence.

Again, Masonry is a charitable institution. The Mason is not to regard it a burden to serve a brother or to help the needy. He is to hold himself as the servant of all. He is to give of his time and his means to relieve the suffering, as far as he can without injury to himself. Can such an institution as this be detrimental to the welfare of society? Never. But especially is it true that

MASONRY TEACHES US OUR DUTY TO OURSELVES.

The great end of Masonry is to ennoble the individual life. It recognizes the fact that man is sinful, that he is like the rough block of stone from the quarry and needs shaping and polishing in order to fill his place in human society. The great aim of Masonry is to help each individual to shape and polish himself by divine grace and guidance until he is a beautiful, shapely stone, ready for his place in the great temple of human virtue. He is to knock off that evil habit of intemperance, and that other evil habit of profanity, and that other of dishonesty, and that other of lust. He is to discipline his body in useful toil, and his mind in useful study and work, until he is ready to be fitted into the temple of virtue, where there is no unsightliness.

But better than all, the mason has set before him the great fact of immortality. Though he is to polish himself for a place in the temple of virtue he is reminded that he has a greater destiny before him. Scarcely a masonic ceremony but reminds him of the life eternal. He is taught especially that in order to attain that life he must be faithful even unto death. He is made to understand impressively the Savior's words: "Whosoever will lose his life shall find it." From no other source does he behold the doctrine of the resurrection so impressively set forth. He hears constant illusion to the wonderful Temple of King Solomon. He is told that that Temple was built of stones all made ready in the quarries before they were brought to Jerusalem so that no sound of hammer was heard in its building. What a reminder that if he is to have a place at last in the great temple to be reared by the Supreme Architect in heaven, he must be prepared now. He must overcome sin now, he must subdue wicked passions now, he must root out evil desires now, and be all ready for his place in that glorious temple above.

To him who does not receive these lessons, these grand truths from the ancient, the impressive ceremonies of Masonry, they must be simply a routine of useless words and practices. If there be any such mason I pity him with all my heart. I never enter the lodge but these lessons come crowding in upon me, urging me to a more faithful christian endeavor to do well the works of life and be prepared for the temple in Heaven.

Many have said in my hearing from time to time, "If a man is a good Mason he need go no further." I think I can improve upon that. If a man is a good mason he will go further. If he be not a forgetful hearer but a doer of the teachings of his order, he will become a Christian. For to be a true mason, to receive all its lessons and obey all its teachings is to be a Christian.

Every one has a mind and will to think for himself, and yet many will go about hacking and coughing until some friend recommends Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup for that cough.

WHITE SEAL BURNING OIL!

The New York Board of Health estimates that 80,000 lives have been destroyed by the explosive qualities of petroleum. If every household would adopt the White Seal Oil for family use, none of these unfortunate accidents would occur.

WHITE SEAL BURNING OIL

Has none of the defects usually found in common oils. It cannot be exploded, does not char the wick, will not smoke, emits no offensive odor and prevents the breaking of chimneys.

WHITE SEAL BURNING OIL

is a rich oil for illuminating purposes. It is as light in color as pure spring water. It gives a strong steady light and burns much longer than common oils.

If this oil is not sold in your vicinity, send your order direct to us for a barrel or a case containing two five gallon cans.

Frank Robbins and Miss Anna Robbins, of Cleveland, are in town on a brief visit.

Sheriff Whitmore has only made a few appointments thus far. H. Bowen is Under Sheriff, John H. Smith turnkey, F. D. Teachout and W. W. Burch, deputies.

WEDDING BELLS.

The residence of O. B. DeWolf was the scene of a most happy gathering last evening, the occasion being the marriage of his daughter, Bertha, to Sam A. James, of Detroit. The nuptial knot was tied by Rev. Mr. Conley. A large company participated in the festivities and all went as merry as a marriage bell. Among the guests from abroad may be mentioned Mrs. H. A. Clark, of Boston, Mrs. and R. Evans, Miss Montgomery, Frank Robbins and Miss Anna Robbins of Cleveland, Sumner Collins of Detroit, and Miss Alma Cogswell of Adrian.—In the array of costly bridal gifts the couple were kindly remembered, not only by family relatives, but by a host of other friends. The gifts included beautiful mementoes from the firm of which Mr. James is an employee and a handsome sum of ready cash from the bride's father. The bridal trip was condensed into a ride to Detroit, where the couple begin their new life to-day in rooms furnished for them by Mr. DeWolf. Formal congratulations and good wishes will but feebly express the sentiments of their friends. Both bride and groom are favorites in our society circles. Never did Tecumseh witness a more appropriate and happy connubial union, and never did a married couple leave our village with a heartier "God-speed," and with more sincere wishes for their temporal and spiritual welfare. May their future days continue to be as bright as the dawn of their married life.

A FINE RESIDENCE.

A. W. Slayton is putting the finishing touches on his new residence and will move early next week. The house is located on North Pearl street in a good quarter, and is one of the neatest in that portion of the village. It is constructed from plans drawn by A. C. Varney, the Detroit architect, who has made the plans for some of our finest buildings. It has a high, roomy basement, divided into two apartments. The ground floor contains a vestibule, parlor, family room, nursery and bath room, kitchen and two pantries. There are four large chambers on the second floor, each of which is provided with a clothes press. A water tank is placed on the upper floor, which is fed from the eaves and from which a pipe leads to the bath room. The kitchen and pantry have all the conveniences which a good housewife could desire, and the doors, casings and all inside wood work is in red oak finished in hard oil, which presents a most pleasing effect to the eye. The timber was culled by Mr. Slayton from his purchases out on the Wabash line. The entire house is heated by a Pearl furnace, every room being supplied with a hot air flue. Henry Mensing, now of Tecumseh, was the sole contractor, and Gas says he did a very satisfactory job. The Tecumseh Lumber Co. furnished the building material. Theo. Crane made the stairs and rail. J. T. Daglish did the oil finishing. Swan and Satterthwaite Bros. furnished the furnace and appliances. The yard in front of the house has been evenly graded and a lawn will be started in the spring. Altogether it is one of the best appointed dwelling houses of which Tecumseh can boast, and the HERALD sincerely hopes that the owner and his genial family may enjoy their domicile for many years to come.

Adrian Record: Jim Carey, of Tecumseh has a hairless dog and he already has burned four extra tons of coal in an effort to get the naked pup safely through the winter.

The winter term of the public schools opened last Monday with a large attendance in all the departments. There were several new enrollments of non-resident pupils.

Ed Koch, of Toledo, was in Tecumseh to attend the Masonic festival last Friday evening and remained with his friends here two or three days. He better move back here.

Miss Gussie Burlingame leaves Tecumseh to-day for Chicago and Carthage Mo., for a few weeks' visit. Mrs. S. H. Merritt and little Florence also take their departure for their home in Cadillac to-day.

The G. A. R. Posts of this section are endeavoring to charter a coach to go to New Orleans some time in February. If they are successful in their efforts, a number of the members of Beer's Post will enroll themselves in the company.

Leroy Blood, of Lansing, made a flying visit to Tecumseh yesterday to see Mr and Mrs. Jacob Tallman before their departure for the East. Five groceries have failed in Lansing within the last month, and hence business is hot in Leroy's establishment.

A correspondent of the Adrian Times says that Mr. T. T. Romeyn of Clinton township, who was 85 years old Dec. 27th, can read common print without the aid of glasses. It must be a great comfort to him in his declining years to be able to read so well.

Uncle John C. Palmer, of Ridgeway, although in his sixty-fifth year, is hale and hearty yet. He takes six papers and is always ready to subscribe for another. One of his sons has just entered Hillsdale College and expects to complete a course of study there.

We have received a copy of the Wabash red book, giving a discription of the Exposition buildings at New Orleans and the routes thither via the Wabash line. The Wabash sells tickets over twenty-eight different routes. The rate from Adrian for the round trip is $23.95.

The annual renting of the pews of the Baptist church will take place on Thursday next, Jan. 15th, commencing at two o'clock P. M. and continuing through the afternoon and evening. The ladies will serve a chicken pie supper, commencing at 4 o'clock and continuing through the evening. Everybody is invited.

Rev. G. W. Hudson has announced a series of sermons on the "Ten Commandments." It is to begin next Sunday with a sermon on "Modern Worship of the Golden Calf." Aside from the usual idea suggested by the decalogue, it will comprise the following interesting topics: "Adoration of Images and Relics," Sunday Laws and the Workingman," "Infanticide in America," "The evils of Mormonism," "The Divorce Evil" "Modern Fashionable Thieving" etc. Services begin at 7 P. M.

Wheat and pork are going up, which will make the heart of the farmer rejoice.

A St. Louis editor, who started in business forty years ago, is now worth $100,000. His fortune is all due to his energy, industry and frugality and to the fact that an uncle recently left him $99,999.99.—Ex.

Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Aten were the recipients of many nice presents from their children and friends on New Year's day, the occasion being the birthday of Mr. Aten. Mr. and Mrs. Alex Ogilvie, Saginaw City, were among the guests.

Chas. Bidwell is a resident of Tecumseh once more. He has cuffed his last prisoner, served his last summons, and is again a private citizen, and a most worthy one. We hope he may find some congenial business in Tecumseh before long.

Mrs. Packard has kindly furnished us with late copies of the Sioux City Daily Journal. From these we learn that Rev. Wm. Grandy, former pastor of the Presbyterian church here, is stricken with a fatal illness and his demise is expected at any moment.

Elbridge Hyde has got out of jail at last. His four years' service as under Sheriff has proven him to be a most excellent officer and he retires with a clean record and esteemed by every one. We sincerely hope he may conclude to make Tecumseh his future home.

The 2d. anniversary of the Young Ladies' Missionary Society of the Presbyterian church, will be held in the church next Sunday night at 7:00 o'clock. Reports will be read and an address will be delivered by Rev. J. B. Little of Adrian. A general invitation is extended.

Mr. Nelson Miller, of Macon, lost a horse last Saturday and concluded it had been stolen. A search was began by Sheriff Whitmore and the horse was found about a mile and a half West of this village. The thief must have become frightened and abandoned his booty.

Jerome Cleveland spent the fore part of last week at Grand Rapids, visiting Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Smith, and the latter part at Ionia, visiting Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Ford. Al. has become quite an artist at sign painting and A. H. Ford may be seen at the bottom of most all the signs in the city.

J. H. Underwood, of Addison, came down last Friday to install the officers elect of Beer's Post G. A. R., which took place on that evening. On Saturday before his return, he favored the HERALD with a short call. Mr. Underwood was highly impressed with the efficency of Beers' Post.

We have a new time card of the Wabash railway line this week. Under the present time table, with the close connection at Britton via. the M. & O. road, people can reach Detroit much quicker and return earlier than by any other route. This is becoming a popular line for Detroit passengers.

We are indebted to N. S. Satterthwaite for a copy of the fourteenth annual report of the Lake Shore Railroad Co. The number of passengers leaving the Tecumseh station in '81 '82 and '83 was 18,511; 21,262, 20,951. The report for 1884 has not yet been compiled. There are now 553 engines on the road, all of them burning coal but one.

The January number of the Gardener's Monthly opens the new year with an array of useful and interesting information which is a surfeit even for that interesting magazine. For gardeners, small fruit culturists and florists it is a vade mecum which they can not afford to do without. Send to C. H. Marot, 814 Chestnut St., Phil. for a sample copy.

The new cornet band made its debut in public at the Masonic Installation and they surprised every one with their fine playing. They executed their pieces in a creditable manner. We are heartily glad to see the boys doing so well. They contemplate giving a public entertainment the latter part of January, and we trust our citizens will all give the project their hearty support.

Sam. James carries a baby very genteelly.

The ice harvest commenced last Monday on both ponds.

Vennor predicted a mild New Year's. Comment is unnecessary.

A. D. Gilmore, of Blissfield, was in town yesterday on business.

J. H. Blaine, of Adrian, was in town yesterday, and gave the HERALD a call.

Mrs. P. C. Stoepek, of Detroit, arrived yesterday for a few days' visit at her old home.

"Verbartum" is a new Tecumseh amusement. Will somebody explain what "verbartum" is, anyway.

Dr. H. W. Catlin returned to Grand Rapids on Monday. He was kept busy during his brief stay of four days.

Wm. H. Waring arrived in town Saturday and will remain a few days on a visit. He is well satisfied with his new home at Peoria.

F. A. Dewey, of Cambridge, was in town last Saturday. He was here to find boarding places for two granddaughters who are entering our public schools as pupils.

A. A. Kennedy and his daughter Miss Minnie, of Battle Creek, arrived in town Friday. Mr. Kennedy returned Tuesday but Minnie will remain for several weeks with family friends.

We understand that the name of John Conlin, of Franklin, is mentioned as a good person for the new postmaster at Tipton. He is a young man of energy and good business capacity and would fill the bill to a dot.

Geo. Adamson has just put in an elegant new counter case to match the third wall case which was put in last summer. We venture to say he now has three of the finest counter show cases to be found in the county.

Wm. Heck of Heck Bros. says the mill started last Monday and will not stop again until July 4th unless something gives way. They have lots of orders ahead. Very well, let the mill go round. It ought to raise the price of wheat a little.

Fred Hathaway, of Addison, was smiling on his Tecumseh acquaintances last Saturday. Fred has been engaged on the Mississippi River survey but is off duty until April next. He enjoys the work first rate and expects to return in April.

The state teachers' association held its annual meeting last week at Lansing. The attendance was very large and the program presented was varied and instructive. Tecumseh was represented at the session by Prof. Hammond, and Misses Berkey, Condict and Parkhurst.

The second entertainment of the Library Course was given on New Year's night by the Schubert Quartette troupe. The members of the quartette are all superior vocalists while the assistance rendered by Miss Dora Henninges rounded out the program to finished completeness. More than one half the selections given were favored with an encore. In addition to the regular season tickets, a large number of single tickets were sold for that evening.

C. R. Mabley in Detroit Journal: "When the firm of Mabley & Co., stop advertising you may know it has decided to go out of business. We believe in it thoroughly, and our business has grown to be what it is simply because we have always used a liberal supply of printers' ink and keep faith with the people. The merchant who buys his goods at a bargain and then lets the people know what he has to offer them is bound to win. The man who never advertises is the drone in the hive of commercial industry."

We took the Michigan & Ohio R. R. from Homer, and found it to be first class in every respect. Its rolling stock is superb, its depots models of convenience and good taste, and its employees courteous and obliging. This road has recently adopted the English lunch system, whereby, for fifty cents, and even twenty-five cents an attendant will take your order for a lunch as per bill of fare, and bring it to you when Marshall is reached in a lunch basket specially suited to the purpose, and take charge of basket and dishes after you have finished.

The marriage of Miss Nellie Boyce, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Boyce of Macon, to J. Leslie VanDoren, was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents, on New Year's day. Between sixty and seventy of the friends of both parties were present to witness the ceremony which took place shortly after 11 A. M. After the service, the friends presented their congratulations, and then the bride and groom led the way to the tables which were loaded with good things. Mr. and Mrs. VanDoren left early in the afternoon to take the train for Coldwater, where they expect to spend a week among friends. The bride was tastefully dressed in brown silk, with a bunch of natural flowers at her throat.

The scope and plan of the institution will be broadened, making it not only a special agricultural school, but thoroughly scientific as well.

Miss Emma Hall, former superintendent of the Girls Industrial Home, died very suddenly at Albuquerque, N. M., last week. Memorial services were held in the morning by Rev. J. B. Little and in the afternoon at the Industrial Home. At the latter service music was furnished by the scholars and remarks eulogistic of the deceased were made by Rev. Little, C. R. Miller and A. L. Millard.

Morenci Observer: Seven young ladies of Morenci, all of them school teachers, were weighed to see what effect their Christmas dinners had had and although our reporter has the list, knowing that the average girl, next to her age, is particular about her weight, he would not dare to print the names or specific weights. He would simply venture to say that the whole seven weighed 947 pounds.—Now where is the town that can beat this? (What they weighed before dinner is unknown.)

The county superintendents of the poor met last week and let the following contracts for the medical care of the poor in the cites and various townships of the county, and also the prisoners at the jail:

JOSHUA GUMBO'S DOG TAX.

Joshua Gumbo is a worthy citizen of Tecumseh who lives at the corner of Pottawatamie street and Pocahontas alley, in a neat one story cottage, painted sky green with lilac trimmings. He rents the house in which his wife gets the meals and does the washing, and hence has no real estate assessed to him. But he has a small assessment on personal property, which is paid on the last day in the afternoon.

Mr. Gumbo rushed into the HERALD office last week to interview Treasurer Tribou and liquidate his indebtedness to the state. Mr. Tribou looked up the receipt and gave him the amount due, which was $5.81.

"How's this?" said Joshua, "my tax last year was only $2.60. I've got the same organ, the same one hoss wagon, the same stem winding gold repeater. My wife wanted a seal skin sacque for Christmas, that's true, but I haint't been able to buy one. There's been some crooked work here by the Supervisor, and I'll settle his hash for him or my name ain't Joshua."

"Keep cool," said Mr. Tribou, "keep cool. I guess it's all right. Here are the figures:"

Personal property	$2.75
One female dog	5.00
Collection fees	.06
Total	$5.81

An electric shock couldn't have shaken up Gumbo more. "Jerusalem," he roared, "three dollars tax on that black and tan pup. I'll never pay it. I'll appeal to the Supreme Court. That dog will break up my family yet. My grocery bills have been growing higher 'n higher for six months. My wife feeds it on fried oysters, molasses candy and baked chicken. I've remonstrated with Jerusha, and threatened and begged, to no purpose. Last spring I loaned out the dog when the supervisor came round, and Jerusha, the old fool, leaked. She up 'n told him about the black and tan. Women don't know nothing in tax times. Why, Mr. Tribou, I couldn't have felt wuss if my daughter had eloped with a coachman. I've been into some pretty tight places in my life. I've had six children down with the measles at 'onst. I've had my wife apply for a bill just because I let'er go out washin', but I never had nothing break me up so 'afore, never. Ain't there no way to revise that tax roll? Can't I get out an injunction agin the collection of that tax? Can't my wife make complaint afore a Justice and swear it off?"

Joshua Gumbo will die in his tracks

"This is a free country, Mr. Tribou, and no man's liberty to keep a dog can be taken away from him. I ain't no fool, and I believe that this infernal law taxin dogs is unconstitutional, revolutionary and void. Why, the pup's whole carcass, brass collar and all, ain't worth mere'n a dollar. I'm a law abiding citizen, sir. I'm willin' to pay taxes on property. I've been scrimping a month to lay up $2.60 to pay my honest taxes with. My wife earned $2.00 of it makin' shirts for the clothier, and I scraped up 60 cents myself for acting as judge at a prize shooting match. They told us we'd have better times by bringing about a political change. Good Heavens! is this a specimen of it? Is the American workin' man to be swamped with dog taxes? I'll fight. I'll appeal. I'll—I'll—. You bet." And slamming the door he pranced down Chicago street as though he had been shot from a mortar.

THE GREAT GERMAN REMEDY FOR PAIN.

THE CHARLES A. VOGELER CO. Baltimore, Md., U. S. A.

WARREN LELAND,

whom everybody knows as the successful manager of the Largest Hotel Enterprises

of America, says that while a passenger from New York on board a ship going around Cape Horn in the early days of emigration to California, he learned that one of the officers of the vessel had cured himself during the voyage of an obstinate disease by the use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Since then Mr. LELAND has recommended AYER'S SARSAPARILLA in many similar cases, and he has never yet heard of its failure to effect a radical cure.

Some years ago one of Mr. LELAND'S farm laborers bruised his leg. Owing to the bad state of his blood, an ugly scrofulous swelling or lump appeared on the injured limb. Hourly the kicking of the sore, with burning and darting pains through the lump, made life almost intolerable. The leg became emphysematous and running ulcers formed, discharging great quantities of extremely offensive matter. No treatment was of any avail until the man, by Mr. LELAND'S direction, was supplied with AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, which allayed the pain and irritation, healed the sores, reduced the swelling, and completely restored the limb to use.

Mr. LELAND has personally used for Rheumatism, with entire success; and, [illegible] declares that, in [illegible] Liver Disorders, Costiveness, the effects of High Living, Salt Rheum, Sores, Eruptions, and all the various forms of blood diseases.

We have Mr. LELAND'S permission to invite all who may desire further evidence in regard to the extraordinary curative powers of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA to see him personally either at his mammoth Ocean Hotel, Long Branch, or at the popular Leland Hotel, Broadway, 13th and 23rd Streets, New York.

Mr. LELAND'S extensive knowledge of the good done by this unequalled eradicator of blood poisons enables him to give inquirers much valuable information.

WOOL AUCTIONS IN LONDON.

One of the Most Curious Things to Be Seen in the Largest City in the World.

There is no more curious sight in the city than one of the wool auctions which are now being held every afternoon in the Wool Exchange, Coleman street. Imagine a large and lofty room, capable of holding about five hundred people, in the form of a [illegible], the floor above tier, so that all the sitters are plainly visible from the floor, or rostrum—an elevated desk at the bottom of the room. Every seat is numbered, and the highest number is 392. A narrow gallery provides accommodation for the spectators. At 3:30 o'clock nearly every seat is occupied, the demand for them exceeding the supply, and as the clock strikes the hour the auctioneer, or selling broker, takes his place in the tribune. He is a [illegible], self-possessed, good-looking man, with a keen eye, rosy cheeks, and hair parted in the middle. On either side of him sits a clerk—one bald and dark, the other hirsute and blonde. No time is lost in preliminaries; an eloquent wool auctioneer would be an intolerably nasty sauce, and this one is as sparing of words as a telegram from China. Every buyer before him is the busiest of men, and he has to sell £100,000 worth of wool before six o'clock. "Lot 213, ten bales," he says. Simple words, but the signal for a very tempest of excitement. From every part of the room come, as it were, scattered shots in quick succession—"Eight, half, nine, ten, ten-half." Then up spring a dozen, or it may be a score, of eager, earnest men, who shout passionately at the top of their voices, and almost in chorus—"Ten-half, ten-half, ten-half," until it seems as if the roof would split. Some stretch their arms toward the tribune, as if they were threatening a foe; others wave them to and fro, as if they were engaged in mortal combat; others, again, raise them upward, as if they were appealing to Heaven. They yell still more loudly, gesticulate still more wildly, some in their excitement bending forward until they nearly topple over on the seats below. It is a bear garden, a Babel, a scene of indescribable confusion, and to the uninitiated spectator it seems as if the frantic bidders were about to spring from their places and punch each other's heads. But the auctioneer speaks one word, and the storm is lulled; every voice is hushed, every man resumes his seat. That word is "Tomkins." One lot has been knocked down to Tomkins. Without drawing breath the selling broker goes on to the next lot, and then there is another startling roar, followed by an equally sudden collapse. The faces of some of the bidders are a study. One gentleman, with a bald head surrounded by a fringe of black hair, and features manifestly French, gets so excited that you fear he may break a blood-vessel or have a fit of apoplexy. His wide nostrils quiver, his swarthy face becomes dark, he fights the air with his arms and hands bids at the auctioneer, as if he would annihilate him. Near the Gaul is a fair Teuton, stalwart and tall, shouting offers as if he were crying "Vorwarts!" in the smoke of battle, and glaring at his competitors as if he would like to charge down on them as the Uhlans charged down upon the French at Gravelotte and Sedan. Not far from the foreigners sits a gentleman whose cast of features and style of dress leaves little doubt that he is a manufacturer of wool, or stapler, and hails from a northern country. To make his bid more effective he puts his hand to the side of his mouth and gesticulates with the other, but he needs no artificial aid, for he has a voice of thunder and shouts like a Boanerges. But why all this noise? Why can not a wool auctioneer knock down his wares to the highest bidder. All the firms represented at the auction know to a fraction the value of every parcel they wish to acquire, and five, or ten, or a score, as the case may be, are willing buyers of a certain lot at, let us say, a shilling a pound more than they can afford to give. The rule is, when there are several bidders at the same price—and there are generally several bidders—to prefer the one who bids the first, which is practically the one who first succeeds in attracting the auctioneer's attention. In such a contest the feeble-voiced have no chance to come out of it victorious. When the selling broker names the buyer who has caught his ear all the lost subside, like would-be orators in the House of Commons who fail to catch the Speaker's eye. The confidence in the Speaker's impartiality seems to be absolute; he never loses his self-possession, and time is too precious to be wasted in wrangling.—London Spectator.

A NEW KIND OF DOG.

One of the Kind that Can Only Be Bought in an Art Embroidery Store.

A wild-looking man who resembled one who had wrestled with misfortune in a catch-as-catch-can hold and been thrown in the contest, went into a Woodward avenue bird store the other day and approached the affable proprietor.

"Look here," he said, "may I take you apart for a moment?"

"Certainly," replied the man of animals, "if you can put me together again."

"Well, here's a letter from my wife—say come out and have something."

They went and had something; when they came back the wild-looking man resumed the letter. "She writes me," he continued, "to get her a white canvas-back dog in cross—"

"Now, you go," said the bird man severely. "Business is business, and I've no time to fool away."

He sat down on the curbstone to rest. He was still reading the letter when a sympathetic lady stopped to look at him.

"Poor man, are you ill?" she asked, kindly.

"Heaven bless you, madam, read that letter. If you can, and will, I am a saved man."

The lady took the letter as if she were humoring the whim of a lunatic and read it over.

"It is easy enough to read," she said. "Your wife, who seems to be an excellent woman, wishes you to buy her a working design in cross-stitch, stamped on a canvas splasher, with crewels to finish it, and send by express at once. I m sure there's nothing about it that isn't plain enough."

"Thank you, ma'am. I'll never forget your kindness. Where did you say the cross-eyed dog on canvas could be found?"

"At any art-embroidery store," and the lady walked away, remarking softly to herself:

"Of all stupids, men are the stupidest. Not to know what cross-stitch is!"—Detroit Free Press.

THE FISH TRADE.

The Sons of Cape Cod and Their Enterprise—An Association of Amateur Fishermen.

Ever since the Pilgrims landed at Plymouth Bay those treasures of the deep, cod, haddock, halibut, mackerel and the smaller varieties of the finny tribe, such as perch, flounders, smelts, etc., have been a source not only of wealth, but a precious boon in this section of the country in times of need, when agricultural labor produced barren results. The waters which wash the shores of that crooked and sandy peninsula, Cape Cod, in early days were alive with the above-named specimens of a floating population which sometimes by force of numbers darkened the face of the great deep. The great value of these marine productions was soon appreciated by our hardy predecessors, and fishing was for many the most productive branch of industry to which they could resort to sustain life. Cape Cod is supposed to have derived that name from the fish which kept its inhabitants from starving, and which for years was the staple product of the colony. For many years the insignificant port of Hingham, whose harbor is now as dry as its sands at any stage of water, was a scene of busy industry, and it is stated that the manufacture of kits and tubs for salted fish created that great industry which has made Hingham proverbial, viz., the construction of buckets, pails and tubs. It is a very ancient joke that when a native of that town "crossed the river," the villagers remarked, "he has kicked the bucket." All along the shore, way down to the terminus—oceanward of Cape Cod, the hardy fishermen trained their boys to be sailors with such perfection that a Cape Cod boy was preferred above all others by the exporting and importing merchants of Boston, New York, Baltimore and other maritime cities. The finest ships that ever sailed from these ports were navigated by Cape Cod seamen, whose early training was in the fishery business. Fishing for fun and fishing for a living are two vastly different things, a fact which will be readily acknowledged by those who have tried both. Excursionists who make a summer trip over the surface of the vasty deep, with the intention of capturing its scaly inhabitants, seldom "cast their lines in pleasant places." Unless on their return trip they fall in with some professional fisherman in his dingy old tub, of whom they purchase a few cod or perch, they return to the dock empty-handed, yet they generally have a good time.

About the year 1840 a club of amateur fishermen was formed, composed of many lively Boston boys and middle-aged merchants, for the purpose of exploring Massachusetts Bay and catching the biggest cod to be found floating or swimming in its waters. It was called the "Mammoth Cod Association," and every member was expected to do his level best in capturing a leviathan of the deep. Large pools, sometimes amounting to three, five, ten, and even twenty-five dollars, were offered for the first scaly culprit hauled on board. Capturing fish was not, however, the primary object of the amateur fishermen, as some of the yet remaining original members can attest. Several of the committee on "bimbo" and "draw poker" are yet living. Amateur fishing never did amount to much in Boston Harbor or its vicinity; the serious portion of the business was done by those "toilers of the deep" who thereby earned a subsistence.—Boston Budget.

STARVATION.

The Effect It Has on the Mental Faculties of Human Beings.

The recent case of cannibalism at sea opens up some curious questions as to the effects of fasting on the moral nature of man. To the superficial observer, death by starvation simply means a wasting of the body, a horrible agony, an increasing weakness, a lethargic state of the brain, and a sleep from which there is no awakening; but is this all that it means? While this is going on, let us consider whether or not the intellectual faculty, and with it the power of distinguishing right from wrong, is not also undergoing a process of wasting and death, even before that of the material part, for, however dangerous it may be to received opinions to associate the material nature of man with the moral nature of our being, we are bound to do so, to elucidate some of the facts connected with this case.

Reasoning by analogy, we find that, in many cases of bodily disease, the state of the mind is the first indicator of the mischief going on in the system. Take even such a simple thing as indigestion, which, as every one must know, is only a manifestation of a deranged stomach, and what do we find? That the lowness of spirits induced by the affection may vary from slight dejection and ill-humor to the most extreme melancholy, sometimes inducing even a disposition to suicide. The sufferer misconceives every act of friendship, and exaggerates slight ailments into heavy grievances. So in starvation, the power of reason seems paralyzed and the intellectual faculty dazed really before the functions of the body suffer, or even the wasting of its tissue becomes extreme. Such being the case, the unfortunate individual is not accountable for his actions, even if they be criminal in character, long before death puts an end to his sufferings.—N. F. Cooke, in Popular Science Monthly.

Downright Cruelty

To permit yourself and family to "Suffer!"
With sickness when it can be prevented and cured so easily
With Hop Bitters!!!

Having experienced a great deal of "Trouble" from indigestion, so much so that I was near losing my Life!

My trouble always came after eating any food,—

However slight
And digestible.

For two or three hours at a time I had to go through the most
Excruciating pains.
"And the only way I ever got"
"Relief?"
Was by throwing up all my stomach contained. No one can conceive the pains that I had to go through, until
"At last"
I was taken! "So that for three weeks I lay in bed and
Could eat nothing!
My sufferings were so that I called two doctors to give me something that would stop the pain; their Efforts were no good to me.
At last I heard a good deal
"About your Hop Bitters!
And determined to try them."
Got a bottle—in four hours I took the contents of
One!
Next day I was out of bed, and have not seen a
"Sick!"
Hour, from the same cause since.
I have recommended it to hundreds of others. You have no such.
"Advocate as I am."—Geo. Kendall, Allston, Boston, Mass.

Columbus Advocate, Texas, April 21, 1883. Dear Editor:—I have tried your Hop Bitters, and find they are good for any complaint. The best medicine I ever used in my family.—H. TALENER.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

Gathered from All Quarters.

WASHINGTON.

The following officers of the Society of Naturalists were elected at the session of that body in Washington on the 30th ult.: President, Grove K. Gilbert, of Washington; Vice Presidents, Profs. H. Newell Martin, of Maryland, E. N. Cope and Harrison Allen, of Pennsylvania; Secretary, Charles Sedgwick Minot, of Massachusetts; Treasurer, Charles Ashburner, of Pennsylvania; Members of the Executive Committee, elected from the society at large: R. Ramsay Wright, of Canada, and Samuel Clark, of Massachusetts. The Society adjourned to meet at Boston, December 29, 1885.

Paymaster W. H. Smyth, who disappeared from Savannah with $5,500 Government funds, appeared at the War Department on the 2d and voluntarily surrendered himself to the Paymaster General. He turned over $5,150 of the money carried off by him and his pay for December, $250, and $100 was paid for him by a friend, making the full amount of $5,500. Major Smyth says he went off on a spree Christmas and knew nothing of his actions until he found himself in New York. He then telegraphed his clerk that he would return immediately. He afterward, however, concluded to come to Washington and report to the Paymaster General.

The Comptroller of the Currency reports that the decrease since January 1, 1884, of National bank notes outstanding is $21,194,250, and that the increase in the deposit of legal tender notes since January 1, 1884, is $8,851,815.

It is understood that the War Department has declined to take official notice of the charges preferred by General Hazen against McKeever.

Colonel Stevenson, of the Bureau of Ethnology, who recently spent several months in the West, brought back the largest and most diverse collection of objects illustrating the home life, industries, and religious customs of the Pueblo Indians ever before made. They will be sent to the New Orleans Exposition.

THE EAST.

The employes of the Roxbury (Mass.) carpet factory, numbering eight hundred mostly females, struck on the 1st against a reduction of five to fifteen per cent. and the factory was closed. They first offered to accept half the reduction, which was refused. The factory is the largest manufacturing concern in the highlands, and hundreds of families depend on it for a living.

Samuel Stubbs, a grave-digger, who recently took the contract of removing all the bodies from an old cemetery to a new one near Fredonia, Pa., was soon after taken ill with every symptom of blood-poisoning and can not recover.

During 1884 the coinage at the United States mint at Philadelphia aggregated 52,270,000 pieces, representing a valuation of $16,949,000. Of this amount 1,740,000 were gold pieces, 14,412,000 silver and 796,000 in base coins.

A brakeman named Mason was fatally injured near Hartford, Conn., a few nights ago by being struck on the head with a stone thrown by a tramp, who he had put off the train. Mason was found lying insensible on the top of a car when the train reached New Britain.

A notice has been posted in the Bessemer Steel Works at Homestead, Pa., announcing a reduction (to take effect on the 7th) of the wages of the employes in their rail mill twenty-three per cent., those in the converting mill twenty per cent. and laborers ten per cent. The works employ about one thousand men. The reduction will not affect the operatives who belong to the Amalgamated Association. These comprise a majority of the skilled workmen and about half the total force.

It is said there was a less general observation of the custom of making New Year's calls in New York City than ever before. The streets of the city presented an almost deserted appearance. Comparatively few of the wealthy families received callers at all.

Business failures throughout the United States during the week ending the 3d number 366, against 278 in the preceding week, and 282, 257 and 152 in the corresponding weeks of 1884, '83, and '82 respectively. Bradstreet's Agency reports the number of failures in New York City for 1884 to have been 528, the largest known for six years past, as against 478 in 1883, 369 in 1882, 391 in 1881, 417 in 1880 and 463 in 1879. The total liabilities were $71,543,000 and assets $38,615,000.

A fire at Corry, Pa., on the 2d destroyed the large planing and sash factory owned by the Phœnix Mill Company, together with three adjoining dwelling houses. Loss $23,000.

At Cheneyville, Redford County, Pa., on the night of the 1st Herman Garlic burglariously entered the store of Lewis Lockey. The noise awakened John Gordon, the watchman, who waited until Garlic had robbed the money-till and was leaving with the contents, when he presented a shotgun and ordered him to throw up his hands. Instead of complying the thief grabbed the muzzle of the gun, and attempted to make fight. The gun went off and Garlic fell dead, riddled with buckshot. He was a young man, and his reputation in Cheneyville was above reproach.

There is reliable authority for the statement that the proposed Naval College will not be removed from Newport, but that measures will be taken in a short time to put the college in working order with an able corps of instructors.

A money belt containing $10,000 in English gold was found on the person of an Arab tramp who was arrested at White Plains, N. Y., a few days ago.

Several children were playing on the ice a few days ago at Machang, Mass., when they broke through and two girls of Mitchell Vanzandt and a son of Levi Debraus, aged eleven years, were drowned.

A commission has been received by the New England granite works of Boston, Mass., for a portrait statue of General H. W. Halleck, to be erected in the public park at San Francisco. It will be modeled after the Hampton statue in Central Park, New York. Conrad, the sculptor, is at work on the model.

Mr. J. S. Crawford, Superintendent of the Foreign Mail Service of the Postoffice Department, and Judge William T. Otto, who have been appointed to represent the United States at the International Postal Convention to be held at Lisbon, February 3, sailed from New York on the 6th.

Rev. J. H. Miller, of Beaver, Pa., a superannuated M. E. minister in his eighty-ninth year, was married a few days ago to Mrs. Miller, of Nebraska, who was his sister-in-law. The bride is sixty years of age.

After eight years of litigation the case of William M. Lloyd, a banker of New York, Altoona, Pa., and other places, one of the most notable of bankrupt cases, was settled at Pittsburgh on the 3d, and Lloyd was discharged from bankruptcy. Several millions of dollars are involved.

While bending over a stove on the 4th Peter Beck, aged seventy-five, of Linden, N. J., was suddenly seized with paralysis. In falling he struck and overturned the stove. The coals ignited the old man's clothing, and before help could reach him he was burned to death.

George Dana's nitro-glycerine factory at Westfall, Pa., was blown up on the night of the 3d and two men, Charles Thompson and James Sinning, employes, instantly killed. The factory was blown to atoms.

Ex-Governor Coburn died at his home in Skowhegan, Me., on the 4th, aged eighty-two years. He never recovered from the severe attack of illness at Augusta while attending the electoral college.

An opinion was filed a few days ago by Judge Stowe, of the Common Pleas Court of Pittsburgh, to the effect that the defunct Penn Bank, of that city, was operated under a private and special character, and not under the State banking act of 1850. This relieves the directors of the bank of individual liability for the sums due the depositors. It will be fought in Supreme Court.

The twentieth anniversary of the election of Bishop Coxe to the Bishopric of Western New York was celebrated in all the Episcopal churches at Buffalo on the 4th. The Bishop lectured on the history of the diocese at St. Paul's Cathedral in the evening.

At Troy, N. Y., on the 3d papers were served in an action brought by the city against the ten bondsmen of Chamberlain Church, the defaulter, to recover $20,000, the amount of his bonds. The negotiations for a settlement with the bondsmen were unsuccessful.

WEST AND SOUTH.

Late advices from Northern Texas report but little damage done to stock by the recent cold weather and severe storms. Some herds drifted southward nearly two hundred miles, but they are being gathered up and driven back to the points where they belong.

The December returns of the cotton crop indicate a total production of 6,580,000 bales.

Judge Sage, of the United States District Court at Cincinnati, on the 30th ult. sentenced the following prisoners convicted of violating the election laws at the recent elections: Robert Berry, James Usher and James McLaughlin, convicted of illegal voting, sentenced to six months in the Hamilton County jail; D. Shannon and Ferdinand Noth, same offense, sixty days in jail; Henry Shaeffer and Daniel Kinney, for hindering citizens from voting, six months in jail.

Samuel McMaster, a prominent Republican politician, of Dakota, died at San Francisco a few days ago. He was a candidate for Delegate to Congress before the late Republican Territorial Convention. He leaves a fortune of $250,000.

At Cleveland, O., on the 31st ult. Ruth Gill, aged two years and nine months, daughter of John I. Gill, was shot and instantly killed by Walter Grosshart, a four-year-old boy playmate. The boy had gone into the room where Ruth was at play and in opening a bureau drawer his attention was attracted by a pistol, which he took out and by some means it was discharged with the above result.

The Milwaukee mills manufactured 1,177,676 barrels of flour in 1884, against 875,892 barrels in 1883, an increase of 301,784 barrels.

Information reached San Francisco on the 1st of the wreck of the German bark Lily near Petrolia, Humboldt County, Cal., on December 26. The vessel left Cork October 5 for San Francisco. The first officer, Van Lafner, the cook, G. Brons, and three seamen, F. Pommer, C. Damkef, and D. Burydorf, were drowned. The Captain and others were saved. The vessel and cargo are a total loss.

Statistics of the inspectors of the different tobacco warehouses at Petersburg, Va., show that during 1884 there were sold in Petersburg 5,418,027 pounds of loose tobacco against 6,208,293 pounds during the previous year. The number of hogsheads inspected was 6,632 against 10,790 for 1883.

Leopold Von Sechan was found dead in an apartment in the eastern section of Baltimore a few days ago. He was suffocated by gas generated by a coal-oil stove on which he prepared his food. He was the son of a General in the Saxon army, and came to this country in 1869. In the house was found a bank book with $2,500 to his credit. He is said to have received $200 a month from Germany.

At Dayton, O., on New Year's morning Charles Sellers was "shooting the old year out," and after snapping the trigger several times laid the revolver down. His wife, thinking it was not loaded, in fun pointed it at his back, when the weapon exploded, the ball lodging in his neck. He will probably die.

Professor Barnard, of Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn., discovered Ericke's comet, on the night of the 2d at seven hours forty-five seconds, Washington time. Its position at the time was right ascension 22h. 56m. and 47s., declination north 49 degrees 1m. and 56s.

The output of gold, silver and lead in the Leadville district for the year 1884 was $12,392,400, an increase of $2,134,400 over 1883, with a number of mines that produced largely in 1883 closed down the greater part of the year on account of the low price of lead. The chief of these was the Silver Cord, one of the heaviest producers of the district. The product of lead alone was 46,800 tons, a considerable increase compared with 1883.

The Baltimore & Ohio has made telegraph rates from Chicago to New York fifteen cents. The same rate has been made by the Mutual Union, and the Postal makes a rate of twenty cents. The Western Union has made no reduction.

At Chicago the local finance committee of the Democratic National Convention held a final meeting on the 2d and subscribed $11,100 to defray the remaining indebtedness. The expenses of the convention amounted to $150,000.

The canning house of the Miami Powder Company, near Xenia, Ohio, exploded on the 2d. Jack Ginn, an employe, was instantly killed and the building was demolished.

A number of country postoffices in Northern Illinois have recently been worked by a sharper with indifferent success, by means of raised postal notes of the old issue. From amounts less than one dollar he has changed them according to his fancy. The postmasters have been generally advised of the trick through the Superintendent of the Money Order Department at Washington. He is described as being about forty years old, nearly six feet high and weighing 160 pounds, with black hair and mustache and of good address.

Barney Krauss, a German barber of Belleville, O., while on his way home from his place of business at an early hour on the morning of the 4th, was ordered "hands up" by three highwaymen, who suddenly stepped in front of him. He promptly responded with three shots from a pistol, one of the men falling, while the others fled. The wounded man was fatally shot through the breast, and proved to be Charles Bradford, a well known citizen of Bellville. He died next day.

Dr. Maxwell, who poisoned his four children at Springfield, O., a few weeks ago, and who has since been confined in the county jail awaiting trial for murder, committed suicide on the 4th by hanging himself with a towel.

Bernard Billings, an inmate of the hospital at La Junta, Col., wandered out on the prairie during a severe snow storm a few nights ago. When found he was badly frozen, and died soon afterwards.

FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

Pope Leo XIII. has consulted the American bishops as to the advisability of appointing an American rector instead of an Italian for the North American College at Rome.

A railway collision at Barnsby Junction, England, on the 1st resulted in the killing of four persons and injuring thirty.

A dynamite explosion occurred on the Metropolitan Underground Railway, London, between Gower Street and King's Cross Station, on the evening of the 2d. The windows of a passing train were shattered and the gas light extinguished. Beyond this there was no damage done. The passengers were greatly terrified, but no one was seriously hurt. The train resumed its journey after a delay of twenty-five minutes.

Madrid dispatches of the 2d report fresh shocks of earthquake throughout Andalusia. The houses left standing in Albama with a population of about 18,000 have fallen, completing the destruction of that place. The buildings in Antiquera, a well-built city of 28,000 inhabitants, were tumbling rapidly and the probabilities were that the place would be destroyed. Other towns also reported fresh shocks and further loss of life. The distress prevailing among the people of Andalusia was terrible. There was a great scarcity of food and medicine, and so panic-stricken had the people become that it was difficult to get men to enter the ruins of the buildings in search of bodies and rescuing the wounded persons from the debris.

General Campenon has been succeeded by General Lovell as French Minister of War. It is announced that General Negrier has won another victory at Chu, routing six thousand Chinese.

The Portsmouth and Plymouth divisions of the Channel Squadron of the British Navy have received urgent orders by telegraph from London to prepare for sea instantly. Most of the crews are away on furlough, but have been summoned by placards and by telegraphic orders to be aboard ship on the 5th. The destination of the squadron is as yet unknown.

Madam Dingler, wife of the Director General of the Panama Canal Company, died recently at Panama from fever. This is the third victim of the climate in the director's family within a year.

A Madrid dispatch of the 5th states that shocks of earthquake still continue to be felt at Veley, Malago and Xeres, and 400 persons had already been taken from the ruins at Albama. Over 500 persons were injured in the latter city alone. It is estimated that 10,000 head of cattle were killed.

LATER NEWS.

A WASHINGTON dispatch of the 6th says that Chief Justice Waite has been very ill for several weeks. Last summer he was stricken with paralysis, but nearly recovered. Two months ago erysipelas attacked his face and head and affects his brain so that he is rarely lucid. His intimate friends are hopeless of his recovery, and the utmost they expect is that he may linger a few months. If he should have a lucid interval long enough to understand the situation, he would probably resign in order to allow his successor to be appointed by President Arthur.

MRS. MARY BECK, of Grafton, W. Va., has confessed that she caused the wreck of the St. Louis express train on the Baltimore & Ohio road near that place on the 30th ult. with the loss of two lives and the destruction of much property. She acted in revenge for the recent arrest of her husband for robbing freight cars.

GENERAL WARREN F. TRUITT, messenger from Oregon with the electoral of that State, reached Washington on the 5th, and delivered the vote to the Vice President. Owing to the snow blockade, Mr. Truitt was compelled to take the trip by the way of San Francisco and the Southern Pacific Railroad.

An order has been issued from the Delaware & Hudson Canal Company indefinitely suspending work at eight collieries in the vicinity of Scranton, Pa. This order throws more than two thousand men and boys out of work.

THE Senate was called to order at two o'clock on the 5th, and the Chair laid before that body the unfinished business, which was the Inter State Commerce bill, Mr. Wilson having the floor. Long prepared speeches were made by Messrs. Wilson and Sewell. The former condemned the centralizing policy of the railroads, and the latter justified the practice of pooling. A message was received from the President transmitting a communication from the Secretary of the Interior recommending that measures be taken to disarm the Cheyenne and other Indians in the Indian Territory and to compensate them for the arms thus taken. The President commended this question to the attention of the Senate as one of great importance. The message was referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs. The Senate then went into executive session and soon afterwards adjourned. The first bill introduced in the House under the call of States was a preamble and resolutions by Mr. Herbert reciting that it appears that the President has appointed Hon. John A. Kasson and Henry S. Sanford delegates on the part of the United States to an International African Congress held in Berlin, and that such an alliance as this conference seems to import, is a departure from the traditions of this Nation; requesting the President, if not incompatible with the public service, to state the reasons that impelled him to appoint delegates to said conference, whether there was any limitation placed upon their authority as delegates, whether said limitation, if any, was made known to the conference; whether the President has any information tending to show whether the proposed new State is to be a republic or a monarchy, and whether, in his opinion, the participation of the United States in such a conference would not estop them from opposing any attempt to form a State on the American continent; referred to the Committee on Foreign affairs. There were several unimportant measures brought before the House, but upon its refusal to suspend its rules there was no action taken upon them. Adjourned.

That is the way a man's rheumatic joints sometimes are. Hinges old, rusty, and worn, and badly need oiling. The trouble is in the blood. A man who is any account is worth repairing. The repairing can be done by means of Brown's Iron Bitters. That enriches and purifies the blood, drives out the pains, and works complete restoration. Thousands testify to it from happy experience. Mr. C. H. Huntley, 918 North Sixteenth st., Saint Louis, says: "I used Brown's Iron Bitters for rheumatism, general debility and prostration, with the best results."

A THRILLING STORY.

As Told by a Merchant in Troy, N. Y.—A Surgical Operation Avoided—How a Father, Wife and Daughter Escaped an awful Doom.

Of the hundreds of accounts of remarkable cures wrought by Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, none have appeared so purely astonishing as the following. The persons mentioned are among the most highly respected in the city of Troy, and the story as told by the father will prove interesting to all our readers.—ED.

TROY, N. Y.

Dr. Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.:

Dear Sir—My daughter was afflicted with a severe growth of Fungus. To remove it we had resorted to almost every remedy and consulted the most prominent surgeons and physicians. Dr. ——, of Troy, said that a surgical operation would be necessary, but fearing fatal results I hesitated. Some of the physicians claimed that it was caused by one thing and some by another. The Fungus was prominent and disfigured her looks. Having heard of Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy working so thoroughly on the blood I determined to try it, to see if this medicine could do what doctors had failed to do and surgeons had hardly dared to undertake. I can say in truth that the result of this trial was the complete cure of my daughter of this dreadful malady. Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy alone effected it. We used nothing else, for other things had completely failed. My daughter today enjoys vigorous health and to Favorite Remedy alone is the credit due. My wife also was very poor in health, due to some liver difficulty with which she had suffered a long time until she became very much reduced in flesh. A trial of Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy had resulted in the complete restoration of her health, which she had not enjoyed for years. She had gained in flesh and strength and thus secured perfect health, and this is due entirely to Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy. As for myself, being engaged in the grocery and commission business, which makes it necessary for me to test the quality of different articles like butter, etc., my sense of taste and my stomach were seriously injured, everything seemed to nauseate me, and fearful of dyspepsia in its most severe form I tried Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy. The first bottle afforded immediate relief, and from that day to this I can say that Favorite Remedy has restored me to perfect health. These are facts which I claim prove that Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy is the best medicine in the world for those afflicted with the above difficulties. If any one in the city of Troy doubts the truth of these statements let him come to me and I will prove them. I have recommended Favorite Remedy to hundreds and with the same grand results.

Yours, etc., WILLIAM WINDSOR.

BAPTIST LADIES SOCIAL

The annual meeting of the Baptist ladies' social was held at the home of Dr. I. S. Hamilton. After the reading of the annual report by a vote of the social, the Secretary was requested to furnish the report for publication.

Annual report, January 2d, 1885.

Dear Sisters, In surrendering my position as Secretary of this society today I feel impelled to speak somewhat of the past. Thirty-two years ago, at July a few of the ladies of this church met at the parsonage of Rev. Thomas McLean, who was then our Pastor, to organize a ladies' sewing circle. The object of the circle was to promote sociability among the members, to encourage each other in our duties as Christians and to raise money to help us in our church work. The society was formed and the following officers were elected:

President—Mrs. Dr. Hamilton.
Vice President—Mrs. E. L. Benton.
Treasurer—Miss Rachel Hampton.
Sec.—Miss Anna E. Whitmore.

Part of the constitution read that every fortnight we should be one of prayer, thus forming a circle of work and prayer. The person at whose house we met furnished the supper and provided sewing for us to do. We went early and kept busy so that we felt we were indeed benefiting ourselves. Our supper fees went into the treasury to help on with our church work. We often think of those who worked with us in the 32 years, many of whom have finished their works on earth, but whose memories are still dear to us who knew them. Many changes have come to us as a society and as individuals during these years, but we have always worked in harmony and good will together, and, as one after another of our members have fallen by the way, others have come in to fill their places and carry the work forward. We have not been selfish and used all our money for ourselves. Numbers of churches have been benefited by our contributions, many missionaries encouraged by our remittances and many families cared for, and I think we have found it more blessed to give than to receive. At the time of organization it was thought best to hold our annual meeting in January, so the first meeting was held in January 1853, at the home of Dr. I. S. Hamilton, and to-day we are enjoying the same hospitality that has welcomed us for 32 years with I think but three exceptions and it seems to me like coming home to-day, to give an account of our year's work, and to lay plans for future work, and may the blessing of God rest upon the Dr. and his family for their unwearied kindness to us, and may they be preserved to us yet many years.

We are very grateful to our Heavenly Father that he has kept our numbers unbroken through the year. The past year has not been marked by any important or special work; we have held twelve meetings, which have generally been well attended; our officers have nearly always been in their places. In February we had one monumental quilt quilted, furnished two contribution boxes for the use of the church, furnished four side lamps for the upper room, one bracket lamp for the library room, one teaspoper for the use of the committee, prepared and quilt for Miss Palmer's mission school in Burmah, and paid one-half of the expense of the Prayer meeting cards. We had at the commencement of the year $19.79 in the treasury, our collections have been $[illegible], orders have been drawn for $[illegible], leaving in the treasury $100.08, which we expect will be used on church repairs the coming year.

SECRETARY.

After the reading of the report a rising and unanimous vote of thanks was tendered to Dr. Hamilton and his family by the members of the social for their long extended kindness to us.

The following officers were elected for the present year:

President—Mrs. A. P. Coddington.
Vice Pres.—Mrs. H. Crane.
Treasurer—Mrs. O. B. Finch.
Secretary—Mrs. J. Fisher.
Ex Com.—Mrs. J. H. Osborn, Mrs. C. E. Conley, Mrs. J. Heck, Mrs. P. B. Swick, Mrs. Howard.
Collectors—Mrs. J. Heesen, Mrs. L. G. North.

PRINCESS BEATRICE.

On the last day of the year 1884 the betrothal of Princess Beatrice, the queen of England's youngest child, was announced. Princess Beatrice Mary Victoria Feodore was born on the 14th day of April, 1857, and at the decease of the Prince Consort was therefore four years of age. She is one of the most respected and loved of the Royal family of England, having endeared herself to the English people, especially of the poorer classes, by her many acts of charity. Being the youngest child she was the prime favorite of her mother who has always been opposed to the marriage, not wishing to be separated from her. Her Royal Highness the Princess, in her features, is strikingly like unto her mother, and like the rest of the family is of magnificent physique. She is noted for her excellent artistic taste, and is also a very clever artist, many of her water color paintings having adorned at public exhibitions. She is good looking and is inclined to the domestic side of life. Prince Henry Maurice Of Battenberg, her fiancee, is one of the petty princes of Germany who has nothing to be proud of but his pedigree can be traced back to the time when the Teutons were barbarians. It is questionable whether the fact that our ancestors wore bear skin breeches and lived in caves is much to boast of. The Prince was born in 1858, and is, therefore, six years the senior of the Princess. He is a cousin of Grand Duke Louis IV. of Hesse, the husband of Princess Alice, the eldest sister of Princess Beatrice. At one time Dame Rumor had announced the Grand Duke as the betrothed of Beatrice. Prince Battenberg has no estate, and the English people will be called upon to provide the money that will be necessary to maintain the establishments of the young couple.

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.

CLINTON CHAPTER.

Mrs. E. M. Conklin, of Tecumseh, made Clinton friends a short visit last Monday.

J. E. McCollum and wife spent Sunday in Manchester the guests of his mother and sister.

The reception given C. F. Clark and wife by Mrs. Louise Clark last Friday evening was largely attended and heartily enjoyed by all present. Mrs. Clark has long held the reputation of giving very enjoyable parties and this one seems to have eclipsed all former efforts.

J. J. White's baby, who has been very sick with inflammation of the lungs, is reported better.

Mrs. Laura Luther, who has been visiting in Tecumseh for two or three weeks, has returned to Clinton.

Miss Mina Muir returned from Detroit last Friday accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Chas. Johnston, and her daughter. Mrs. Johnston will remain here a few days until the arrival of her husband, who expects to make Clinton a short visit.

Oley A. Sinclair has been helping S. W. Demuth invoice his goods this week.

Quite a number of people have been suffering with severe colds within the past few days. Miss Lou Reynolds, Mrs. B. O. Randall, Mrs. Geo. Hard and children all belong on the list of afflicted ones. Miss Laura Clark was also seriously indisposed so that the organist's chair at St. John's church was vacant in the evening. Miss Nellie Kishpaugh took Miss Clark's place through the morning service.

Mr. and Mrs. Will. H. Dorr returned from Detroit last Monday night.

P. C. Smith's youngest child has been very sick with a cold.

Look out for something entirely new in the way of social entertainments in a couple of weeks at the Town Hall.

Mr. Aaron Roff's smoke house burned about four o'clock Monday morning.

Last Saturday night about nine o'clock a fire broke out in J. W. Burchard's gun shop. It was first discovered and the alarm given by Ely McConnell. In an incredibly short time a large crowd gathered and by the prompt use of the Babcock fire extinguishers the flames were soon subdued. The building is situated within a few feet of a shed filled with straw, and the shed is attached to the barn. If the fire had occurred the night before nothing could have saved any of the Dr's. buildings, and it is the opinion of many that the town would have burned. The gentleman claims to have lost thirty dollars in cash, as he left that amount in his pocket book in the shop early in the evening. The question now is—Has any one the right to carry on a business, though it may be on his own premises that is constantly endangering other people's property. Probably an attempt to re-establish the institution will meet with considerable opposition on the part of some of our citizens.

Invitations for the masquerade party to be given the 23rd were issued last Tuesday. The music will be furnished by Van Etten's full orchestra with Boos. The maskers will meet in the rooms over Freese's store. Grand march is at 7:30 and masks will be removed at 9:30. Supper at the Lancaster House. Bill for the dance $1, supper 75cts. The committees are as follows:

Arrangements—George VanGelson, Victor E. Haywood, Albert F. Kishpaugh.

Invitation—Geo. S. Field, Tecumseh, R. W. Mills, Saline, S. Braman, Manchester.

Reception—S. Braman, Manchester, Chas. Thompson, Tecumseh, J. F. Cummins, Franklin.

Floor Managers—Frank Lancaster, Ed. VanDeMark, Porter C. Smith.

BROOKLYN BALLAST.

Diptheria has removed another little one from the home of Mr. Lawrence, and the dread of the disease spreading produces almost a panic. Every ailment however trifling, is regarded with suspicion, because both cases were of the worst type. Doctors give in learned phraseology the why and wherefore of this plague, and perhaps a mode of escaping unharmed, from contact with it, and which has not failed in one individual case, may be of some benefit if told in plain English; for though often forgotten when wedding presents are expected, its a busy time when an escort is not furnished the same person to where sickness is a safe-guard against intrusion. She has no bookology to offer, nor has she any prejudice in favor of, or against any Pathy or form of treatment for the sick.

Each contains all the good one has time to apply; but she deems anything that makes the patient more comfortable in mind or body, a safe addition to the doctor's prescription. This unskilled nurse bases safety from contagion on a cheap foundation. As there is twice the work to do for sick people, as for well, she drinks tea or coffee and eats twice as often while attending the dangerously sick. There is a double tax on strength, which the system must be steadily trained for, and the nearer one keeps natural the better the ability to resist infection. There is something more to be reckoned. The patient may be racked by every agony, or death may be horribly painless. In either case the effect on the attendant is about the same. Where there is no possibility of recovery, there are few rules to anchor to save smoothing the way all you can. A tired, uneasy feeling overtakes the watchers in a few minutes after entering a room reeking with disinfectants, or worse. Often the first are neglected, and the poisoned air forced into the lungs by a chilly breeze, through an open window. Placing the hands on a patient is unavoidable, but it saps the magnetism from health quickly, and as vitality grows weaker, the fancy that you are absorbing miasma like a sponge grows stronger. To counteract this certainty most people swallow liquor or pep permint at intervals. Some even take kerosene, but nearly all resort to the bottle, no matter how much they believe in Prohibition away from danger. Yet tincture of iron is an antidote for poison, and a few drops taken daily during exposure, is worth all the brandy unsold, if a bath to insure perfect cleanliness accompanies the remedy, and coffee and rolls not neglected. Within a few years there has been several cases of malignant Diptheria in this village that tried the nerves of the doctors and nurses almost beyond endurance. One of the latter believes this: whatever will induce perspiration, whether it be brandy, ginger tea, or catnip, will aid you to catch the disease, or transmit it to others. During the worst of all, the one who stood by the pillow till all was over, followed, the rules above quoted and escaped; but the one a house width from the room depended on the stimulant and contracted the disease; and this has been the result throughout. It is not offered as an infallible gospel, but it answers for one.

LAKE RIDGE LACONICS.

The weather is about the same, if anything a little more so.

Nothing moving in a business way except now and then a load of wood.

J. G. Miller's team run away Friday throwing him against the fence from which he is quite indisposed.

"Bill" Swick's team became frightened by the cars at Britton, Monday, ran away and demolished his buggy, no other serious damage.

Colds and boils are epidemic.

Joe. Hunter "rocks the cradle."

Miss Phebe Osgood is quite sick with fever.

T. F. Moore installed the officers of Macon Grange, Friday afternoon and gave a public lecture in the evening. A very good house and successful meeting considering the weather.

The new telegraph line from Ridgeway to Lake Ridge is completed, with eleven new instruments, all in tip top running order. The sacks of "good-mornings," "good evenings," "good-nights" and "good-byes," with the business transactions, bits of "chit chat," private conversation, conundrums, the latest of which, "why is a hen immortal?" and roll calls, jig and juber steps, with as many periods, and twice as much that got away, makes a diversified and continuous entertainment. Still amid all this clatter and confusion we managed to start a doctor right out of church, Sunday night, for Mr. Osgood. The capital stock consists of eleven shares of $5 each, (55) and after completing the line, which consists of main wire, office wire, insulators and batteries, there remains in the treasury about $20. So the question of farmers having telegraphic communication with each other and with the outside world is merely a matter of taste, the expense being very trifling. The new line connects with the Ridgeway and Britton line, making a direct outlet.

ONSTED ODDS.

Miss Alma Howes is suffering with rheumatism.

D. A. Sickner has purchased another lot of William Onsted.

There are four firms in this town that deal in skunk skins, and strange to say they all have business.

Station agent Spaulding looks happy since his wife and child have returned from their holiday visit at Lyons.

James Braynard, a painter who has done a good deal of work in this vicinity, has moved from Cambridge to this place. He is boarding at C. W. Greenleaf's.

A large number of people surprised Mr. Dennet, pastor of the church, by making him a visit Tuesday. Each one carried something along to show that they had been there.

Wilson Lee has purchased a lot of D. A. Sickner and will move his store across the railroad. He has evidently made up his mind that the climate is too cold so far north.

A complete surprise is what the family of E. R. Kilbury experienced on Tuesday evening, when more than forty relatives and friends visited them without previously sending word. The friends left as a token of their friendship a silver and glass tea set and a handsome arm chair. The visit was on Mrs. Kilbury's fifty-fifth birthday.

ADDISON ATOMS.

Our village sick list has been unusually long of late. The sudden change of weather is thought to be the general cause.

J. D. Sheridan & Co.'s branch store has been withdrawn to Brooklyn.

Work continues to progress on the skating rink notwithstanding the coldness of the weather.

Rev. Alphonzo Crane of the M. E. Church here is conducting religious revival meetings at Prospect hill.

A lodge of Odd Fellows was instituted here on the tenth inst. The secretary informed us that fourteen members are entered on the books.

Addison now boasts of five secret organizations viz. Masonic, Sons of Temperance, Good Templars, G. A. R. and Odd Fellows. We enter in the order organized. Let the anti secret agitators take note.

C. G. Elmore Jr. late of this place reports one hundred and eighty students in the public schools at Millington Tuscola Co. Mr. E. is principal and has three associate teachers.

The Lapeer Democrat of the 7th says that lawyer Frank Millis of that county was admitted to practice in the United States court at Detroit last week. Frank is an old Addison boy and our people will be glad to learn of his success in the profession chosen.

SPRINGVILLE SIFTINGS.

Miss Helen Queale has returned home from St. John's, where she has been spending the holidays.

It was quite lively times on Friday evening in Springville, on dividing the spoils between the skating rink and the club dance at the Springville Hotel; think the dance came out ahead, though both parties were satisfied. The rink, on Monday evening was not very largely attended, bad weather.

On account of sickness our Mr. Storms was unable to fill the desk at the M. E. Church on Sunday P. M. It was supplied by the Rev. Mr. Wall, Congregationist minister of Franklin. Had a good sermon.

Israel B. Sleeler has been for some three weeks or more suffering from a lame back, so that he is about helpless.

J. B. Ayres returned to Adrian on Monday to attend school, after spending the past week at home.

There is to be a club dance at the Springville Hotel on Friday evening, Jan. 23d.

Jos. H. Smith, of the Tecumseh Lumber Company, is in town.

Cold weather and rough roads are the order of the day.

G. v. Alger has about as many applications for office in this state as President Cleveland will be called upon to fill.

RIDGEWAY RAMBLES.

The cold wave gets there this time.

Miss Ella Jackson made friends at Dundee a visit last week.

G. W. Jackson has been on the sick list for the past few days. Too much Turkey was the cause.

Miss Fannie Cone of Hudson, is visiting relatives and friends here.

Miss Mary Kilpatrick of Fowlerville, Livingston Co., called on friends here on Wednesday and Thursday. She was on her way to Clinton, to close out her millinery business there.

Kelley, Morley & Co., shipped a car load of hogs from here Saturday to Buffalo. James Pocklington went to look after the welfare of the porkers.

Miss Vina Underwood left for Toledo Monday, where she will study and teach music.

The Box entertainment that was to come off last week at the Christian church at Britton, was postponed on account of the weather, until next Thursday night, when all are cordially invited to be present to enjoy the pleasures of the evening. By order of Com.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pocklington and family returned Tuesday from a few week's visit with relatives at Perrysburg, O.

The annual donation of the M. E. church will be held on the evening of Jan. 28th, at the church. The committee will meet at the home of G. P. Waring next Monday night to make the necessary arrangements, and desire to see all persons interested to be present. By order of Chairman of Com.

Mr. Waring will have his hall ready to use this week, and the Literary will hold the dedicating services next Friday evening, and will carry out a very entertaining program, consisting of Declamations, Recitations, Music, &c. The woman suffrage question will be discussed in its proper meaning. A cordial invitation is extended to all to come and see the new Hall, as it is a public convenience that the place has long been in need of. It will be seated with opera chairs, and has a fine stage 10x22 ft., and is handsomely papered in the latest European style. The hall will be known as the Cottage Hall, North Church St.

FLASHES BY C. T. LINE.

Mrs. Quirk, the miller's wife at Newburg mills, is dangerously sick.

D. C. Bowen who has been living in Oakland Co., for the past year has concluded that Old Lenawee is good enough for him, and Willis Smith has gone after his goods. He will move into one of E. C. Coryell's houses.

Madison Graves of Lenawee Junction, has been canvassing among the farmers for the purpose of introducing German laborers, both male and female.

The C. T. Line saves many a ride to town after the doctor although it does not save the doctor any travel.

The frame house on Washington Allen's farm and occupied by Elijah Allen, was burned about eight o'clock Monday night. Operators on the line saw the fire and located it within a short distance. We understand that nearly everything was lost.

Fred Fuller, of the Toledo Telegraph school, is visiting at B. F. Norcrosses.

A little son of Robert Carr's, in Franklin, fell on the stove last Saturday and was badly burned.

William Penticost's little girl has a broken arm.

To Geo. Tripp and wife—a girl—George happy.

Mrs. John Bunn is suffering with another paralytic stroke.

The frame for the depot at Tipton is up.

Geo. Knapp went to Manchester to play the cornet last Monday night.

Frank Davidson is working up an eastern extension to our line. With such men as Frank and Minor taking hold we may soon be in communication with Ridgeway and Britton.

Miss Minnie Kennedy of Battle Creek, is visiting at Abner Wilson's.

The following is the Meterological report for the week ending Tuesday Jan 13th, as taken by L. G. North, M. D.

The Detroit Times very pertinently says:

One of the silliest things a business man can do, is to distribute his advertisement on a handbill. Ten thousand will cost as much, and more, than good advertisement in a good newspaper, but they will not reach one-sixteenth part of the readers that the paper will. Several boys will be given a quarter each to distribute the bills, and in order to get through quickly they will throw them away, put them down sewers and into the ash barrel. Not one man in twenty will take his hands out of his pocket to read a handbill, and in a short time the 10,000 bills are scattered to the winds to become the prey of the rag picker.

REAL ESTATE TRANSFERS.

Following are the real estate transfers in this county, as recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds, for the week ending Dec. 9.

A COLORADO TRAGEDY.

It was one of Colorado's marvelous June days. The golden god of day sailed on in his turquoise sea with not a single cloud to shadow his brilliancy. Nature, in all her gorgeous livery of green, was in one of her most joyous moods, scarcely a zephyr disturbing the leaves of the cottonwoods and pines, and the only sounds heard were those of the lark, whose glad notes, as she twittered from bush to bush, were accompanied by the sad minor tones of the curfew, the shrill monotony of the grasshopper's chirp and the endless "peck" of the myriads of prairie-dogs, whose little brown heads and cunning features peeped from the numerous mounds of their village. These were the only signs and sounds of life on Badger Gulch; yet evidences of civilization were not wanting. Sluices and flumes, shovels, picks and a dismantled rocker were to be seen on the edge of the bank in the bed of the gulch, while some hundred yards distant, on the edge of a cottonwood grove, stood, bathed in the heavenly sunshine, a log-cabin, rough in its construction but picturesque in its surroundings.

Outside on a bench were utensils for cooking, rude but fitted for the rough hands of men and the simple wants of miners. These were the only evidences of the recent presence of humanity visible outside the cabin, nothing to indicate the horrible presence within, where, lying on the floor of the one room that had answered all the purposes of the simple housekeeping, was the body of a man whose white face gleamed with an unearthly pallor in the dim light from the small window, from the pool of blood surrounding the head and its mass of golden hair. The fixed, horrible stare of the blue eyes, the ugly, gaping wound in the forehead from which the life had for some time ceased to ebb, all told the fearful story of murder, whose motives was only too plainly visible in the inverted and empty pockets, and the absence of everything valuable on the body, save one article, a small medallion, which had been apparently jerked partially from the neck of the wearer and then, for some unknown reason, left. In the violence with which it had probably been snatched the spring had been pressed, disclosing in face of a beautiful, loving woman with the same fine eyes and fair hair of the wearer, whose colors had flood on the glass almost of the art of the features of the portrait. Yet this man, whose beardless face and smooth features indicated that his boyhood days were scarcely passed, had been handsome. Nothing inside or outside the cabin gave any direction of the perpetrator of the foul crime.

The mournful cry of the curlew came floating down the gulch on the gentle breeze which was now rising. Occasionally a frightened cottontail scurried to his warren in the sumbrak thicket, and the never-ceasing whirr of the grasshopper were the only signs and sounds of life. Presently horsemen came galloping over the trail, crossed the gulch and [illegible] to the cabin, seeking refreshments. Knocking at the door and receiving no answer, they lifted the latch and pushed back the obstruction, which they found, to their horror, to be the corpse of the murdered man, dead apparently for some hours. After searching, but in vain, for some evidence of his identity, they went outside and saw the prints of horses' feet, evidently recently made and showing that their course lead up the gulch. Examining their guns and ammunition, the strangers, who were one each of stray cattle, started on a full gallop up the gulch and over the divide, their expedition was readily managing the track of the fugitive, until reaching the main road to Denver, which was on the top of the ridge, where it was lost in the numerous others which had traversed over it that day. Reluctantly they gave up the chase and turned their horses toward Breckinridge, where they gave the alarm. The murderer, however, was never caught, notwithstanding the hue and cry that was raised.

Just one year later some travelers stopped at the deserted and now supposed to be haunted cabin. In fact, for several succeeding nights a light had shone through the one window far out into the night, and belated travelers had seen shadows flitting in the interior, yet no one had the hardihood to enter those ghoulish precincts after nightfall. On this June day, however, everything was apparently the same as that day one year ago. The lark was singing his bright song, the curlew doling its bell-like, mournful tone, the grasshoppers and prairie dogs were keeping up their incessant sounds, but all else was still. Dismounting, the elder horseman said: "Bill, I wonder if we will have the same luck we had when stopping here one year ago?" His companion answered: "I don't know; they told me at the camp below the cabin was haunted; that lights and strange sounds are seen and heard in the cabin after nightfall; one man saying that some evenings since, having to pass here, he heard groans and the sound of some one imploring for his life and then followed blows and groans, after which all was dark, so we may expect to see some. Hallo! Let's open the door, anyway."

The door creaked on its hinges and, looking into the shadowy room from the bright sunlight, nothing, at first was seen. Then, simultaneously from both, a cry of horror. There, hanging from one of the rafters, was the form of a man, whose protruding tongue and eyes and blackened face gave ghastly evidence of death by strangulation. An examination showed that the cord was fast around his neck, and, looking around, they saw a folded paper on the one table in the room, which, by the strange story it told, made the manner of death and its motive perfectly clear. On a number of closely written pages, directed "To whoever finds this," was a remarkable narrative, as follows:

"Oh, the horrible remorse of the murderer of the man who, in defiance of all the laws of God and man, takes the life of his fellow-being! Sleeping or waking, alone or among men, the terrible vision of his crime haunts him ever; but for the fratricide, damned for here and for eternity, there is no rest, no hope. I was the son of a Presbyterian preacher in an Eastern town. Although I had received a good education I was always of a wayward and restless disposition, and at the age of twenty-eight, in spite of the tears and prayers of a loving mother and the express commands of my father, I left my pleasant home and came West, excited by the numerous stories of danger and adventure among the Indians. Besides my parents, I had a sister several years younger and a baby brother scarcely five years old. After a terrible, rough experience as a teamster and miner, I managed in the latter pursuit to acquire several thousand dollars in California. I then embarked in the cattle business, fencing in a small range, and taking the worn-out cattle which had pulled the heavy teams across the plains, feeding and caring for them a number of weeks, at the end of which time they would be in good condition and I would sell them for a good sum in San Francisco. As my herd increased I enlarged my ranch, which was in a beautiful valley near the mountains.

"One day there was a tremendous freshet, the greatest ever known since the country was settled. All my cattle were drowned, and I was again a beggar. I wandered over the West, mining in the gulches with rather poor success. At last, driven by continual bad luck, I fell into evil ways and gambled and drank, and many a time near starved. Every new mining excitement found me one of the first in camp, but I had become as dissolute and unprincipled as the worst, and would shrink at no crime. Finally came the Pike's Peak and other Colorado excitements, and I found my way here. For a time I was moderately successful as a gulch miner, but the pay streak ran out, and I bitterly realized one day that my stock of provisions was gone, with nothing to replenish it. While in this embittered state of mind, feeling that luck was against me, and in the most desperate frame, a stranger came to my cabin one day and sought shelter and lodging. I told him he was welcome to the lodging, but that I had nothing to eat. Not dreaming of the terrible temptation he was placing before me, he quietly unbuckled a belt from around his body and emptied out a considerable store of gold coin, saying we could soon remedy the deficiency. How I gloated over the wealth he had exposed, and the demon possessing me I suddenly raised a huge club and felled him to the floor. A moment after I would have given worlds to undo the cowardly crime when I saw his fair golden hair dabbling in a pool of blood on the floor.

"Fearing that some one would soon come and discover me I quickly rifled his pockets and noticed a gold chain around his neck. Pulling this out, a locket was attached to the end of it, which, as I jerked it out, opened, disclosing the face of my mother. At the same moment I glanced at an envelope that was in one of the pockets and realized the horrible fact that I had slain my own brother, my baby brother, who twenty years before had put his arms around my neck and kissed me before I left home. At once I seemed possessed of all the demons of hell. Rushing from the house I jumped on my brother's horse, started on a mad gallop up the side of the gulch on to the high ridge beyond, until reaching the main road. I never drew rein until I reached Denver. Thence, after a very short stop, I took the trail south, traveling through Colorado, New and Old Mexico in various ways, but going always ever haunted by the memory of the horrible crime. Thus I have traveled with no peace save that of the damned, seeking danger in every form, but always coming out unscathed, until wearied out by my life of horror, trying in vain to escape the awful images continually conjured before me by my excited brain by an influence for which I could not account, I found myself at the end of a year at the scene of my great crime. With the beard of Cain on my brow, I suffered untold agonies and resolved to end it all.

Inclosed in this strange communication was the address of his parents, with a request that the finder of his body should communicate the fate of the mother to their parents. Denver News.

"Well," he said to the minister at the conclusion of the ceremony, "how much do I owe you?" "O, I'll leave that to you," was the reply. "You can better estimate the value of the service rendered." "Suppose we postpone settlement, then, say for a year. By that time I will know whether I ought to give you one hundred dollars or nothing." "No, no," said the clergyman, who is a married man himself, "make it three dollars now." Detroit Post.

A Chinaman who was arrested for drunkenness frankly expressed a common disposition. He said: "He no worker, but like drinkee allee same." —Chicago Times.

THE OLD, OLD STORY.

That Anecdote That Mr. Sawsage Tried to Relate and the Exasperating Obstacles He Met With.

I think that one reason there are so few good story tellers among us is that the listeners are, in many instances, so wearily and stubbornly unappreciative that it tends towards discouraging the skillful narration of pass class anecdotes.

There were four of us together coming across the divide a few years ago, and this principle was then and there exemplified. Gideon Gregg and myself, with a casual acquaintance, would have enjoyed the long ride if it had not been for a man named Sawsage, who had only recently escaped from some low-priced educational institution. He had acquired a few cast-iron facts of the cyclopædia variety, and with the odor of the valedictory all through his clothes he was making a tour of the coast and Colorado. He was what you might call one of those really statistical, brainy young reservoirs of information, who burst forth from the alma mater with the intention of going to Congress in two years, but finally compromise the matter forty years later by running for Overseer of Highways and getting snowed under about 137 majority.

When Gibbon saw Mr. Sawsage get on the stage he said to me, in a low voice: "Nye, we are undone. Sawsage will, doubtless, endeavor to relate some anecdote to us on the way, and then I shall commit an atrocious crime."

But he didn't do so the first ten miles. He contented himself by shedding other information and explaining things that he had just found on his physical geography and stunning us with the hard words that always float around in the aquarium which young men refer to as their brains.

Finally, however, some one reminded him of a story. Gregg tried to turn the conversation, but it was of no use. Said he: "It seems that many years ago a traveler or tourist of some description, whose name is immaterial—"

"Funny name," said Gregg. "Don't you think so, Gibbon?"

"Yes. Foreigner, probably. I knew a man named Jimmy Terrial once, though."

We discussed the name for four or five miles, and then allowed Sawsage to proceed.

"Well, as I was going to say, this tourist, traveler or sojourner was propounding inquiries relative to the climate, changes and isothermal—"

"Now, pardon me," said Gibbon, "but are you sure that word is not pronounced isotnaermal?"

I ventured to remark that isothermal was the correct accent, while Gregg sided with Sawsage. From a quiet discussion this grew into a regular row which lasted at least ten miles. Then we allowed the narrative to proceed.

"Well, at least to make a long story short, the traveler and a native of this country—"

"Remember his name?" asked Gregg. "We've got the other man's name. We ought to have this one."

"No," says Sawsage. "I didn't give the tourist's name, you remember."

"I beg pardon, said Gregg. "I don't want to seem curious and all the time kicking up a row with a comparative stranger, but you certainly gave us the other gentleman's name."

We then had a long and highly-enjoyable quarrel, during which Gibbon and I challenged Gregg and Sawsage to fight us in a dark room, each man to be blindfolded and armed with an adze. Best man to pay all funeral expenses and scrub out the room next day.

To this Gregg agreed, but Sawsage said he was "a very expert adzeman, and wanted to apologize.

Gibbon and I hesitated. Finally we agreed to think it over, but in the meantime we begged Sawsage to go ahead with his story, as we would reach the home station in five minutes more.

At last he made out to tell the story that Adam found under the currant bushes when he went into the Garden of Eden, about the place where the year was divided into "nine months winter and three months late into the fall."

At the station Sawsage went on east by the train, and we took No. 3 for Salt Lake City. On the way Gregg, Gibbon and I each sent a telegram to Mr. Sawsage separately, which read as follows, to wit:

"P. Ptolemy Sawsage, care Conductor No. 4: I have heard that B. C. story of yours before. Cobbet.

A Clever Peacock.

Landlord Thomas Brown, of a hotel at Stapleton, Staten Island, owns a big peacock named Pete, which is a great pet in the neighborhood. Pete has attained a local reputation through a trick of hopping up on the bar and dipping its bill in a glass of ginger ale whenever a customer is willing to pay twenty-five cents to have Pete join in the treat. Mr. Brown says one bitter cold night a year ago he found Pete perched on the roof of the house nearly frozen. He took him to the hay-mow and left him there. Ever since that time Pete roosts in the hayloft. A few months ago Brown got a mate for the bird. Last summer Pete discovered that Brown's bed-room window was directly over the roof of an extension back of the house. He got in the habit of coming there and tapping with his beak on the window pane, until Mrs. Brown gave it some delicacy to eat. Pete soon taught his mate to come there, too, after the good things. He always waited until she was served first. On Friday night last, when it was terribly cold, and about midnight, there was a great clatter at the bedroom window. Pete was there. He looked half frozen. Brown opened the window and lifted him in. Then he shrieked as only a peacock can. He pecked and flew at the window. Brown opened it and away he went, chattering and scolding. He flew to the roof of the barn and looked down at the haymow door. Some of the men had accidentally shut Pete out from his mate. N. Y. Herald.

KING'S EVIL

Was the name formerly given to Scrofula because of a superstition that it could be cured by a king's touch. The world is wiser now, and knows that can only be cured by a thorough purification of the blood. If this is neglected, the disease perpetuates its taint through generation after generation. Among its earlier symptomatic developments are Eczema, Cutaneous Eruptions, Tumors, Boils, Carbuncles, Erysipelas, Purulent Ulcers, Nervous and Physical Collapse, etc. If allowed to continue, Rheumatism, Scrofulous Catarrh, Kidney and Liver Diseases, Tubercular Consumption, and various other dangerous or fatal maladies, are produced by it.

SCROFULA

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Is the only powerful and always reliable blood-purifying medicine. It is so effectual an alterative that it eradicates from the system Hereditary, Scrofula, and the kindred poisons of contagious diseases and mercury. At the same time it enriches and vitalizes the blood, restoring healthful action to the vital organs and rejuvenating the entire system. This great

Regenerative Medicine

Is composed of the genuine Honduras Sarsaparilla, with Yellow Dock, Stillingia, the Iodides of Potassium and Iron, and other ingredients of great potency, carefully and scientifically compounded. Its formula is generally known to the medical profession, and the best physicians constantly prescribe AYER'S SARSAPARILLA as an

Absolute Cure

For all diseases caused by the vitiation of the blood. It is concentrated to the highest practicable degree, far beyond any other preparation for which like effects are claimed, and is therefore the cheapest, as well as the best blood purifying medicine, in the world.

DR A. TRASK'S MAGNETIC OINTMENT.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand for it clearly stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Burns, Sore Throat, Lameness, Rheumatism, Piles, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Bronchitis, Croup, Salt Rheum, Chilblains, Affection of the Spine, Erysipelas, Nervous Irritation, and all disorders attendant with Inflammation.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years,

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should be perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Price 25 and 50 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

WHITE SEAL BURNING OIL!

The New York Board of Health estimates that 30,000 lives have been destroyed by the explosive qualities of petroleum. If every household would adopt the White Seal Oil for family use, none of these unfortunate accidents would occur.

WHITE SEAL BURNING OIL

Has none of the defects usually found in common oils. It cannot be exploded, does not chill the wick, will not smoke, emits no offensive odor and prevents the breaking of chimneys.

WHITE SEAL BURNING OIL

Is a rich oil for illuminating purposes. It is as light in color as pure spring water. It gives a strong steady light and burns much longer than common oils.

If this oil is not sold in your vicinity, send your order direct to us for a barrel or a case containing two five gallon cans.

ATKINS ELECTRIC LIGHT SOAP SAVES CLOTHES.

Wash as you please, and it will make you its friend. Soak, boil and don't rub; or soak, rub and don't boil. We advocate dispensing, so far as possible with the washboard, because it wears the clothes out and wears you out. The soap contains no mineral to give it weight, and no pulp to give it size; therefore frequent boiling will not yellow or injure the clothes but soaking and boiling with ELECTRIC LIGHT SOAP does clean and disinfect them. One thing is certain; it produces glorious results, is an economical soap and is so pure and harmless that the writer washes his head with it without injuring a hair, and he isn't bald either. ONE ELK AND FIVE MEN.

They Have a Stout Struggle and the Elk Did Not Get the Worst of It.

A desperate struggle occurred Saturday afternoon between Mr. D. L. Pope and a large elk owned by Mr. D. J. Frazee, and kept on his farm. Mr. Frazee shipped from the far West, about five years since, at a cost of about $180, a pair of elks, male and female, which he has kept in a park of about two acres; fenced with a high rail fence the road fence forming one side of the park. They were supposed to be docile pets and not vicious, a portion of the park being an orchard from which people were accustomed to gather fruit without molestation, and no one had ever been attacked by them. Yesterday afternoon Mr. Pope, accompanied by the tenant on his farm, Mr. R. I. Harper, met a boy with a horse and wagon, who said the elks were out in the road and he could not get by them and had to turn back. Pope and Harper soon met the elks, the male in advance, in the middle of the road, and about forty rods from the park. Mr. Harper got out of the carriage, took the whip, and attempted to drive them back, when the male put down his head, presenting his horns, and gave a sniff, rather indicating a disposition to show fight. Mr. Pope told Harper to get a club and let the elk have it. He then got out of the carriage himself, and went to the fence and procured a piece of rail to assist in driving the elk back, when Mr. Harper hit him with a club and he gave back a few feet. Pope followed him up, flourishing his rail. Harper then picked up a club and hit the elk on the horns. The brute seemed to know that Pope was unarmed and rushed upon him in an instant with all the fury of a maddened bull. Pope, seeing no chance for retreat or weapon at hand, grappled with the sharp horns of the infuriated beast, but the rush was so powerful and impetuous that he was thrown to the ground, and it seemed impossible that he could escape being killed by the sharp horns being thrust into him; but, by seemingly superhuman efforts, he kept them from piercing him through, and was partially raised from the ground by his firm grasp upon the horns, when he gained a position directly in front and between the two large horns. By a desperate effort he forced the animal's head down, bringing the points of the sharp antlers upon the ground, with head curbed under, so that his nostrils came in contact with the underside of his neck, in which position the elk could not go forward with him, but he could back up, dragging Mr. Pope along. Mr. Harper, who was unable up to this time to render any assistance, got hold of the end of the long horns back of Mr. Pope, the elk continuing to drag them around in the road, struggling fiercely.

Rev. Mr. Fairbank's wife, living about 600 rods away, saw the struggle and gave the alarm, and the reverend gentleman, who is very strong and able-bodied, went to their assistance, taking hold of the end of the other big horn from Harper; but the infuriated brute continued to drag all three men about the road and ditch, they not daring to let go of him, when Mr. Punderson, living still further away, came to their assistance. The elk made a desperate effort to free himself, and shook them all off but Pope, who hung to his position and held for dear life. The others soon caught on again and forced the sharp antlers into the ground three or four inches, and after a time Mr. E. W. Fox came with a log-chain, which was hitched about the animal's neck with a slip-noose and drawn up tight for the purpose of choking him down, but his struggles and kicking and striking were so desperate that all were in imminent danger, and they decided to let go and jump away from him, and let him go with the chain tightly drawn around the throat and thrown over one horn. Showing no more inclination to fight, and with the aid of two more recruits, the elk was driven into the park and left wearing the chain as a trophy of his first battle. The battle lasted fifteen or twenty minutes. Rev. Mr. Fairbanks had his right wrist sprained, and Harper is feeling sore from the strain. Mr. Pope was not aware that he was seriously injured, although his right leg and ankle pained him severely, and on getting off his boot it was found that the elk had thrust one of his antlers through the heavy cowhide boot near the instep.—Cleveland Herald.

OIL AND SOAP.

The Romance of a Poor Young Woman and a Rich Young Man.

Frederick Page Cobham, a young Englishman, came to this country within the past decade almost penniless, but determined to gain a fortune in the oil fields. After the first year of toil and economy, through which he struggled in order to accumulate a moderate "stake," he never met with a reverse. His very first investment brought him tenfold return, and for successive years his growing wealth multiplied in geometrical ratio. Meantime Frederick Page Cobham grew lonely. He longed for companionship and, being of æsthetic tastes, he yearned for beauty as well. It was while in this mood that he heard that Philadelphia was a city far famed for the fascinating grace, the perfect features, and the golden hearts of its young women. He resolved to come, to see, and, if possible, to conquer.

In the morning he secured a colored valet, arrayed himself in purple and fine linen, and sallied forth in his career of conquest. Near Broad and Chestnut streets he was attracted by the throng of ladies passing in and out of a large and well-known dry goods store. He entered, but the shoppers, lovely as they seemed, were soon eclipsed in his romantic eyes by the saleswomen. He gazed, but was in perplexity as to what could be done, when he suddenly met an old friend whom he had known ever since his arrival in America. The friend held a responsible position in the store.

After the first greetings were over Cobham asked his friend to present him to some one of a bevy of shop girls clustered behind a counter which was laden with toilet soap.

"Which one?" asked the friend.

to his valet, and rehearsed the oratorical:

"May I have the pleasure of calling on you?"

"Oh, you quite frighten me," she answered. "Still your friend here speaks so highly of you—well, I shall be glad to see you to-morrow evening."

With this step gained, Cobham felt that he would soon win the battle. He was cordially received at the home of the girl's father (who is a butcher), Thomas B. Pauline, living at 124 North Tenth street. One call followed another and presents followed presents. He could not buy too much at the store where he first had met Miss Pauline, and every day he sent his valet back to the hotel from these shopping expeditions fairly loaded. In less than a week he had carried Miss Pauline's heart by storm, and they were engaged to be married.

Her parents were poor, and they could not afford to buy a suitable trousseau. This, however, Mr. Cobham declared could easily be remedied. She should have all the silks and satins, all the gold and silver ornaments, all the little but costly refinements of the toilet she wanted. As for the bills, he would settle them all himself. Three weeks flew by; the bride's outfit was complete, and on Thanksgiving Day they were married quietly at the bride's home. Meantime Mr. Cobham had bought a seat in the Petroleum and Mining Exchange, and had gone into business, intending to make his permanent residence in Philadelphia. They went upon a brief but happy wedding trip, and soon after their return moved from the Lafayette to a cosy, quiet house on Fifteenth street, above Arch. Their honeymoon is still unclouded.—Philadelphia Press.

HUNTING A CHOLERA GERM.

An Exciting Chase of the Only Comma Bacillus in This Country.

Dr. Edward O. Shakspeare has the only specimen of the comma bacillus, or Asiatic cholera germ, in America. It is securely caged in a glass jar, and the lid is covered an inch deep with sealing wax. It is kept locked in a little cabinet in Dr. Shakespeare's consulting room. A few days ago it was exhibited at a meeting of the County Medical Society, and its owner was jokingly admonished not to let it escape, as in the open air microbes are said to multiply at the rate of one million a day. The comma bacillus was wagging its tail in quite a lively manner, as if eager for liberty. It beat its head against the glass, and swam all around the jar, looking for some aperture by which it might regain the open air. It was captured about three months ago in France. During its confinement it has lived on a piece of dried beef about the size of a pea.

Yesterday morning Dr. Shakspeare was entertaining a practitioner from Pottsville, and, as an intellectual treat, he offered to show him the only cholera germ on this side of the Atlantic. At first the country doctor felt nervous, but after awhile his fears were overcome and the jar was produced. Suddenly the owner of the microbe uttered an exclamation of surprise and alarm. The germ was nowhere to be found. The jar was empty.

"That durned thing's escaped," shouted the man from Pottsville. Then he added with excitement: "What does it look like?"

"For all the world like a tadpole," answered the doctor, breathlessly, hardly knowing why the question was put. "Only smaller."

In a moment the Pottsvillian's head was under the table. He panted out to Dr. Shakspeare a request to shut the door, and then commenced to scour the room for the microbe. "If the thing gets out," he said, pale with fright, "the cholera will be here, and it'll be our fault."

"I've got it," suddenly cried Dr. Shakspeare, while the hunt was progressing, had returned to the bottle and taken another peep. The microbe had climbed to the top of the jar and was hidden in the crevice between the lid and the neck. The gentleman from Pottsville threw himself back in a chair and took ten minutes to recover his breath. Then he curiously examined the object of his search. "You'd better kill it," he suggested.

"That's a good idea," the owner of the germ exclaimed. Then with a powerful chemical he deprived the dangerous organism of life, so that his neighbors may no longer be harassed with dread of its getting at liberty.—Philadelphia Press.

—A mad dog was killed by a gentleman from Massachusetts the other afternoon at the corner of Houston and Mulberry streets. While the people were hurrying to get out of the rabid animal's way the Massachusetts man picked him up by the nape of the neck and cut his throat with a penknife, saying: "That's the way we do it in Massachusetts."—*N. DEATH OF REV. WM. GRANDY.

Mr. Geo. Heesen and Mrs. Packard have received from Rev. J. A. De Spelder late copies of the Sioux City Journal announcing the demise of Rev. Wm. Grandy, formerly of Tecumseh. One number contains an interview which the reporter held with Mr. Grandy on New Year's day in which the stricken man says:

"I am looking and feeling better than you expected to see me? Yes, but I shall not live long. At first it seemed hard that I must leave my family, but they will be cared for I know—can care for themselves—and now I am ready. I do not dread to die. When you ask, 'If a man die shall he live again?' I am not able to give the reason but I know I shall live again—know it as well as I know that I hold this orange in my hand, though in a different way. I know that what I have preached is true, that Christianity is true, and that when I die, which will be soon, I shall go home. You and I have always understood each other pretty well. Tell my friends how it is with me."

And the reporter went out from his New Year's call on this Christian soldier, who is wounded so irrecoverably, feeling that he has been with one very near the Kingdom.. It may, perhaps, seem not in good taste to write so particularly of the condition and talk so much of this beloved pastor, but that so many are asking how it is, and how Mr. Grandy feels now that he knows he has but a little while to live, seems sufficient reason for this plain statement.

From a lengthy obituary notice in the Journal of the 6th, we glean a few extracts which will be of interest to the Tecumseh friends of the deceased.

Rev. Wm. Grandy died a few minutes before midnight on Sunday.—His physician, Dr. J. M. Knott, and a few near friends were present. Mr. N. Dickey, brother of Mrs. Grandy, arrived a few moments after death had come. Within a few minutes of the last he was conscious, feebly pressing her hand, and smiling as his wife bent over him. Then the breathing grew weaker, and the life here went out as a flame that has burned all its fuel. Possibly if he could have chosen the day, it would have been as it was—on Sunday, and the communion day in his church. The usual words of regret do not come in this case. All who knew him well were persuaded, as he was, that for him to die was gain, and when it was a question of a few days more or less of suffering they will agree with him that it is best as it is.

William Grandy was born of Irish parents at Cavan, Ont., June 30, 1842. His father, a farmer and the holder of considerable landed interests, and mother, both survive him. Both parents were and are exemplary Christians. His mother, in particular is spoken of by those who know her as a most devout woman, and to her teachings and example is due in a great measure the fervent belief of the son. After attending the common schools of the neighborhood until 18 years old, the subject of our sketch became a student at the grammar school at Milton, Ont. Leaving that he attended the academy at Toronto, graduating with the highest honors, and then entered the theological institute of that city. During his four years' course at this seminary he was married to Miss Margaret A. Dickey. The marriage was at Toronto on Aug. 18th, 1865. To this union, which proved a most happy one, six children were born, Meta, Percy, Lulu, May, Fred and Ada. These, with their mother, survive to mourn the most considerate of fathers and kindest of husbands.

Leaving the theological seminary in 1866, his first settlement was at the town of Galt, near Toronto. In 1869 he was settled as pastor of the first Presbyterian church at Lansing, Mich. Here his health broke down by repeated attacks of ague and he took a rest of eight months and then settled at Brighton, Mich.

In '74 he left Brighton to take charge of a small church in Detroit, then but recently organized. This, under his pastorate, was built up into a flourishing society, and Calvary church, Detroit, will long stand a monument of this most efficent worker. During his pastorate here he founded the Trumbull Avenue mission, the first meeting being held in the parlors of his residence, and had the gratification of seeing this work grow into a flourishing church.

Serious sickness in his family induced a removal to a country charge. Two of the most eminent physicians of the city urged that for the sake of his children's health he should go into the country. He went to Tecumseh, Mich. to take charge of the Presbyterian church of that village, the third largest society of the denomination in Michigan, remaining there a little less than four years. His children did not fully regain health and physicians advised an entire change of climate. Early in 1882 he left home for Fremont, Neb. While stopping t that town he received a letter from Dr. J. M. Knott, of this city, a gentleman then unknown to him, asking him in behalf of the Presbyterian church of this city to stop here and preach on his way back. The Presbyterian church was then without a pastor, Rev. E. H. Avery having recently left to accept a call to Vinton. It was a case of love at first sight. The people, after seeing and hearing him, wanted him to come. He, too, liked Sioux City. On April 29, he arrived in the city, accompanied by his beauty, and the next day, Sunday, preached his first sermon as pastor of the first Presbyterian church of this city. Of his ministry here there is no need to say much, its events are too recent and well known. He came quice and deservedly to the front rank of popular favor, as he had done wherever he had ministered,—not only in those things that have to do with the moral advancement of the race, but in more material objects as well he was active. Citizens remember with gratitude that when the work of securing the business college, which Sioux City is now proud, stopped but half done, it was Rev. Mr. Grandy who pushed the project to a successful completion. He planned to make Sioux City his home, and had bought a site for a residence with the intention of building, but his plans were interrupted by sickness. On Christmas day he had been very low. He did not want to die on children's day, he said. Even in his longing to go home he was considerate of others, and did not want to mar the enjoyment his children might otherwise have in Christmases hereafter by having that day made the anniversary of their father's death. Afterwards he frequently asked his physician "How long?" and on Sunday was happy when told there was not long to wait now. "Rounding into port," he said. As mentioned at first, his mind remained clear, and he seemed conscious of what was going on around his bed till within a few minutes of the last. No such eloquent sermon was preached that Sunday as the sermon to be read of all men in the trustful death of this Christian minister. His sincerity, kindness, ready sympathy and sterling integrity, as well as his fervent piety, will remain a pleasant memory to all who knew him.

PETER HENDERSON & Co., 35 & 37 CORTLANDT ST. NEW YORK.

The Emperor Louis Napoleon smoked only the finest cigars the world could produce. Prof. Horsford says the Emperor's cigars were made specially for him in Havana from leaf tobacco grown in the Golden Belt of North Carolina, this being the finest leaf grown. Blackwell's Bull Durham Smoking Tobacco is made from the same leaf used in the Emperor's cigars, is absolutely pure and is unquestionably the best tobacco ever offered.

Thackeray's gifted daughter, Anne, in her sketch of Alfred Tennyson, in Harper's Monthly, tells of her visit to the great poet. She found him smoking Blackwell's Bull Durham Tobacco, sent him by Hon. James Russell Lowell, American Minister to the Court of St. James.

In these days of adulteration, it is a comfort to smokers to know that the Bull Durham brand is absolutely pure, and made from the best tobacco the world produces.

Blackwell's Bull Durham Smoking Tobacco is the best and purest made. All dealers have it. None genuine without the trademark of the Bull.

H. W. Stevens shipped a deck of 43 live hogs last Saturday to Buffalo which weighed 15993 lbs., an average of 372 lbs. each. They were shipped to Stacy, Ransom & McDowell.

Commander Hosmer and six other members of Beers' Post helped install the officers of the Addison Post. They were royally entertained while there and speak in the highest terms of the Addison Post.

The first sermon of Rev. G. W. Hudson's Sunday evening lectures was given last Sabath evening. The attendance was good for a rainy evening and the discourse was one of Mr. Hudson's best efforts.

In our notice last week of the James DeWolf wedding, it was stated that among the gifts was a cash present from the bride's father. This does injustice to Mr. Alfred James, the father of the groom. The cash in hand was furnished by both the interested fathers, Mr. James and Mr. DeWolf.

HO! FOR NEW ORLEANS.

The G. A. R. Post of Tecumseh are working up an excursion to New Orleans. They wish to obtain enough pledges of passengers to fill two cars. If the required number can be had, or about 80 passengers in all, the coaches will be secured and the excursion will leave here about the 20th of February. The plan is this. One ordinary coach will be taken for the G. A. R. men and other male passengers who wish to economize, and this car will be switched off at different places on the route to enable the company to visit some of the battle fields of the rebellion. The second coach will be a modern hotel and sleeping coach, which will be used both for boarding and lodging purposes from the time of starting until the return, and which will be left at the Exposition grounds during the stay at New Orleans, thus saving time and expense in going to and from the Exposition. This coach will be used for family parties, and either gentlemen or ladies who may desire first-class accommodations.—We understand that about one half the required number have already pledged themselves to go. Full information respecting fare, route, etc., can be had by calling on E. J. Hollister or S. P. Hosmer.

A BEAUTIFUL RESIDENCE.

It is perhaps somewhat late in the season, but yet not too late, to notice C. A. Wright's new dwelling house on the corner of Pottawatamie and Evans streets. The house occupies the old vacant corner west of the homestead residence of the late Moses Wright, where Col. Spofford now resides. It is one of the most eligible locations for a fine dwelling in the entire village. The house is constructed in modern gothic style, two stories high, with roomy basement, and a showy cupola. The roof is covered with slate, and the exterior is painted in dark shades, which is the prevailing style at present. The first floor contains a vestibule, a large double parlor, a family room and bath room, a dining room and kitchen. The second floor has four large fine chambers. The windows are of plate glass, all hung on weights, and all fitted with inside blinds. The doors and interior wood work are of light colored woods finished in hard oil. The rail of the main stair case is an elaborate piece of joiner work done in black walnut. The house is heated with a Pearl furnace, with a hot air flue leading into every room on both floors. Salmon Crane took the job of construction on a contract and furnished everything. The furnace was put in by Swan & Satterthwaite Bros. Mr. & Mrs. Wright are now fully settled in their new home and are most pleasantly situated. "Gus" has reason to congratulate himself. He has a good business, a fine house, a splendid wife and a smart baby. What more does a man need to make him happy?

THE TECUMSEH HERALD.

TECUMSEH, MICH., JAN. 15, 1885.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

Who will be the deputy sheriff from Tecumseh?

Wm. McCowen shipped a large bill of furniture to Ferrysburg a few days ago.

John Mason, district telephone manager, was in town Monday on business.

James B. Colvin of Raisin, has been on the sick list for a few days, but he is out again now.

Elder Geo. Price of this village officiated at the funeral of M. A. Willett at Pittsford, Hillsdale Co., on the 6th inst.

The Queen skating rink at St. Louis, owned by Col. L. Saviers, formerly of this village, burned last Friday night.

Henry Ward Beecher, in the February number of the North American Review, will discuss the question whether clergymen should "meddle with politics."

Ministers and justices of the peace who fail to return marriages solemnized by them are liable to criminal prosecution. These should be the last parties to violate the laws.

The business of the American Express Co. at this place is constantly increasing, and Geo. Heesen fills the position of agent in a manner which is most satisfactory to his patrons.

Frank Buman has lately received a lot of lemons, oranges, grape fruit and pine apples from his Florida grove. We had the pleasure of sampling some of the best specimens the other day, and they were prime.

Frank Silvers will hereafter run a hack to the Lilley House in connection with all trains on the M. & O. road. The hack will do a general business, also running to Lake Shore trains and private houses when parties desire it.

The libel suit against the editor of the Milan Journal by the Bohemian oat men resulted in a disagreement of the jury. The sympathies of the community in general are very largely with editor Smith, and his subscription list has received a big boom lately.

Salmon Crane returned last Friday from St. Louis Mo. where he has been spending the last three months with his son Charles. Charley has an important clerkship in the general passenger department of the Wabash Railway. Mr. Crane enjoyed his visit there very much.

At the time that the Rev. Mr. Hudson delivered his historical sermon, our columns were so overloaded with holiday advertising that we had no room for that kind of matter. We take pleasure in publishing a few extracts now. We believe our readers will coincide with us in saying: Better late than never.

The Tecumseh Lumber Co. did a large and satisfactory business during 1884, and they are now filling up their yards with a heavy supply of lumber. With the anticipated revival of business in the Spring, they expect a largely increased trade during 1885. J. H. Smith, the present manager, fills his new position most acceptably.

The new cornet band have engaged the services of Mr. Jaynes, of Manchester, as teacher, who will give them a course of lessons. He gave his first lesson Tuesday evening. The band are also preparing to put an amateur theatrical on the stage. The plays selected are, "Two much for good Nature," and "Poor Pillicoddy." These plays, if properly cast, will make a first class entertainment.

A new game, called the "Printer's Delight," is the latest. It is played in the following manner: Take a sheet of white paper and put your autograph on it: then fold it around sufficient currency to pay a year's subscription to the HERALD, put it in an envelope, write our name on the outside, stick one of Uncle Sam's little red chromos on the corner, drop it in the postoffice, and we will risk the consequences.—Exchange.

An important event in the history of the State university this year, will be the publication of a complete and accurate history of the institution from the first land grant by congress in 1804, to the close of the year 1883. It is the work of Miss Farrand, who has lived among the 40,000 books of the university library so long that she has become familiar with her subject; having had every advantage in the way of position and acquaintance that could be afforded.

M. P. Brown has loaned us a few San Francisco papers which he received from his uncle, Mr. Justin Gates, a resident of that city. The New Year's number of the Chronicle is a mammoth sheet giving a sketch of the business progress of that city during the past year. He also received one of the tickets voted at the late election which is a curiosity. It is eighteen inches long by five wide, printed on colored paper. The name of each candidate and the office he is running for are printed on one line and numbered. There are 66 numbers on the ticket.

A. W. Slayton has two residences to sell on monthly payments of $10.00.

C. D. Birls is managing a skating rink at Goshen Ind., and is making money.

The next entertainment of the Library Lecture Course will come off on Friday, Jan. 23rd.

Every young man and woman should attend Cleary's business college, Ypsilanti, Mich.

The newly elected officers of the Odd Fellows Lodge were duly installed on Tuesday evening.

The hall of the Lake Ridge Hotel has been converted into a skating rink. Lake Ridge is booming.

The aggregate expense to Jackson County for the trial of Dan Holcomb was $20,000, and Dan was acquitted.

J. B. VanEtten, of the Addison Courier, was in town last Tuesday. We had a pleasant chat with him. Call again, Jay.

J. S. Kinney is attending the annual convention of the state funeral directors association, which is in session yesterday and to-day at East Saginaw.

Frank Silvers has received a new hack direct from the city of Toledo. It is a daisy. He will run it to all trains in connection with the Lilley House and to all private houses.

Brooklyn Exponent: Young men with new $40 cutters are no better than the rest of poor humanity, but how like the old scratch stock would go up on those individuals if it should happen.

David [illegible] has his clothes cleaning [illegible] pairing establishment in Marsteller's building on Railroad street, next door to Marsh's meat market. People who want their clothes overhauled should give him a call.

The Detroit evening News says: "Capt. C. R. Mullen has charge, by assignment, of Ben Farmer's boot and shoe store at Adrian." Oh, Dear! that a prominent congressional candidate should be called a mullen! But such is fame.

S. B. Terry, of this village received intelligence last Friday of the death of his eldest brother, Edmund Terry at Waterville N. Y. The deceased had many acquaintances in this vicinity who will learn of his demise with sincere regret.

We have just received a large invoice of job type and border suitable for all kinds of invitation cards and other small work. The HERALD job rooms will be kept up with the times, and, with good material and good workmanship, will continue to turn out first class work.

H. Brewer & Co. have just built a clay crusher on an entirely new pattern. It is designed to crush clay and separate the stone. They have applied for a patent on it, which they will undoubtedly obtain. One of the complete machines was shipped to Springfield, Ill. last week for exhibition at the brick and tile convention.

The report has gained currency that Frank Bumann paid too much for poultry last December and lost heavily. That report has no foundation. Mr. Bumann's business last year was as large as usual and considering the stringency of the times was entirely satisfactory to him. He continues to pay the highest market price for poultry, butter & eggs, and buys more than any other dealer in the county.

Adrian Press: Last Sunday night two or three young colored boys were at the Baptist church on North Broad St., and very drunk. One, a boy named Smith, was carted home unconscious. Abe Mitchell figured as one of the leaders, having a bottle of whisky which he passed around freely. The chaps were in Eisele's saloon and Eisele had a fine of $10 and costs to pay to Justice Hulett. Abe is under arrest, and it looks as though the kinks would be taken out of him too. It is more than likely that some of these law breakers will have occasion to try Sheriff Whitmore's bill of fare very soon.

H. U. Matthews received notice Monday of his appointment as "Northwestern Agent" of the M. & O. Co. with office at Muskegon, Mich. The office of contracting agent, heretofore held by R. W. Innes of Grand Rapids, has been abolished, and the territory covered thereby will be under the charge of the Northwestern Agent. Mr. Matthews began his railroad experience as assistant in the freight office of the L. S. & M. S. at Tecumseh. When the M. & O. opened their Tecumseh depot he was appointed manager of both the ticket and freight offices at this station. By his attention to business, his gentlemanly deportment with the patrons of the road, and his aptitude for mastering the details of railroading, he has established the reputation of being one of the most efficient subordinate officials on the entire line of the road.—His promotion has been well earned, and we believe the company will find him equally faithful in the new position he is about to assume. The best wishes of our business community will go with him. His transfer takes place to-day.

The last day of grace for paying taxes is approaching.

Sap buckets till you can't rest.—Read Swan & Satterthwaite Bros.' new card for particulars.

W. D. Adams announces a quarter off sale this week. Now you can buy notions at rock bottom rates.

The Star Shoe Co. proclaim a quarter off sale in to-day's paper. Now is the accepted time to get shod.

H. C. Matran, the new station agent at the M. & O. dept. assumes his duties to-day. He comes from Toledo.

Alice Tilden has gone to Lansing to spend the remainder of the winter with her sister, Mrs. A. M. Henry.

Mrs. M. A. Freeman respectfully asks those indebted to her to call and settle within the next ten days as she needs her money.

Miss Anna Robbins of Cleveland, will remain in Tecumseh about four weeks. It will take her longer than that to finish her visit.

The Young Ladies' Missionary Society of the Methodist church will hold a social at the residence of Wm. H. Osborn, on Friday evening, Jan. 16.

The prohibition county convention held at Adrian yesterday was largely attended, and a disposition was manifested by those present to paddle their own canoe.

There will be a special meeting of Macon Grange Thursday Jan. 22d at 7 o'clock P. M. Mrs. A. J. Sutton, lecturer of Pomona Grange will deliver a lecture, and give instructions in the secret work of the order. All members are requested to be present.

Kyle & Haines have purchased from the Peter R. Adams estate the old Cummin's Carriage factory property. They will transact a general carriage and wagon and blacksmithing business, doing all kinds of repairing and new work also. They will have a splendid building and location, and hope to build up a large business. They will take possession of their new quarters about the first of February.

M. P. Brown returned last evening from Hillsdale where he attended the annual meeting of the Michigan Mutual Benefit Association. Over forty delegates were present and a very satisfactory showing was made by the Company's officers. A meeting of the members in this vicinity will be held on Saturday evening, Jan. 17th, at 8 o'clock, in Dr. Catlin's office, to enable them to hear a full report of the meeting.

The pastor and young people of the M. E. church will give a young people's social in the lecture room and parlor of the church on Wednesday evening, Jan. 21, 1885. A treat of ice cream and cake will be served. A short musical and literary program will be given. Admission free. The young people of the congregation and their friends are cordially invited. Object, a good time and better acquaintance among the young people.

D.—D. T. Hall.
V. D.—A. W. Armstrong.
A. D.—H. W. Stevens.
G.—Wm. Jordan.
C.—S. Whittier.
R.—C. A. Slayton.
F. R.—L. G. North.
T.—D. McNair.
G.—S. W. Bordine.
S.—F. Chiverall.
P. D.—M. P. Brown.
Med. Ex.—Dr. L. G. North.
Lodge Trustees—D. McNair, C. H. Gainsley, F. Rosacrans.

AN EVENING IN WONDERLAND.

On Friday evening, the 23rd inst. the third lecture of the Library course will be given by Wm. I. Marshall. The lecture is entitled "An evening in Wonderland. Among the views presented will be the upper basin of the mammoth hot springs, and other scenes in the Yellowstone National Park; the Mormon temple and tabernacle; the Yosemite valley and the big trees of California; the celebrated hot geysers of Wyoming. The entertainment is splendidly illustrated with dissolving views of photographs from nature by the calcium light stereopticon. This is Mr. Marshall's eighth season in the lecture field and he has gained a national reputation. He has sixteen lectures, in his repertory and this is considered one of his best. Read what the press says of it:

"Worth a score of ordinary lectures" Zions Herald.

"Should be repeated in every town in the United States." N. Y. Observer.

"As instructive as it is facinating." Boston Journal.

"A most enjoyable entertainment" Chicago Inter-Ocean.

"A splendid exhibition." N. Y. Evening Post.

Single tickets 35 cents; with reserved seats, 50 cents. Season tickets for the remaining four entertainments $1.00. For sale at Adamson's. Special rates for school children to this entertainment.

CLIPPINGS AND CONDENSATIONS.

Riga is progressing in the arts and sciences. That town has a skating rink now.

Jacob Fischer, of Adrian, broke a leg last Friday by stepping from the side walk.

A. A. Sprague, of Hudson, dealer in hats, caps and gents furnishing goods, has failed.

Mrs. Col. Ellredge expects to join her husband in Washington before inauguration day.

The Bohemian oat men are making a raid on Franklin. Don't sign any Bohemian notes.

Mrs. Jennie Wetmore and John H. Navin have been appointed administrators of the estate of the late C. I. Wetmore.

The county horticultural society, of which D. Woodward, of Clinton, is the newly elected president held a meeting yesterday.

The Lenawee Co. teachers association held a meeting at Dean's Opera House last Saturday. The attendance was light.

Adrian is happy again. They had a double mammoth Uncle Tom's Cabin troupe there last evening, and all for ten cents a ticket.

Two girls escaped from the Industrial Home last saturday evening—They were soon overhauled by the officers and brought back.

Mr. Allen, of Allen's Landing, will sell his present hotel and erect a new house the coming summer at the North end of Devil's Lake.

H. D. Pegg, of Morenci, finished his eighteenth year in the drug business on New Years day, and is still pegging away at the same trade.

Five cents for a shave, and ten cents for hair cutting at Blissfield. What ruinous prices! That's lower than wheat at seventy cents a bushel.

Hudson Gazett: At Martin & Scott's: Tonsorial artist—"Dye your hair, sir?" Customer—"No, I'm too young." Artist—"The good dye young, you know, sir."

The teacher's association of Ogden, recently discussed the all-absorbing question: "Shall the young men be allowed to sit with the girls?" Their dicision has not yet been announced.

A buckeye boy named Geo. E. Divins was married on New Years day to Miss Sarah L. Gander of Adrian. That young lady is a gander no longer. Time will decide whether she is a goose.

Adrian Record: Not an insurance agent in Adrian but has joined the compact! What a record! Now let some man with backbone and fighting qualities start an agency. The people will sustain him.

The Morenci Observer says: A prominent citizen of Medina is using his second half hundred bottles of a well-advertised medicine, for his rheumatic ills.

No wonder the poor fellow has the rheumatism.

The post-offices in this county to which postmasters are appointed by the president are salaried as follows: Adrian, $2,500 salary and $1,975 clerk hire; Blissfield, $1,100 salary; Hudson, $1,800 salary and $650 clerk hire; Tecumseh, $1,729 salary.

Morenci Observer: There are patent knitters and knitters, but Scofield's invention eclipses them all. He is making rapid sales thereof, and will manufacture them extensively. One of the wood cuts he is to have engraved will represent a pretty Morenci girl manipulating the knitter.

Hudson Post: Chas S. Hampton, of Harbor Springs, Mich., editor of the Northern Independent, spent Sunday in Hudson. He will remain in Lansing for a time, having been elected to the legislature. Although elected on a fusion ticket, he is probably the most thorough Greenbacker in Mich. Mr. H. was formerly a Hudson boy, and his public career is watched with interest by those who knew him here.

Following are the newly elected officers of the county horticultural society.

President—D. Woodward, Clinton.
Vice President—F. J. Hough, city.
Secretary—S. B. Mann, Lenawee Junction.
Treasurer—A. Sigler, city.
Librarian—Dr. W. Owen, city.
Executive committee—Peter Collar, Wm. Wickham, Jr., city; J. T. Clark, Clinton; N. J. Strong, Fairfield; E. W. Allis, Madison.

The unfortunate citizen who holds a drain order now days is kept guessing whether he will get his pay or not. The uncertainties of the drain law, together with the superior advantages which the initiated have over the uninitiated to "shove" orders, leaves the average holder of an order with an opportunity to grow wiser as he grows older. This is not always satisfactory, but seems to be the only alternative.—Blissfield Advance. The editor of the Advance is said to hold a nice bunch of the orders, over which he holds daily religious services.—Adrian Record.

MRS. GUMBO'S CRAZY QUILT.

Jerusha Gumbo is Joshua Gumbo's wife. Jerusha is a faithful, tearful, timid little body, whose life has been a constant warfare with poverty. The humdrum drudgery of meal getting and washtub music and children's teething has whitened her locks, and bent her form. At eighteen years of age she was a blue-eyed rosey-cheeked buxom lass, who topped the scales at two hundred and ten pounds. Now she weighs only two hundred and sixty.

Joshua is a spare man, who stands six feet three in his stockings, and who has to stand squarely facing the sun, in order to cast a shadow. His avoirdupois is eighty three pounds and ten ounces. His life has been a constant warfare with Jerusha. They always view everything through spectacles of a different color. She spends her leisure moments in laying plans for procuring household comforts and devising ways and means to get rich. He spends his in upsetting them. Joshua is hard of hearing, that is, his auricular sense is seriously impaired. His ear drums fluctuate. Sometimes he hears and sometimes he does'nt. If a man offers to pay him five dollars his hearing is remarkable acute. If a man duns him for five dollars, he can scarcely hear a word, even with the aid of an eighteen inch trumpet.

The other evening, after Joshua had filled the coal stove and Jerusha had wiped the last dish they sat down for their usual evening's spat.

"Now then, Joshua," said she, "there is one thing I wish to have settled. The sun has set and the moon has risen on our married life for over thirty years. I have taken six children through the measels, and chicken pox and mumps and diptheria. I have made bread from borrowed flour and loaned doughnuts and bought steak on tick to keep the family moving, but the era has at last arrived when I shall insist upon adopting some means to procure a crazy quilt. All the genteelest families in town are reveling in the luxury of a crazy quilt. Red-headed Mrs. Smith on Shawnee street has a beauty, with all the colors of the calicoscope. Mrs. Brown who lives in the gossip-roofed house on Wyandotte street has two of them. It would make your eyes weep for joy, Joshua, to gaze on those quilts. Mrs. Robinson, who presides over the French standard-roofed edifice on Pottawatamie street, has three. And now, do you hear, I say? I must and shall have a crazy quilt."

"What'n thunder do you wan't of raisins 'n milk? I s'pose its for that black and tan, aint it. You feed it on fried oysters and molasses candy and quail on toast. Now I s'pose you want a dessert of raisins 'n milk."

"Hush, Joshua, and open your ears. I said I wanted a c-r-a-z-y crazy q-u-i-l-t quilt."

"Oh, eye! yes, a crazy quilt. What's that?"

"Good gracious, as Shakespeare says: What fools these men folks be. It is difficult to describe it, Joshua, but once seen it is never forgotten. It is unlike anything else in the air, upon the earth or in the sea.

It is a bed covering of variegated pattern, made up of rectangular triangles, and oblong parrellelograms, and obtuse hypothenuses. It contains eleven hundred separate patches in twelve hundred different colors, and stitched together with thirteen hundred different styles of stitch. If you should run a geometry, a calico factory, a chinese dictionary and paint shop through a sausage machine, it would'nt begin to make as handsome a comfortable, as a modern crazy quilt. And its crowning beauty is its cheapness. A few of your old clothes, Joshua, a full package of diamond dyes and a quilting bee will secure this coveted luxury. Have you forgotton our old sparking days, Joshua, when we used to hold father's front gate on the hinges, while the pale faced moon listened to your tale of love and the cricket was cricketing on the lawn, how you vowed a solemn vow that if I would become Mrs. Gumbo, I should never ask a favor of you in vain?

"Hang it, women will be women, I s'pose. But if you kin git up that air quilt with a bee so it wont cost nothing, why sail in, that's all."

Joshua emptied his pipe, split the kindlings and retired. Happy Mrs. Gumbo fell asleep in her chair while making out an invitation list for a quilting bee.

Marstellar has concluded to stock up his marble works and David Jones the tailor, will have charge thereof.

AYER'S Hair Vigor

restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray hair to a natural, rich brown color, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use light or red hair may be darkened, thin hair thickened, and baldness often, though not always, cured.

It checks falling of the hair, and stimulates a weak and sickly growth to vigor. It prevents and cures scurf and dandruff, and heals nearly every disease peculiar to the scalp. As a Ladies' Hair Dressing, the VIGOR is unequalled; it contains neither oil nor dye, renders the hair soft, glossy, and silken in appearance, and imparts a delicate, agreeable, and lasting perfume.

MR. C. P. BRICHER writes from Kirby, O., July 3, 1882: "Last fall my hair commenced falling out, and in a short time I became nearly bald. I used part of a bottle of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, which stopped the falling of the hair, and started a new growth. I have now a full head of hair growing vigorously, and am convinced that but for the use of your preparation I should have been entirely bald."

J. W. BOWEN, proprietor of the McArthur (Ohio) Enquirer, says: "AYER'S HAIR VIGOR is a most excellent preparation for the hair. I speak of it from my own experience. Its use promotes the growth of new hair, and makes it glossy and soft. The VIGOR is also a sure cure for dandruff. Not within my knowledge has the preparation ever failed to give entire satisfaction."

MR. ANGUS FAIRBAIRN, leader of the celebrated "Fairbairn Family" of Scottish Vocalists, writes from Boston, Mass., Feb. 6, 1880: "Ever since my hair began to give silvery evidence of the change which fleeting time procureth, I have used AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, and so have been able to maintain an appearance of youthfulness—a matter of considerable consequence to ministers, orators, actors, and in fact every one who lives in the eyes of the public."

MRS. O. A. PRESCOTT, writing from 18 Elm St., Charlestown, Mass., April 14, 1882, says: "Two years ago about two-thirds of my hair came off. It thinned very rapidly, and I was fast growing bald. On using AYER'S HAIR VIGOR the falling stopped and a new growth commenced, and in about a month my head was completely covered with short hair. It has continued to grow, and is now as good as before it fell. I regularly used but one bottle of the VIGOR, but now use it occasionally as a dressing."

We have hundreds of similar testimonials to the efficacy of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR. It needs but a trial to convince the most skeptical of its value.

RELIGIOUS AND EDUCATIONAL.

—Mrs. Ezra Abbott has presented to the Harvard Divinity School the greater part of her late husband's theological library. The gift includes nearly 4,000 volumes.

—Charles B. Richards, a workman and later a superintendent in Colt's Pistol Works, Hartford, has been chosen to fill the chair of Dynamics in Yale College.—Hartford Courant.

When a visitor at the Carlisle Indian School asked a young Cheyenne girl if she was a member of a church, she answered: "Not much; just a little."—Philadelphia Times.

—The Yale Freshmen have been measured with the following results: Average height, 5 7.5 inches; circumference of chest, 35 inches; breadth of shoulders, 16 inches; weight, 134.4 pounds. The average age of the class is 19 years 1 month and 11 days.

—The Boston School Committee has found it necessary to caution teachers against sending to the home of absent pupils to inquire as to the causes of absence. Many of those absent have been found suffering from contagious diseases, and there has been danger of infection by exposure of the pupil sent to inquire.—Boston Post.

—The next American author to be introduced into the French schools is Emerson. Unlike Longfellow, whose works were especially adapted for the girls' lycees, Emerson, as a more difficult author, is to be reserved for the presumably more robust intellects of young men. The task of editing and explaining the writings of the philosopher will naturally be greater than that of illustrating the narratives of the poet.—N. Y. Tribune.

—Edward Everett Hale has been telling a Boston audience how he would run a school. He would recognize each boy's drift. Then he would have half-time and full-time courses; that is, complete courses requiring only thirteen weeks' attendance, as well as courses covering a period of forty-six weeks. This would be half-time study, but it would be concentrated, and a boy could begin one year just where he left off the preceding. We should gain regularity where now we have irregularity; we should know our work, and the boy would have time to earn something.—Boston Journal.

—Secretary Teller shows in his annual report that the Indians are making commendable progress in education. During the past year new school-buildings have been erected at several of the agencies. Five new boarding-schools and twelve new day-schools have been added to the list. There are now eighty-one boarding schools, seventy-six day schools, and six industrial or manual labor schools under Government control. Fourteen boarding and four day-schools are supplied with teachers and other employes by some one of the various religious denominations, the Government paying a stipulated price for the care and education of the children therein. There are also twenty-three schools maintained by churches and associations without expense to the Government.

WIT AND WISDOM.

—The New York Graphic says that in the play of "A Wooden Spoon" a young man makes love to four beautiful young lady actresses. We should call that a "brass" spoon.—Norristown Herald.

—Too cautious. He—"I am going to take away a bottle of salt water as a memento of this watering place." She—"But don't fill it too full, or it will slop over on us when the tide comes in."—Fliegende Blatter.

—Janitor (to his wife who has hung the water-pail on the gas-jet)—"Bridget, me darlin', did Mr. Levystraus tell ye to put this pail on the gas?" Bridget—"No Pat; but he was after sayin' that the gas was laking, shure!"—Washington Hatchet.

—Why is Castle Garden like a she bear? Because, ignorant one, it is chiefly valuable for the fur on her. This is believed, on account of its age, its dotage, in fact, to be one of the questions the Queen of Shebear asked the solumn 'un.—Burdette.

—"'Ellow, Ed. 'ow's this about your brother 'Arry?" said one Englishman to another on Fifth avenue. "I 'ear 'Arry 'as a broken 'art because the 'orse 'e 'as been ridin' is dead." "It's true, Georgy, every word of it. The doctor thinks 'e 'as ossification of the 'art."—Philadelphia Chronicle-Telegraph.

—Jim Terry, of San Antonio, induced a local publisher to bring out a book of poems. Every once in a while he would call on his publisher and talk to him by the hour. Finally the publisher said to him: "You remind me very much of your book." "In what respect?" "I can't get rid of either of you."—Texas Siftings.

—A heavy pounding on the floor above caused young Mr. Staylate to inquire of the girl on whom he was calling: "Are your folks tacking down carpets this evening?" "Oh, no," she replied; "it's only papa putting on his heaviest boots, and ——" "Good evening!" interrupted the youth, as he dashed out of the door like a circus clown through a hoop.—N. Y. Journal.

—A haberdasher one day, standing, as was his wont, at his door, under the sign of the Golden Lamb, was accosted by a townsman and a neighbor. "Good morning, Andrew," says the passing townsman, "what be you thinking of?" "I was thinking," said the haberdasher, glancing at his sign, "as how the lamb is a picture of innocence." "Yes, friend Andrew, but that one of yours is a picture of gilt."—Scottish American.

—There is a story told by an eminent Judge, still living, though retired from the bench, which illustrates the importance of a voluntary confession better than the most elaborate argument. A prisoner tried before him for larceny had admitted his guilt when apprehended, but at the trial was defended with great persistency by able counsel. "Gentlemen," said the Judge to the jury, "the prisoner says he is guilty. His counsel say he is not. You must decide between them." Then, after a pause, he added: "There is just one thing to remember, gentlemen. The prisoner was there, and his counsel wasn't."—N. Y. Tribune.

What Has It Done for You?

The sceptical Mr. Bradlaugh was once lecturing in a village in the north of England and at the close challenged discussion. Who should accept the challange but an old bent woman, in the most antiquated attire, who went up to the lecturer and said: "Sir, I have a question to put to you." "Well, my good woman, what is it?" "Ten years ago," she said, "I was left a widow, with eight children unprovided for, and nothing to call my own but this Bible. By its direction, and looking up to God for strength, I have been enabled to feed myself and family. I am now tottering to the grave; but I am perfectly happy, because I look forward to a life of immortality with Jesus in heaven. That's what my religion has done for me. What has your way of thinking done for you?" "Well, my good lady," rejoined the lecturer, "I don't want to disturb your comfort; but"—"Oh! that's not the question," interposed the woman; "keep to the point, sir. What has your way of thinking done for you?" The infidel endeavored to shirk the matter again, the feeling of the meeting gave vent in uproarious applause, and Mr. Bradlaugh had to go away discomfitted by an old woman.—The Lutheran

Very Remarkable Recovery.

Mr. Gen. V. Willing, of Manchester, Mich., writes: "My wife has been almost helpless for five years, so helpless that she could not turn over in bed alone. She used two Bottles of Electric Bitters, and is so much improved, that she is able now to do her own work." Electric Bitters will do all that is claimed for them. Hundreds of testimonials attest their great curative powers. Only fifty cents a bottle at C. A. Wright & Co.

Cost of Bringing up a Boy.

A clergyman who has been discoursing about boys has devoted considerable attention to the cost of these somewhat necessary individuals, and he estimates the expense of bringing a good boy, with all the advantages of city life, to the age of fifteen, at about $5,000. These figures are about doubled by the time the boy is of age, if he goes through college. A bad boy, arrived at the age mentioned, costs fully as much, even if he has not been to college, and the computation, as the reverend gentlemen suggests, does not include the value of the mother's tears and father's gray hairs. Most men who have brought up boys will agree that the estimate is not too high.

Every day adds to the great amount of evidence as to the curative powers of Hood's Sarsaprilla. Letters are continually being received from all sections of the country, telling of benefits derived from this great medicine. It is unequalled for general debility, and as a blood purifier, expelling every trace of scrofula or other impurity. Now is the time to take it. Made by C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell Mass. Sold by all druggists.

The Secret of Wealth.

Broken down invalids do you wish to gain flesh, to acquire an appetite, to enjoy a regular habit of body, to obtain refreshing sleep, to feel and know that every fiber and tissue of your system is being braced up and renovated. If so commence at once a course of Golden Seal Bitters. In one week you will be convalescent. In a month you will be well. Don't despair because you have a weak constitution. Fortify the body against disease by purifying all the fluids with Golden Seal Bitters. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus forearmed. The liver, the stomach, the bowels, the kidneys, are rendered disease proof by this great invigorant. Ruinous bills for medical attendance may be avoided by counteracting the first symptoms of sickness with these Bitters. They are recommended from friend to friend, and the sale increases daily. We warrant a cure. They are a positive cure also for all female complaints. In these diseases they have no equal. Take no others. Sold by Baker & Hall and C. A. Wright & Co.

Downright Cruelty

To permit yourself and family to "Suffer!"
With sickness when it can be prented and cured so easily
With Hop Bitters!!!

Having experienced a great deal of "Trouble!" from indigestion, so much so that I came near losing my Life!
My trouble always came after eating any food—
However light
And digestible,
For two or three hours at a time I had to go through the most
Excruciating pains,
"And the only way I ever got"
"Relief!"
Was by throwing up all my stomach contained. No one can conceive the pains that I had to go through, until
"At last"
I was taken! "So, that for three weeks I lay in bed and
Could eat nothing!
My sufferings were so that I called two doctors to give me something that would stop the pain; their Efforts were no good to me.
"At last I heard a good deal
About your Hop Bitters!
And determined to try them."
Got a bottle—in four hours I took the contents of
One!
Next day I was out of bed, and have not seen a
"Sick!"
Hour, from the same cause since.
I have recommended it to hundreds of others. You have no such.

Columbus Advocate, Texas, April 21, 1883. Dear Editor:—I have tried your Hop Bitters, and find they are good for any complaint. The best medicine I ever used in my family.—H. TALENER.

There are 90,000 illiterate persons in Massachusetts.

Quack doctors, electric belt and other swindlers who live by frightening our young men and young women by nasty circulars, will find their occupations gone when it becomes generally known that Dr. Guysott's Yellow Dock and Sarsaparilla is a certain cure for all weakness of the uniary organs, nervousness, etc. Obey the laws of health, take a few bottles of this simple remedy and you will soon be restored to perfect manhood and womanhood, free from all worriment of mind and distress of body.

SCIENTIFIC.—Soda or Saleratus contains carbonic acid gas. After it is thoroughly mixed with flour, the gas is liberated by Grape Cream Tartar, and as it escapes it separates the particles of flour and makes light and delicious pastry.

The successful combination of Soda and Cream Tartar, called DeLand's Chemical Baking Powder, without the use of any other ingredients, makes it nearly double the strength of other Baken Powder and free from all deleterious substances. Sold in cans only.

The three outlets of disease are the bowels, the skin and the kidneys. Regulate their action with the best purifying tonic, Burdock Blood Bitters.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

Gathered from All Quarters.

CONGRESS.

SENATE, January 7.—Mr. Plumb presented a memorial from the Oklahoma settlers complaining of their expulsion by the army of the United States, and asserting that this action was taken in the interest of a certain cattle syndicate, who, without authority of law, had fenced in these lands and were using them. They prayed that Oklahoma might be organized as a Territory. Mr. Plumb sustained their cause and urged that the Committee on Indian affairs should decide at the earliest date whether these lands could be opened to settlement. Mr. Morrill called up his resolution declaring that the Constitution conferred upon the Legislature, sitting with open doors, the sole power of regulating laws in relation to revenue, and that so-called reciprocity treaties with nations of inferior population, including a large surrender of revenue, were untimely and should be regarded with disfavor. Mr. Morrill made a lengthy speech against the continuance of the custom of considering treaties with closed doors, at the close of which Mr. Lapham gave notice that he would also address the Senate on the subject of commercial treaties at an early day. The Senate then resumed the consideration of the Inter-State Commerce bill and without taking any action adjourned.

HOUSE.—The Chair laid before the House a communication from the Secretary of the Navy recommending an appropriation of $2,000,000 for the establishment of a gun foundry and the purchase of steel, in accordance with the recommendation of the Gun Foundry Board; referred. On a demand for the regular order, the Reagan Inter-State Commerce bill came up as the unfinished business. Several amendments were offered and adopted, when the bill was ordered printed and the House adjourned.

SENATE, January 8.—Mr. Allison, Chairman of the Committee on Appropriations, offered as a separate bill all the legislative provisions inserted by the House in the Pension Appropriation bill for the next fiscal year, regulating the fees of attorneys and claim agents; prohibiting the payment of any fee until the claim was allowed; and limiting the fee to $10, except in case of special contract. Mr. Lapham then delivered a speech on commercial treaties in reply to Mr. Morrill. He contended that the views advanced by that gentleman, though plausible, were founded on an erroneous view of the Constitution. The treaty making power, he said, was not exclusively executive nor exclusively legislative, but partook of the character of both. He advocated in general terms the extension of our commerce. The drift of his remarks being favorable to the ratification of both the Spanish and San Domingo treaties. The Senate then went into executive session and soon after adjourned.

HOUSE.—The Inter-State Commerce bill came up as unfinished business, the preceding question being on Mr. Hammond's amendment that the Commissioners shall not be appointed until the 5th of March. The amendment was adopted, only twelve negative votes being cast. After the rejection of several other amendments the bill was put on its passage and carried—yeas 162, nays 75. The contested election case of George H. Craig vs. Charles M. Shelley, of the Fourth Alabama District, was called up, and Mr. Craig was declared entitled to the seat. Adjourned.

SENATE, January 9.—A bill was passed, authorizing the Secretary of the Navy to transfer one of the vessels of the Greely relief expedition to the Treasury Department, to be used as a revenue cutter and to retain the other two (including the ship presented by Great Britain) for the use of the navy. At the request of Mr. Harris, Mr. Morgan withdrew his motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill forfeiting a portion of the lands granted to the Oregon Central Railroad was passed the other day; so the bill, with the Senate amendments, will go back to the House for concurrence. The Senate then resumed consideration of the Inter-State Commerce bill and a motion to strike out from the first section the provision that the Commission created by the bill should be composed of representatives of the different interests involved was adopted by a vote of 26 to 23. The bill went over and the Senate went into executive session and soon after adjourned until the 12th.

HOUSE.—Mr. Curtis, Chairman of the Committee on Foreign Affairs, reported the resolution introduced by Mr. Belmont on the 5th, calling upon the President for information concerning the participation of the United States in the Congo Conference; adopted. Also two resolutions introduced by Mr. Holman calling on the Secretary of State for information in relation to the alleged arrest of T. J. Monahan by Mexican authorities; adopted. The House then went into a Committee of the Whole on the private calendar, Mr. Cox in the chair. Among the bills passed was one authorizing the Secretary of War to turn over to the Interior Department certain parts of Camp Douglas military reservation, and a bill to pay officers of the army for services actually rendered during the war. A night session was held and twenty-five pension bills were disposed of.

SENATE, January 10.—The Senate was not in session to-day.

HOUSE.—The House refused to dispense with the morning hour and committees were called for their reports, among which was a bill to authorize experiments of lighting the navigable waters by electricity; also appropriating $100,000 for the completion of the pedestal for the Bartholdi Statue of Liberty. The House then went into Committee of the Whole on the Naval Appropriation bill, but without taking any action the committee arose and the House adjourned until the 12th.

WASHINGTON.

Rev. William Paret, elected to succeed Bishop Pinkney, of the diocese of Maryland, was consecrated in the Epiphany Church, Washington, on the 8th, with imposing ceremonies.

The House Committee on Coinage, Weights and Measures have decided to report adversely upon Mr. Buckner's bill to suspend standard silver dollar coinage for three years.

The Board of Naval Academy Officers, appointed to investigate the conduct of the Cadets who visited Washington during the holidays, have recommended the dismissal from the navy of Cadet George B. Tennant, of Michigan, who while intoxicated, accidentally discharged a revolver, the bullet wounding Frederick H. Sparling, an ex-Cadet.

President Arthur has accepted the resignation of Paymaster Smyth, whose recent disappearance from his post in Savannah, while on a Christmas spree, attracted so much attention.

The annual statement of the Director of the Mint shows that during the past year the coinage, less recoinage, has been: Gold, $23,726,852; silver, $28,119,978. The imports of United States coin were: Gold, $4,239,876; silver, $725,150; a total gain of $57,491,648. The Director estimates that $4,875,000 of United States gold and $216,000 of silver coin were melted for use in the manufactures and arts, and six million trade dollars, constituting a part of the silver circulation in previous years, have been withdrawn from circulation. The exports were: Of United States gold coin, $11,878,154; silver coin, $522,431, a net gain of gold coin of $11,213,573; in silver coin, $22,106,697. This added to his estimates of the total amount in the country on January 1, 1884, makes the circulation on the 1st of January, 1885, $563,000,000 in gold and $264,000,000 in silver, a total of $827,000,000.

A party of four boys broke through the ice while skating on a pond at Pottsville, Pa., on the 9th and were drowned. Two were sons of Albert Hoover and Jacob Kraus, and the other two were sons of a colored porter at the Merchant's Hotel at that place. The bodies were recovered.

No news has been received of Captain Traynor and Fritz Federman, who sailed from St. Johns for Liverpool in the dory. They are now out 106 days. The wife of the Captain thinks he is lost.

Charles W. Scofield, ex-President of the Utah & Pleasant Valley and the Wabash & Jordan railroads of Utah, was arrested at New York a few days ago on an indictment for obtaining money under false pretenses.

The Red Ash Coal Company at Wilkesbarre, Pa., have suspended work at Nos. 1 and 2 collieries for an indefinite period, throwing nearly a thousand men and boys out of employment.

Captain Charles W. Folger, only son of the late Secretary of the Treasury, died at Geneva, N. Y., on the 11th, aged forty.

The Farmers' Bank of Elizabethtown, Pa., owned by Samuel Eady, closed its doors on the 10th. Mr. Eady confessed judgment to the amount of about $27,000. The bank's liabilities will probably aggregate $80,000. The assets are unknown but the depositors will lose heavily.

The boiler of the steam tug Mike Dougherty exploded near Elizabeth, Pa., on the 10th, demolishing the vessel and instantly killing William Haller, steward, and William Matthews, deck-hand. Gardner Jackson, the Captain, was badly scalded, and two others of the crew slightly hurt.

The following changes are shown in the statement of the New York associated banks for the week ended January 10: Loans decrease, $1,734,000; specie increase, $7,309,000; legal tenders increase, $2,422,000; deposits increase, $8,431,000; circulation decrease, $136,000; reserve increase, $6,723,000. The banks held $47,644,000 in excess of legal requirements.

W. H. Vanderbilt, who obtained a judgment against General Grant for $150,000 lent him to ward off the failure of the Marine Bank, on the 10th bought in the real estate and presents of the General named in the bill of sale. He then presented the property to Mrs. Grant for her separate estate, but she declined to receive it. Mr. Vanderbilt wrote to Mrs. Grant saying that he desired to turn all the property over to her except that the swords and other testimonials received by General Grant should be presented to the Government as memorials of his fame, but she still refused to accept.

Carnegie Bros. & Co.'s Union Iron Mill at Pittsburgh will soon resume in all departments, giving employment to several hundred men.

"The World Travel Company," with a capital of $250,000, was incorporated in New York on the 10th. The object of the company is to afford every facility to travelers in Europe and all parts of the world for their comfort and easy transportation.

WEST AND SOUTH.

Ex-Senator Bruce, chief of the department of colored exhibits at the New Orleans Exposition, states that the Colored Commissioners' Educational Conference has been postponed to February 12.

Warren Coffee and Julius Magno, miners, were badly burned on the 8th by an explosion of gas in the coal bank of Heatherington & Kelly, at Bellaire, Ohio.

J. McMullen's residence at Boston Store, Montgomery County, Ind., was destroyed by fire on the night of the 7th. The next day the remains of Mr. McMullen and his wife were found in the ruins. There is suspicion that they were murdered and the house set on fire.

A case of small-pox was discovered in the emigrant car of a snow-bound train at Huntington, Ore., a few days ago. All the exposed passengers will be quarantined until the 21st inst. If new cases should break out the quarantine will be extended until the danger is over.

Four hundred striking miners at Angus, Iowa, attacked a gang of forty men who had displaced them, as they were coming from the pits on the 8th, and drove them entirely from the town. They were all pretty roughly handled and some severely injured. The strikers then returned to the Snake Creek mine and attacked a boarding house at which a number of non-unionists were stopping. The occupants rushed out the back door and attempted to escape, but they were pursued by the mob who kept up a constant firing at them. One of the escaping party was killed and a number wounded.

The Excelsior Iron Works, at Cleveland, Ohio, owned by Stovering & Fleming, was destroyed by fire on the night of the 8th. Loss about $65,000; insurance $21,000.

At a party given by Miss Annie Von Fosson, at East Liverpool, Ohio, twelve persons were poisoned, one of whom, Alice McBane, aged six, died next day. The others are in a fair way to recover, excepting Mrs. Collins, an aged lady of over eighty, who is still in a critical condition. It is supposed that a paper of "Rough on Rats" was put in the coffee by a domestic, as a very thick and heavy substance was found in the bottom of the coffee-pot.

While the jailer was feeding the prisoners at the county jail at Denton, Tex., on the 10th, one of them threw cayenne pepper in the jailer's eyes, then liberated the others. Later in the evening all the escaped prisoners were recaptured by the town police except one.

FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

It is officially stated that nine hundred lives were lost in Granada alone by the recent earthquake. King Alfonso has increased his personal donation to $20,000. Emperor William, of Germany, has telegraphed his sympathy and a large donation. The relief fund is increasing wonderfully. Dispatches received from Motril show that the shocks at that city on the 5th were more severe than indicated by the reports. A church and convent and fifty houses collapsed by the seismic shocks, but fortunately no one was killed, as the people had abandoned them and sought places of safety on the first shock being felt.

A circular has been issued by the Canadian branch of the Royal Caledonian Curling Club, extending a cordial invitation to all curlers in America, on behalf of the Royal Caledonian Club, who will be able to compete in all District Medal matches and share all other privileges enjoyed by members of the Club in Canada.

Two more shocks of earthquake were felt at Granada on the 8th. Only 500 persons continue to occupy houses in that city. The rest of the population are living in tents or camping in the open air.

Official reports place the number of persons made homeless by the earthquakes at Granada and Malaga at 43,000. Fourteen hundred have been killed and 900 wounded.

It is officially announced that the German corvettes off the Cameroons coast have had a battle with the natives, the latter being routed with great loss of life.

Mme. Clovis Hugues, who was on trial for the murder of her traducer, at Paris, was acquitted on the 8th. She made a neat speech in thanking the jury for their verdict.

Commenting on the recent attempted assassination of Phelan, at New York, the London Times expresses the hope that it will be found possible to arrest O'Donovan Rossa in connection with the affair. It does not doubt that American law will make short work of him if once his guilt can be proven, and the time of his downfall has probably arrived. All the papers comment ironically upon Rossa's absence from his office at the time of the tragedy, and dilate upon the care with which he avoids any danger to his own person.

News reached Guyamas, Mexico, by courier on the 11th that the entire town of Pinos Altos has been destroyed by fire, and that hundreds of people are houseless.

LATER NEWS.

A REPORT was current at Pittsburgh on the 11th that while digging a cellar at Braddocks, Pa., near the scene of Braddock's defeat, a number of workmen had unearthed an old chest containing gold to the amount of several hundred thousand dollars.

HON. JOHN S. MARMADUKE was formally sworn in as Governor of the State of Missouri on the 12th by the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, in the presence of both Houses of the Legislature. The ceremonies were brief and simple.

BELVA A. LOCKWOOD, late nominee of the Equal Rights party for the Presidency, sent a petition to the Senate on the 12th asking that the votes cast for her in the several States be counted. She says if the 1,336 votes cast for her in New York State were counted as they should be, Grover Cleveland would not receive the electoral vote of that State.

GENERAL J. S. ROBINSON on the 12th presented his resignation to the Governor as member of Congress from the Ninth Congressional District of Ohio, and at noon was sworn in and entered upon his duties as Secretary of State.

A FEARFUL boiler explosion occurred at a sawmill situated on the Weigel Tract, on the opposite side of the river from Williamsport, Pa., on the 12th. Two persons, Peter Houser and Thomas Purvis, were killed and six others, including Daniel Brobst, the owner, were severely injured. The explosion was caused by a lack of water in the boiler.

ANNIE VAN FOSSEN, the young woman accused of poisoning the Van Fossen and McBane families, of East Liverpool, Ohio, waived a preliminary hearing and pleaded not guilty on the 12th and was remanded to jail on the charge of murder in the first degree. No other deaths have occurred and the victims are all in a fair way of recovery.

MR VAN WYCK, from the Committee on Public Lands, reported favorably in the Senate on the 12th the House bill to prevent unlawful occupancy of the public lands, with an amendment authorizing the President to use civil and military force to remove illegal fencing. Mr. Mitchell introduced a bill to increase the pensions of widows and minor children from $8 to $12 a month and providing that mustering into the service should be prima facia proof of soundness. Senator Hawley's resolution calling for General Sherman's historical statement filed in the War Department was then taken up and discussed until adjournment. Considerable business of an uninteresting nature was transacted during the morning by unanimous consent. The committee on the District of Columbia was then recognized and a number of bills were reported, among which was one providing for a commission to codify the laws of the District, which passed. The House then went into Committee of the Whole on the Consular and Diplomatic Appropriation bill, but no quorum being present soon adjourned.

Mischief is Wrought

by bad cooking, tough meats, late hours, business worries, irregular livers, sour dispositions, evil digestion and impure blood. Much of this mischief can be overcome by the use of Brown's Iron Bitters—the best tonic ever made. Mrs Emilie Crawford Reidsville, Ga., writes, "After trying Brown's Iron Bitters we are persuaded that it is all that it claims to be—a good and reliable tonic." Thousands of others speak in like manner.

As late as 1840 there were but seven vocations into which New England women had entered; in 1884 the number was 317.

A Wonderful Discovery.

Consumptives and all, who suffer from any affection of the Throat and Lungs, can find a certain cure in Dr. King's New discovery for Consumption. Thousands of permanent cures verify the truth of this statement. No medicine can show such a record of wonderful cures. Thousands of once hopeless sufferers now gracefully proclaim they owe their lives to this New Discovery. It will cost you nothing to give it a trial. Free Trial Bottles at C. A. OLDEN TIMES

The formula by which Mishler's Herb Bitters is compounded is over two hundred years old, and of German origin. The entire range of proprietary medicines cannot produce a preparation that enjoys so high a reputation in the community where it is made as

MISHLER'S HERB BITTERS.

It is the best remedy for Kidney and Liver Complaints, Dyspepsia, Cramp in the Stomach, Indigestion, Malaria, Periodical Complaints, etc. As a Blood Purifier, it has no equal. It tones the system, strengthening, invigorating and giving new life.

The late Judge Hayes, of Lancaster Co., Pa., an able jurist and an honored citizen, once wrote: "Mishler's Herb Bitters is very widely known, and has acquired a great reputation for medicinal and curative properties. I have used myself and in my family several bottles, and I am satisfied that the reputation is not unmerited."

A THRILLING STORY.

As Told by a Merchant in Troy, N. Y.—A Surgical Operation Avoided—How a Father, Wife and Daughter Escaped an awful Doom.

Of the hundred of accounts of remarkable cures wrought by Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, none have appeared so purely astonishing as the following: The persons mentioned are among the most highly respected in the city of Troy, and the story as told by the father will prove interesting to all our readers.—ED.

TROY, N. Y.

Dr. Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.:

Dear Sir—My daughter was afflicted with a severe growth of Fungus. To remove it we had resorted to almost every remedy and consulted the most prominent surgeons and physicians. Dr. ——, of Troy, said that a surgical operation would be necessary, but fearing fatal results I hesitated. Some of the physicians claimed that it was caused by one thing and some by another. The Fungus was prominent and disfigured her looks. Having heard of Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy working so thoroughly on the blood I determined to try it, to see if this medicine could do what doctors had failed to do and surgeons had hardly dared to undertake. I can say in truth that the result of this trial was the complete cure of my daughter of this dreadful malady. Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy alone effected it. We used nothing else, for other things had completely failed. My daughter to-day enjoys vigorous health and to Favorite Remedy alone is the credit due. My wife also was very poor in health, due to some liver difficulty with which she had suffered a long time until she became very much reduced in flesh. A trial of Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy had resulted in the complete restoration of her health, which she had not enjoyed for years. She had gained in flesh and strength and thus secured perfect health, and this is due entirely to Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy. As for myself, being engaged in the grocery and commission business, which makes it necessary for me to test the quality

FARMERS' SOCIAL CLUB.

Friday evening Jan. 9th the Farmers' Social Club met at the residence of Mr John Rector The night was cold and very windy and the roads very rough. Still there was a fair attendance of farmers and young people The program arranged by the committee at our last meeeting was well carried out. Music by the choir was very good and convinced us that singing could be performed well without the accompaniment of an instrument. Essay by Fred Heinder hgt, title, The hired man, was well written and contained many good points. Instrumusic, Grant and Henry, was received with a good deal of favor and was encored.

The question, Will it be both profitable and pleasant for us to import foreign labor on the farm, engaged the attention of nearly all the farmers present. This question was suggested to the club after hearing a lecture from Mr Graves, of Palmyra who is engaged in the introduction of Germans as farm help, both men and women. The secretary corresponded with six different parties who had procured such help through the agency of Mr. Graves. They all seemed to be well satisfied with the experiment and pronounced their help good, reliable, industrious and honest. Some were going to send for more help for the next season while others did not think it advisable in the present depressed state of labor, and while so many were out of employment, to import any more foreign labor, yet they all agreed that they thought they received full as much or more labor for the money than they did when they employed American help. They said that the difficulty of making them understand on account of the language was overcome in a month or two. But the farmers of this club differed materially in their ideas in regard to the profit of getting that kind of help. Mr. Schreder opened the discussion, saying even if they would perform as much work as our American help there would be a very great difficulty in making them understand what you wanted done and how you wanted them to do it. Thought for a good part of the first season they would have to be shown and the showing would all have to be done by signs which would not be very pleasant. He prefers American help upon his farm to any imported.

Mr. A. D. Hall said the labor question was one of the most difficult questions that we had to deal with. Thought if we could obtain just and honest labor for the amount we had to pay our American boys that such labor would be far more satisfactory to us. But thought there were far too many instances where such labor was not obtained. In a political point of view did not think it advisable to import too many foreigners, yet something had to be done as the past season's wages were altogether too high at the present prices of produce.

Mr. F. C. Rector thought it would be better for us to get the German help. Said we could not get such help as we used to, they wanted too much wages and didn't care to do much work. We would have to import cheaper and steadier help or let the farm stop. Our American boys wanted to run to town too often and run too much nights. You cannot depend upon them.

Mr. R. B. Gillespie said that the worst feature with our help was their running so much both to town and nights. When they run nights they were not good for much for a day or two afterward and when they went to town they would congregate together and talk over matters how they were used where they worked and would rehearse what privileges they took of their employer and if one took privileges another thought he might and this soon made a bad state of affairs. Said he believed the farmer or employer was to blame in a great measure for all this. When we hire a hand should give that hand to understand just what was expected; that we should not allow this running and as soon as it was commenced stop it and if not stopped at once discharge the hand if you suffered by it. Thought if this plan was followed strictly, it would soon do away with so much unsteadiness.

Mrs. F. C. Rector said she supposed a good many thought she felt above associating with the hired man or having her family associate with them. That is not so. She could associate with them when they are men but when they are rowdies she would not, nor allow her daughters to. She never ill treated any of their help, but she was sorry to say that there were some she could not associate with. Did not like the idea of having to resort to German help. Thought it would be very trying.

Mr. Griswold thought there would be no very great trouble to make the Germans understand. Show them any particular thing you wanted done, you would not have to show them again. Said he thought Mr. Graves had got their wages for the first year altogether too high. A considerable more than double what they get in Germany. They would have to learn to do work in our way which was not as they do it in their native land.

Mr. Horton did not like the idea of importing so many foreigners into this country. Thought the establishment of so many emigrant agencies a mistake, the agencies supported by the tax payers of the state or nation to entice the foreign population into our country to sap what ought to be kept as an inheritance for the children of American citizens. It is a notorious fact that nearly all our public domain has been gobbled up be foreigners, squandered on railroads and absorbed by the cattle kings and land grabbing monopolists. It seems as though our government had made all the haste possible to dispossess themselves of our public lands. But if it is desirable to import farm laborers, let them be by all means Germans as they are the most steady and reliable. The wages which we have been paying are altogether too high. Farmers can not pay such wages, and live at it. They must be reduced. But the wages at which these Germans are proposed to be furnished are still worse $130 a year and board which is nearly $17 per month for the eight months that most farmers need farm help. The wages which they get in Germany is from 3 to 5 dollars per month, and they ought not to get here more than from 5 to 7 dollars the first year. Club then adjourned for two weeks to meet at the residence of I. H. Schreder on Friday evening, Jan. 23 Program for next meeting

Singing—Choir.
Music—Grant and Henry.
Select Reading—Anna Everhart.
Question—Would it be more profitable to sell our cream than to make it into butter?

The thanks of the club are due Mr. Wm. H. Mathers for favors received from California.

WILL CARLETON.

Among the younger American poets, there is perhaps none better known or universally admired than Will Carleton. It is a singular fact that the western poets seem always to strike a new vein of thought or feeling. It is useless for the pedagogues to point out the faults of Carleton's poetry and tell us that his verses are not properly constructed here or ungrammatical there, for they pointed out the same errors in Poe, they showed us where the great Dickens was at fault, in fact everyone whom the people admired was faulty in their eyes. But notwithstanding this, Dickens touched the heart strings of his readers, they wept or laughed at his bidding, and so it was with Edgar A. Poe. Say what his maligners will, the author of Ulalume, the Bells, the Raven and Israfel stands higher in the estimation of the people, than if they had let his memory rest in peace. Even so it is with Carleton. He is also a master hand in sounding the human heart strings. He was born near Hudson, Lenawee Co. Mich., in 1845 and was bred as farmer's boys usually are. His desire for knowledge however, led him to walk 5 miles to the district school where he studied Latin, algebra, etc. etc. In 1865 he entered college helping to defray expenses by teaching school. Graduating in 1869 he joined the editorial staff of a Chicago paper and later became editor of the Detroit Weekly Tribune. In 1868 he wrote his first poem "Fax" and at his graduation in 1869 "Rifts in the Clouds." In 1870 for Decoration Day he wrote "Cover Them Over." In 1871 his master piece, "Betsy and I are out" appeared and soon after "How Betsy and I made up" and "Over the hills to the poor-house." In 1873 he produced "Farm Ballads" and in 1875 "Farm Legends." In 1881 "Farm Festivals" appeared, all of which were handsomely illustrated. Some of his work gives evidence of hasty production, but taken all together Carleton is a poet of which Americans can justly be proud.

A REAL GOOD PAPER

For Everybody, and his Wife, and and their Children, is the Prairie Farmer, as it is now edited by the veteran Journalist, ORANGE JUDD, who brings to it a most valuable experience. He is not "Dead" as "rumored" by a long way, but hale and hearty, and doing better work than ever before. His journal is packed full of good things every week, all carefully prepared, interesting, instructive, reliable and useful to all. Mr. JUDD has made a good paper for a Quarter of a Century, and keeps doing so, in his broad Western field. He gives his whole attention to the weekly Prairie Farmer. It is beautifully printed, with many Engravings, and is first-rate for all Farmers, Gardeners, Dairymen, Stock-growers, Horticulturists of all classes, and it is also specially valuable to Housekeepers every where. Though issued weekly, it costs but $2 a year, including a large splendid U. S. 3 Map; or $1.50 a year without the map, and less to large clubs. Take our advice and TRY it for a year. Address Prairie Farmer, Chicago.

The Agricultural Society of Lenawee County will hold its annual meeting on Friday, Jan. 30, at 10 o'clock A. M. A cordial invitation is extended to all who are interested in the success of the county fair.

CLINTON CHAPTER.

Miss Lucretia Reynolds retires from service in B. O. Randall's store during the dull season.

J. W. Bradner returned from Oregon last week, where he has been visiting his sons.

A costumer from Detroit will be in town next Friday to furnish masquerade costumes to all who desire to obtain them in that way. Spectators at the masquerade party will be charged an admission fee of fifteen cents.

John Smith & Son are advertising goods to be sold very cheap for the next few days. Twenty-five yards of calico can be bought for one dollar. Seven fine linen handkerchiefs for the same price. Good worsted dress goods at ten cents a yard, and shoes, gloves, hats, caps, etc., in the same proportion. To those wishing to supply themselves with the above named articles this is an opportunity not to be lost.

Mrs. Ed. Rowland, of Tecumseh, visited Clinton friends last Thursday.

J. B. Hause has kept several men busy for the last week clearing the snow from the ice on the river in order to allow the ice to freeze to a greater depth. He seems to understand the necessity of "making hay while the sun shines."

Last Friday evening a very pleasant surprise party was given Albert Van Gieson and wife. About forty of the friends and neighbors were present, which number would have swelled to a hundred or more had the weather been more propitious.

The ladies of St. John's church will give a "pink tea" social at the Town Hall, Thursday evening, Jan, 29th.—Fifteen cents will be charged at the door, for which sum an excellent supper will be given, and something new in the line of entertainments. Every one who attends will receive a present before leaving the hall. This is no chromo scheme. Every one is invited.

B. G. Swift shipped his last car load of apples to Indiana last Saturday.

A family by the name of Cooley, who have been living in the Reynold's building, were sent last Monday to Detroit by the overseer of the poor. Their former home was in Windsor, to which place they wish to return.

Mrs. George Fisher has been quite sick for several days, but is at present slowly recovering.

Main street was well filled with teams last Monday, and business seemed to be lively in spite of the unusual cold weather.

George S. Field, of Tecumseh, spent Sunday in town. We are always glad to welcome him back to Clinton, if only for a short time.

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Eccles drove up from Tecumseh Sunday, as did several others, presumably to enjoy the fine sleighing.

Miss Laura Clark went to Tecumseh Wednesday morning to spend a few days with Mrs. E. G. Cook.

The two youngest children of Rev. Mr. Barnes have been suffering with severe colds.

Rev. J. M. Kerridge received a letter this week stating that Mr. Simeon Ellis is very ill and his death is expected at any time. He is with the family of J. L. Hudson, of Hudson, Mich., formerly pastor of the M. E. church of this village.

We understand that the pupils of the High school, and the first and second grammar departments, received a severe shock last Monday afternoon. Perhaps Prof. Laflin will explain matters to inquiring minds.

A CARD.

The undersigned desire to return sincere thanks to their many friends for their kind sympathy and assistance during the severe sickness of our dear little one, who we are happy to say is improving.

HOLLOWAY HASH.

Mrs. Brainard was called to Tecumseh on Sunday by the death of her mother which occured quite suddenly and unexpectedly during the forenoon. Although her disease was consumption and the physician had held out no hope of recovery, yet when the final change came it was like a flash of lightning from out the clear sky. She was the mother of ten children who, together with a most tender and loving companion, are left to mourn her loss. She was an exemplary mother and a true wife, having shared with her husband the trials and privations of pioneer life when they were striving by industry and economy to accumulate some of this world's goods to comfort them in their old age. Three years ago they purchased a home in Tecumseh where they have since resided with every facility at hand to spend the remainder of their days in peace and comfort. But alas, the cruel master knows no pity and He has snatched from their embrace one most dearly loved, and the light and joy of the household. May the Lord who doeth all things well comfort the bereaved.

We miss the visits of our sprightly music teacher, Miss Vina Underwood, of Ridgeway, who we learn has gone to Toledo to pursue her studies in music both vocal and instrumental. She has had twelve scholars in this vicinity during the past summer and fall who seem much pleased with this efficient teacher. We judge they will also miss her at Ridgeway where she was serving her third year as organist of the pipe organ in the M. E. church. She was also chairman of the music committee for the Literary.

Mrs. Dr. Begel has been visiting friends in Hanover the past week.

Some six or eight weeks ago a man and woman by the name of House came through here from Detroit and seemed anxious to find a place to do work for their board. Their story was about as follows: They were married at Peru, Ind. some time last summer and went from there to Detroit to find work. When winter overtook them being out of work and money they concluded to tramp back to Peru where their people live.—When they arrived here the woman was too footsore to go further, and as H. E. Wilson was in need of a chore boy, he took them in. The woman proved to be such a nuisance that on Wednesday last they concluded to pay her fare to Peru to get rid of her, the man agreeing to stay till the 1st of April. The next day Mr. Wilson's people went away and left him to look after the chores. Upon returning home after dark they discovered the stock all in the yard and upon investigation found their man had gone and rigged up from head to foot in clothes that did not belong to him. It is possible that Erskine wasn't mad, but his face looked awfully that way when he came up to take the train for Adrian to put the officers on his track. Guess Ersk never heard of the fable of the man who took the snake in to thaw him out by his fire and when his snakeship got thoroughly warm he was very anxious to bite the man who had befriended him.

Wouldn't be surprised if it would prove exceedingly unhealthy around here for tramps in the future.

BROOKLYN BALLAST.

Our Dramatic Club were presented with complimentary tickets to the Out in the Street, given by the Napoleon company, Wednesday evening, and endured freezing in a good cause. The rink was well filled, their scenery much nicer than ours, and each actor played better than most of those who make copying other people's lives a profession. If a blunder occurred it was turned to a lucky hit by John Harrison, who is the pink of sable artists. A wooly chignon and dash of blacking, developes a heap of awkward drollery, and shows plainly that he masquerades when wearing a light complexion. The music was such as even Alexander may be proud of, and those seated back of the front tiers of benches overcame the want of staging by standing.

The cold wave has submerged us in snow, and many wonder what will become of the tramps if the blockade continues. The question regarding free hotels for them, lately discussed in the Evening News, has aroused negative sympathy among our gentlemen tax-payers, and they resolve to spoil the tramping business from now out. We don't know how it is to be done, but of course where there's a will there's a way. They had made up their slate with a "we won't," when a man came along, carrying a valise and two children, the oldest about three years old. The man was well dressed but had no money, or inclination to tell where he came from or whither bound. The babies cried for something to eat, and quashed argument that time. They sent for the Supervisor, who gave orders for supper, bed and breakfast, which was had, and then the trio went somewhere. Then came a crippled shoemaker from Chicago, who hoped to find a cousin and work in Detroit. He had roomed in school houses and straw stacks during his pilgrimage, had eaten nothing but snow for two days, and looked bad generally. To leave him out of doors was so near murder, they had to find a place and supper for him. Next came some ramblers who looked frowzy, dirty, cold, but not discouraged. They were given a furnished room at the jail, and had their tea sent in. They would have frozen out of doors; besides no one wanted them out star gazing. There is difficulty in fitting logic to our tramp's circumstances. Its worse than being taxed to pay for their board; so the payers have adjourned to smoke, and wait for the News to figure.

MACON MUSIC.

Mrs. Cornelia Westfall, who has been quite sick with a spinal fever, is better now. It is hoped by her friends and relatives that she will soon recover.

Mrs. Hon. Geo. Howell returned from Lansing on Monday, Jan. 19th.

Miss Nellie Robinson who has been very sick with pleurisy, is some better. Dr. Morden in attendance.

Macon School district No. 1, having the number of scholars required by law to entitle it to a library, will soon have an addition of about thirty volumes to its present one. Most of the old volumes have been taken out and never returned, so that there is a very poor showing at present.

Miss Zoe Pennington arrived home from Dakota last week. She reports cold weather and is very much pleased with the country.

Another social hop at the Dew Drop. It is to be hoped that its financial success will be greater than the last.

Next week there will be a donation at the residence of Lester Coller for the benefit of Rev. Mr. Kerridge. Mr. Kerridge is well worthy a large donation, and we trust that there will be a large attendance, and that each one will contribute liberally.

Rev. Mr. Kerridge will commence a series of meetings Thursday evening of this week. We trust that he will meet with great success, but in order that his meetings may be interesting and beneficial, it is necessary that the people, especially the members of the church, should turn out and give him their support.

ONSTED ODDS.

Mr. George Onsted, one of the pioneers of Cambridge township, died last Saturday morning. Funeral services were held at the church Monday at twelve o'clock.

The stage route from here to Brooklyn has again changed hands. Eugene Groger, of Springville, having bought out S. D. Evans, and commenced carrying the mail last Monday.

As soon as the snow began to come Fred Glenn started north after his horse and cutter. He returned Monday without them, having sold the horse and left the cutter.

There is a young lady visiting at George Greenleaf's. She acts as if she intended to stay for sometime. If she lives until Jan. 14, 1901 she will be sweet sixteen.

On Monday while a young man of this place was hauling wood he stepped to the roadside to get a whip. Before he had secured it he made up his mind he did not need the sprout. O. S. Burcham stopped the runaway team before any damage was done, and Bliss will be more careful next time.

Onsted is getting to be so crowded that people live in the streets. Wilson Lee started to move his store last Thursday. He got it within a few rods of the railroad track when he was overtaken by the snow storm. The building remains there yet, and Mr. Lee hopes we will have an early spring.

Last week Wednesday there was a family visiting party at Jerome Snows to witness the marriage of their daughter Franc to Mr. A. F. Maxwell. Tuesday evening of this week a reception was given for the young couple at J. B. Maxwell's. Archer and Franc are very popular young people and we unite with their many friends in wishing them a long and happy married life.

ADDISON ATOMS.

The week opens here with the mercury down 16 degrees below zero.

Sleighing is getting quite good, and farmers have commenced to haul logs to the saw mills in good earnest.

The furniture business now held for sale by Mr. R. J. Eaton, at this place, affords an excellent opportunity for some enterprising man to make money.

Addison now boasts of four watchmakers or "tinkers." Will the editor cite us to another town of equal size possessing a greater number of persons engaged in the "small business." We want to extend them a vote of sympathy.

A shadow shop is the newest thing in order. The printer, dentist, barber, boot-black and newsboy all cater to the good people as seemeth them good; but no man dares risk his camera in the matter of focusing up the village phiz as yet. "Whosoever will, may come."

The Addison Courier wades grandly into the matter of "writing up" some of its illustrious patrons, and thereby attracts considerable attention. As the scribe is an ardent lover of adventure, the killing class, doctors and soldiers, very naturally become the objects of attention, and while the gleanings are spicy and readable, we know that this class of subjects must sometime become exhausted and common folk become the material upon which he will manipulate. Now we never pilled a pioneer or shot a Johnny; no, not even so much as watched the operation at a safe distance; but the remembrance of other deeds which have associated themselves with our history causes an appropriate uneasiness at the thought of our time coming. But some generous soul has assured us that editors are human, hence we close our eyes and resign ourselves to fate.

RIDGEWAY RAMBLES.

Fine sleighing and lots of snow.

Mercury registered 16° to 20° Monday and Tuesday mornings.

Trains all late so far this week.

The ice harvest has commenced and it is about 12 inches thick and as clear as crystal.

The adjourned annual school meeting will be held at the school house in Dist. No. 1, one week from next Monday evening, Feb. 2nd, and all the voters are requested to be present.

The Literary on Friday evening was largely attended, and the program was a success in every particular. The song by the little folks was very fine and well rendered. Miss Kittie Clark is a splendid teacher of young folks for such an occasion.

The committee met on Monday evening and made the necessary arrangements for the annual donation, which will be held at the church next week Wednesday evening. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

Mr. Fred Jones is visiting his brother, Warren Jones.

Quite a good many children about the village are sick with colds.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Riggs went to Saline Tuesday afternoon to attend the funeral of her sister, which took place on Wednesday.

The church social will be held at the home of Mr. Frank Davidson on Friday evening of this week. A cordial invitation to all.

Now that Leap Year is past and gone the young ladies of our village are showing their bravery by giving ladies' tea parties. Last week Friday afternoon Misses Allie and Ida Arner entertained the ladies of the place with a tea party, and on Tuesday afternoon Miss Ella Jackson did likewise. We believe they call them Hen parties. Never mind, Boys, it is a long road that has no end.

The last meeting of the Literary society held at Waring's Hall, Jan. 16, was well attended and an interesting program was carried out, notwithstanding the stormy weather. The next meeting will be held at the same place on Friday evening, Jan. 30th, when the following program will be presented:

Music.
Secretary's report.
Recitation Miss Lottie Arner.
Reading—Mrs. R. H. Nelson.
Music—Miss Flora Smith.
Recitation—Miss Sena Coryell.
Declamation—A. E. Palmer.
Music—Miss Ida Arner.
Reading—A. R. Arner.
Essay—Thomas H. Temple.

RECESS.

Song—J. D. Arner.
Charade.
Dialogue.
Music—Miss Belle Barlow.
Tableau—Reaper's Song, (whistling chorus.)

The program after recess, it will be seen, is varied from the usual order, but we think it will be the more interesting for that. A cordial invitation is extended to everybody to come and see the new hall and encourage the society. Admission free, but a collection will be asked for to defray expenses.

By Order of Ex. Com.

Macon Grange, No. 167, will hold an open meeting on Friday, Jan. 30th, at 7:30 o'clock P. M., with the following program:

Opening Song—Choir.
Prayer—Rev. Chas. S. Dutton.
Recitation—Jennie Osgood.
Essay—Nelia Russell.
Inst. Music—Emma Miller.
Reading—Susie M. Osgood.
Song—Mrs. Chas. S. Dutton.
Recitation—Emma Bailey.
Address—Rev. Chas. S. Dutton.
Recess.
Question for discussion—Bohemian Oats.

The Agricultural Society of Lenawee County will hold its annual meeting on Friday, Jan. 30, at 10 o'clock A. M. A cordial invitation is extended to all who are interested in the success of the county fair.

ONE AND TWO.

If you to me be true,
Or I be true to you,
The world will move, I think,
Just as it used to do.
The clouds will hurry with the moon,
The sun will kiss the sea,
The wind to the trees will whisper,
And laugh at you and me.
But the sky will not shine so bright,
The clouds not seem so white,
To one as they will to two,
If I think you had be not kind
And I had best be true,
And left the old love go on,
Just as it used to do.

If the whole of a page be read,
If a book be finished through,
Still the world may read on, I think,
Just as it used to do.
For other lovers will come
The places we have passed,
And the treacherous end of the binding
Will glitter unto the last.
It opens only to one book,
And one may not read the book—
So I think you had better be kind,
And I had best be true,
And let the reading go on,
Just as it used to do.

If we who have sailed together
Fall out of each other's view,
The world will sail on and think,
Just as it used to do.
And we may be rocked by stars
That flash from different skies,
And another M. Love's pirates
May capture my lost prize.
But sailing long time together
Can better the tempest weather
Than any other two,
So I think you had better be kind,
And I had best be true,
That we together may sail,
Just as we used to do.

"IT WAS AN ACCIDENT."

Careless Mishaps That Might Have Been Avoided.

Perhaps it was an accident, but it does not follow that the accident is excusable. A man comes hastily along the sidewalk, looking neither to the right nor left, and pushes you into the gutter, or hits you in the eye with his umbrella. It is possible that he is civil enough to say: "Excuse me, sir!" and it would be considered uncivil for you to reply: "I wish that you would be a little more careful." Another tumbles down stairs and breaks his leg, expecting a great deal of sympathy from his friends, while if he had only put one foot before the other with proper deliberation the accident would not have happened. Another falls from a precipice and is killed; if he had kept at a reasonable distance from the edge his life would not have been sacrificed. Another gets his hand caught in a circular saw and loses his arm; if he had been careful the calamity would have been as sided. These are familiar illustrations of what comes of heedlessness.

A railway train strikes another at full speed; both are demolished and many lives are lost; it is reported as an "accidental collision," but it is an accident that might have been prevented. The walls of a building fall and bury a certain number of people in the ruins; it is said to be an accident, but if the edifice had been properly constructed the walls would not have given away. A house takes fire and burns to the ground, and if it is not the work of an incendiary, it is announced in the papers as an "accidental conflagration," whereas, if the flues had been as they should be, or the box of matches had not been exposed to the rats, or the smoker had not emptied his pipe into the straw, the insurance company would not have been called to make the loss good. A powder mill accidentally blows up, an accident that would never be likely to happen if the workmen did not become careless and no intruder was ever allowed on the premises. All these things are accidents, inasmuch as they were unexpected and unforeseen, but not in the sense of being without an efficient cause, and in most cases the antecedent cause was preventable and somebody, therefore, is responsible.

There are phenomena in nature which are spoken of as accidental, such as the transmutation of species, the spontaneous springing up of a new order of trees over a surface from which another sort had been removed, the appearance of new colors in flowers, the four-leaved clover, hybrids, monstrosities, and so on; but whether we are able to detect it or not, we are certain that everything in nature is subservient to law; there are no accidents in that region. There was a time when the movements of the wind were supposed to be capricious; while the direction in which it will blow on the morrow is now predicted with a fair degree of certainty. The deluge of rain, the long and withering drought, the striking of the thunderbolt, the malarial pestilence in the atmosphere, in former days, were attributed to chance, or, perhaps, to the interference of malign spirits. We have risen to a higher conception of what is going on around us.

"All nature is but art, unknown to thee;
All chance, direction, which thou canst not see."

There is a law which determines even the turning up of dice, and it has been ascertained by experiment that, when two friends throw dice together for a certain number of times, the aggregate result will be about the same on both sides. The drawing of lots is more fortuitous, and comes nearer the common notion of chance or pure accident than anything else.

Great discoveries and inventions are sometimes attributed to accident. Newton happened to see an apple fall from a tree, and this revealed the law of gravitation. Galileo observed a hanging lamp swinging in the chancel of a church, and so discovered the principle of the pendulum. Watts saw the lid of the teakettle rise and fall, and the steam-engine followed; but thousands of people had seen apples fall and lamps swing and lids rise, without any result. It is intelligence which transforms these accidents into causes. Once in awhile a discovery is made by what may properly be called an accident, as in the instance of the experimentalist who, in trying to bleach his rubber-aprons, found out that the substance itself was changed in character by the action of the power to which it was exposed. This result was accidental beyond all question.

Success in life is often attributed to chance. Fortune seems to favor one man more than another; the variation in stocks which makes one person rich, ruins another; but, as a general rule, men do not blunder upon riches, and the few who do, are very apt to blunder back into poverty. It is not always the wisest who prosper most, but there is likely to be some peculiar gift, or knack in making money, existing in the make-up of the successful man, which his unfortunate neighbor does not possess. And it may be that the former is willing to resort to expedients, which the other would not imitate for all the gold of Golconda.

The attainment of office and station is not the result of accident. It is very possible that the successful aspirant does not merit the honors which are showered upon him, but they do not drop upon him out of the clouds. One who has reached the highest pinnacle of fame may seem to be only "the accident of an accident," but it is not the idle wind that has blown him to the top; it may be the machinery of party, the mighty derrick that lifts so many dead weights up to the high places for which they are so poorly fitted, at any rate, it is something besides accident.

Great social changes and political revolutions are sometimes attributed to accident; the tide of battle may be turned by a fit of indigestion, or a slight delay in delivering a message, or, perhaps, a change in the wind. Rhode Island was the last State that entered the Federal Union, and the story goes that the vote which finally settled the matter was determined by the fact that a certain member of the Legislature, known to be opposed to the measure, was detained at home for the purpose of repairing his pig-pen. It is not, however, to be supposed that the little State would have held out much longer, irrespective of the pig-pen.

Crimes are not infrequently detected by some little accident, but only on condition that the trifling circumstance falls under the eye of a shrewd and intelligent observer. Dr. John Donne, a famous divine and poet, who lived three hundred years ago, was strolling about in his church-yard while the sexton was opening a grave, and as he happened to throw up a skull Dr. Donne observed a rusty nail protruding from the temples, which he removed and put in his pocket. Upon inquiring who it was that had been buried there the sexton informed him that it was a jolly old soul, much given to drink, who was found dead in bed one morning after a carouse the night before. "Had he a wife?" asked the doctor. "Yes," was the reply. "What character does she bear?" "A very good one; only the neighbors reflect on her because she married the day after her husband was buried." This was enough for the doctor, who, under the pretense of visiting his parishioners, called on the woman; when he asked her several questions, and among others, what sickness her husband died of. She gave him the same account he had before received, whereupon he suddenly opened his handkerchief and cried in an authoritative voice, "woman, do you know this nail?" She was struck with horror at the unexpected demand, instantly owned the fact, and was brought to trial and executed. Dr Donne's happening to walk in the church-yard just as this skull was thrown up, may be regarded as accidental, but if he had not been an observing man it would have resulted in nothing.

There are what we call "happy accidents," as when a man makes only one great speech, or writes only one good poem, or performs one brilliant feat, and then relapses into obscurity. One striking jet, and the fountain is exhausted. The wonder is, whatever made the waters gush out at all, and we call it a happy accident. The same phrase is applied to the child "who is born with a silver spoon in his mouth," although he may have to eat ashes before his life is over. It used to be considered a happy accident when one drew a prize in a lottery, while the general impression now is, that it would be better if everybody drew blanks.—Bishop Clark, in N. Y. Ledger.

JUDGE AND JURY.

How an English Judge Dismissed a Jury and Their Verdict.

An opinion is gaining ground that jury verdicts are no more certain to be just than the decision of Judges who have been trained to weigh evidence. Perhaps it is this conviction which secures acquiescence in the practice described as follows by C. H. Stephens: "But and this is another difference between the real and the ideal in the jury system, we have in a large number of cases the more extraordinary spectacle of a jury solemnly sitting through a trial for the purpose of listening to the evidence and forming their own opinion as to the guilt or innocence of the accused, and then being instructed by the Court as to the verdict they shall find. It is, as every one knows, the most common of occurrences for the Judge to lecture the jury upon their verdict and then refuse to receive it. That the Judge should be more correct than the jury is not impossible, but then wherefore the jury? In an English case in which the jury had brought in 'guilty' Mr. Justice Maule addressed the prisoner as follows: 'Prisoner at the bar, your counsel thinks you innocent; the counsel for the prosecution thinks you innocent. I think you innocent. But a jury of your own countrymen, in the exercise of such common sense as they possess, and it does not seem to be much, have found you guilty, and it remains that I should pass upon you the sentence of the law. That sentence is that you be kept in imprisonment for one day, and as that day was yesterday, you may now go about your business.'"—Popular Science Monthly.

—Everybody knows how the sudden cessation of a thundering band of music causes remarks to be shouted out in a tone like a locomotive whistle. The other night at a hop the band crushed out a few final bars and suddenly stopped, when the voice of a lovely little thing in pink was heard screaming at the top of her lungs: "Don't my bustle hang nicely?"—Chicago Tribune.

A LIFE OF HARDSHIPS.

A Providence Boy's Experience as a Deserter from the French Army.

The News printed, on Saturday, a story of a boy who enlisted in the French army and deserted three times. The names were withheld because the parents desired to keep to themselves the greatest trouble of their lives. But now as they have decided to appeal to the Secretary of State for assistance in getting their son out of the army, it were better that the names be given, that they may have the sympathy, at least, of those who know the facts. The father's name is Simon Herion, a Prussian, who came to this country about fourteen years ago. He is employed in the Wanskuck Mills, is a citizen of the United States, and is highly esteemed for his industry, his Christian character and worth. His wife is a Swiss, who lived on the French side of the Confederacy. Hence, the father speaking German and the mother French, the boys (Henry and John) became fluent in the use of both. It is unnecessary to repeat the story of the boys' wanderings. It closed with the fact that Henry, the elder brother, had been recaptured after his third desertion and led back to prison. News has been received that he was sentenced to fifteen years' hard labor with the chain-gang. There are three French military posts in Algeria. At one of these Henry is held. They live in tents, and the fare is wretched. The guard has orders to shoot any one who attempts to desert. But every one of them can be bought.

When Henry was recaptured after one desertion he was kept 120 days in an underground dungeon, given only bread and water, and a little dirty soup once a week. The hardships through which he has passed seem almost incredible. When John reached Algeria he went into the country to find the farmer for whom Henry worked. The farmer was away on a two days' journey. John waited for his return, and learned that Henry was in a place near the coast through which John passed. As he stated in the other account, John reached this place to see Henry led away by a French officer. If he had not lost two days waiting for the return of the farmer, he would have found Henry before the officer discovered him, and he might have escaped. John at once started for home, and is expected every day. Henry Herion is a minor, not twenty years of age, and on this ground an attempt will be made through the Secretary of State to effect his release.

Since writing the above it has been learned that the son John has this morning reached his home in Wanskuck. He left Algeria on November 22.—Providence News.

A FIREBALL.

An Intrepid Doctor Notes Its Course Along the Earth.

A few years ago Dr. Tripe was watching a very severe thunder-storm when he saw a fireball come quietly gliding up to him, apparently rising from the earth rather than falling toward it. Instead of running away, like a practical man, the intrepid doctor held his ground quietly and observed the fiery monster with scientific nonchalance. After continuing its course for some time in a peaceful and regular fashion, however, without attempting to assault him, it finally darted off at a tangent in another direction, and turned apparently into forked lightning. A fireball, noticed among the Glendowan mountains in Donegal, behaved even more eccentrically, as might be expected from its Irish antecedents. It first skirted the earth in a leisurely way for several hundred yards like a cannon ball; then it struck the ground, ricocheted, and once more, bounded along for another short spell, after which it disappeared in the boggy soil, as if it were completely finished and done for. But in another moment it rose again, nothing daunted, with Celtic irrepressibility, several yards away, pursued its ghostly course across a running stream (which shows, at least, there could have been no witchcraft in it), and finally ran to earth for good in the opposite bank, leaving a round hole in the sloping peat at the spot where it buried itself. Where it first struck it cut the peat as if with a knife and made a broad, deep trench which remained afterward as a witness of its eccentric conduct. If the person who observed it had been of a superstitious turn of mind, we should have had here one of the finest and most terrifying ghost stories on the entire record, which would have made an exceptionally splendid show in the "Transactions of the Society for Psychical Research." Unfortunately, however, he was only a man of science, ungifted with the precious dower of poetical imagination; so he stupidly called it a remarkable fireball, measured the ground carefully like a common engineer, and sent an account of the phenomenon to that far more prosaic periodical, the Quarterly Journal of the Meteorological Society. Another splendid apparition thrown away recklessly, forever!—Cornhill Magazine.

Farmers as Business Men.

It is popularly supposed by a large class of farmers that none but business men need to acquire a knowledge of business forms and rules. To their mind the business man occupies a position similar to the lawyer and the doctor; he learns his trade and proceeds to get a living by it. This class of men believe that business forms are unintelligible, whereas they are very simple. He is as respectful at the mention of the words "percentage," "draughts," "bill of lading," invoice," as he is when he hears the family physician talk Latin. But every farmer is a business man. He has crops to go to market; he wants to sell to the best advantage; he has to sell oftentimes on credit, and he is continually buying. To all intents and purposes he is a business man. It would seem very desirable, however, that the younger men, who are one day to fill the places of the present generation, should learn how to handle with ease and accuracy the business forms and methods which commercial men by long practice and experience have reduced to a system.—Boston Globe.

A MARVELOUS STORY

TOLD IN TWO LETTERS.

FROM THE SON: "98 Cedar St., New York, Oct. 28, 1882.

"Gentlemen, My father resides at Glover, Vt. He has been a great sufferer from Scrofula, and the inclosed letter will tell you what a marvelous effect has had in his case. I think his blood must have contained the humor for at least ten years; but it did not show, except in the form of a scrofulous sore on the wrist, until about five years ago. From a few spots which appeared at that time, it gradually spread so as to cover his entire body. I assure you he was terribly afflicted, and an object of pity, when he began using your medicine. Now, there are few men of his age who enjoy as good health as he has. I could easily name fifty persons who would testify to the facts in his case.

Yours truly, W. M. PHILLIPS."

FROM THE FATHER: "It is both a pleasure and a duty for me to state to you the benefit I have derived from the use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Six months ago I was covered with a terrible humor and scrofulous sores. The humor caused an incessant and intolerable itching, and the skin cracked so as to cause the blood to flow in many places whenever I moved. My sufferings were great, and my life a burden. I commenced the use of the SARSAPARILLA in April last, and have used it regularly since that time. My condition began to improve at once. The sores have all healed, and I feel perfectly well in every respect—being now able to do a good day's work, although 73 years of age. Many inquire what has wrought such a cure in my case, and I tell them, as I have been tried to tell you, AYER'S SARSAPARILLA. Glover, Vt., Oct. 21, 1882. Yours gratefully,

HIRAM PHILLIPS."

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA cures Scrofula and all Scrofulous Complaints, Erysipelas, Eczema, Ringworm, Blotches, Sores, Boils, Tumors, and Eruptions of the Skin. It clears the blood of all impurities, aids digestion, stimulates the action of the bowels, and thus restores vitality and strengthens the whole system.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Burns, Sore Throat, Lameness, Rheumatism, Piles, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Bronchitis, Croup, Salt Rheum, Chilblains, Affection of the Spine, Erysipelas, Nervous Irritation, and all disorders attendant with Inflammation.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means its controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame, every bone, muscle, vein, nerve and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years.

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should be perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Prices, 25 and 50 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

WHITE SEAL BURNING OIL!

The New York Board of Health estimates that 20,000 lives have been destroyed by the explosive qualities of petroleum. If every household would adopt the White Seal Oil for family use, none of these unfortunate accidents would occur.

WHITE SEAL BURNING OIL

Has none of the defects usually found in common oils. It cannot be exploded, does not char the wick, will not smoke, emits no offensive odor and prevents the breaking of chimneys.

WHITE SEAL BURNING OIL

Is a rich oil for illuminating purposes. It is as light in color as pure spring water. It gives a strong steady light and burns much longer than common oils.

If this oil is not sold in your vicinity, send your order direct to us for a barrel or a case containing two five-gallon cans.

ELECTRIC LIGHT SOAP

INDIANAPOLIS, INDIANA.

ATKINS SOAP COMPANY.

TO THE WOMEN OF AMERICA.

We appeal to the intelligence and good management required to save your strength and take this method to place in your hands an agent, which, with absolute safety to the fabric, will wash clothes with less work than any other in the world.

~~ATKINS ELECTRIC LIGHT SOAP SAVES WOMEN.~~
ATKINS ELECTRIC LIGHT SOAP SAVES CLOTHES.

Wash as you please, and it will make you its friend. Soak, boil and don't rub; or soak, rub and don't boil. We advocate dispensing, so far as possible with the washboard, because it wears the clothes out and wears you out. The soap contains no mineral to give it weight, and no pulp to give it size; therefore frequent boiling will not yellow or injure the clothes, but soaking and boiling with ELECTRIC LIGHT SOAP does clean and disinfect them. One thing is certain; it produces glorious results, is an economical soap and is so pure and harmless that the writer washes his head with it without injuring a hair, and he isn't bald either. Try it in the Laundry, Kitchen and Bath. Ask your grocer for it and take no other.

FOREIGN GOSSIP.

—It costs over $8,000 a year, it is said, to keep and clean the crown jewels of England.

—The sun shone in London 974 hours out of a possible 1,000 during 1883. This was an average of 2.7 a day.

—The oldest restaurant in Christendom is the Rothskeller, in Bremen, Germany. It boasts nearly seven centuries of continuous existence.

—It is claimed that a new variety of hippopotamus has been discovered on a remote part of the river Nile. It is named and was hitherto unknown.

—Of 600,000 widows in India under sixteen years of age prohibited by law from marrying again, 20,000 are less than fourteen years old and 78,000 less than nine.

—Three hundred camels have recently been imported into Australia, and more are to follow soon. Should they thrive, multiply and prove useful, it is predicted by enthusiasts that the time may come when they will be introduced into Southern Europe and even into England.

—An English writer remarks that in an age which is fond of celebrating "centenaries" and "quincentenaries" it seems strange that no one has proposed to celebrate the "millenary" of the taking of London from the Danes by King Alfred, which occurred in the year 884.

—A neat little story is told of Marshal von Moltke, illustrating his love of flowers. The other day he left Ragatz, in Switzerland, with a large bouquet. At the Austrian boundary the officials refused to pass the bouquet on account of the phylloxera quarantine, whereupon the General changed his route and took another railway.

—The Paris police are making vigorous efforts to put down betting-houses, and the other day three bookmakers were fined various amounts by the Tribunal of the Seine. The reasons given by the President for the conviction of the offenders are somewhat curious. Betting-houses, he remarked, must be governed by the same law as gaming-houses, "because the majority of the public who frequent these places are not competent to form a rational opinion as to the relative prospects of the horses, and, therefore, betting is a game of chance."

The Fall of Bacon.

May 3, 1621. The fall of Bacon, Lord High Chancellor of England, on this memorable day, brought with it no concentrated or sensational scene in Westminster Hall, and yet the world agrees that it was a spectacle for both angels and men. As an event it was melancholy enough, but as a trial it was without the presence of the offender. When summoned to the bar, he sent his confession in his stead. When personally sought, he could only say: "It is my act, my hand, my heart. Oh, my lords, spare a broken reed!" When the sentence was given he lay sick in his bed. It was the anguish of a great mind working death to a mean spirit.

He had reached the goal of what was, to such a one as he, an inadequate ambition. He had reached it through his genius as a lawyer, an orator and a statesman. But he had reached it also through his crouching arts as a courtier. He lowered it even in his own mind, by the means which he employed to get it. High as it intrinsically was as an office in the state, he was equal to a higher in the service of the world, and yet he could be tempted by its empty dignity and emolument in such a service as that of King James. He could lay aside the pageant of his thoughts for the pomp of this position. What has been called the most exquisitely constructed intellect ever given to man could yet be led aside by a judgment and perception so weak as to see meaning and glory in show and sham. The reflection of his strange infirmity is apparent in the very record of his imposing induction into his place. A letter of the time says: "To the Hall, besides his own retinue, did accompany him all the lords of his Majesty's Council and others, with all knights and gentlemen that could get horses and foot cloths.' 'He was accompanied," says Chamberlain, "by most of the nobility, with other gallants to the number of more than two hundred horses, besides judges and the Inns of Court. . . . . Both queen and prince sent all their following, and his other friends did their best to honor him." When he had arrived at his place, he made a speech to the multitude who had been attracted to the Hall. This might have done for the first day, and might well have been a spontaneous testimony of the public pleasure at the elevation of one already so illustrious; but he enjoyed, he desired it too much himself 'how unlike Sir Thomas More in the self-same position under a greater and more showy king!—for he tried to keep up this splendid state, "exceeding all his predecessors in the bravery and multitude of his servants." The real grandeur of his office—what an incongruity in in the author of the "Essays" that he did not see it—was in its purity, not its pomp; and it was in trying to maintain its pomp instead of its purity that he fell.

If he did not rise to this conception, the people did; if he was dazzled by his own display, the people were not. It was one of the tremendous events of the time, that their moral sense was equal to his overthrow. When the Commons impeached him at the bar of the Lords, it was the revolt of the people not so much at what he had done as at the bribery and corruption which filled the court of the King, the keeper of whose conscience he was. When his own conscience was set free by this enlightenment, he said: "I was the justest judge that was in England these fifty years; but it was the justest censure in Parliament that was there these two hundred years." That was the very point to which the public sentiment had risen, and it caught him where he ought not to have been. His meanness had made him the scape goat of the King, when his greatness ought to have made him the sacrificing priest for the people. He crouched beneath the charge, not only from timidity and conscious guilt, but at the earnest desire of the frightened despot frightened at an attitude of the Commons which revealed their consciousness of strength; frightened lest a worse insition into wide-spread corruption should be provoked; frightened at what Bacon himself had prophesied, that if the attack upon him should be successful, the next movement would not stop short of the throne. If he had stood his trial, he himself, amid such an atmosphere, might have escaped, but it would have precipitated the revolution which was close at hand. Such was the significance of Bacon's forced exit from Westminster Hall.—Rev. Treadwell Walden, in Harper's Magazine.

Palovzean Funeral Customs.

In the grave-yards of the Palovzes, in the counties of Forsod and Hoves, may be seen here and there pyramidal monuments of stone, with niches in their sides for images of the saints. They are a survival from the ancient heathen altars of these people, the Kumanians of old, which were erected in honor of the sun-god, and to this day also may be seen on many of the houses of the Palovzes the symbol of the pyramid with Baal's eye, the use of which has come down from generation to generation, without the peasants knowing what it means. Children who die still-born, or without having received baptism, are buried as near as possible to the pyramidal monuments. It is a part of the folk-lore of the Palovzes that the little ones who are laid to rest near these Baal-pillars will at the end of seven years come out from their graves, when, if some good soul will come near them and utter the baptismal formula, they will immediately become little angels and go to heaven; but if the baptism is not given they will have to wait seven years longer for another opportunity to be released. Many other reminiscences of Baal-worship survive among these people. The mother who has lost a young child wraps her head, as a sign of mourning, in a fiery red cloth. The former prevalence of cremation is indicated in the custom of burning the clothes which the deceased wore last. The tear-jugs of the ancients may still be found in the houses, of exactly the old form and size, but destined to a quite different purpose. Another peculiar custom at the funeral feast is to lay a plate with salt and bread upon the table, for the use of the soul of the departed one, if it should appear in the circle of friends.—Popular Science Monthly.

Plants in Literature and Superstition.

The earliest folk-lore of India described a tree whose fruit eaten by the birds made them immortal, in such a manner as to suggest the tree of life, which with us has become a household word. Nor hern mythology had a tree which was wide as the universe. The gods met under its shadow, and guardians, which typified past, present and future, protected the sacred growth. When the sacredness of the tree was so early an article of religious faith we can no longer wonder at the reverential feelings the Druids had for the oak trees; nor that Bryant should have been inspired to write that great invocation which begins:

"The groves were God's first temples."

Study of that poem might add breadth to the character of even a professional naturalist. It could hardly fail to warm one neglected side of his nature—the emotional. Poetical allusions to plant life are not all weakened by the license of inaccuracy. Tennyson's "In Memoriam" contains in that address to the Yew tree, which begins, "Old warder of these buried bones," three clear statements of scientific facts, that is, one in each third line of each stanza. Of these the second one is a distinct statement of the doctrine of cross-fertilization.

"Evangeline" contains at least one hundred and fifty allusions to plant life. And the scene in the Bayou of Plaquemine, even if it lacks the accuracy of science, is nevertheless an effective picture of the dreary surroundings. His "Sea Weed" is exquisite in measure and euphony

"When descends on the Atlantic
The gigantic
Storm wind of the Equinox,
Landward in his wrath he scourges
The toiling surges,
Laden with seaweed from the rocks."

Lee Hunt's "chorus of flowers" is philosophy as well as poetry. The same might be said of Burns's "Address to the Daisy." Lowell's verses on the dandelion give a complete picture of child-life in spring. Tom Hood's poem, "Flowers," contains allusions to nearly every human trait. Read Bayard Taylor's lines on the "Palm," where, after his sweetheart and his horse, the Arab says:

"Next to ye both, I love the Palm,
With his leaves of beauty, his fruit of balm;
Next to ye both, I love the tree,
Whose fluttering shadow wraps us three
With love, and silence, and mystery."

The last stanza of Fenner's "Gulf Weed" appeals to every human heart and to every restless mind that seeks a wider sphere.

Burns' "Petition of Bruar Water," in charming measure, explains the relation between shade of the trees and the conservation of rainfall. So, too, does his poem on John Barleycorn tell the tale of the human fall as reached through a deluge of Scotch whiskey, while James Smith uses the fabled upas to illustrate the gin curse of England.

"Brittania this Upas Tree bought of Mynheer,
'Tis now a stock plant of the genus wolf's bane,
And one of them blossoms in Marybone lane."

It is somewhat remarkable in all that Shakspeare has written, how few are his allusions to plant life. True, there are many of them, and always wonderfully forcible, but, as compared with Bryant, they are not common.

He seldom appeared to need them for his own ideas, but used the plants more when he touched on the opinions and superstitions of others. "Macbeth" contains some of his choicest allusions. Root of hemlock, slips of yew and Birnam wood, all are pungent with meaning. So, too, is the phrase, "'tis in his buttons," in the "Merry Wives of Windsor."

The "Midsummer Night's Dream" in one sense hinges on the relative strength of supernatural force residing in the pansy and in the bud of Angus Castus.—Prof. Lathrock, Fairmount Park Lecturer.

A STRANGE PHENOMENA.

What an Eye-Witness Has to Say About the Underground Fires Now Raging in Highland County, Virginia.

Among the recent arrivals in the city was Mr. Edward B. Elder, of Highland County, Virginia. Of late there have been reports from that section of the country of a strange phenomena which was said to have been witnessed in the mountains a few miles from Monterey Court House, Highland County, where the earth was said to be one burning mass. The fact that Mr. Mullatton was known to be in another quarter of the globe gave the story some credence, and more especially so as it was vouched for by responsible men. A reporter, learning of Mr. Elder's arrival, went in search of him last night to see if he knew anything concerning the matter. He was found comfortably ensconced in a cushioned chair at the Galt House, talking to some friends. When asked if he had heard of the strange performance nature was said to be guilty of, he replied:

"It is certainly true, and is the most remarkable thing I ever heard of. From present indications I should say that we are likely to have another edition of Mount Vesuvius produced in the mountains of Virginia. The phenomena consists of fires which seem to be raging under the earth, on top of the peaks in Highland County, and the ground for a considerable distance seems to be a smoldering mass. The first heard of it was a report brought by a boy who claimed to have walked over the place which was on fire. The country around is almost inaccessible, and it is very seldom that any one ventures so far up on the mountains, therefore it was only by accident that the discovery was made. A few days ago the boy, who was in search of some lost sheep, wandered on foot among the hills, until he got several miles from home. All at once he felt the air grow warmer, and experienced a strange sensation, as if some burning substance was beneath him. He was on an elevated plateau, probably a quarter of a mile square, on the top of one of the small mountains. At first he was greatly alarmed and started to run away. His curiosity overcame his fear, however, and he stopped to see if he could find the cause of the unusual warmth. He stooped and placed his hand on the earth, and was startled to find that it was so hot as to almost blister his flesh. He did not pursue his researches any further, but proceeded at once to his home, where he told of the strange occurrence. No faith was put in the narrative, and it was thought by the neighbors that the youth was going crazy.

"The news finally reached the town of Monterey, and some scientifically-inclined persons determined to investigate. Procuring the boy for a guide, they went to the place and found that all he had stated was true. When they returned they told even a more wonderful story than that told by the boy. This produced a great sensation throughout the immediate country, and a great many persons were nearly frightened out of their wits. The superstitious were of the belief that the day of judgment was close at hand and began to make preparations to respond to the call of the trumpet, which they momentarily expected to wake the silence of the mountains. I lived some distance away, but when the news reached me I determined to satisfy myself. After nearly a day's travel over the rough mountain road, which wound around cliffs at the foot of overhanging rocks, I arrived within a short distance of the region. I here left my horse, and, together with a couple of friends who had accompained me, proceeded as best I could to the place indicated. I had heard exaggerated stories, and was almost prepared for anything, but I must confess that I was greatly startled. The earth for yards around seemed to be a smouldering heap and was as hot as an oven. In places a hard crust had formed over the clay, and large fissures made by the heat. The air seemed very dense and foggy, and in many places a bluish smoke broke through holes in the earth and spread over the mountain tops. We dug down to the depth of probably three feet and came to a yellowish sort of clay which was almost as soft as putty. When a shovelful was thrown out on the ground it smoldered like a heap of ashes, and a quantity of smoke seemed to rise from it. It was very hot, and glowed with a strange brilliancy, which lasted for hours. We tried the experiment of digging down in a number of places, and always with the same results. The deeper we went the more pronounced was the phenomena, and we found it difficult to stand over the opening. How long this has been in progress no one knows, and the most learned are baffled for a reason. It looks as if a volcano was at work and ready at any moment to burst an opening through the earth and throw out its volume of smoke and fire. Hundreds of people have visited the place, and all have come away more mystified than ever."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Analysis of Soil.

The fertility of the soil is governed by the proportion of fine impalpable powder which exists in it, this powder alone acting directly upon vegetable growth, which it does by entering the roots in solution with the water and acids with which it comes in contact. Put into a large (about a foot and a half long) glass tube the soil to be examined, the sample to be all the soil removed in digging a hole two inches square by eight inches deep in any part of the land to be tested, then fill the tube half full of water and vigorously shake the whole until the contents are well mixed, and afterward allow it to settle. The heavy grains sink first, layers will be formed, the most fine and impalpable being nearest the top, the amount of which will of course govern the degree of the fertility of the sample, and an intelligent inspection of the different layers will allow any one to form a pretty accurate analysis of the soil from which the sample was taken.—San Francisco Chronicle.

MESSRS. C. I. HOOD & CO.: Gentlemen—It affords me much pleasure to recommend HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA. My health has been such that for some years past I have been obliged to take a tonic of some kind in the spring, and have never found anything that hit my wants as your Sarsaparilla. It tones up my system, purifies my blood, sharpens my appetite, and seems to make me over. Respectfully yours,

J. P. THOMPSON.

One of our prominent business men said to us the other day: "In the spring my wife got all run down and could not eat anything; passing your store I saw a pile of HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA in the window, and I got a bottle. After she had been taking it a week she had a rousing appetite, and it did her everything. She took three bottles, and it was the best three dollars I ever invested."

The trial of Dan Holcomb for complicity in the Crouch murders has ended in his acquittal. The people have their own views on the subject, nevertheless. The general verdict will be, Guilty, but not proven.

Ex-Gov. Begole's recommendation in favor of establishing a pardoning board is entitled to the most serious consideration. No man in Michigan is better qualified to elucidate that subject, than the retiring governor.

Some people claim that the increase of murders in this state is due to the abolition of capital punishment. Is not the abuse of the pardoning power a more prolific cause of the evil? It is the certainty of punishment, rather than its severity, that curtails crime.

There are but few absolute free traders in this country, but there are a great many revenue reformers. If those, who favor the abolition of war taxes and a wise revision of the tariff, are to be stigmatised as "free-traders" the name will soon become very popular.

The Adrian Times has solved the riddle. It says: The real cause of Blaine's defeat has been discovered. He traveled all one Sunday during his campaigning. Up to this violation of the fourth commandment his chances seemed most flattering, but afterward disasters were incessant.

Ex-Gov. St. John strikes out from the shoulder. He challenges the parties who accuse him of bribery to produce their proof. Newspaper charges did very well during the heat of the campaign, but they are very stale reading now. Produce your evidence, gentlemen, or hold your peace.

Gen. Grant, it is said, objects to receiving a pension, but he should be cared for by the government, nevertheless. As soon as the formalities of legislation can be complied with, he should be restored to his old rank in the army and placed on the retired list. Congress can do justice to him and respect his wishes at the same time.

The Buffalo Courier says: "A mathematical official estimates that if Cleveland should busy himself for a year and do nothing but remove Republican officers and appoint Democrats to the vacancies he could not complete the task in that time. There are now about 100,000 office-holders in the country, and if the President were to devote ten hours a day during the three hundred working days in a year, exclusive of Sundays and holidays, he would have to make changes at the rate of 333 a day, or more than one every two minutes, to make a clean sweep.

The New York Times states the whole case in this brief paragraph: "Intent only upon maintaining protective duties at their highest, Mr. Randall denounces the internal revenue taxes and demands their removal as a short and easy way of making high duties an imperative necessity; and he either ignores or is wholly indifferent to the fact that the abolition of $140,000,000 of internal taxes would not only prevent all reduction of duties, but would make it necessary for the Government to borrow money to meet its current expenses and provide for the sinking fund."

The Adrian Record is responsible for the following statement, and its correctness is vouched for by a leading prohibitionist of this village:

It is not generally known how near Allen came to receiving the endorsement of the prohibition congressional convention last fall. That he did not receive it was his own fault. Just before the meeting of the convention, a letter was written him by a leading Adrian prohibitionist, who was in common with others at that time an Allen man, asking him if he wished or would take the nomination from the prohibitionists. The letter was written in good faith and a reply requested in time for a statement to be made to the prohibition congressional convention. Allen never deigned to reply to this letter and by the silent contempt with which he treated it, alienated enough friends to lose him the nomination.

IN MEMORIAM.

The Albuquerque, New Mexico, Journal contains the following beautiful tribute to the memory of Emma A. Hall, which will touch a responsive chord in the hearts of many dear friends of hers, who live in this vicinity:

Miss Emma A. Hall, matron of the Albuquerque Indian school, died suddenly yesterday at 3 o'clock of heart disease. The body was sent east last evening after services by Rev. Menaul.

Miss Hall came to our city from Michigan last October to take a position in the school. She had the appearance of a strong, healthy, vigorous woman, and no one would have expected that in two short months she would be called to her eternal home. She was a lady of culture and refinement, pleasing in her person and manner, and at once won the esteem and regard of her associates. She seemed especially fitted for the work, a great sympathetic nature, a gentle and winning manner, and at the same time a firmness and decision of character making her a real mother to the numerous children under her care. She was in the truest sense of the words a sweet sister of charity. Without ostentation she devoted her life to ministering to the wants of the needy and afflicted. For several years she had charge of the State Reform School for girls, at Adrian, Mich., and she was also matron of the Institution for the deaf, dumb and blind, at Flint.

Her sympathies were aroused on behalf of the Indian children, almost as unfortunate in their mental and spiritual blindness as those she had spent so many years in caring for and she left a large circle of warm and loving friends and relatives to spend her strength for their good. Upon her arrival here she entered heart and soul into the work and displayed marked aptness for it. She was a physician by nature, and the sick and wounded found in her a tender friend and a skilful nurse. She seemed to feel that she was liable to be called suddenly from her earthly work, and in perfect faith she chose to be about her Master's business until He called her.

At a meeting of the faculty of the Albuquerque Indian school, held Dec. 27, 1884, the following resolutions were adopted:

WHEREAS, It has pleased God in his mysterious providence to remove from our midst our beloved friend and fellow worker, Emma A. Hall: therefore,

Resolved, That in the death of Miss Hall the school has sustained no ordinary loss. Although with us but a short time, she proved herself a most earnest worker, efficient and faithful in her duties, showing her devotion to the work in which she was engaged, especially in her care of the sick.

Second. While we sorrow for our beloved sister, so uniformly kind, attentive and thoughtful, yet we believe that her beautiful life has only been transferred beyond the veil into the Holy of Holies; and while she can not return to us, our prayer is that at the call of the Master, we may be prepared to go to her.

Third. To the friends and relatives of our beloved and late co worker we express our sincere and heart-felt sympathy, and pray that they may be sustained in their hour of great affliction, and that they may cling to their Heavenly Father for aid and support as He alone can give.

Fourth. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the friends of the deceased.

A WORD ABOUT THE EXPOSITION.

An Ogden farmer writing to the Adrian Times has this to say about the New Orleans Exposition:—

As far as I have looked it over, the show must certainly be a success, when it is placed in position. There is much yet to be done before people can conveniently get through the buildings. There are hundreds of people at work, some finishing the building, while others are moving heavy cars from place to place, unloading large boxes, and placing the contents in their proper locations. On inquiry I am informed that the exposition will not be in fair running order until near the first of February, at which time the weather will be much milder than it is now. Those wishing to see the largest collection of the world's industries aggregated at one place, should not fail to come to New Orleans then. We think that Solomon, with all his wisdom and collections, would be but a mere side-show compared with this.

As to routes, everyone can choose for themselves, but having traveled over both, we think the Cincinnati route is preferable, from the fact that there is no scenery by the Chicago route worth noticing except one mud hole nearly four hundred miles long. There is plenty to eat here, at reasonable rates, at this time.

The traveling public—to which all may belong some day or another—will read with a living interest Professor Thomson's article in the February "Popular Science Monthly" on "The Sight and Hearing of Railway Employees," in which is described the system of tests that has been adopted by the Pennsylvania railroad. The system is simple and sure, has been satisfactory to the men, and in its results, has added vastly to the efficiency of the railway service and the security of passengers. In "The Larger Import of Scientific Education," Major Powell claims preference for such education. Lucy M. Hall, M. D., offers some excellent observations on the Physical Training of Girls." Other articles equally worthy of mention with these will be found in this number. New York: D. Appleton & Co. Fifty cents a number. $5 a year.

Cassell's Family Magazine is strong in its fiction. There are few more attractive serials running in any magazine than "Sweet Christabel" by Arabella M. Hopkinson. There is a large installment of this and of "A Diamond in the Rough," by Alice O'Hanlon. Then there are shorter stories for those who like to take their fiction at one mouthful. The hero worshiper will find much to his taste in the facsimiles from "Our Autograph Book," and the practical minded will find much valuable information on "The Secret of Making Clear Soups."—Cassell & Co., Limited, New York, $1.50 a year.

FRANKLIN & TECUMSEH FARMER'S CLUB.

The last meeting of the "Franklin and Tecumseh Farmer's Club" was held at the residence of B. Hurry. After admitting several new members the following program was carried out.

Song—Mrs. Will Waldron.

Declamation—Clarence Hurry.

Select reading—Mrs. Walter Osborn.

Poetry, entitled, "The old way and the new.

Essay—Mrs. Henry Wilson, "Monday's work."

The Question,—Does Farming pay at the present time? was opened by Henry Wilson, who took the ground that good farming paid even at the present low prices of produce and showed figures of Dr. and Cr. account on ten acres of land which showed a good profit.

W. S. Osborn claimed there was no money in farming and gave figures which showed a balance on the wrong side of the ledger. The discussion was taken part in by nearly all present, and it was finally concluded that farming paid about as well as any other branch of business at the present time. The following program was given out for the next meeting which is to be held at the home of Mr. H. Hoag, on Wednesday eve., Jan. 21st.

Music—Choir.

Recitation—Maud Poucher.

Select Reading—Mrs. H. Hoag.

Essay—Mrs. B. Hurry.

Question—Are farm wages proportionate to the price of produce at the present time? Opened by Hamilton Hoag.

HENRY WILSON, Sec.

Essay read by Mrs. Henry Wilson:

I do not expect to give much information to the lady members of the club, but thought I would give my method of doing work on Monday, and perhaps some others would give theirs, and in this way we would get some new ideas.

As I usually keep help it is the girls work to get the breakfast, while I dress the children, and attend to the milk, before sitting down to breakfast. I like to have the boiler filled with nice clean rainwater, and set over the fire so as to heat while we are at breakfast. As soon as breakfast is over, I put my beds to air while we are washing.

Having assorted the clothes that are to be washed, I put my flannels to soak in luke warm water, not making a very strong suds. I will say here before going any further, that I use patent soap, ball blueing, a tin washer, and a good wringer. I then put my first tub of white clothes to soak in hot suds. I give the flannels a good pounding with the washer, then rub them on the wash-board, and ring; then rinse them in soft water of the same temperature as they were washed in.

When it is very cold weather I hang my flannels on the clothes-bars in the house to dry. Also my colored starched clothes; the flannels finished, I put the second tub of white clothes to soak in hot suds. By this time the morning work is finished, the boiler refilled, and we are now ready to use the washer and rub the remainder of the clothes. I boil only the most soiled clothing. I suds my clothes in hot water, and blue them in cold water. I usually get the sweeping, moping, and lower sleeping-rooms attended to before dinner. If the clothes dry on Monday, which they do with but few exceptions, I bring them in, dampen and fold, ready for ironing on Tuesday. What time I have aside from housekeeping, etc., I spend in knitting, or some light work, or reading.

A CHRISTMAS GIFT.

EDITOR HERALD.—The Presbyterian church of this place sent at Christmas time two boxes of clothing, books, etc., to Rev. Mack G. Johnson a minister to the Freedmen, at Columbia, S. C., and I myself one of the race to which he ministers. He has sent a letter of acknowledgment from which I take the following extracts for publication:

My dear brother, you have no idea how much good the things will do these poor children and people. Many will be made comfortable during this cold weather through the Christian charity of our Northern friends. You spoke the truth when you said you and your people have much to bear; yet you have no idea what many of my people have to go through and suffer. It is true that they are not compelled to make bricks without straw, under the lash of the task masters. But their condition is just as deplorable and in some cases worse. Though a young man, I have lived under the old and new dispensation and have some experience of both. I was born a slave and remained so until a Moses in the person of Sherman came. The deliverance of the Israelites was not all that Moses had to do. He stood by them, until they crossed the Red Sea, and then he guided them through the wilderness. My dear brother, I feel that we have not crossed the Red Sea yet. We are hemmed up. Before us is the sea of ignorance. On either side of us are the great mountains of poverty and superstition. Behind us, prejudice and injustice. We need the aid, prayers, and sympathy of Christians and philanthropists. May God bless those who feel our case, and raise up others who will lend a helping hand in removing these mountains and assist in leading these six millions of souls to the promised land.

In the hope that these statements may have the effect of awakening a wider sympathy for these poor Freedmen, Yrs. Truly,

WM. H. BABBITT.

Prof. Simon Newcomb, of Washington, will have a paper describing "The Lick Observatory of California," with illustrations, in the February Harper's. The story of the making of the great telescope, for which the observatory was built, and that of the life of the great California millionaire who gave it, belong to the truth which is more interesting than fiction.

GUMBO CATCHES THE FLORIDA FEVER.

Joshua Gumbo did'nt rise with the lark yesterday morning. In fact, it was exceedingly doubtful for some time whether he would rise at all. Jerusha got up and started the fire according to her usual custom, and then proceeded to thaw out the rest of the family. Mrs. Gumbo is an enthusiast on hygiene. She believes that an ounce of hygienic prevention is worth a pound of pills the year round. Among her hobbies are a frequent application of soft soap and rain-water and a plentiful supply of fresh air. To secure the latter she always raises the bed-room window upon retiring. The first move made yesterday morning was to look at the thermometer. The bulb had bursted during the night and the fluid had leaked down into the cellar. The indicator marked forty degrees below zero and no mercury in sight. The tea-kettle had frozen up on the cook stove and was split in twain. Sammy and Sally were rolled up in a Buffalo robe behind the wood-box. The black and tan, which had a bed in the coal-scuttle, was as stiff as a mackerel on the upper deck of an Arctic exploring vessel. Joshua was fixed in a horizontal position by a dozen or more stalactites and icicles, which had formed between his mouth and the ceiling. The "solids" seemed to predominate in that house yesterday morning. Even the pint bottle of old rye, which Joshua kept in the clock for medicinal purposes, was as solid as a brick bat. Jerusha finally restored the children to consciousness and cut Gumbo loose from his icy prison. By the aid of hot blankets and hot drops the man was gradually brought to life, but he did not recover his speech until after supper. He then uncorked himself and boi'ed over.

"The fact is," said Gumbo, as he put the last hickory knot in the cook stove, "my mind's made up. I can't and shan't live in this climate no longer. Why, hang it, it takes all a man's earnins here to pay taxes and buy coal'n wood. I'm going to Floridy. It ain't snow one day and rain the next, and forty b'low the next, down thar. They don't have only one rain storm a year down thar. It begins rainin on the fust day 'o Jenniwary and jest rains 'n rains 'n rains till the fust day 'o Feb'wary and then quits. By that time the wells gets filled up so they'll keep runnin till the next New Years. For 'leven months in the year the sun don't stop shinin at all. And such wegetation. Why, hang it, things can't help growin' down thar. Things jest grows 'n grows 'n grows. Tud-stools grow as big as a wood shed in one night. Why, hang it, look at the bannanner trees down thar. The tree'll make yer houses, and the bark'll make yer bed quilts, and the leaves '" make yer clothes, and the bannanners 'll feed the hull family. A hundred stems of bannanners, that would fill a butter firkin grows on one tree. And then jest look at the oranges 'n the lemons 'n the persimmonses 'n the huge grape-wines as big as a meetin' house down thar. Why, hang it, they harvest four tomater crops a year and they raise speckled beans as large as hen's eggs down thar. They don't do no cookin' for folks lives on cold wittles, or if they want to steep the tea, they jest set the tea-kettle out on top 'o the pump 'n let 'er bile. Why, hang it, you kin leave the winder up all night long down thar. They don't have no black 'n tans down thar. Alligators is the household pets, and they don't add nothin' to the grocery bills. Why, hang it, they pick up their own livin' and grow fat on wisitons 'n pickanninies. Look at Doctor Hause 'n Ben Swan. They're jest rollin' in wealth 'n oranges down thar. No more zero weather in mine, Jerusha. I shall make a vandue of our household truck next Saturday, and the first day 'o Febwary 'll see the Gumbo's in the land 'o oranges and alligators, or my name ain't Joshua, you bet!"

The window was left down last night. Mrs. Gumbo is hopeful that a January thaw will set in before Saturday, and that Joshua's mind will undergo a change. She is making preparations for a quilting bee.

Lydia McNiel left home to-day for Chicago, where she intends to remain several months with the Rev. I. A. Eberhart's family at Chicago Lawn.

Every lady in the county should try a box of the Genuine Putz Pomade in cleaning silver or other ware. It can be procured at the groceries, drug and hardware stores. It is the finest thing ever in the market.

Mr. H. C. Matrau, the new station agent at the M. & O. depot, has taken possession. He is thoroughly posted in the business, and a perfect gentleman withal. We commend him to the good wishes of our business men and the traveling public.

The January term of the Circuit Court convened at Adrian on Tuesday morning. The new Sheriff and Clerk were at their posts of duty. The calendar was called and a disposition made of some of the criminal cases. The jury was called yesterday.

The Rev. Wm. Grandy, former pastor of the Presbyterian church in this place, having recently died at Sioux City, Iowa, a memorial discourse will be delivered by the present pastor, Rev. Wm. H. Babbitt, next Sabbath morning at the ussual hour of morning service.

A letter received yesterday from J. G. Stevens of Belvidere, Ill., which was written on the 19th, states that their thermometer marked 30° below that morning. Mr. Stevens is a son of the late Deacon O. S. Stevens and lived in Clinton. He is now conducting a large dry goods and notion store at Belvidere.

OFF FOR DELAWARE.

P. W. Adams dropped into the HERALD office last Tuesday morning to shake hands previous to his departure for home. We invited him to a seat in the big arm chair by the coal stove and plied him with a few questions about Delaware.

"The truth is," said he, "after three seasons spent in the genial climate of Delaware, I can hardly enjoy a twenty degrees below zero temperature. Of course I like to return to Michigan and visit my old neighbors and friends about Tecumseh, but as a permanent home I am well satisfied with "little Delaware." My farm of 212 acres is located but a short distance from Middletown. There is a railway station near by and the river boats pass up and down the bay only three miles distant. I can go to Philadelphia and back the same day by either rail or steamer, and can go to New York and return the same day by rail. Navigation is open the year round. The soil of Delaware is just as well adapted to staple crops as that of Michigan. We raise wheat, corn, oats, rye, etc. in abundance.—All these crops yield bountifully, and in addition we raise immense quantities of garden truck and small fruits. Our water communication gives us the best facilities for transporting perishable fruits and vegetables to the northern markets and we find ready sale for every thing the farm produces. It is quite likely that I shall return to Michigan some time to live but for the present I shall remain where I am. I leave for home this afternoon and shall take my mother down with me to remain till spring. You must come down and see me next summer sure. Better come in peach time. I have 2,000 peach trees on my farm in full bearing, and peaches and cream are as common an article of diet in my house as pork and beans in Boston." Pulling his cap down over his ears he shook hands and departed.

THE TECUMSEH HERALD.

TECUMSEH, MICH., JAN. 22, 1885.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

Why is'nt Tecumseh given a deputy sheriff?

Twenty degrees below zero. How is that for a mild and open winter?

E. C. Smith, the Chicago agent of the Canada Southern Line, paid Tecumseh a flying visit last Saturday.

Edward Comfort, of Raisin, who has been stopping at Barnsville, Ohio, for the past few months, is home again.

H. Brewer & Co. are represented at the brick and tile convention which is being held at Springfield, Ill., this week.

Addison has no clothing store now. Her citizens can come down on the M. & O. and buy their clothing at Tecumseh.

Mrs. M. A. Freeman respectfully asks those indebted to her to call and settle within the next ten days as she needs her money.

Since last Monday morning we have listened to about three hundred and fifty observations—more or less—concerning the weather.

Mr. Will Bowen, of Adrian, has purchased Jim Cole's big ice house on the Brownville pond, and will engage in the ice business here next summer.

Our enterprising grocer, Henry McClure, has a new card in the HERALD. He wishes to call especial attention to his large stock of crockery and glassware.

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Eccles did some very fine skating at the Adrian rink one evening last week, for which they were highly complimented by the Adrian papers.

James W. Patterson has tired of the California climate and will return to Tecumseh with his family early in April, satisfied that Tecumseh is a good enough home for him.

The Legislative journal comes to our sanctum regularly. It is hardly a success as an illustrated paper, but is as thrilling as a continued story and as entertaining as Webster's unabridged dictionary.

Mr. J. A. Hughes, agent of the L. S. freight office, has kindly furnished us the following report of the business transacted at this station during 1884:

Freight received, 16,530 tons—revenue, $19,812.45. Freight forwarded, 12,843 tons—revenue $22,492.17.

L. A. Bryan, of Homer, was in town last Friday. Mr Bryan is general agent for the Buckeye mowers, reapers and binders, controlling ten counties in southern Michigan, and he is preparing to push business in his new territory during the coming season.

A large crowd of Ridgeway and East Tecumseh farmers assembled together last evening and took John VanVleet by storm. His capacious new house was filled to overflowing, and the company passed a most jolly evening. It was a complete surprise, but Mr. and Mrs. VanVleet acquitted themselves to the full satisfaction of their guests.

The members of the Michigan Mutual Benefit association met at Dr. Catlin's office last Saturday evening and listened to a report from M. P. Brown who attended the annual meeting at Hillsdale last week as a delegate from Tecumseh. He represented the Association to be in a safe and flourishing condition. An effort will be made to increase the membership here.

Adrian Times: Freeman Rice dropped dead while in his barn, two and a half miles north of Clayton, about to begin milking. He was found in about half an hour, the milk pail still on his arm. An autopsy was held Sunday afternoon by the family physician, Dr. Abbott, of Clayton, with Drs. Nix and Dodge, of Hudson. Heart disease was discovered to be the cause of death. Mr. R. has been a prominent man of Hudson township for the past thirty years. He was justice of the peace for a number of years. He leaves a wife and three children.

An exchange has the following forcible address to those who think the home papers should be just as cheap as the city weeklies that are made up at slight expense from dailies: "Do the city papers give you any home news? Nothing. Do they contain notices of our churches, schools, meetings, improvements and hundreds of local matters of interest which the home papers publish without pay? No. Do they ever say a word calculated to draw attention to your county and its numerous thriving towns, and aid in their progress and enterprise? Not a word, and yet there are men who take such contracted views of the subject that unless they got as many square inches of reading matter in their home paper they think they are not getting the worth of their money. It reminds one of the person who took the largest pair of boots in the box because they cost the same as a pair much smaller that fitted him.

Vet Erskine will receive our thanks for late Battle Creek papers.

C. A. Wright & Co., have recently placed in their store two new elegant counter show cases.

Don't forget the Marshall lecture at the Opera House to-morrow evening. It will be illustrated with the stereopticon.

Mr. & Mrs. Hill of Knowlsville, N.Y. are spending a few days at Lucius Bates'. Mrs. Hill is a sister of Mrs. Bates.

The pew renting at the Baptist church last week passed off very satisfactorily. The revenue was well maintained considering the hard times.

J. C. Weeman of Dundee is manufacturing Mill's improved broom and mop holder which is said to take on sight. Address as above for full particulars.

Mr. George A. Barnes, Mayor and also Banker of Olympia, Washington Ter., has been visiting his cousin Bradford Jones at this place, not having met before in 47 years.

When the thermometer is 20° below zero then prepare for a flood. Billy Jordan has been doing some good work cleaning out the gutters, making ready for the thaw when it comes.

The third entertainment of the Library Lecture course comes off tomorrow evening. Secure your tickets at once. Season tickets for the remainder of the course only one dollar.

The second lecture of Rev. Mr. Hudson's Sunday evening course was given last Sabbath. Our young people, as well as the older ones, would find it to their advantage to attend these lectures.

Harry Lee, of this village, has bought the Ben Farmer bankrupt shoe stock at Adrian and taken possession. Harry is always on the look out for big bargains in boots and shoes.

John Heck has already began his purchases for the erection of a fine residence on Chicago street during the coming summer. His lot is the second one west of Mrs. Horace Brewer's and is a fine location.

Uncle Abraham Cramer of Medina, fell from a load of lumber one day last week and a wheel passed over his neck. Uncle Abraham does'nt mind such trifles however, and the next day, he was drawing lumber again as usual.

The old Judd house in Adrian, now occupied by Wm. Van Camp as a boarding house, caught fire Monday evening from the furnace in the basement. It was speedily extinguished however and but little damage done.

The Adrian Record of Monday says: "Some thermometers registered as low as thirty degrees below zero this morning." Give us the name of the manufacturer, neighbor. We want to buy a gross or two of those thermometers.

A woman's rights woman recently declared in a speech that "woman is a silent power in the land." This will be news to a great many married gentlemen. She is a power, sure enough. But is it not drawing pretty strong on the imagination to speak of her as "silent."

While at Addison a few days since we stopped at the Commercial Hotel, kept by John Carnes, and advise all our friends to do likewise. His house is situated near the M. & O. depot, and his tables are furnished with the best the market affords. When you go to Addison remember the Commercial.

Mr. W. C. Rockwood of Greenville, in this state was visiting with his brother in Franklin last week. Mr. Rockwood is one of the leading business men of Greenville, having made that place his home for seventeen years. He is spending a couple of weeks among friends in Franklin and Adrian.

An exchange says: "We throw away too much money." Jes so! All newspaper men do it. You see they have great gobs of money—more than they know what to do with, and being generous hearted they scatter it around promiscuously. P. S.—It is principally scattered around among delinquent subscribers.

Concerning advertising a wealthy and prosperous firm writes as follows: "We have for many years studied the art of advertising, and still it remains a marvel to us that there is not a hundred times more of it. We never yet knew a man to advertise his business liberally and steady that it did not pay. Yet there are thousands of manufacturers and men, having articles which they declare ought to be 'in every household in the country,' who advertise as gingerly and closely as though they had at heart no faith in it at all. How can they expect to get their goods anywhere unless some knowledge of the article first gets into the family newspaper? If we waited till people learned from their neighbors, we might wait for years before the most useful inventions became known."

Good weather for harvesting ice.

Harry Snell was at home last Saturday and Sunday.

Alonzo Clark, of Clinton, has returned from his Southern trip.

Revival meetings are being held at the Baptist church this week.

Col. Curtis has placed us under obligations for a bunch of Washington papers.

Chas. Crossman fills his new position of clerk in the Lilley House most acceptably.

Sol. Brown and S. F. Marstellar of Clinton favored the HERALD with a call last week.

The Free Methodists are holding a serious of revival meetings at the Universalist church.

The M. & O. freight going west last Monday consisted of two sections. Business is booming.

F. D. Avery, of Onsted, gave the HERALD a call last Saturday. He is now teaching in the Onsted district.

Wm. H. Mather is enjoying himself on the Pacific coast. He remembers us occasionally with San Francisco papers.

Edgar D. Davenport, a son of John Davenport, who owned the Evans Lake house in Franklin for several years, died at Gainesville, Texas on the 28th ult.

The young folks of Tecumseh will indulge in another dance Friday evening of next week Jan. 30. It will come off at Armory Hall and the music will be furnished by Hunt's orchestra of Adrian. As the bill is only $1.00 they will doubtless have a big crowd.

The Tecumseh Lumber Co. are laying in an immense stock of all kinds of building material, and are receiving several orders to be filled with the opening of spring. The manager, Mr. J. H. Smith, is looking for a good trade during the coming season.

The chicken pie festival held at the Baptist church last Thursday evening netted $35, which, with previous pledges and donations from the ladies, will amount to enough to cancel the debt on the organ. Miss Gowdy has been retained another year as organist.

A new sextette band has been formed in Tecumseh, composed of the following musicians, which will be called Knapp's cornet band:

Geo. Knapp—1st Cornet.
John Richard—2nd Cornet.
Fred Hillman—2nd Alto.
J. H. Smith—1st Tenor.
Fred B. Wood—Baritone.
Bert Conklin.—Tuba.

Dr. W. E. Burtless, an old Tecumseh boy, has been practicing his profession at Midland for several years past and when he concluded to change his field of labor a few days ago and move to St. Clair, the indignant Midlanders rose in their might and caned him with an elegant gold headed cane.

Dr. Ayres, of Weston, went out to attend a patient last Sunday night, and upon returning home he was so chilled with the cold that he died in a few moments after getting into the house. He was in good health and it is supposed that the severe cold stopped the circulation. Buffalo overcoats are good things for the doctors these days.

A new feature in the shape of a program was presented at the skating rink last Thursday evening. It was put up in a neat frame and consisted of two marches, in couples, ladies alone, in couples—ladies choice; and in couples—no passing. The different parts were of fifteen minutes duration. It seemed to please everybody and will doubtless prove a successful feature of the rink.

The Tecumseh Reform Club is not dead yet, by any means. A HERALD reporter dropped into their hall last Monday evening (with no intentions of signing the pledge) and found a large audience present listening to a very interesting program which consisted of recitations by the younger folks and also select reading by John O'Neil and Miss Nannie Kyle, concluding with remarks by John Osborn. Considerable interest is being manifested in the club and it has received several converts during the past month.

Hudson Post: It was Sunday, and the lord of the mansion in one of Hudson's aristocratic suburbs had ordered the wife of his bosom to provide a dinner suitable for a king. But when the banquet was spread and the family had gathered round the festive board the savory odor of soup greeted the nostril, and the eye failed to rest on roast turkey or quail on toast. At this the head of the family was filled with wrath, and spilled the soup on the brussels carpet, kicked the furniture about and turned his wife out into the cold world, locking the door. She went to a neighbor's, and after a time returned, but the door was still locked and the gentleman was holding the fort. A second attempt to enter the citadel was also met with a refusal, but a threat from the neighbor to bring an officer caused the gentleman to relent, the bolt was drawn and the lady admitted, and peace reigned in the mansion, which but a few hours before was the scene of discord and soup.

"The young cry for it, the middle-aged sigh for it, and the old must have it." This refers to the Hudson skating rink.

The Record speaks in very complimentary terms of Lamont Rowland's skating at the Adrian rink. Lamont handles himself well on rollers for a boy of his age, being only seven years old.

Hudson Gazette: Rev. Hudson's friends burst in upon him last Monday evening. The purse and larder of our esteemed ministerial friend were made much heavier and the hearts of all participants made lighter by the visit.

Senator Carpenter of this county, has been made chairman of the state senate committee on agricultural interests, and a member of the committees on the state library, supplies and expenses, horticulture, and industrial school for girls.

Hudson Post: A Hudson doctor shakes hands with people when returning from the rink, and asks if they are hurt. He has so far been rewarded by having been called to fix two dislocated wrists. He is on the way to wealth.

Clinton Local: Miss Mamie Spafford of the Manchester Enterprise and Miss Stella Cleveland of the Tecumseh Herald and Mr. Joseph Platt, of Tecumseh, were among the rolling perambulators at the Clinton rink Saturday evening.

After a lively tussle, the township of Clayton is pretty near an assured fact; i. e. the populus have so decreed it, and if the board of supervisors approve, both Hudson and Dover will lose six sections on the east and west ends respectively, but Clayton will gain a town-house and a great deal of convenience for her voters.

Representative Wiggins has been placed by speaker Clark upon house committees on private corporations and on supplies and expenditures; Representative Town, upon the committees on public health and on the reform school for girls, while Representative Howell finds a position on the committee on the liquor traffic and on the Michigan asylum for the insane.

The editor of the Morenci Observer, E. D. His family and friends are hopeful that he may, by the rest and the physical aid which he seeks, be fully restored to his former health.

Over 37,000 lbs. of poultry have passed through the hands of Wm. Rogers, the Clinton poultry man, this fall.—Clinton Local. We don't believe the citizen who nabbed editor Tallman's ducks, at Hillsdale, would allow that amount of poultry to pass through his hands, without securing a choice fowl or two. Why didn't William bring his hands suddenly together a few times?—Hudson Gazette.

SIGNAL SERVICE.

The M. & O. Railway have made an arrangement with the U. S. Signal Service whereby the company will transmit all signals free of charge to all stations on their line, if the communities will be to the expense of getting a suitable pole and signal flag and procuring some person to do the work. In a circular just issued to agents, the company say:

We are perfectly willing to aid in protecting the farming community surrounding our stations from the effects of cold storms upon stock and crops, if they will undertake to furnish the necessary appliances and attendants. To this end I wish you would see a few of the leading and representative men adjacent to your station, and ascertain whether they will canvass their community and procure means for erecting a pole and furnishing a white flag with black center, for furnishing these signals. If so, arrange with some business man in their community to whom we can deliver the weather reports and who can raise the signal indicative of cold waves and frost. If this is done by the community at your station, we will deliver all signals received from the United States signal service.

Would'nt it be a good scheme for the Council to take hold of this matter? The expense will be trifling, and some village officer can easily do the necessary work.

ANOTHER NEW HOUSE.

We paid Rev. James Vincent a brief call yesterday for the purpose of inspecting his new dwelling house recently finished. He owns a lot seventy feet by twelve rods in size, located on the corner of Union & Killbuck streets, next door South of Chas. Bidwell's and across the street from Geo. Heesen's. The house is a large two-story frame with a wing in the rear. It has a large well lighted cellar with cement side walls and floor. The first story contains a vestibule, parlor, sitting-room and family room, (these last three can be thrown into one by folding doors) a dining room, pantry, kitchen and woodshed. The kitchen and pantry are admirably arranged, both being next the dining-room. The second story contains three large chambers, two of them with clothes-presses. The interior wood work is all done in pine and finished in hard oil. The exterior is painted in light shades with dark trimmings, which present a pleasing effect. It is one of the neatest residences on Union street, and the interior arrangement makes it a most convenient dwelling. The work was done by C. M. Minor on a contract, who furnished everything and did all the labor. Although the contract was a verbal one, every detail of the work was carefully completed, and Mr. Vincent is more than pleased with the manner in which it was done. Mr Vincent intends making this his permanent home, but he holds himself in readiness to fill temporary pulpit engagements, as opportunity may offer. We congratulate Mr. Vincent and his estimable wife on having so beautiful a home which they can call their own.

AYER'S Cherry Pectoral.

No other complaints are so insidious in their attack as those affecting the throat and lungs: none so trifled with by the majority of sufferers. The ordinary cough or cold, resulting perhaps from a trifling or unconscious exposure, is often but the beginning of a fatal sickness. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has well proven its efficacy in a forty years' fight with throat and lung diseases, and should be taken in all cases without delay.

A Terrible Cough Cured.

"In 1857 I took a severe cold, which settled on my lungs. I had a terrible cough, and I coughed most after night without sleep. Three bottles gave me ease. I used AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, which relieved my lungs, induced sleep, and afforded me the rest necessary for the recovery of my strength. By the continued use of the PECTORAL a permanent cure was effected. I am now 62 years old, hale and hearty, and am satisfied your CHERRY PECTORAL saved me.
HORACE FAIRBROTHER."
Rockingham, Vt., July 15, 1882.

Croup.—A Mother's Tribute.

"While in the country last winter my little boy, three years old, was taken with croup; it seemed as if he would die from strangulation. One of the family suggested the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, a bottle of which was always kept in the house. This was tried in small and frequent doses, and to our delight in less than an hour the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the CHERRY PECTORAL had saved our darling's life. Can you wonder at our gratitude? Sincerely yours,
MRS. EMMA GED[illegible]."
159 West 128th St., New York, May [illegible], 1882.

"I have used AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL in my family for several years, and do not hesitate to pronounce it the most effectual remedy for coughs and colds we have ever tried. A. J. CRANE."
Lake Crystal, Minn., March 13, 1882.

"I suffered for eight years from Bronchitis, and after trying many remedies with no success, I was cured by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. JOSEPH WALDEN."
Byhalia, Miss., April 5, 1882.

"I cannot say enough in praise of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, believing as I do that but for its use I should long since have died from lung troubles. F. BRAGDON."
Palestine, Texas, April 22, 1882.

No case of an affection of the throat or lungs exists which cannot be greatly relieved by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and it will always cure when the disease is not already beyond the control of medicine.

The town of Dulcigno lies on the Turkish side of the Adriatic sea, at a point opposite Rome and Naples, midway between each. It is called in that quarter of the earth Dool-cheen-yo. About 8,000 people live there, and are the effete descendants of the most formidable band of pirates that ever existed. It is a very old town. One hundred and sixty-seven years before Christ the city surrendered to the Romans, and received exemption from taxation, and its freedom. From 1500 to 1600 the pirates held full sway, and in 1718 a great battle was lost there by the Venetians.

The Secret of Wealth.

Broken down invalids do you wish to gain flesh, to acquire an appetite, to enjoy a regular habit of body, to obtain refreshing sleep, to feel and know that every fiber and tissue of your system is being braced up and renovated. If so commence at once a course of Golden Seal Bitters. In one week you will be convalescent. In a month you will be well. Don't despair because you have a weak constitution. Fortify the body against disease by purifying all the fluids with Golden Seal Bitters. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus forearmed. The liver, the stomach, the bowels, the kidneys, are rendered disease proof by this great invigorant. Ruinous bills for medical attendance may be avoided by counteracting the first symptoms of sickness with these Bitters. They are recommended from friend to friend, and the sale increases daily. We warrant a cure. They are a positive cure also for all female complaints. In these diseases they have no equal. Take no others. Sold by Baker & Hall and C. A. Wright & Co.

Downright Cruelty

To permit yourself and family to "Suffer"
With sickness when it can be prented and cured so easily
With Hop Bitters!!!

Having experienced a great deal of "Trouble" from indigestion, so much so that I came near losing my Life!
My trouble always came after eating any food—
However light
And digestible,
For two or three hours at a time I had to go through the most
Excruciating pains.
"And the only way I ever got"
"Relief"
Was by throwing up all my stomach contained. No one can conceive the pains that I had to go through, until
"At last"
I was taken! "So that for three weeks I lay in bed and
Could eat nothing!
My sufferings were so that I called two doctors to give me something that would stop the pain, their Efforts were no good to me.
At last I heard a good deal
"About your Hop Bitters!
And determined to try them."
Got a bottle—in four hours I took the contents of
One!
Next day I was out of bed, and have not seen a
"Sick"
Hour, from the same cause since.
I have recommended it to hundreds of others. You have no such.
"Advocate as I am."—Geo. Kendall, Allston, Boston, Mass.
Columbus Advocate, Texas, April 21, 1883. Dear Editor:—I have tried your Hop Bitters, and find they are good for any complaint. The best medicine I ever used in my family.—H. TALKNER.

There are 90,000 illiterate persons in Massachusetts.

Thousands Say So.

Mr. T. W. Atkins, Girard, Kas., writes: "I never hesitate to recommend your Electric Bitters to my customers, they give entire satisfaction and are rapid sellers." Electric Bitters are the purest and best medicine known and will positively cure Kidney and liver complaints. Purify the blood and regulate the bowels. No family can afford to be without them. They will save hundreds of dollars in doctor's bills every year. Sold at fifty cents a bottle by C. A. Wright & Co.

Formerely weak, nervous, dyspeptic, and debilitated individuals who found only disappointment in the various bitters and secret quack nostrums, pretended kidney medicines, etc., are agreeably surprised to regain perfect health, and strength of mind and body, and complete herat's ease and freedom from aches and pains by the use of Dr. Guysott's Yellow Dock and Sarsaparilla. It restores every disordered function to a normal condition.

FOUND OUT.

How Dr. Bethune Proved That a Man May Be a Good Parson and a Good Fisherman at the Same Time.

The late Dr. Bethune, of Philadelphia, was "a brother of the angels." With old Izaak Walton he thought: "God never did make a more calm, quiet, innocent recreation than angling." No more cheerful companion could be found than he with whom to "whip" a trout stream. His humor bubbled over, his wit flashed, and the longest sojourn in the woods failed to exhaust his stock of good stories.

On one occasion, however, he found himself an unwelcome guest, and was coldly received by the man who was accustomed to entertain visitors. He had gone to a noted trout-stream in the interior of Pennsylvania, and sought lodgings with a man who had long served as a guide to strangers.

The man at first repulsed him, and refused entertainment, saying: "I attended a protracted meeting last winter, and became religious. The Lord forgave my sins, and I joined the Methodist church. I don't intend to keep company any longer with the class of men that come here to fish."

But the doctor's pleasant manners won him over, and he finally consented to take the stranger in and to show the way next morning to the trout-stream. When they returned, late in the afternoon, the man said, frankly:

"Doc, I like you," and slapped him familiarly on the shoulder.

"What do you like me for?" asked the doctor.

"Well, doc, I'll tell you. We've been out a'most all day; we haven't caught much, you fell in and got wet, and I haven't heard you swear once."

The doctor smiled inwardly at this dubious compliment, but said nothing to betray his profession.

After supper, as he was sitting outside the cottage, the man came to him and said, with a little hesitation: "Doc, since I jined the church I've had prayers every night. We are going to have them now, and may be you wouldn't object to come in."

Dr. Bethune heartily accepted the invitation. He listened attentively to the stammering reading of a chapter in the Bible, and joined lustily in an old-fashioned Methodist hymn. The host watched him closely and then said, in a doubtful tone: "May be you wouldn't mind leading us in prayer?"

The doctor prayed in the simple and earnest manner which those familiar with him will never forget, and then went out again to the porch and solitude.

The host soon joined him, and, looking him steadily in the face, said:

"Doc, I suspicion you."

"What do you suspect me of? Nothing bad, I hope?"

"Oh, no, nothing bad. May be I'm wrong, but I kind o' suspect you are a minister."

"What makes you think I'm a minister?"

"Well, I'll tell you. I haven't heard you swear once since you came. Then you joined us in the hymn as though you liked it. Then the way you prayed made me most sure you're a minister."

Dr. Bethune laughed heartily at the man's simple earnestness, and confessed that he had been found out and was a minister. They had good times together, and both of them enjoyed telling the story in later years. — Youth's Companion.

BURROS AND CANOES.

A Couple of Yarns from Schneider's Little Back Room in the Rear of the Grocery.

Blifkins has been spending the past summer in the Southwest, but returned to Detroit to vote. On the evening of his arrival an informal reception was held in Schneider's little back room. The guest of the occasion had been dilating at considerable length upon the sights he had seen on his trip, and the dangers he had encountered and survived, and particularly his first and only attempt to ride a burro; an attempt that terminated in about thirty seconds and confined him to the house for a week. He concluded with the declaration that if he was going to California he would walk every step of the way in preference to trying to ride a burro there.

"Oh, shucks! It's easy 'nough to ride any long-eared hoss that ever bucked. Just you wait till you've mounted a birchbark canoe, Blif, and you'll walk when you want to go to Windsor."

The assertion came from Bill Matson, who was slowly but surely groping his way towards the bottom of a bootleg of beer.

"You're talking about something that you don't know nothing about, Bill."

"No, I ain't, Blif. As the married school-ma'am said when she reached down for her slipper to spank her own youngun, I've had 'sperunce."

"You don't mean to tell me that any down-East Yankee like you ever navigated a birchbark canoe, do you Bill?"

"I didn't say I had, Blif."

"What are you talking about, then?"

"But I tried it once, jest as you tried to ride the donk; and I got off quicker'n you did."

"Tell us about it, Bill!" shouted the reception committee, and one of them motioned to Schneider that Bill's schooner should make another voyage to the keg.

"When I was a boy, down in New York, there wa'n't a chap in our diggin's that I couldn't throw in a wrastle, lick at rough-and tumble, out-holler, or do up in any fashion. I brought that consait with me to Michigan, but it had a bad chill afore I'd been here a week and died inside of a month. The funeral occurred jest about the time I tried to git acquainted with a canoe.

"It was up to the Soo. I'd been there two or three days a-watchin' them pesky Injuns come a-whoopin' in with their loads of fish, standin' up in their canoes and a-splurgin' away with a long-tailed paddle, fust on one side and then on t'other, and I jest thought as how I'd buy me a canoe and show the varmints how a white man's back looked when he was a-rowin'.

"I paid a tarnal rodskin fifteen dollars for his canoe, pulled off my coat, stepped in, picked up the paddle, and gave a sweep on one side jest kerzackly as the Injun did. You needn't never ask me how it happened boys, for I don't know. I thought the durned thing turned over and sunk, but when I come to the top and climbed up on the dock, there was that pesky canoe settin' right there on the water, lookin' right at me, as innercent as a sheep, and not a drop of water in it.

"And then the pesky rascals commenced a-laffin' as if 'twas funny. In the somewhat exciting incidents of the next ten minutes I was quite busily engaged. When the excitement was over a couple of us was purty near used up, and that consait I'd brought all the way from York State was deader'n a mallet. I hain't been half as smart sence as I was afore."—Detroit Free Press.

COULD NOT SEE IT.

People in India Who Are Not Anxious to Better Their Condition.

Having gathered the head men around him, Dr. Bellew proceeds to catechise them in a paternal fashion as to the sanitary condition of their villages. Learning from them that they are generally healthy except in the autumn, when the season changes, Dr. Bellew observes: "But you are generally free from sickness, I see, when the weather is dry?" "Yes," replies the spokesman of the lambardars; "we have no sickness to speak of, except after the falls of rain, and worst of all when the season changes in the autumn." Being asked if they never thought of taking any measures for remedying this, the lambardars gave the following characteristic reply: "How should we? We are God's creatures, and in His hands. God is almighty, and His ways are inscrutable. He provides for and cares for us." Quite admitting the truth of these remarks, Dr. Bellew nevertheless inquires whether this was any reason for their neglecting to provide for their worldly welfare when it was assailed by unnatural causes produced by themselves and capable of remedy by themselves. "God only knows," sighs the lambardar. "The Sirkar is very beneficent to us poor subjects, and you are all very wise. Perhaps you will tell us?" Dr. Bellew does tell them, and after pointing out minutely the faults of their dwellings and food, the lambardar remarks: "Yes, this is plain enough, and reasonable. But, sir, we poor people get accustomed to this bad air and don't suffer any inconvenience from it, as you do who live in big houses and well-kept surroundings." On Dr. Bellew attempting to drive "this mistaken notion" out of their minds, he receives a reply that might well floor any ordinary sanitary officer: "Well, sir, we have always lived as we do now, and our forefathers before us. In their time nobody thought of these things, and our villages were much more filthy than they are now." Undaunted, Dr. Bellew perseveres with his task. He carefully reasons with his audience, and fancying he has convinced them, prepares to go. But the zaildar hangs about dissatisfied, and, on being questioned as to the cause, rejoins: "We agree with all you have said, sir, and are prepared to carry out every one of your suggestions; but, sir, you have given us no orders, and without official authority we can do nothing." Then, for the first time, does Dr. Bellew express surprise. He reminds the zaildar that he and the lambardars have several times during the conversation admitted having received orders for over three years. Not being able to carry the subject further, however, Dr. Bellew can only advise these men to fulfill their duty. Meanwhile, without direct Government pressure, a "horribly filthy puddle only fit for pigs to wallow in," and scattered heaps of dung and ashes and filth of all sorts," will continue to disseminate disease among the people.—Bombay Gazetteer.

SEAL-SKIN GARMENTS.

The Latest Styles in Mantles, Jackets and Sacques.

Short mantles of seal-skin are among the new garments this winter. Some of these are in the shapes just noted for long garments, but are cut as short as a visite or a mantilla, falling usually longer in front than behind, where they merely cover the tournure. The short Gretry and Galatea are graceful and warm-looking when trimmed with a mink border with pendent tails, or with black marten, or the handsome three-quarter plucked beaver bands. There are also untrimmed seal visites that are very youthful and dressy-looking, while others have passementerie ornaments on them, and clasps of carved wood or stained ivory representing two antique heads; still others are edged with a fringe made of seal-skin balls tied in meshes of silk cords.

Seal-skin jackets are shown in small sizes, smoothly fitted as Jersey waists are, and are known as Jersey jackets. These are for quite young ladies, are worn without any trimming, and cost as low as $75 or as much as $250. The popular seal sacque, which is always useful for long drives, for the country, and for general wear, is now made less clumsy in shape by being fitted more closely in the back and sides; the fronts remain loose and straight, and have a coat collar that may be turned up about the throat, or else turned down to form lapels. They measure from thirty-seven to forty-one inches in length, and when well fitted are very handsome either plain, or widely bordered, as many of them are, with black marten, natural 'coon, beaver, or sable-tail trimmings. Hudson Bay sable borders with tails in rows, and the narrow heading that is needed to complete them, are very effective on these sacques. In selecting seal garments the purchaser should make sure that in every part the pile of the fleece is made to turn upward, as it will then naturally drop downward and disclose its rich depths; when brushing or stroking this fur, the movement should also be upward. The reader is also again warned against allowing seal-skin to be dampened; but when this happens, fur must not be dried by artificial heat, but by hanging out-of-doors, or else in a cold room.—Harper's Bazar.

A HUMAN BAROMETER.

An Old Soldier's Ability to Foretell Storms Through an Injured Leg.

The surgeons of the Jefferson college hospital in this city, writes a correspondent from Philadelphia, have been very much interested recently in a somewhat unusual case that has been in their hands for treatment. It is that of a man who may be described as a human barometer. So far, however, from boasting of his power to foretell changes in the weather, the patient, whose name is Frederick Guyer, went to the hospital in hopes that the surgeons might cure him of his malady. During the war Guyer was Captain of Company D, Ninth New York Volunteers. Early in the morning of the second day's fight in the Wilderness he was struck by a Minie rifle ball, which penetrated his right leg three inches above the knee. The engagement was so hot at the time that his comrades could render him no further attention than to place him under a tree somewhat out of the direct line of fire, and there he remained for thirty-six hours, when a change of front by the Federal lines left him in Confederate territory, and he was taken prisoner. The rebel surgeon into whose hands he fell insisted upon amputating his leg, and the operation was roughly performed by candlelight, the limb being taken off at the thigh.

"Six or seven days after that," said Captain Guyer to the Times' correspondent this morning "I began to feel severe pains in the stump, and have never been wholly free from suffering since. The sensation is apparently in the foot. I have never felt any pain that seemed to come from the thigh, or, indeed, from anywhere above the ankle. There is usually a twitching sensation, such as a man experiences in the electric bath, at the point where the great toe joins the foot. Sometimes there is a similar feeling in the little toe; then, again there is a burning sensation across all the toes, and occasionally a pain in the heel. Before my treatment in the hospital I could always tell by the increased severity of the pain when we were going to have a storm. It was especially severe just before a north or a northeast wind began to blow, but when there was a big storm coming my toes would begin to ache three or four days in advance, and as the storm approached the pain would become so intense as to almost set me crazy. You remember the big electric storm we had three years ago, when the aurora filled the sky at night, and all the telegraph wires were disarranged. I was living then in West Twenty-eighth street, New York, and felt the storm coming three days before it appeared. I suffered more at that time than on any other occasion. The pain grew more severe as the storm approached, seemed to vary with its distance and its fluctuations, and reached a climax just before it broke. Then the painful sensations began to pass away, and in a few hours, while the storm was still raging, I was at ease again. I could always foretell any change in the weather, either from fair to stormy or from stormy to fair, and could also tell its severity. A local storm or one of light magnitude affected me but slightly, while a general storm was announced by its unpleasant forerunners according to its magnitude; and, similarly, I knew by the relief from pain when clear weather was coming. Since leaving the hospital I have been comparatively free from pain, though I still feel occasional twitches."

The operation performed on Captain Guyer was as remarkable as his disease. It consisted of the removal of a number of large bulbous formations from the stumps of the nerves. Bulbs about the size of the middle finger of the average man's hand and nearly an inch long were cut off from the greater and lesser sciatic nerves, and smaller formations were removed from other nerves. In all six of these abnormal growths were found and removed. The patient was kept in the hospital four weeks, and was discharged about two weeks ago, though he still reports periodically for examination and treatment. The wounds made by the scalpel are healing nicely, and the doctors think that when the inflammation subsides no more pain will be felt. The patient is about forty-five years of age, of slender build, and, aside from his peculiar malady, is in good health. He has never worn an artificial leg, but has always used crutches. Dr. John H. Brinton, the operating surgeon, is preparing a monograph on the case for publication in a medical journal.—N. Y. Times.

The Tooth Factory.

The domain of the dentist is about to be disputed. A great discovery has been made which will revolutionize the whole business and emancipate the sufferers. A factory has been established, with plenty of capital to back it, for the purpose of making artificial teeth by machinery. All that any one who is troubled with his teeth will have to do will be to get them all pulled out. Then he can purchase a brand new, machine made set and be exempt from toothache all the rest of his life. There is, of course, nothing new in the making and using of artificial teeth, but it will be easily seen that the manufacture by machinery presents great advantages. When the making of watches by machinery was started there were many protests that the new way would never be as good as the old. But the exactness soon attained, and the convenience of having the parts interchangeable, brought about a revolution, and the factory watches now rank above the hand-made. The same advantages will be had in the factory teeth. If one set gets broken, or comes out, an exactly similar one can be ordered from the factory at very small cost. If the plate gets cracked it can be replaced in the same way. All that will be necessary will be to give the number of the plate, and a new one, precisely like the old, will be sent by return mail.—N. Y. Mail and Express.

—A farmer on Russian River, California, ten years ago owned one hundred acres of wheat land from which he derived an annual profit of $1,000. He cut it into five-acre tracts and sold it to hop and fruit growers. Now the same one hundred acres supports eleven families and yielded this year a profit of $32,000, a single acre producing $600 in plumbs.—San Francisco Chronicle.

A Good Many Failures.

During the year 1883 there were 10,508 failures in business in the United States and Canada. Some of these were big concerns, and some were very small. Failure is sorrowful business to any man, especially if it is his health that fails. A great many times 10,508 people fail in health in the course of a year. Many of them might be saved if they would take Brown's Iron Bitters, the great family medicine and restorer of wasted health.

As late as 1840 there were but seven vocations into which New England women had entered; in 1884 the number was 317.

A Walking Skeleton.

Mr. E. Springer, of Mechanicsburg, Pa., writes: "I was afflicted with lung fever and abscess on lungs, and reduced to a walking Skeleton. Got a free bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, which did me so much good that I bought a dollar bottle. After using three bottles, found myself once more a man, completely restored to health, with a hearty appetite and a gain in flesh of 48lbs. Call at C. A. A Reliable Port Wine.

Mr. A. Speer, of New Jersey, whose Port Grape Wine has such a wide reputation, and which physicians prescribe so generally, was the first in this country to import the Port Wine Grape from the banks of the River Doura, in Portugal, where the fine old ports were made, to plant vineyards of them in New Jersey. His Port, Burgundy and Claret which are now the best to be had, have become a great favorite among the most fashionable New York, Philadelphia and Washington society. Sold by first-class dealers.

Joyfully Astonished.

Mr. James Brunt, Deputy Sheriff, Baltimore, Maryland, writes: In an experience of thirty years I have become acquainted with numerous so called specifics for coughs and colds, but never before experienced such surprising efficacy as was obtained from the Red Star Cough Cure. I was attacked with a severe deep-seated cold and cough. I suffered for some time, and tried this valuable remedy. I was completely cured by the use of one bottle.

A THRILLING STORY.

As Told by a Merchant in Troy, N. Y.—A Surgical Operation Avoided—How a Father, Wife and Daughter Escaped an awful Doom.

Of the hundred of accounts of remarkable cures wrought by Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, none have appeared so purely astonishing as the following: The persons mentioned are among the most highly respected in the city of Troy, and the story as told by the father will prove interesting to all our readers.—ED.

TROY, N. Y.

Dr. Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.:

Dear Sir—My daughter was afflicted with a severe growth of Fungus. To remove it we had resorted to almost every remedy and consulted the most prominent surgeons and physicians. Dr. ——, of Troy, said that a surgical operation would be necessary, but fearing fatal results I hesitated. Some of the physicians claimed that it was caused by one thing and some by another. The Fungus was prominent and disfigured her looks. Having heard of Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy working so thoroughly on the blood I determined to try it, to see if this medicine could do what doctors had failed to do and surgeons had hardly dared to undertake. I can say in truth that the result of this trial was the complete cure of my daughter of this dreadful malady. Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy alone effected it. We used nothing else, for other things had completely failed. My daughter to-day enjoys vigorous health and to Favorite Remedy alone is the credit due. My wife also was very poor in health, due to some liver difficulty with which she had suffered a long time until she became very much reduced in flesh. A trial of Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy had resulted in the complete restoration of her health, which she had not enjoyed for years. She had gained in flesh and strength and thus secured perfect health, and this is due entirely to Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy. As for myself, being engaged in the grocery and commission business, which makes it necessary for me to test the quality of different articles like butter, etc., my sense of taste and my stomach were seriously injured, everything seemed to nauseate me, and fearful of dyspepsia in its most severe form I tried Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy. The first bottle afforded immediate relief, and from that day to this I can say that Favorite Remedy has restored me to perfect health. These are facts which I claim prove that Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy is the best medicine in the world for those afflicted with the above difficulties. If any one in the city of Troy doubts the truth of these statements let him come to me and I will prove them. I have recommended Favorite Remedy to hundreds and with the same good results.

Yours, etc., WILLIAM WINDSOR, Cor. Canal and Mount Sts., Troy, N. Y.

SPRINGVILLE SIFTINGS.

Since your correspondent's last notes we have been stormed in by cold from 5 to 26 below zero. On Friday evening the skating rink was a success, but closed in a heavy snow storm.

There were no services at our church on Sunday afternoon.

On Monday the funeral of George Ousted took place at the Methodist church which was crowded by a large concourse of mourners and citizens of the town. He was one of the oldest and best citizens. His father with a large family of grown-up children, came into this town in 1836, and they have all made their mark in the improvement of the town. There are but three of them left. Mrs. Geo. Shefler, Mrs. Milton Palmer and Wm. Ousted.

On Monday eve. the rink was well attended; they are now to open on Monday and Friday evenings.

The Springville band are expecting to visit Tecumseh rink on Thursday evening.

Our farmers are wearing smiling faces on the prospects of the rise of wheat and hope it will come to one dollar.

S. Shultis is busy looking up the balance of the town tax. He says it comes in slow.

Eugene Groger is now running our daily mail. He leaves Springville at 11 A. M. for Onsted, and on arrival of mail at 12:10, thence back to Springville, to Brooklyn and thence back to Springville.

The Lake mills are doing a large custom business, grinding feed in large quantities daily and the flour is giving good satisfaction. In the past year H. R. Case has had over 60 tons of corn ground. He is now feeding cattle 100 bushels per week, all ground; has a fine lot of steers, about 75, fitting them for spring market.

The club dance at the Springville hotel takes place on Friday evening.

TIPTON TOPICS

As your correspondent sat down, pencil in hand to record the items of interest that have transpired in this vicinity during the past week he thought so little has happened out of the ordinary routine that it would be better to make no report at all. But when we meet our acquaintances if we have nothing of importance to communicate we do not sit in silence. If nothing else, the weather furnishes an ever ready topic of conversation and surely the weather for the past week has been untoward enough to start our tongues a wagging. Our principal occupation lately has been to keep the Ice King from intruding in our domiciles, but in spite of all our efforts he is not satisfied with all out doors for his domain, and house plants and cellar stores have suffered by his cruel touch. We quote the thermometer 32° below zero as the coldest. We don't want to be below, we hate to be so low, but we have not heard from all the precincts in the county yet and if some of the veracious chroniclers will drop 10 per cent from their reports we are willing to take ½ off.

Mrs. John Bunn, who has been sick for about a year and several weeks ago had a stroke of paralysis, is beginning to slowly improve in health.

T. M. Cauburn received a telegram on Tuesday with the intelligence that his brother, Rev. Ira Cauburn, who lived near Detroit, was dead. The deceased was well known by all the old residents of Franklin. The funeral will be held on Friday at 11 A. M. at the Center.

Miss Gertie Wheaton, Miss Katie Jenkins and Miss Tina Vanvalkenburg are attending school at Addison this winter. Henry Conlin, who spent the fall term at Adrian College, has also gone to the first named place to receive instruction the remainder of the winter.

Whether we agree with Mr. Beecher or not, few men can speak or write on any subject of public interest with so great a certainty that everybody will want to know what they say. In discussing the question as to how far ministers may properly go in politics, which he does in the NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW for February, the great preacher shows himself to advantage perhaps all the more because it is a matter that touches him personally as well as professionally. In the same number of the Review, the question, 'How shall the President be Elected?' is ably treated by five happily chosen writers, viz: two United States Senators, Dawes and Vance; a college president, F. A. P. Barnard, of Columbia; a New York lawyer, Roger A. Pryor, and a well-known journalist, William Purcell. The substantial agreement of four of them on the same point is significant. "New Departure in Education," and many other articles.

The Magazine of Art for February is certainly a superb number. In both illustration and letter press it is very rich. The frontispiece is a sunrise, in colors, of the Downman's portrait of Lady Maria Waldegrave, which gives us an excellent idea of her piquant beauty. The opening paper on "Artist's Homes" describes the House and studio of W. Pettie at Hampstead, by Helen Zimmern, and leads us to reflect on the change in the manner of life of artists now-a-days from that of the out-at-elbow-lodge-in-a-garret-race of the past. To many readers the most interesting paper in the number will prove to be Miss A. Mary F. Robinson's biographical and critical sketch of Mr. Elihu Vedder.—Cassell & Co., Limited, New York. $3.50 a year.

GEO. WM. CURTIS.

Geo. Wm. Curtis, L. L. D., the editor of Harper's Weekly was born at Providence, R. I. Feb. 24th, 1824. After leaving school he was for a year employed as clerk in a mercantile house in New York, and in 1842 was placed, together with an older brother at the Brook Farm Socialistic Institution, in West Roxbury, Mass. He remained here eighteen months, when he was transferred to a farm near Concord, where he remained another eighteen months. In 1846 Mr. Curtis went to Europe, residing mainly in Berlin and Rome, and subsequently visiting Egypt and Syria. Returning to America in 1850 he published "Nile Notes" being sketches of his observations in Egypt. This was followed in 1852 by "Howadjie in Syria." In the meantime he had connected himself with the New York "Tribune" and had become one of the editors of Putnam's Monthly. The failure of this magazine, involved him in financial difficulties from which he was fifteen years in clearing himself. He lectured on social and aesthetic topics throughout the country and became a regular contributor to Harper's Magazine. He also edited the "Easy Chair" department in that magazine. In 1857 Harper's Weekly was started and Mr. Curtis soon became its principal editor. When the civil war broke out this journal took decided political tone and became the organ of the republican party. In 1868 he was a presidential elector on the republican side. He advocated the election of Grant and in 1871 was appointed by him to membership of the commission to draft rules for the reformation of the Civil Service. He opposed the third term scheme of Grant and was influential in securing the nominations of Hayes and Garfield. He is an urgent supporter of all civil service reform measures. In 1877 he was elected a delegate to the Convention to revise the Constitution of New York, and also a supervisor of Public Schools. He published "Lotus Eating," "Prue and I," "Trumps," etc. He was sent to the republican national convention of 1884 and opposed the nomination of Mr. Blaine. When Mr. Cleveland was nominated in Chicago, Mr. Curtis announced himself as his supporter and thus led the revolt against the election of Blaine.

ESTATE OF PETER R. ADAMS.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss.

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate Office in the city of Adrian, on Monday the 12th day of January, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-five.

Present, Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

On reading and filing the petition of Cordelia M. Adams, administratrix of said estate, with the will annexed, alleging among other things, that she has paid the funeral expenses and debts of said deceased and the expenses of administration of said estate thus far incurred, that all legacies bequeathed in and by said will have been paid, except residuary legacies and certain legacies held in trust, and praying for the allowance of her first annual account, now on file in this court, for an assignment and distribution of the residue of said estate to and among the persons entitled thereto, according to the provisions of said will.

It is ordered, That Monday, the 16th day of February next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

CLINTON CHAPTER

Newcomb Brown, of Jackson, has been visiting in Clinton for a week or two.

Arthur VanGieson and sister, of Jackson, came down to attend the Masquerade and are spending a few days with relatives in Bridgewater.

Miss Kate Clark, of Tecumseh, spent Sunday at E. W. Freese's.

Sam Braman, the proprietor of our skating rink, has accepted a position as clerk, offered him by the Tuomey Bros. of Jackson. We are sorry to have Mr. Braman leave us, as he has made a pleasant addition to our society here, but wish him success in his new position.

Chas. Thompson is home for a vacation during the dull season.

George Freese arrived from Detroit Friday noon, returning Monday. He has been re-engaged by the firm of J. K. Burnham & Co. for another year.

The remains of Sheen Ellis were brought here from Hudson last Friday noon for burial. The funeral was held at the M. E. church. Rev. Allen of Detroit, had been sent for to attend the funeral, and he with Rev. Hudson of Hudson, and Rev. Hudson of Tecumseh, and Rev. Kerridge of Clinton conducted the services. The several pastors talked of the good old man, taking no text.

M. J. Cummins, of Jackson, spent Sunday at his old home, a few miles west of here.

The Sunday School children of the M. E. church enjoyed a sleighride to Manchester last Saturday. On their return an excellent dinner which the ladies had prepared in their absence, was given them in the basement of the church.

The Masquerade party passed off very pleasantly last Friday evening, with the exception of the music. Many were disappointed at Boos' non-appearance, but their disappointment might have been considerable lessened had the remaining members of the orchestra played as they were expected to, and are fully capable of doing, and otherwise conducted themselves as gentlemen. They have probably furnished music for the last dance of this generation in Clinton. The maskers numbered about twenty couple. Many of the spectators joined the party after the unmasking so that there were just enough dancers to make a pleasant company and they were not too crowded. The most complete disguise worn by a lady must be credited to Mrs. J. L. Tuttle, who was dressed as a "little brown jug." The gentleman who longest remained a mystery to the lookers-on was Ben Ellis, who was disguised as a woman. The supper furnished at the Lancaster House was excellent in every particular. Every one is pleased with the party given by the boys, who by the way were fortunate enough to make about one dollar over and above all expenses. The list of the maskers is as follows:

Mrs. P. C. Smith—Sheet and pillow case.
Mrs. George Hard—Card suit.
Mrs. Ed. Van DeMark—June.
Mrs. Ed. Smith—Sunrise.
Mrs. Frank Thompson—Night.
Mrs. W. D. Van Tuyle—Squaw.
Mrs. J. E. McCollum—Fancy Costume.
Mrs. J. L. Tuttle—Little Brown Jug.
Mrs. S. F. Marstellar—Queen of Hearts.
Mrs. David Haggart—Domino.
Mrs. Allen Bartlett—School Girl.
Mrs. Charles Clark—Domino.
Miss Lina Jones—Archery costume.
Miss Lou McDermott—Queen of Hearts.
Miss Hattie Updike—Queen of Diamonds.
Miss Blanche Smith—Tissue paper suit.
Miss Clyde Marstellar—Tissue paper suit.
Miss May Hunt—Red Riding Hood.
Miss Nellie Kishpaugh—Gypsy Queen
Miss Maggie Biggins—Domino.
Miss Lizzie Dillingham—Domino.
Miss Lora Reynolds—Domino.
Miss Kittie Ebbitt—Domino.
George Field—Clown.
Allen Bartlett—Colored Gentleman.
Albert Kishpaugh—Black & White.
George Van Gieson—Sheet and pillowcase.
J. L. Tuttle—Yankee.
Victor Haywood—Military costume.
Ed. Van DeMark—Turk.
Mr. McIntire—Cowboy.
Ben Ellis—Woman.
Will Silvers—Scotch Laddie.
Charlie Beecher—Prince.
Charles Clark—Domino.
Dick Stevens—Domino.
Wilber Dillingham—Band costume.
Ellsworth Arnold—Jew.

Who Struck Billy Patterson?

For several days we have been deliberating as to whether the article in last week's News, relative to Dr. Burchard's perseutions, were worthy of notice, or, if indeed it were more advisable in justice to the HERALD and its Clinton correspondent, to reply to it. Let it be distinctly understood from the first that we have no apologies to offer, and whatever we may have written in regard to this matter, we are ready to stand by, and if necessary prove. In the first place we did not call Dr. Burchard's "establishment for inventing a steam injector," a gun shop. We gave it the more distinguished appellation of gun factory. Our reasons for calling it this, were as follows: When the building in question was being refitted, we were informed that the owner had applied for and received a patent on a gun-lock. Then we heard he had ordered a large number of gun barrels, some fifty or more. The next information we were privileged to receive was that he had strong hopes of making a breech loading gun that would shoot ten miles and kill. These and many other remarks, coming directly from Dr. Burchard himself, led us to believe that his principal occupation in the "hours not occupied in administering to the wants of sick people" was gun manufacturing. Hence when we had occasion to speak or write of it, it was by the name above stated. If the Clinton correspondent of the HERALD cannot be called a modern George Washington, we fail to see how the local editor of the Clinton department of the News can lay claim to the name of "Truthful James" or John, as the case may be. In his article, "Gunshop on the war path," he says that J. E. McCollum told him that he did not know who the HERALD correspondent was, unless it was Solomon Brown. On interviewing that gentleman, he (Burchard) told him that he had heard that he (Brown) was the correspondent, when he had heard no such thing, only that he might be. On Mr. Brown suggesting that C. S. Burroughs or his wife might write for the paper, he immediately betook himself to Mr. Burrough's presence and confronted him with the startling announcement that he or his wife wrote for the HERALD, when according to his own words in his conversation with Mr. Brown he had only suggested their names, in all probability to get rid of him. The unusual amount of ambition exhibited by Dr. Burchard in his search for the unknown, is certainly worthy of a nobler cause and better success. In regard to our being too ashamed to have our name revealed, we have yet to learn what we have written to the HERALD to cause us to feel in that way. Whatever business we may have with the paper, we are not so ashamed of it as to be obliged to send our wife to transact it for us, but when we have any disagreeable or unpleasant matter on hand, such as quizzing an editor in regard to his correspondents, a matter which is usually considered private, we will try to manage it for ourselves and not ask her to do that which we would scorn to do. We believe that is all we have to say this time, but if Dr. Burchard chooses to continue his search and meets with success, we are willing to meet him armed. Our strong right arm has so far served us well, so that we have faith to depend upon it in any emergence.

BROOKLYN BALLAST.

Mrs. Alma Swain, who is said to be the first white woman that lived in this village, was buried from the Baptist church on Wednesday morning. Though small of stature, she must have possessed strong physical endurance to out live the hardships of pioneer life, and retain a finely cultivated intellect, undimmed by eighty years clouding, until a few weeks before death. She was one of those uncomplaining Spartan mothers who made the best use of life possible, no matter what trouble assailed, and refuted the charge that age is dark and unlovely, by ever keeping about her a girlish tastefulness in dress and manner, toned and mellowed by sunset years.

Intense cold is the plaint, but the rink was crowded as a summer resort at Thursday evening's masquerade. Gentlemen donned Mother Hubbards and sun-bonnets, and the way those skirts swung was a caution. Charlie Fabrie and Herbert Hart sported amazing costumes of their sisters or aunts, made doubly feminine by long white hair and bangs, surmounted by such loves of bonnets as would spoil a Saint with envy. Their attendants were Frank Fitz G. and Love, one representing Santa Clause and the other Hans VonSpreadon'. Of course they were just sweet. Hart made a conquest of the Irish dude who carried a fan, and rejected attentions so demurely that the dude was almost persuaded a girl was hid in the trappings, and when time to unmask came waited anxiously for information before he dared be really and truly Tom Beech again. A priest mingled with the publicans, blacks and whites, and raised Ned with alike freedom, for no body cared much what prank was played because each was unknown to the neighbors. Fred A. looked as if he expected the face of his best girl to materialize, when a broom brigade cap was lifted, but the lady proved to be Mrs. Emma Roberts of Manchester, and the most graceful skater present. Everybody laughed, but the girls say its unfair to usurp their dress when they cannot retaliate by exchange.

The Hush Club is not the secret society its name indicates, and has given up hiving hornets until next spring.

ADDISON ATOMS.

Woodstock's time-clerk has been somewhat under the weather of late with the all prevailing colds.

The friends of Mr. J. H. Underwood are pressing his claims to the postmastership. Mr. U. is trustworthy and popular with all classes and we see no reason why he would not make an excellent official.

Mr. C. Gunn is making vigorous efforts to prepare for "biz" at his brick yard during the coming season.

N. B. Pratt is collecting material preparatory to erecting a new house in the spring. Mr. P. has the only pioneer log house in the neighborhood.

Rumor says that Professor Tripp of our village schools, is now the father of a bouncing dish-washer; now providing this be true, we hereby tender our congratulations; if not, an apology for giving it publicity.

Revs. Crane and Armstrong of the Methodist and Congregational societies commenced a series of religious revival meetings Sunday. Said meetings may continue some weeks and we trust may produce beneficial results.

RIDGEWAY RAMBLES.

How is this for an open winter?

The snow is about 16 inches deep on the level.

Only one train over the M. & O., on Monday.

Miss Hattie Montgomery of Tecumseh called on friends Friday.

Miss Mary Kilpatrick is visiting friends here this week, and will return to her home at Fowierville in a few days.

Mr. Orville Lee of Kalamazoo, has been visiting his cousin, Mrs. G. W. Jackson, for the past few days.

There was not many out to the social Friday night it being so stormy, but those that did attend enjoyed the evening very pleasantly.

Mr. Sam Helm, Jr., is at his father's very sick and his recovery is doubtful. His wife came Tuesday evening to take care of him.

The social will be held at the home of Mrs. H. Williams, on Friday evening of next week.

Mr. Jacob Arner found a live toad in the street near the church, Thursday morning of last week, and it was 14 degrees below zero at the time.

Twenty or more of the young people of the village were very pleasantly entertained at the home of Mr. T. H. Montgomery on Saturday night in behalf of Miss Fannie Cone, their cousin.

Silence is the pass-word, Mr. Correspondent to the Lenawee Record, in matters concerning your brother correspondents.

To Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Larkin a four pound girl.

We don't wonder that the HERALD correspondent from Macon, did so much kicking before election at the position of the prohibitionists, for he had a finger in the Representative pie, you see.

The chorister of the church choir desires that all the old members and those that are members at present, and all persons interested in a choir will please meet in the lecture room of the church, on Saturday evening, to choose a chorister and an organist.

School meeting next Monday night, and it is the desire of the board that the voters will be present.

The Literary on next Friday night promises to be the best of the season.

Miss Belle Barlow is under the doctor's care, and it is hoped is not dangerous.

Mr. Harry Smith, who has been a third partner in the firm of Coryell, Lawton & Co., has withdrawn from the firm and hired out to them for a year by the day, to work at tinwork. The firm will be known as Coryell & Lawton. The firm have made a wise choice in keeping Mr. Smith. Mr. Smith is one of the best tinsmiths in Southern Michigan and we are glad he is going to stay with us.

ONSTED ODDS.

Missionary social at J. B. Maxwell's Thursday.

Allen McAllister has moved into a part of D. A. Sickner's house.

Joseph Keeney, of Franklin, shipped four horses from here to Marshall last Saturday.

Frank Glenn, after a visit at home of about three weeks, returned to Chicago Monday.

I. Teachout, of Rome Center, shipped four carloads of sheep from here last Saturday.

Sleigh rides with an occasional capsizing is the order of the day now.

E. Spalding, our station agent, has stretched a wire from the depot to his boarding house where he has an instrument.

There is a considerable sickness in this vicinity at present. Our popular doctor G. W. Russ has some long rides this cold weather.

FLASHES BY C. T. LINE.

Miss Susan McConnell, of West Adrian, is visiting at Mrs. Almira McCollum's.

Mrs. Sarah Shaw, of Adrian, visited friends in this vicinity the past week.

Detroit and Adrian papers write items from C. T. Line Flashes and print them as original news.

Albert Morseman, of Franklin, entertained a party of friends last Friday. A good time and a good place to have it.

J. R. Keeney shipped four very fine horses to Marshall last Saturday over the M. & O. The Tipton depot is nearly completed.

Mrs. Tripp's baby is very sick.

Social at Congregational church, Franklin, Thursday afternoon and evening.

Remember the annual meeting of C. T. Line stockholders next Monday, at 2 o'clock, P. M.

BOHEMIAN OATS.

A friend of ours who lives in Macon has received the following letter from a party in Ohio, which puts the Bohemian oat business in its true light. Mr. Montgomery is a responsible man, and the original letter in his possession can be inspected by any one who desires to see it. The last number of the Michigan Farmer has an article ventilating the business in a very happy manner, which it would be well for farmers to read.

FREDERICK, O., Jan. 14, 1885.

Mr. E. G. Montgomery, Cone, Mich. Dear Sir:—In reply to yours of Jan. 8th, I would state that I have had some experience in the Bohemian Oat business, and have made considerable inquiry in addition to my own experience and taken all together I find it is one of the Grandest Swindles that ever was perpetrated on the farmer's of this section of the country. I would say that the agents ought to be treated as land pirates and driven from every community when offering Bohemian Oats for sale, for I will assure that every man that invests will have bought his wit at a dear rate. And what I have said in the foregoing would be the testimony of all that I have conversed with on the subject. You may tell your neighbors that it is a colossal swindle.

Respectfully,
ROBERT WEISNE.

FARMERS' SOCIAL CLUB.

Friday evening, Jan. 23, the Club met at the residence of Mr. I. H. Schreder per adjournment. The night was so cold and stormy that but very few put in an appearance, yet the program previously arranged was very well carried out. The recitation by Gracie Gillespie was superb. Kittie Griswold's essay was also a good production. There were so few present it was thought best not to discuss the question until our next meeting which occurs two weeks from the above date, or February 6.

Program for next meeting:
Music—Grant and Henry.
Essay—Eva Rector
Declamation—Frank Gillespie.
Select Reading—Anna Everhart.
Essay—Ellen Fisher
Chip Basket—Minnie Rector.
Singing—Choir
Question: Would it be more profitable to sell our cream than to make it into butter? Led by E. L. Russel.

F. V. HORTON, Sec.

The Agricultural Society of Lenawee County will hold its annual meeting on Friday, Jan. 30, at 10 o'clock A. M. A cordial invitation is extended to all who are interested in the success of the county fair.

M. GRAVES, SEC.

B. D. Nichols and A. Linn will give a Social Party at Britton's Hall tomorrow evening, Jan. 30th. Music by Edwards' Orchestra. Floor managers, Joe Mellon and H. C. Smith. Bill 50 cents.

LEPROSY.

Two Rare Cases of the Terrible Disease That Have Lately Appeared in New York.

Several weeks ago in these columns was given the sad story of a young lady of fashion in this city who had been visited with a strange disease, diagnosed as leprosy by her physician and by experts, one of whom was a member of the visiting staff of Mount Sinai hospital in consequence of a wild night's frolic with a couple of adventurous companions in an opium den connected with a Chinese laundry on Third avenue. The diagnosis of leprosy has been sustained, not only by the concurrent opinions of all the experts who have been called into the case, but also by the whipcord enlargement of the ulnar nerve. This significant symptom was already distinctly defined under the finger when ten days ago, acting under the advice of her physician, the beautiful patient sailed for Europe with a view of consulting the best medical authorities in the great foreign centers of scientific activity. Another case of the same kind, not less sad than the preceding, ones nor less certain in its symptoms, although of obscurer origin, is now under the observation of a group of practitioners. The victim is a promising and brilliant actress, as beautiful in person as she is fascinating in manner, of English extraction, and belonging to a family that has already furnished somewhat distinguished notabilities of the stage. The young actress arrived in this city about a fortnight ago, and is staying with her mother in private, denying herself in her morbid sensitiveness to all her former friends and acquaintances. The history of the case, as furnished by her attending physician, is as follows: In the latter part of June last, on the eve of her departure from the city with a light comedietta and comic opera company, the young lady, whose name is withheld for obvious reasons, noticed one morning at her toilet a strange purple blotch, rather larger than the ball of her thumb, beneath her right eye. It was of irregular contour, and extended from apo tha dwy beneath the orbit some distance beyond the external margin. Rehearsals were in progress. She was studying very hard, and she attributed the appearance to late hours and overwork, smoothed and painted it over with rose-water and bismuth, and thought no more of it for the day, other than to be careful that the painting was efficient. Contemporary with this she began to bore ness troubled with want of sleep, and when at last, the long-sought for oblivion came, she started and full of starts. Twice in the days of these embryotic days of the disease her mother was awakened by sleepily footsteps moving about the house, and with rare courage for a woman, she pressed her daughter with open, but unseeing eyes, wandering from room to room, trying one door after another with silent hand. These nocturnal wanderings were succeeded by mornings of nervous lebetude. In this condition, with others of the company, she set out on her dramatic tour, from which, she anticipated great results, in the latter part of June, and was soon gathering abundant plaudits and press notices and, what is better, a full harvest of cash in the cities of the Southwest. She arrived in New Orleans, lauded and feted out. While performing in one of the large towns in that vicinity she was suddenly prostrated with the ephemeral fever, high fever, with snatches of delirium, and the familiar rose-colored eruption which has been so often described by such experts as Prof. Sturgis, Dr. Tilford, Dr. O'Donnell, and others, who have witnessed the onset of the malady, ushered in by a severe and prolonged rigor. The local practitioner diagnosed the case as one of climatic fever, in the severer forms of which eruptive phenomena resembling scarlatina are not unusual. For ten consecutive days this internal consuming flame burned without intermission; but on the tenth day, to the wonder of the local practitioner, suddenly subsided, the vapors of delirium clearing away from the excited brain and leaving the patient feeble as an infant, but free, apparently, from all malarial symptoms. Meanwhile stranded by the illness of one of its leading members, the company had lingered impatient to be at work, grumbling and discontented. But, though convalescent according to the rules of the medicine, neither stimulants nor tonics, decoctions of beef or of brandy and quinine availed to restore the wasted and still wasting constitutional energies. A substitute had to be engaged and by slow stages, sick, disappointed disheartened, the young actress returned to her home. It befell, by one those curious coincidences that render human life such a riddle to the unbelieving, that the case came under the purview of an adept in leprosy, whose training in one of the great centers of the disease had educated his eye to the detection of all its subtle signs. "The story of the blotch under the eye, the bloated features, and the significantly whitish pallor of the skin; the sudden and terrible fever, with red spots, followed by sudden, but only apparent, convalescence; the subsequent debility, malaria, and general failure; the elongated, hard, red tubercles on the shoulders, which the patient showed me, wondering how they came; the numbness of the hands—all these," said the young man to the Mercury reporter, who, having heard of the case from an acquaintance of the victim, was referred to her physician for information, "were things as familiar to me as the Roman alphabet. I shall call other physicians before finally announcing the verdict so terrible to hear and bear, but, between you and me, there is no more question about the nature of the disorder than about a case of scarlatina or the measles. The poor thing is in the beginning of the third, or tubercle, stage of leprosy. Practitioners call this the second stage. How did she contract the terrible taint that is gnawing away her beauty and life? I have questioned her cautiously. She denies having visited any opium-smoking haunt just before the blotch came or at any previous period. There was a lodger in the house, her mother says, in May and June last, who had just such reddish tubercles on his shoulders and neck as are now appearing in the case of her daughter. If the mother is correct in her description, the young man was a leper, and must have been aware of it, and that his presence in the house was a source of imminent danger. I am satisfied that the disease is leprosy, and that my patient ought to be isolated immediately for the protection of the family and her friends."

The young actress has canceled her engagements for the fall season, and proposes to make a voyage to Europe as soon as arrangements can be effected for her mother to accompany her.—N. Y. Mercury.

A Newspaper Fable.

A $ Mark and a ¢ were one day left close together on the Imposing Stone, and the $ Mark coughed in a Pompous way and observed:

"I am constantly used to designate the Wealth of the World."

"And I," replied the ¢, as he Bristled up in the Promptest Manner, "am symbolic of Liberty."

"By means of me," continued the $ Mark, "the Printer can change 1,000,000 Grains of Sand into $1,000,000."

"Yes; but Heaven's vaults are studded with Stars, and I am frequently used in Print to represent Unknown Quantities."

"They were still boasting when the Apprentice came up and Inquired the Cause of the Excitement. Having Received an Explanation, he said

"Both are of so little use that I'll chuck you into the pi case."

MORAL.

Any man may set his own value, but the Trouble is to make other men Believe in his figures.—Detroit Free Press.

The Crow (N. Y.) Telegram says there is a man in Cohoes who has the habit of carrying a needle in his mouth continually. No matter whether eating, drinking, sleeping or awake, the needle is always in his mouth, and when excited or talking earnestly he will roll the needle around in his mouth similarly to a man chewing tobacco. He stated that he contracted the habit some years ago, but can give no cause for it, and that when one needle gets corroded so bad that it breaks he procures another.

—A dinner was given to ten gentlemen at the Bellevue, Philadelphia, the elegance of which is a subject of much talk in fashionable circles. The menus were in the form of a book of antique leather with a solid silver clasp. There were nine pages to the book, each page representing a course, and beautifully illuminated in oil. The gossips say these dainty books of the gastronomic library cost ten dollars each.—Philadelphia Times.

THE JUICE OF THE GAGUS.

A More Deadly Lethal Drink Than Any Known to Civilization.

"Do you know what that is?" said the Captain of a bark lately returned from a cruise in the Southern seas. He held in his hand what appeared to be a gnarled panel, barely a pole thick to the size of a policeman's club.

"This comes from Gaupti Island, near the Mariane group. I have navigated the South Seas for many years, and I never saw it growing upon any other island. And I don't think you will find any sailor or native who hails from those waters but will behave when I tell you what this stick is. It is juice to we sailors, but not to what the juice is called. I've heard these long-eared scientific fellows call it by a name a yard long, but I might as well have tried to reef a mainsail alone as to reel it around my mental windlass. Gagus is good enough for me.

"Who planted it?"

"Why, bless me, that's the way it grew," cried the skipper, with a laugh. It is a species of cactus, and grows only to my knowledge on Gaupti Island. The island is a small one, but is well populated by natives of the Malay race. In the interior this plant grows wild, flourishing especially in the rocky soil. It looks beautiful when growing, as you may judge by the bright hues with which this is spotted. The main stalk is covered with sharp, nettle-like protuberances, and a prick from one of them will cause more pain than a handful of red-pepper thrown in your eyes. When young the plant consists of but one stalk, which shoots up straight to a height of four or five feet. It is a brilliant scarlet in hue. Toward winter a number of offshoots spring out until the thing looks like a broom, stood upright. Green and purple specks then appear all over it. A grove of gagus shrubs is a very pretty sight. But it is the properties of the plant which distinguish it. Opium is a potent drug, but I will back the extract from the gagus stalk to effect more damage on the human system than all the opium in the world. The natives cut the plant in the early spring. After they have gathered a sufficient quantity they put it in large bowls and crush it with huge stones. A grayish sap runs out freely, and this they collect and drink after letting it ferment, which it does easily. One drink of a pint is enough for an ordinary man, but I have seen natives drink more. Within half an hour after imbibing it the drinker becomes perfectly stupid and lies around like a log. The spell lasts a day or more, during which time the natives say they live in paradise. I have known sailors to try it, but they never tackled it twice. Three years ago I had a man in my crew who was driven crazy by one drink. If you could see some of the terrible examples of gagus drinking in Gaupti you would be horrified. The first effect of the liquor is to soften the bones, and gradually eat them away. There are natives there, the victims of gagus, who are indeed boneless and unable to walk or use their limbs. They then begin to wither away like this stalk until they die in misery and convulsions. Immediately after death, the head of the corpse becomes soft as pulp, no bones can be felt, the skull is completely eaten away. The body then begins to swell as though it were inflated with gas and immediate burial is necessary."

"How long does it take to thus devastate a human being?"

"Usually two years will finish the hardest man. Oh, the suffering of the slaves to the drink are terrible."—San Francisco Call.

A TALK ABOUT COWS.

Some Points Which Farmers and Dairymen Will Do Well to Study Over.

I do not design in this article to pass upon breeds, although I shall refer to some of them, but I shall call attention to several points, which in my judgment, the farmers' cow ought to possess. She should be of good size that she may produce a calf that will be profitable to raise for beef if a male, and also that she herself may be profitable turned into beef as soon as by age, her milking powers show signs of failing, and here I wish to make this point. A majority of farmers keep their cows too long. I believe that except in the case of those which prove extraordinarily profitable for milk or butter, or possess some qualities which render them superior, it will be more profitable to fatten cows at from five to eight years old than to milk them longer. If you will look at the market reports in any of our papers you find the poorest grade of cattle quoted at from $1.75 to $2.25 per hundred, and in the same papers you will see good fat cows quoted at from $4 to $5 per hundred. In visiting the stock yards I have seen pens of old bony cows, with wrinkled horns and protruding hips, and have ceased to wonder at these low quotations. Aside from the difference of two cents per pound or more in price at selling time, these cows have often been kept for some years at a loss, and if sold five or more years sooner this double loss might have been avoided. If a cow milks hard or does not prove to be gentle, I never milk her more than one season. If she is a fair, ordinary cow, I turn her for beef when in her prime, but occasionally I find a cow that possesses such a combination of valuable qualities that I keep her to old age, and I have kept such cows at a profit till nearly twenty years old.

Another point I will make is, that for the farmer it is more desirable that the cow give a large amount of milk, than that it be very rich. I know this is contrary to the general opinion, and that the fact that a small quantity of milk will make a pound of butter is ordinarily considered decisive of a good cow. I affirm that for the farmer the cow which gives four gallons of milk a day, from which ten pounds of butter a week is made, is worth more than the one which produces the same amount of butter from two gallons of milk per day. The average price of butter is so low that when we take into consideration the labor to produce and prepare it for market, there is often a greater net profit from the skim milk fed to stock than from the butter. If I have described the cow most profitable to the farmer, she certainly is not a Jersey, for most of this breed are undersized and give but a moderate quantity of very rich milk. In addition to this, her milk, though rich in butter, is quite poor after it has been skimmed, so that it is worth much less for feeding than that of some other breeds. I have found it a decided advantage to the quality of the product to have one Jersey cow to sell two or three others in the herd, as their milk gives butter of a better color and finer texture than that of most other breeds.

After careful experiment I conclude that as a rule more profit can be had from a cow that comes in fresh in the fall than in the spring. Thus a cow has run dry on pasture for two months or more in the summer, she is usually in better flesh and condition for calving and giving milk than if she comes in in early spring after months of dry feed. 2. Again, the cow that calves in the fall goes on fresh pasture just at the time she would begin to shrink in her milk, and the season of flush milk is prolonged. 3. The average price of butter is considerably greater from October to May than from May to October, so that we can make a greater profit from the cow that is fresh in the fall. The most disagreeable season of the year to milk, and the hardest to make a good quality of butter is during the heat of summer, and at this season it is wise to produce only what the family requires. 5. I find a fall calf can be raised with less trouble than one born in spring, for the reason that it does not require the same care to winter a calf that is a full year old, and has had an entire season on grass, that it does the spring calf weaned in the fall, and must spend six months on dry feed before it goes to pasture. The profitable way to fatten a cow is to fatten and milk at the same time. If you do not breed the cow she can usually be milked at a profit from eighteen months to two years, and occasionally you will find one that can be milked a much longer time. A cow in her prime, say from six to eight years old—that has given milk a year or more can be milked all winter and dried the first of April, and in four weeks go to the butcher at the season of the year when beef is always scarcest and highest in price. The fattest cows I ever sold were milked up to the day the butcher took them, and I calculated that the milk through the winter paid the entire expense of fattening. I have often bought in the fall a thrifty cow, with the marks of a good feeder, that under the treatment she was receiving, was giving but three or four quarts of milk a day, but under full feed, soon increased to two gallons and kept up the flow till she went to the butcher in the spring, and I usually sell at an advance of from $12 to $25 above cost. The quality of the milk from a full-fed farrow cow is very superior to that from a fresh cow. I have found this plan of milking for a long time without breeding especially valuable with old cows. Occasionally one gets hold of a cow that possesses so many valuable qualities that he wishes to keep her as long as possible. After such a cow passes her prime, breed her to come in in the fall when in good order, and then feed so as to keep her up and milk as long as she will pay for keeping. I have milked for thirty-seven months, and have known cases where a cow has been milked for five years without breeding.—Waldo F. Brown, in Country Gentleman.

HE HAD PLANS.

The Very Smart Young Man Who Talked About What He Was Going to Do.

A wholesale house in Detroit, in which the firm consists of four partners, with a solid old gentleman at the head, took on a new traveler a few days ago. He was engaged and packed off without having seen the senior partner, and he probably didn't care a cent whether such a person existed or not. He was coming in over one of the roads on a recent Saturday, and had taken a seat in the smoker to enjoy a fifteen-center, when a fellow-traveler asked him how business was, and what firm he represented.

"Business is infernal dull, and I represent the house of Blank & Co., Detroit," was the answer.

"Pretty solid house?"

"Oh, yes; but rather cranky."

"Going to be with it next year?"

"Well, that will depend. When I get in I'm going to ask for a position in the store. I'm fitted for almost any place there, and I'm going to push myself."

"And then you'll work for promotion?"

"You bet! and if things come around right I'll have an interest in the old ranch inside of two years."

"Eh! how's that?"

"Well, the old crank who furnishes the doubloons to keep the business booming has two marriageable daughters, and I'm going to be his son-in-law or break both legs trying. I've got the luck to succeed, and you can bet a new hat on me any day in the year."

The conversation died away very soon after that, and in a little time the traveler was left to the comforts of his cigar. He thought no more of the matter until he walked into the Store Monday morning to report. The first man his eyes rested upon was his fellow traveler on the train, and the old gent had his hat off, and seemed very much at home. He bowed to the drummer, and he smiled, and he went to the door and called after him in a forgiving tone, but the man escaped, and has not been seen in Detroit since.—Detroit Free Press.

—A discussion in England has brought out the fact that the clergyman's conventional dress is simply a modification of that of the English gentleman a century ago, and that it was not established by law. The New York clergyman who once startled his congregation by donning a yachting suit for his morning service, was probably actuated by an "intense Americanism".—Current.

whom everybody knows as the successful manager of the Largest Hotel Enterprises

of America, says that while a passenger from New York on board a ship going around Cape Hope, in the early days of emigration to California, he learned that one of the officers of the vessel had cured himself, during the voyage, of an obstinate disease by the use of

"Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Since then Mr. LELAND has recommended AYER'S SARSAPARILLA in many similar cases, and he has never yet heard of its failure to effect a radical cure.

Some years ago one of Mr. LELAND'S farm laborers bruised his leg. Owing to the bad state of his blood, a malignant ulcerous swelling or lump appeared on the injured limb. Horrible itching of the skin, with burning and darting pains through the lump, made life almost intolerable. The leg became enormously enlarged, and running ulcers formed, discharging great quantities of extremely offensive matter. No treatment was of any avail until the man, by Mr. LELAND'S direction, was supplied with AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, which allayed the pain and irritation, healed the sores, removed the swelling, and completely restored the limb to use.

Mr. LELAND has personally used for Rheumatism, with entire success; and, after careful observation, declares that, in his belief, there is no medicine in the world equal to it for the cure of Liver Disorders, Gout, the effects of high living, Salt Rheum, Sores, Eruptions, and all the various forms of blood diseases.

We have Mr. LELAND'S permission to invite all who may desire further evidence in regard to the extraordinary curative powers of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA to see him personally either at his mammoth Ocean Hotel, Long Branch, or at the popular Leland Hotel, Broadway, 27th and 28th Streets, New York.

Mr. LELAND'S extensive knowledge of the good done by this unequaled eradicator of blood poisons enables him to give inquirers much valuable information.

Celery in Winter.

Many people grow celery for family use, who find it very difficult to keep it for winter, the chief difficulty being to prevent its rusting. Now, if kept out of doors, there is not much trouble, but laid by, in almost any form in the root cellar, celery will rarely last very long in good condition. Usually amateurs make the mistake of having it all earthed up together and on, whereas, to keep well late in winter, the earthing up must be deferred as late as possible, and only enough to keep the stalks from spreading and getting out of shape. For market purposes, the earliest here is usually dug in July, and it is generally somewhat smaller and inferior in other respects to what may be called the main crop, which comes in late in September and on through the month of October and November, after which the winter crop may be said to begin.

In this neighborhood, where a large quantity is grown, it is not safe to have much of it unprepared in winter quarters later than the middle of November. The opposite practice will sometimes cost the grower great loss by a single frost. It is not because celery fails to stand several degrees of cold, say ten or fifteen, but it is unsafe to risk much more than this. This is particularly true of that in the best condition for late keeping, having the green much exposed.

The place selected for keeping celery must be free from standing water. If not certain as to this for a depth equal to the habits of the celery, it is necessary to raise the plants above surrounding level. Choose a dry day, take up all the celery, with what roots and soil will cling. Make a trench the depth the celery is high, and wide enough to form a bed that will hold say a dozen stalks. Set them in this trench as nearly perpendicular as possible, and as close together as they will stand; pack soil just enough to these to keep the next row apart, which proceed to place in the same way as the first, and so on until all are in position. When completed, one has a bank of celery and earth, with the tops of celery just peeping out. Here it may remain until signs of very sharp frost appear, when some litter must be placed over every part of the bank, sufficient to keep the frost from penetrating more than a few inches into the soil. Yet there must not be so heavy a covering as to cause any danger of heating. Choose warm spells to get as many stalks as are likely to be wanted for a week's use, and you may have celery the greatest part of the winter.

For small family beds, instead of a dozen stalks wide, the trench may be made only three, or a quantity to suit the demand. By this means, very small and late celery is often put away and sold, or used in the family late in the winter or in early spring.—Prairie Farmer.

Cheap Cellar for Storing Roots.

Those who raise large quantities of roots for feeding out through the winter are often troubled a good deal in finding storing-room where they may be safely kept. The cellar under the house is usually too small and not at all convenient to the barn. Every stock-raiser should have his root-cellar either under or near the barn.

Owing to the low situation of the barn and other reasons it is not always possible or convenient to have the cellar under the barn. In such cases a cellar or frost-proof storing-room built mainly above ground and after the following description will be found both cheap and satisfactory.

If the ground is high enough dig down three feet the size desired. 12x20 feet makes a good large cellar, and 10 x 16 feet will do for 600 or 800 bushels. Get on hand a lot of small logs or poles from six to ten inches in diameter, with which to build the portion above ground. Cut the poles for each side three feet longer than the width or length of the excavation. Place the first two poles on flat stones or blocks back a foot from the edge of the hole dug, and upon opposite sides. Flat the ends with the axe and lay two cross-poles as you would in starting a log-house. In these end pieces, one foot from the end, cut notches for the next hole to lie in. With each round set the side-poles in a foot, which will give a regular slant to the roof, and make a very strong frame for the weight that is to come upon it. The end that is to contain the door should be carried up the same as the sides.

Cover this frame with culls or common lumber, laying the boards on up and down. Next put on a heavy layer of marsh hay or straw to keep the dirt from coming in contact with and rotting the lumber. Over this put a foot of earth, and if they can be had without too much trouble, a covering of sods. A shute should be provided for filling the house, and a small ventilating flue for winter. The end where the door is located should be double-boarded and filled in with sawdust and cut straw. There should also be a double door, although I have used such a cellar with only a single door, without having the roots frozen.

A storing-house of this kind, if well made, will last eight or ten years, and give as good satisfaction as one costing $100.—Indiana Farmer.

Hot-Beds.

How to build fire-heated hot beds for profit should be regulated by the nature of the crop to be grown in them, whether lettuce, radishes, spinach, early carrots and the like, or decorative plants, as geraniums, roses and bedding plants, also on their nature—brick or wood—and the extent desired by their owner. The kind of heating apparatus—hot water pipes or smoke flues—must also be considered. We prefer hot water.

Let the situation be a sunny one, open to the south, and sheltered from the north, northeast and northwest; if there is no natural shelter, a board fence would be of great benefit; it would promote the growth of the plants, save fire-heat and some time in covering up. For early vegetables, beds covered by three or six feet sashes are as good as any; one man can handle these sashes, whereas were they larger two men would be needed.

Board or plank pits three to three and a half feet deep at the back and two and one-half to three feet at the front and sunk under the ground level about two feet would be quite serviceable. Let this frame be floored nine inches under the surface level. In the chamber under the floor, which is a little over a foot deep, two three-inch hot water pipes should be placed; these will give what bottom heat would be required. If the bottom of the pipe chamber were floored with old boards, a good deal of heat would be economized. Then fill the pit to the ground level (nine inches deep) with soil, and plant your crop.

Top heat may be given by a row of one inch hot water pipes running along inside, at top and bottom of the frame. Straw mats and shutters should also be used as an outer covering in the case of cold nights, as only a mild heat should ever be kept in the pipes.

Of such a bed as this you may have as many rows as you please, letting them run parallel with each other and at intervals of two or more feet. A series of small greenhouses, heated from above ground, may, after all, be the most desirable, as they certainly are in the case of pot plants.—N. Y. Herald.

Pointless Conversation.

Family life is apt to fall into narrow grooves, and family talk to degenerate into vapid discussion of persons or trifles, too often, unluckily, sharpened by ill natured satire. Each member of the family is likely to chatter of his or her favorite pursuit until the table talk resembles a London street where each vendor cries his wares, without regard to the ears, intelligence or feelings of the others. Nothing stunts the growth of a child's mind or debases its aim more that such habits.

A summer visitor to the country describes the conversation among the people at the farm, as follows. At breakfast:

Joe—Father, Sam Prather says as his calf weighs more'n ourn.

Joe—I dunno.

At dinner: Father—I see Sam Prather down ther, Joe. He says his calf does weigh more' ourn.

Joe—Sho! How much did he say?

Father—I dunno.

Joe—Sam Prather's a fool!

At supper: Joe—Father, Sam Prather told Jem that his calf weighed more'n ourn.

[A long pause.] Father—I'd like him to prove that.

Joe—I don't think he kin. He never see our calf, an' his'n is killed and eat up.

Father—Sho! [A long pause.] You kin tell Sam Prather for me, Joe, that if his calf warn't killed an' eat, it wouldn't weigh more'n ourn.

Now, of course, it is lamentable enough that rational human beings should spend any part of their time in conversation so empty of ideas and so utterly aimless as that. But if our critical townsman could read his own morning talk set down in cold print, while he would find the subject discussed different—it might concern a rise in this railway stock of a quarter of a cent, or the fall of cottons of the same amount—it might prove to be just as inane and just as pointless—the overflow of a mind perpetually running in one narrow current. Could one find any wisdom or wit or shrewd common sense in it which would help or cheer those who heard it?

What is the remedy?

Some pursuit in common, a book read aloud, a charitable work, the study of the bees or dogs about them—anything, in short, that will break down the fence that shuts the family into the incessant observation of a few people and a few trifling ideas.—Youth's Companion.

The Fly Screen Agent.

He had six fly screens under his arm, and was talking to a man in front of a house on Hastings street.

"I am offering these at fifty per cent. below their cash values," he explained, "because I want to get out of town."

"Vhell, it vhas soon coming winter, und I like to know how some dies come aroundt den?" the man answered.

"That's true enough, my friend, but the fly question is not the only thing. These screens save twenty five per cent. in fuel."

"Vhell?"

"They give an air of refinement to a house."

"Vhell?"

"I don't say that they keep out cholera altogether, but you can't point to a house in Detroit provided with them which has had a case of cholera."

"Vhell, dot vhas so."

"In buying them you help a poor man to reach the bed-side of his dying wife in Buffalo."

"Yes."

"You add at least two hundred dollars to the value of your place."

"Yes."

"They are not a burglar alarm but when a burglar finds them in the windows he turns away disconraged."

"Dot vhas good."

"The air which enters your house is strained as it were, and must therefore be free of chips, gravel, sand, dust and other substances deleterious to health."

"I see."

"And you will take 'em?"

"My freudt, vhas dose fly screens like a watch dog? If some boys come in der alley dose dey raise a big row und let me know?"

"Of course not."

"If I come home in der night und der front door vhas locked und I can't get in, does dose fly screens make it all right?"

"No, sir—no, sir. How can you expect any such things from fly screens?"

"Vhell, I doan't know. I guess you better moof along to der next corner. The grocer could not withstand this appeal.—Chicago Herald.

QUEER PAYMENTS FOR LAND.

Three Grains of Pepper or a Snowball at Midsummer to Pay the Rent.

The term "pepper corn rent" is a familiar one to us all, and instances of such a rent having been fixed are neither few nor far between. Thus, Bermeton, in Durham, was held by the service of three grains of pepper yearly; Finchley, in Middlesex, by the annual rent of a pound of pepper corn; Highgate, in Denbigh, was leased for a term of five hundred years at the annual rent of one pepper corn; and for a fortieth part of one night's fee in the manor of Leyham, in Suffolk, Phillippa Ross rendered "one capon and the third part of one capon, and the third part of one pound of pepper." A similar custom was that of Pokerly, in Durham, which lands were held by one clove on St. Cuthbert's day, in September, for all other services." All the foregoing examples of services may be rendered as, to some extent, reasonable, though inadequate as payment for the lands held; but many of the services rendered appear to be purely arbitrary and capricious, as when a farm at Brook House, in Yorkshire, was held by the payment of a "snowball at midsummer and a red rose at Christmas." Roses often appear in these services. Lands in Crendon, in Buckinghamshire, were held by the "service of one chaplet of roses at Christmas." For the manor of Fulmer, in the same county, Sir Marmaduke Darel rendered one red rose yearly; as did Ralph de Belvoir for lands in Mickelham, Surrey, and Sir William Sandes for the manor of Stene and Hinton, in Northampton. Lastly, certain lands at Haine, in Surrey, "were held of the men of Kingston upon condition of rendering to the said men three clove gillidowers at the king's coronation," and perhaps the single clove referred to above, as if it were a spice, should rather be regarded as a similar flower.—Cassell's Family Magazine.

THE WONDER

Is becoming universal as to how such an immense sale could be created in Lowell for HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA. But my friend if you could stand behind our counter a week and hear what those say who are using it, the reason would appear as clear as the noon-day sun. The real curative power of HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA demonstrates itself in every case where our directions are faithfully regarded. We would that we might get before the people a fractional part of the confidence that is expressed to us every day in this medicine by those who have carefully noted (without prejudice) its effects upon the blood and through that upon the whole system, stimulating all the functions of the body to perform the duties nature requires of them. Try a bottle and satisfy yourself.

Cold Hands and Feet.

LOWELL, Feb. 3, 1879.

MESSRS. C. I. HOOD & CO.: Gentlemen—About one year ago my daughter commenced taking your Sarsaparilla. At that time she had very little appetite; could take no long walks, and her face was badly broken out with a humor. She was low-spirited; troubled with cold hands and feet; her blood seemed to be poor, and she was in a condition which caused us great anxiety. After taking one bottle of your Sarsaparilla she began to improve; and she now has a good appetite and can take much longer walks. Her humor is nothing compared with what it was one year ago. She is in better spirits, is not troubled with cold hands and feet as previously. And I attribute this improvement in her condition largely to your Sarsaparilla. She has taken six bottles, and intends to continue its use. I was inclined to oppose the trial of it at first. I now have great faith in it as a blood purifier. Very truly yours,

ESTATE OF PETER R. ADAMS.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss.

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate Office in the city of Adrian, on Monday, the 19th day of January, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-five.

Present, Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

On reading and filing the petition of Cordelia M. Adams, administratrix of said estate, with the will annexed, alleging among other things that she has paid the funeral expenses and debts of said deceased, and the expenses of administration of said estate, thus far incurred, that all legacies bequeathed in and by said will have been paid, except residuary legacies, and certain legacies held in trust, and praying for the allowance of her final account, and for an order in the court for the assignment and distribution of the residue of said estate to and among the persons entitled thereto according to the provisions of said will.

Thereupon it is ordered, That Monday, the [illegible] day of February next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulation in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

SOMETHING ABOUT THE EXPOSITION.

Mr. Geo. S. Tiffany returned from New Orleans last week. He dropped into the HERALD office a few days since and favored us with an account of his experience while there.

"I had a very pleasant time," said he, "during my visit, at least in some respects. The exhibition was opened too early. The buildings are some of them still incomplete, and exhibitors are still coming in. The opening, in my opinion, should have been postponed till the first of February. By that time every thing will be in readiness for the visitors to enjoy the exhibition. As to the exposition itself, it is certainly a big show and one worth going a long way to see. In the line of natural products, it is doubtless the finest display yet seen in this country. The machinery department is not so complete, but still that is very creditable. I was there about five weeks and during that time I gained some acquaintance with New Orleans and the people there. What the South most needs to-day is an influx of Northern capital and enterprise. They have abundant resources, but that section is comparatively undeveloped. The agriculture of the South is entirely behind the times. I didn't see a good farm between New Orleans and the blue grass region of Kentucky. The people of the Crescent city are very polite and hospitable to strangers, although I do not fancy their peculiar political methods. The ruling classes carry things there with a high hand. I was well pleased with my visit however, and would advise all, who can spare the time and money, to visit the exposition. I left my business there in charge of an assistant, who will attend to it, but I may return myself in the spring. If the excursion, now talked of from here, should take place I shall probably avail myself of that chance to go down again and take my boys with me."

The lecture given by Wm. Marshall last Friday evening was replete with information and was a most happy word picture of the beauties of "Wonderland." The scenic illustrations were the finest ever presented in this village. Mr. Marshall introduced his lecture by showing the civilizing influence of the Pacific railroads, and the marvelous impetus which the opening of these roads had given to the settlement and development of the "new Northwest." He then proceeded with the aid of his stereopticon views to give his audience an introduction to the wonders of Yellowstone park, and other places of interest in Dakota and Montana. On Saturday evening he gave a second lecture, dealing mostly with scenes in California and Colorado. There was a good audience in attendance on both evenings, but we regret to say, not what the excellence of the bill of fare invited. Two more lectures of the course remain, and it is certainly to be hoped that they will be more liberally patronized.

One of the most attractive articles in the handsome February Magazine of American History is Rev. Dr. Vermilye's sketch of the "Early New York Post Office," accompanied with several admirable illustrations. The portrait of Ebenezer Hazard, Postmaster, and Postmaster-General, never before published, will be greatly prized by picture collectors. Alfred Frederick's sketch of the primitive "locked box," and "Letter Carrier of the Olden Time," is his best. The second illustrated article, by the eminent scholar, Horatio Hale, describes the great Mohawk Chief, George H. M. Johnson, with a graphic and fascinating account of his life, and work among the Six Nations. Col. William Howard Mills contributes new and interesting material concerning "Benedict Arnold's March through Maine to Canada." T. J. Chapman, A. M., gives an instructive paper on "Early Virginia Claims in Pennsylvania." Hon. Chas. Gayarre discusses the character of Andrew Jackson, furnishing extracts from private letters never before given to the public. Notes, Queries, Replies, Societies, and Book Notices, conclude an exceptionally good number of one of the very best monthly publications in the country. Price, $5.00 a year in advance. Published at 30 Lafayette Place, New York City.

We invite attention to the Magazine of American History. This publication occupies a new field in periodical literature and its marvelous success shows that its special field will respond bountifully to cultivation. Every clergyman, teacher and man of leisure should take this magazine. Subscription price $5.00 per year. Clubbed with the HERALD.

DOES FARMING PAY?

The Essay below was read by Henry Wilson, at the last meeting of the Tecumseh and Franklin Farmer's Club:

Mr. President and members of Farmer's Club—I have a few figures to present you upon this subject, as to whether farming pays at present prices. I will take for an illustration a rotation of crops on 10 acres of good land that is in a fair state of cultivation, assuming at the start that it be a clover sod. I would manure first well, then plow in the spring from 7 to 8 inches deep and work well. I think we often make a great mistake in not fitting our corn ground enough. We are apt to get in a hurry to plant, but a day or two will make no percentable difference in the end. Right here let me say the main secret of a good corn crop is thorough cultivation. In the fall if my own is ripe or is likely to be ripe by the 15th of September I would cut up and drill, first by cutting strips for shocks, then drilling and putting 28 rows to a shock, 14 on each side. Before drilling cultivate twice in a row with a good spring-tooth cultivator, then drill, husk and get the corn off as soon as possible. Roll in the spring being sure to go the same way as you will reap. As soon as possible after your wheat crop is off plow the same depth as at first; this will trough your manure to the surface and will insure a good catch for clover. If there are any hard knolls I would top dress with some rotten manure. Also, I think salt 200 pounds to the acre is an excellent thing and pays well for the outlay which is about $6.00 for 10 acres. Now for the figures to the proof whether this will pay at the present time, which I claim it does, as my figures will show. First on corn crop, ten acres of land:

Rent at $4.50 per acre	$45.00.
Hauling manure, 100 loads	15.00.
Plowing 5 days, man & team	12.50.
Fitting " " "	12.50.
Marking and planting	4.00.
Seed	2.00.
Tending, cultivating 6 times over 2½ days each, at $1,75	26.25.
Cutting, ten days	10.00.
Husking 650 bu. at 3c	22.50.
Hauling corn and fodder	11.00.
Total cost	$160.75.
By 750 bu. corn at 25c	$187.50.
2500 bundles fodder, 2½c	62.50.
Income	250.00.
	160.00.
Profit	$90.00.

We will now figure on the second year's crop which will be wheat put in after corn, which I calculate will average 20 bushels to the acre:

Rent of land	$45.00.
Fitting, man & team, 2 days	5.00.
Drilling 1 day	3.00.
Seed, 15 bush at 75c	11.25.
Cutting at $2 per acre	20.00.
Hauling, 2 men & team 2 dys	7.00.
Threshing 200 bush at 8c	16.00.
Hauling 4 loads to market	5.00.
Total cost	$112.25.
By 200 bush. wheat at 75c.	$150.00.
Straw	25.00.
Total income	$175.00.
	112.00.
Profit	$63.00.

Now the third crop of wheat, I should calculate on at least 25 bush. as I consider with this rotation it is as good as a summer fallow. It is very important to plow as early as possible after the first crop of wheat is off the ground.

Rent	$45.00.
Plowing	12.50.
Fitting, 10 days man & team	25.00.
Drilling, 1 day	3.00.
Seed, 15 bush at 75c	11.25.
Harvesting and threshing 250 bush at 20c a bush	50.00.
Marketing	6.00.
Total cost	$152.75
By 250 bush. wheat at 75	180.50.
Straw	25.00.
Total income	212.50.
	152.75.
Profit	59.75.

Making a total profit in 3 years for 10 acres of $212.75.

So I claim with other branches of farming, there is a good profit. Let us take sheep. Take 50 good sheep, 40 ewes and 10 weathers, grade merinos that will average 8 lbs of washed wool, which last fall could be bought for $2 per head, and a good registered merino ram at $25. Outlay at beginning of winter, $125.00. We will assume that we have 5 months to feed during the year; thus we have 50 sheep

To 5 tons hay at $8	$40.00.
Corn, oats and bran, 75 bush at 27c per bu. ½ bu. a day	20.25.
Washing and shearing 10c.	5.00.
Grazing 7 mos. at 10c, head	35.00.
Interest on $125 a 6 per cent	7.50.
Total cost	$97.75.
By 400 lbs of wool at 25c	$100.00.
35 lambs at $2.00	70.00.
30 loads of manure at 50c.	15.00.
Fertilizing land in summer	10.00.
Total income	$195.00.
	97.75.
Total profit	97.25.

So you see for three years work on 10 acres of good land we have the snug little sum of $212.75 placed to our account in the bank. On this basis it is easily figured what the profit of an 80 acre farm will be in three years, giving 10 acres for timber and 10 acres for highway, garden, fences, etc., viz: $1276.50; or in other words, a man can at the present time with $2000 buy an 80 acre farm and pay the other $4000 in 10 years and have $25.50 per year to repair his fences and buildings.

TO FARMERS OF LENAWEE.

EDITOR OF HERALD.—You have a county of superior farms, owned and occupied by first-class farmers; farmers of much intelligence; and not much can be said or written about farming, that they do not already well know; but there are some matters which, though they understand well enough, they do not always think of and fully heed; hence, it may not be useless to call their attention to some of these points, worthy of careful attention.

By recent official reports it appears, the bushels of corn, oats and wheat product of 1884, exceeds that of any previous year but the acreage sown is larger in proportion than the increase of bushels, and this shows that the yield, per acre, is not up to the average of that of many previous years; surely, a showing not highly creditable to the methods of farming practised by a majority of the farmers of our country.

Now, by pursuing a system somewhat different (as below described) a decided improvement would be secured, and greater profits and comforts would be realized by the operators.

Our country has been and is being sadly shorn and deprived of timber—its forests—by which droughts, storms, and ill-health are increased; ceasing to clear the timber lands together with the more generous planting of forest seed and nuts, and carefully cultivating young trees, on all farms, will largely obviate those evils and very soon result in handsome profits as well as more delights and comforts to the homes, who adopt the system.

Perhaps it is not generally known that the growth of most varieties of young timber is equal to from 10 to 15 per cent. annually, which is greater than the average profits of most farm crops, which cost so much expense and labor; therefore, it is wise to plant trees. Besides the better climamatic and health effects of growing trees, forests, the several American woods are constantly being applied and utilized for new and greater number of purposes—both of use and ornament; hence, good timber is yearly becoming more valuable, the supply being less adequate to the increasing demands; than formerly; therefore, the forests should be spared, and more trees planted in the settled portions of our country.

This policy will naturally lead to another highly beneficial result, namely, fewer acres will be plowed and cultivated for grain crops, and those acres will be better cultivated in order to get the same quantity of produce from the fewer acres of land. It is better to apply the sufficient labor and obtain a thousand bushels of grain from twenty acres than to obtain the same from 30 or 40 acres; this proposition every one will admit correct.

This leads us to top-dressing or mulching as really the best manurial system. Look to the forests, the wild meadows, and other places for nature's processes, and we shall see that she does all her manuring on the surface; She drops the leaves there, to shelter the plants and roots from frosts and scorching sun; the grass and weeds lop down and perform the same service; and then to rot and go down to fertilize the soil, and make food for growing crops. Years of experience and much observation satisfies us, that top-dressing, by fine manures, in the fall on winter crops and meadows, is one of the most valuable practices that farmers can adopt; it is nature's plan, and generally she is the best guide in all matters of plant growth and husbandry. More anon.

March Blizzard!

The United States Government Census Volume just published, speaks of the "Remarkable Success" attending our "Unique and Untiring Efforts" in pushing the American Agriculturalist. It began the current year with a larger subscription list than at any corresponding period in twelve years. The able corps of editors who have made the American Agriculturalist a welcome visitor to hundreds of thousands of readers for a quarter of a century, are still bending all their energies to make the Journal, if possible more interesting and valuable than ever. And you may rightly conclude that it to Michigan, where it already has so many subscribers and Friends, to quadruple its circulation. For who will fail to embrace this unparalleled offer.

Is Coming

A FAMILY CYCLOPEDIA FREE.—Any person subscribing to the American Agriculturalist (English or German) for 1885, whose subscription is promptly forwarded to us, together with the subscription price, $1.50 per year, and 15 cts. extra for packing and postage on the cyclopedia—making $1.65 in all—will receive the American Agriculturalist for 1885, and be presented with the American Agriculturalist Family Cyclopedia, just out, 700 pages, 1000 engravings.

TWO MONTHS FREE.—Every new subscriber (and only new ones) who promptly forwards his subscription in accordance with these conditions, can have his year's subscription date from March next, receiving free the numbers of the American Agriculturalist for January and February.

TWO MAGNIFICENT ENGRAVINGS FREE.—Every such subscriber will also be presented, post-paid, with the magnificent plate engravings "In the Meadow" and "Foes or Friends," of which over eighty thousand have been sent for by our subscribers.

CYCLOPEDIA, ENGRAVINGS AND A DICTIONARY FREE.—To any one promptly forwarding us the name of a new subscriber to the American Agriculturalist with $2.00, we will send Webster's Practical Dictionary, just out, 600,000 words, 1,400 illustrations, while to the new subscriber we will send the American Agriculturalist for 1885, and also the Family Cyclopedia post-free. Furthermore on receipt of 15 cts. extra, making $2.15 in all, in this case for packing and postage, we will forward the two engravings, "In the Meadows" and "Foes or Friends," to the sender of the subscription or to the subscriber himself, as may be directed. Mention these offers in writing.

Send six cents (stamps) for mailing you specimen American Agriculturalist, forty-page Premium List, with two hundred illustrations; specimen pages of Cyclopedia and dictionary, and full description of the engravings presented.

FOR SALE OR RENT.—Brick house situated on Railroad street near M. & O. crossing. Enquire of A. RAYMOND.

SELL OR EXCHANGE.—One pair trucks. Will exchange for hay or grain. Enquire at HERALD OFFICE.

Prof. Jehosophat Brown, with the assistance of Atlas Bostwick, Chicago st. tonsorial artist, appearing with the Prof's hat on, drew a large crowd at the opera house last evening. They appeared in many characters. Bostwick has left the band we understand and will travel with the professor, giving exhibitions in all the principal cities. Lady Temple has been engaged as advance agent and started this morning for Newburg to bill the town.

The next entertainment of the Library course will take place on Feb. 12th, being a concert by the Meigs—Underhill troupe. The Meigs Sisters' Vocal Quartette consists of Miss Hattie, first soprano; Miss Jennie, second soprano; Miss Edith, first contralto, and Miss Florence, second contralto. Great care has been taken with their musical education, and they have had for a maestro one of the best teachers of the metropolis. They possess rich and sympathetic voices, they sing in unison, and their execution shows the care and judgment that has been exercised in their instruction. Among their selections may be enumerated some of the quartettes of Mendelssohn, Schubert, Schuman, etc. Mr. Chas. F. Underhill occupies a foremost place in the ranks of public readers, and is a great favorite wherever he has appeared. His work harmonizes well with the singing of the young ladies.

From the Rev. J. H. Vincent, D. D.:—The Meigs—Underhill combination spent several days at Chautauqua this season, to the delight of our great audiences. The Meigs Sisters are highly cultivated singers, rendering the most classical music with ease, and effectiveness. Their charming part songs can never be excelled at Chautauqua. Mr. Underhill is a remarkable reader, a master of pathos and humor, and has a repertoire apparently inexhaustable. We expect to have them again next season.

RINK RACKET.

The Springville band discoursed excellent music last Thursday evening which was enjoyed by a large crowd of spectators. Six couple from Adrian and some from Clinton were present.

The new band stand in the north end of the room is a long needed improvement and Knapp's sextette band christened it last Tuesday evening. By the way, they make first class music.

Another improvement is the new automatic program. It is placed over the office window with a cord attached, so that Manager Cash may "pull the string" and a drop will fall disclosing the exercise to be skated.

The Manchester band will furnish music this evening.

A. W. Haight and Ben Garfinghouse rinkulated at Adrian last Saturday evening.

The stormy weather kept a good many from attending the rink Tuesday evening to see the "orange race," but those that were there thoroughly enjoyed the sport. There were ten contestants in the race. A row of about fifty oranges were placed on the west side of the room and the ten boys were to see which could skate around the room and secure an orange the most number of times. The general scramble began about 9:15 and within three minutes every orange had disappeared, and upon investigation it was found that Alfred Heesen had come out ahead, he having captured five of the toothsome articles.

Next Tuesday evening the ladies are expected to take part in a similar engagement and show their skill at picking up oranges.

THE TECUMSEH HERALD.

TECUMSEH, MICH., JAN. 29, 1885.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

A. A. Kennedy, of Battle Creek, was in town over Sunday.

P. S. McKinnon is spending a few days at his old home in Canada.

Gainsley & Co's annual clearing sale has been more than usually successful this month.

E. J. Hollister has made an engagement to travel for a seed firm and sell garden seeds.

Geo. Keyser has sold out his saloon business to Jacob Cheever, and has gone to Canada.

Quite an epidemic of whooping cough is prevailing among the children of the village.

Henry Mensing has got started on James Lowry's new dwelling house at the foot of Pearl street.

The cantata of Queen Esther will be presented in Morenci for the benefit of the several churches.

The branch of the Salvation Army serenaded Alva Parker at the corner grocery yesterday afternoon.

Dr. E. M. Conklin went to Detroit Tuesday to attend the session of the state Grand Lodge F. & A. M.

Mrs. N. M. Sutton left home last week for a California trip expecting to be gone about two months.

Geo. Adamson returned home from Elkhorn, Wis., last Monday night, feeling much better for his trip.

The young people of the M. E. church had a very enjoyable gathering last week Wednesday evening.

A Bohemian oat mill is talked of in Morenci. This can take the place of the roller mill which has shut down.

Slayton & Son are doing a big coal business this winter. Their delivery team is on the go from morning till night.

The Tecumseh Lumber Co., are putting a dry-kiln into their planing-mill, which will be a great assistance in their business.

Mr. Fred W. Gray of San Francisco, is visiting his uncle, Mr. H. W. Conklin of this city. Fred is the son of H. M. Gray of the old firm of Hood & Gray.

Prof. Brown is organizing a violin class. He is an expert musician and executes nothing but Italian music. Lovers of music should avail themselves of this opportunity to learn how to fiddle.

Curry & Bostwick have received a visit from the painter and paper-hanger. The interior of their barber-rooms has been newly painted and the walls covered with elegant paper of modern design. A newly painted barber pole ornaments the sidewalk.

We are indebted to Mr. A. W. Mills for a few geological specimens which he obtained from Mr. Marshall, the lecturer. There are several lava garnets and rocks from the hot springs in Yellowstone park. They will be prized as valuable addition to our collection of bric-a-brac.

Mrs. S. L. Henry has been in Lansing a few days, assisting at the sick bed of her son A. M. Henry, who has been dangerously ill for some days. His disease has been broken now and Lon has so far recovered that his mother felt safe in leaving him. She returned home on Tuesday.

We call attention to the column advertisement on the eighth page of Orr Bros., setting forth the excellencies of their Putz polish Pomade. As a polish for metals, this is said to be superior to anything ever offered in this market. It is an imported article, made in Germany, and the Orr Brothers have the agency for this section.

While at Adrian the other day we dropped in to see B. S. Barne's new furniture factory. He has a large brick three story building, with immense boiler and engine to furnish motive power and keeps about twenty hands in constant employ. He intends to erect a large addition in the spring. He has plenty of orders ahead and does not owe a dollar.

Woolston Comfort, proprietor of the Raisin Mills, made an assignment last Monday to Edgar A. Tribou for the benefit of his creditors. The event was a surprise to nearly every one. Woolston has been struggling with a heavy load of debt for several years, and has finally been compelled to succumb. He has turned over all of his property to the assignee, and the creditors will have the full benefit of all that can be realized out of it. Woolston has a host of friends who will deeply sympathize with him in his misfortune. Tecumseh can hardly afford to lose men of his character, and it is hoped that some arrangement can be made which will enable him to resume business. The assignee is making out a full statement of the assets and liabilities of the concern. Mr. Tribou is an experienced, careful business man, who will give his entire attention to a settlement of the affairs, and the creditors can rest assured that their legal rights will be protected, and that every dollar possible will be realized out of the assets for their benefit.

A. J. Chappell of Adrian, was in town yesterday on business.

Miss Eunice Davidson received a surprise party last Tuesday evening. The company were finely entertained.

The dance at Armory Hall will commence at 8 o'clock sharp with a promenade waltz, by Ollie Hunt's orchestra.

Frank Silvers, has received the appointment of deputy sheriff at Tecumseh. A most excellent selection. Let us shake.

Several couples of young people from Tecumseh and Adrian enjoyed the hospitality of the Patterson last Sunday evening.

Four couples from Tecumseh, attended the masquerade ball at Clinton last Friday evening, and all report an excellent time.

Mrs. W. H. Peters and sister, Miss Mary Shepard, of Burr Oak, arrived in Tecumseh on the noon train. They are the guests of Mr. & Mrs. Albert Hyde.

Two more days in which to pay your taxes. The books are now at the bank of Lilley, Bidwell & Co., and L. P. Tribou is empowered to receive all taxes.

Miss Mabel VanCamp, of Adrian, who has been taking a musical course at the Cincinnati College of music, is expected home about the middle of February.

County Clerk Bixby is settling down to his work handsomely. His previous experience renders it very easy for him to acquaint himself with his new duties.

"Considering the hard times," is one of the standing lines in all good newspaper offices now. Fifty electrotypes of this line would save a pile of type-setting in every issue.

The youngest child of the Rev. S. K. Spahr died at Cincinnati last Monday. The funeral services were held at the residence of Mr. Z. Cook, in Raisin, on Tuesday afternoon.

It is very interesting to spend two hours one of these mornings shoveling the snow from one's sidewalk, and have the next door neighbor, down town, leave the snow on his walk.

But few farmers are in town this week as the roads are badly drifted. A traveling man started for Jim Cairn's in Raisin last Tuesday and had to drive through five or six fields to get there.

James Lowry has a new card in today's paper. He sells ocean tickets over two steamship lines, and sells groceries and crockery cheaper than the cheapest. Call on him and be convinced.

The morning train East was abandoned on the M. & O. road last Monday and the morning train West was abandoned on Tuesday. Too much snow on the track. The trains run yesterday as usual.

Adrian Press: Several Dundee parties came up here Wednesday evening to see the Bohemian Girl. They supposed she was president of the Bohemian Oat scheme, and got left of course. "The very idea."

A large number of invited friends gathered at the residence of Mrs. D. P. Anthony, of Raisin, last Thursday evening, to attend a party given by the F. L. Lodge, of that place. Of course everybody passed a very pleasant evening and went away wishing they would repeat the experiment at an early day.

Ex-County Clerk Hunter was admitted to the bar last Saturday. The examining committee, which consisted of Messrs. Millard, Salsbury and Watts, made a very flattering report, and T. M. Hunter is now enrolled on the list of Lenawee county attorneys. Tom deserves the best of success in his new calling, and we have full faith that he will achieve it.

John J. Adam and H. W. Stevens with Ex-Sheriff Bidwell went to Adrian last Sunday afternoon to attend the funeral of R. J. Bradley. As Mr. B. was for many years chief of the fire department of Adrian, the present firemen of the city turned out in a body and with a long procession of the prominent citizens of Adrian, and relatives of the deceased from Franklin and Cambridge, joined to pay their last respects to his memory.

Sixteen pupils of the High School took a sleigh ride to Adrian last Saturday afternoon and paid their respects upon John and Elva Tallman who live on Michigan Avenue. It was a jolly load, composed of these young gents and ladies: John L. Richard, Bert McNair, Mabel Hayden, Sena Homer, Fred Hillman, Edgar L. Ide, Will. Hayden, Arlie Merritt, Rose Hendershott, Chas. Burns, Lyster Dewey, Etta Conkling, Anna Dewey, Cynthia Dewey, Allie Rice, and Inez Laing. They were royally entertained by Mr. & Mrs. Tallman, and were treated to a sumptuous supper. Feasting, music and merth reigned supreme during their stay. It was the handsomest sleighload of young people that we have seen since our youthful days.

CLIPPINGS AND CONDENSATIONS.

Potato races are the latest dodge at the Milan skating rink.

The G. A. R. Post of Blissfield will give an annual ball about the 23d of February.

Eighty-six foreign subjects were transformed into American citizens in this county last year.

Hudson has organized a boating club, and they will boat it next summer on the classic Bean.

The last Saturday's edition of the Adrian Record contained six pages. It was a very newsy sheet.

The interior of the Adrian skating rink has been painted, to cover up the crayon images on the walls.

Henry McClure's new store at Britton is booming right along. Business is not dull with him by a long shot.

Adrian Record: Is Adrian infested with "knights of the green cloth?" Has the gambling mania broke out in this city?

Prof. I. B. Laflin, of Clinton, suggests that the teachers of the towns in this section shall organize a teacher's association.

The Hudson school closes up during this zero weather. It is easier to dismiss school than it is to keep the building warm.

A Hudson man has struck the best definition of "progressive euchre." It is, he says, "a game which takes all night to play."

Sixty bags of pea nuts were received by one Hudson dealer last week. Peanuts are cheaper than pork and beans for a regular diet.

Representative Howell has given notice in the House that he would at some future time introduce a "bill for the location and construction of drains."

The hackmen of Adrian object to the big stones placed at the street corners. Don't complain, gentlemen. It makes work for the carriage menders and blacksmiths.

The late C. I. Wetmore, of Adrian, held a $10,000 life insurance policy in the Equitable of New York, and the amount has been paid over to the widow of the deceased.

The annual meeting of the Lenawee County Mutual Protection Society will be held at the council room Adrian, on the 2d day of February at one o'clock P. M. All are invited to attend.

The Blissfield advance says: We must have what is due us on account and subscription, and we will have it, too. Look out for business, now. Our collector is around.

Hudson Gazette: Adrian's enterprise is fast fading away. Travelers now coming in on late trains nearly freeze to death in getting down town. The depots are out in the rural districts, and hacks can't make enough for running to trains.

Hudson Post: Dr. Dodge had to dodge around pretty lively last week. On five consecutive nights he attended five parties in five different townships, and had the census enumerator followed him he would have been compelled to record five names, single entry: no twins.

Hudson Gazette: "People are complaining about hard times now-a-days," said Mr. Ezra Ames the other day, "but I can recall the time when it was harder work to live than it is now—way back in the 30's, when a man split rails all day for fifty cents and paid twenty-five cents to get a letter out of the post office!"

Adrian Press: Stacy, of the Tecumseh Herald, stated lately that Burchard, editor of the Clinton department of the Tecumseh News, run a gun shop, to which Mr. Burchard takes vigorous exception. Perhaps Stacy should have used the vowel "i" in gun as the doctor insists he was working on a "steam injector."

Adrian Record: Rome farmers are said to be freely biting the tempting bait held out by the Bohemian oat swindlers. In their eagerness to make money without work, many are lining the pockets of these designing agents with ten dollar bills. That man is foolish, who pays ten dollars for a bushel of ordinary oats, speculation or no speculation.

Dundee Reporter: Dundee, the other evening, came near losing its lamp lighter, Joe Ward. He was filling a lamp, a portion of the gasoline spilled upon his clothing and when the match was applied to the burner the flame communicated to his clothing and he was enveloped in flames. A snow bank under the lamp quenched the flames and saved Joe from cremation.

CLINTON JOURNALISM.

The young disciple of Æsculapius, who holds down the Clinton end of the Tecumseh News, has been trying his 'prentice hand at burlesque. His delicate nerves have sustained a violent shock at a brief account of the "gun shop" fire which appeared in these columns. So he arms himself to the teeth and sets out on an exploring expedition in search of the HERALD correspondent. We regret that the young man should have adopted the shot gun policy so early in his literary career. He should remember the fate of the DeYoungs in San Francisco. He interviews four citizens of Clinton in his search, without success. His interview contains many funny things and some true things. The trouble is, the true things are not funny and the funny things are not true.

He calls upon his friends in the Clinton Local to pay up at once as a "change in business demands it." We infer from this that he is about to relinquish pill peddling and devote his entire attention hereafter to his editorial duties. A wise decision. A young man of his literary and shot gun proclivites will find journalism a much more congenial calling. Why, this brilliant young physician is a bigger man than the editor himself. Bro. Field, with becoming modesty, is content to have his name appear at the head of the editorial column in plain nonpareil caps. The medical assistant has his name printed in pica French Clarendon. The statements made by the persons interviewed demand but little notice. They are all honorable men. They all take the HERALD and, with the exception of Dr. Cameron, they have all paid their subscription. The latter objects to a bill we rendered for a card. We respectfully jog his memory. His professional cares have unhinged his recollection. He paid us $2.00 for a card—not $2.50 as he states. If he should send the same card to the Free Press and the Free Press should return a bill ten times as large as ours, he would be greatly shocked at the overcharge. And yet the bill of the Free Press might be the cheaper one of the two. The HERALD does not claim to compete in advertising rates with papers having one-third or one-half its circulation. The News fixes its rates on business principles and they are doubtless equitable and just. The HERALD does the same. Herein we have an illustration of the difference between medical and newspaper ethics. Newspapers base their charges on the services rendered. An old physician of forty years practice charges one dollar a visit. An impecunious medical fledgeling, who rarely gets a chance to kill a patient, charges the same fee.

The editorial doctor intimates that we are ashamed of our Clinton correspondent. We are happy to state that we are not ashamed of him. He is not a doctor. Many good correspondents prefer to remain incog. Some seek to gratify their vanity by having their name in job type at the top of the column. Tastes differ on this point. Tyroes in the business are apt to crave that kind of cheap-John notoriety. Our Clinton correspondent is a reputable citizen of that village, who is abundantly able to take care of himself, as his letter in this week's paper will show.

In this connection we beg leave to supply a missing link which the medical editor has omitted in his interview. Owing to his engrossing editorial duties he could not spare the time to visit the HERALD and make a demand in person for our correspondent's name, so he delegated his wife to perform the task. Mrs. Burchard called at our office early last week and made known her errand. She performed the duty in a very skillful and lady like manner, and we were almost persuaded, by her winning smile and pleading voice, to override professional courtesy and good faith, by granting her request. We confess that we were on the ragged edge for several minutes, hesitating to choose between a stern adherance to duty and a desire to please a handsome woman. But discretion finally triumphed over impulse and we wisely refrained.

We owe the Burchard a debt of thanks for his interview with the Cameron. It gives us a pointer. The HERALD strives to keep abreast of the times and to adopt all improvements within reach. If a Tecumseh paper is incomplete without a medical editor to properly balance the after end of the sheet, then the HERALD must have a medical editor, and the Cameron is our man. With the Burchard on the News staff and the Cameron on the HERALD staff wouldn't there be fun, though, at the Clinton end of the line?

Following is the programme of the Lenawee county horticultural society, at the February meeting:

Grape culture, including pruning—Dr. W. Owen.

Is the English sparrow beneficial?—B. W. Steere.

The relation of poultry raising to horticulture—E. W. Allis.

Has the time come that apple growing is no longer profitable?

Question box.

The society wishes to express its earnest gratitude to the Adrian Times and the other city and county papers for their very kind notices of the meetings and reports of the discussions etc. of the last meeting.

Word has been received that 15 couple or more, from Adrian, will take part in the hop at Armory Hall, tomorrow eve.

At the request of a personal and business friend we print a temperance story this week, which will be found on the eighth page.

C. A. Wright & Co., are making extensive changes and improvements on the interior of their store. It will be fitted up in elegant style.

John B. Whelan, of Detroit, and Webb Frazer, of Tecumseh, had a legal set to before Justice Hulett, of Adrian, last Tuesday.

A pleasant social gathering of young people assembled at Mr. and Mrs. A. Rice's in Raisin, last evening, in honor of Miss Allie Rice's seventeenth birth day.

A Woman's Home Missionary Society has recently been organized by the members of the M. E. Church of Tecumseh. The first regular meeting of the society will be held on Saturday at 3 o'clock P.M. in room No. 1 of the church. An invitation is extended to all the women of the congregation. BY ORDER OF COM.

SCHOOL SIFTINGS.

The geometry class, having finished plane geometry, have taken up the review preparatory to taking a final examination upon that portion of the work.

The natural philosophy class, having completed the advance work, will spend the remainder of the year in a careful review.

The classes in physiology and civil government finish those studies this week and will take up botany and book-keeping next month.

The monthly examinations will take place on Friday of this week.

The attendance of foreign pupils is increasing. Every non-resident pupil in attendance last term has returned and there are five new enrollments in that class. The tuition already received this year aggregates as much as the entire sum received during the school year ending Sept. 1st, 1884.

Social Gathering.

"Compliments of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Morsman. Friday, Jan. 23, 1885. At home." brought a company of relatives and friends to their home in Franklin on that day. All of Mrs. Morsman's, nee Isabella Wells, brothers and sisters with their families were present, excepting M. F. Hunter's wife, of Pawnee Co., Kansas. Among those present were A. J. Sayers and wife, Childs Wells and wife, Miss Sarah Wells, Wyman Wells, John Burtless and wife, Frank Bradley and wife and Charles Kemp and wife. From abroad were Ambrose Welch and wife and W. B. Keyser and wife of Tecumseh.

The day was spent in social intercourse, music etc., and must have left a shining spot on the checker-board of life among those present. In time the guests were invited into the dining room to a sumptuous repast prepared by the hostess, to which all did ample justice. As the shades of night came on, the guests were reminded that the day was drawing to a close, and they took their departure home, feeling well paid for their cold ride on one of the days of Michigan's "open" winter.

OHIO LUMBERMEN VISIT MUSKEGON.

At the annual meeting of the union association of Lumber Dealers of Ohio which was held in Springfield, Ohio, last week, a communication from the Board of Trade of Muskegon, Mich., was received, inviting the association to visit that city in a body. At the same time an invitation was extended to the members of the association by the Indianapolis, Bloomington and Western, Wheeling and Lake Erie, Michigan and Ohio, and Chicago and West Michigan Railroads to participate in an excursion to Muskegon over the lines of their respective roads. Both invitations were unanimously accepted and on the morning of Jan. 22d., about 250 members of the association left Springfield by special train on I. B. & W. Ry., arriving in Toledo by the Wheeling & Lake Erie R. R., about noon, where a fine dinner was served by one of the most popular caterers of Toledo, which had been arranged for by the obliging officials of the Wheeling & Lake Erie and Mich. & Ohio Railroads in the waiting rooms of the elegant passenger depot occupied by these companies.

After dinner the party, accompanied by Messrs. B. McHugh, Gen'l Freight and Pass'gr Agt., and H. H. Mitchell, Ass'nt Gen'l Freight and Pass'gr Agt. of the M. & O. and officials of the Wheeling & Lake Erie R. R. left Toledo by special train on the Mich. & Ohio R. R. to Allegan, thence to Muskegon via the C. & W. M. R'y, where they arrived the same evening and were the guests of the citizens of the largest lumber manufacturing city in the world. The rest of the week was spent in inspecting saw mills, lumber yards, etc., and enjoying the hospitality of the lumbermen. Returning the party left Muskegon on Sunday morning by special train over the same route by which they came, highly pleased with their trip.

A FEW HINTS
FOR THE USE OF
AYER'S PILLS

DOSE.—To move the bowels gently, 2 to 4 Pills; thoroughly, 4 to 6 Pills. Experience will decide the proper dose in each case.

For Constipation, or Costiveness, no remedy is so effective as AYER'S PILLS. They insure regular daily action, and restore the bowels to a healthy condition.

For Indigestion, or Dyspepsia, AYER'S PILLS are invaluable, and a sure cure.

Heart-burn, Loss of Appetite, Foul Stomach, Flatulency, Dizziness, Headache, Numbness, Nausea, are all relieved and cured by AYER'S PILLS.

In Liver Complaint, Bilious Disorders, and Jaundice, AYER'S PILLS should be given in doses large enough to excite the liver and bowels, and remove constipation. As a cleansing medicine in the Spring, these PILLS are unequaled.

Worms, caused by a morbid condition of the bowels, are expelled by these PILLS.

Eruptions, Skin Diseases, and Piles, the result of Indigestion or Constipation, are cured by the use of AYER'S PILLS.

For Colds, take AYER'S PILLS to open the pores, remove inflammatory secretions, and allay the fever.

For Diarrhœa and Dysentery, caused by sudden colds, indigestible food, etc., AYER'S PILLS are the true remedy.

Rheumatism, Gout, Neuralgia, and Sciatica, often result from digestive derangement, or colds, and disappear on removing the cause by the use of AYER'S PILLS.

Tumors, Dropsy, Kidney Complaints, and other disorders caused by debility or obstruction, are cured by AYER'S PILLS.

Suppression, and Painful Menstruation, have a safe and ready remedy in

AYER'S PILLS.

BEES AND WASPS.

What a Naturalist Has to Say About These Insects.

Grant Allen does not agree with the common estimations of these insects. In describing some "Queer Flowers," in the Popular Science Monthly, he says:

Now, the fact is, we are all a little tired of that prig and Aristides among insects, the little busy bee. We have heard his virtues praised by poets, moralists and men of science, till we are all burning to ostracise him forthwith, for the sake of never more hearing him called industrious and intelligent. He and his self-righteous cousin, the ant, are in fact a pair of egregious Pharisaical humbugs, who have made a virtue of their own excessive acquisitiveness, and have induced Solomon, Virgil, Dr. Watts, and other misguided human beings to acquiesce far too readily in their preposterous claims. For my own part, I never was more pleased in my life than when Sir John Lubbock conclusively proved by experiment that they were both extremely stupid and uninventive insects, with scarcely a faint glimmering of brotherly love or any other good ethical quality.

The wasp, though undoubtedly an irascible and ill-balanced creature, and a chauvinist of the fiercest description, is yet a person of far more width of mind and far wider range of experience in his own way than the borne and conventional bee. His taste, in fact (like the taste of that hypothetical person, the general reader), is quite omnivorous; while he does not refuse meat, he has an excellent judgment in the sunny side of peaches, and he can make a meal at a pinch off the honey in more than one kind of wasp-specialized flower. But the peculiar likes and dislikes of wasps have produced a curious effect upon the shape and hue of the blossoms which owe their traits to these greedy and not very æsthetic insects. Your bee has a long proboscis and a keen sense of color; so the flowers that lay themselves out on his behalf store their honey at the end of a long tube, and rejoice in brilliant blue or crimson or purple petals. Your wasp, on the other hand, in his matter-of-fact Philistine fashion, cares for none of these things: he asks only plenty of honey, and no foolish obstructions in the way of getting it. Accordingly, wasp-flowers are remarkable for having a helmet-shaped tube, exactly fitted to a wasp's head, with abundant honey filling the bottom of the bell, while in color they are generally a peculiar livid reddish brown, more or less suggestive of a butcher's shop.

—A Georgia paper relates a case of a fox standing his ground, fighting a dog and a man in open ground until killed—the first time a fox was ever known to face danger when there was a chance to run away.

Beauty.

Young man, don't marry a girl because she is pretty. Will beauty satisfy you through the life-long journey, to the exclusion of those moral qualities, mind and heart? Will beauty alone cook your dinner, train your children and prove a true solace in the hours of weary toil and trial—the lot of every man on earth? The poet has said:

"Beauty is a doubtful good, a gloss, a flower,
Lest, faded, broken, dead within an hour."

Wed not yourself to that which time will surely snatch from you, leaving the aged eye, withered cheek and vacant mind. Study well the character and capabilities of your choice. See to it that she possesses a mind capable of grasping the ordinary questions of the day; and that a portion of her time is spent in reading something besides fashion notes and novels. And above all, be assured that she is well disciplined in those virtues without which, home is wretched. Sweetness of temper is not incompatible with firmness or moral courage, and a woman possessing these attributes will not belong to the rapid, "wishy-washy" sort; but on the contrary the class who develop into noble wives and mothers, faithful in friendship, and devout Christians, capable of exerting both at home and in society, the best of an influence for the right and for virtue.

If to these high and independent qualities is added beauty, then your choice is indeed blessed of God. Take such a one to your heart, and while loving and cherishing, fail not to prove yourself worthy to be the possessor of such a priceless gem.

Indian Names in Wisconsin.

Our readers are aware that most of the names of places in this vicinity are derived from the Indian tongue, some of them having been altered somewhat for the sake of euphony, as, for instance, Peshtigo for Pe-she-ti-go. We interviewed our old friend Captain Powell, the other day, who is well along in years, and was born here, and is almost as familiar with the Indian language as the Indians themselves, and he gave us the following as the significations of some of the names of the places in this vicinity:

Suamico—The yellow sand.
Oconto—The place of the pickerel.
Pensaukee—The place of the brants.
Peshtigo—Snapping turtle.
Menominee—Wild rice.
Menekaune—The place where the lodges are; literally, the village.
Escanaba—A flat rock.
Manitowoc—The dwelling of the spirit.
Kewaunee—The name of a kind of duck.

Thus it will be seen that the Indians named places after some peculiarity of the location; or, as in the case of Manitowoc, after some superstition. Most of the American names are utterly meaningless, as applied to the locality, and we like the Indian plan the best.

Take for instance, Appleton, Seymour, New London, Preble, etc., which convey no idea whatever. Bellevue is better, but it is French, and is duplicated in other languages, as, for instance, Buena Vista, in Spanish. Fond du Lac is good and conveys an idea.

Oshkosh perpetuates the name of an Indian chief, and Marinette that of an Indian woman and both are very good.—Green Bay Advocate.

"Men invite the devil in at every angle and then prate about the garden of Eden and the fall of man."

"A patient and humble temper gathers blessings that are marred by the peevish and overlooked by the aspiring."

"Excess in apparel is another costly folly. The very trimming of the vain world would clothe all the naked ones."

A man has not time to subdue his passions, establish his soul in virtue, and come up to the perfection of his nature, before he is hurried off the stage.—[Addison.

Some men dare much, but it is because they are in their place. As long as I am in my place I am safe. The best lightning rod for your own protection is your own backbone.—[Emerson.

"Only the spur of the moment. These accumulated it is that makes the impulse and impetus of the life of genius. These are the spongioles and rootlets by which the trunk is fed. If you neglect the moment—if you cut off your fibrous roots—what but a languishing life is to be expected."

The philosopher should be a man willing to hear every suggestion, but determined to judge for himself. He should not be biased by appearances, have no favorite hypothesis, be of no school, and in doctrine have no master. He should not be a respector of persons, but of things. Truth should be his primary object. If to these qualities he adds industry, he may indeed hope to walk within the veil of the temple of nature.—[Faraday.

After Diptheria.

Diptheria is a terrible disease, requiring the greatost medical skill to effect a complete cure. Even when its power is broken, it clings to the patient with great presistency, and often leaves the system poisoned and prostrated. Just here Hood's Sarsaparilla does a vast amount of good, expelling impurities from the blood, giving it richness and vitality, while it renovates and strengthens the system

SWISS MOUNTAIN GIRLS.—In these beautiful health-giving mountains one would expect to find the most beautiful and healthy-looking of all girls. Where only pure air is to be breathed, inspiring scenes to be witnessed, women should be as fair as daughters of the gods. But not so. The women in Switzerland have a prematurely worn and aged look; if at twenty they were robust and possessed of that attraction which good health bestows—at thirty they are faded and seem to take pleasure only in going through their dull and never ending round of duty. For they do the greater share of the work in the field and in the house, and in addition rear large families. In fact they make up in usefulness what they lack in beauty.

Do you need a remedy that will cure every kind of humor from a pimple or eruption to the worst scrofula and syphilitic disorders, use Dr. Gupsott's Yellow Dock and Sarsaparilla. Three to five bottles cure skin disease, saltrheum or tetter. Four to ten bottles cure running ulcers, scrofula and all syphilitic disorders. One to three bottles cure sores, boils, carbuncles, etc. One to two bottles cures pimples on the face, blotches, etc. It is the only perfect blood purifier that can be made from a thorough knowledge of drugs. Ask your druggist for it. Take no substitute.

As late as 1840 there were but seven vocations into which New England women had entered; in 1884 the number was 317.

Downright Cruelty

To permit yourself and family to "Suffer!"
With sickness when it can be prevented and cured so easily
With Hop Bitters!!!

Having experienced a great deal of "Trouble" from indigestion, so much so that I came near losing my Life!
My trouble always came after eating any food,—
However light
And digestible,
For two or three hours at a time I had to go through the most
Excruciating pains,
"And the only way I ever got"
"Relief!"
Was by throwing up all my stomach contained. No one can conceive the pains that I had to go through, until
"At last"
I was taken! So that for three weeks I lay in bed and
Could eat nothing!
My sufferings were so that I called two doctors to give me something that would stop the pain; their Efforts were no good to me.
At last I heard a good deal
"About your Hop Bitters!
And determined to try them."
Got a bottle—in four hours I took the contents of
One!
Next day I was out of bed, and have not seen a
"Sick!"
Hour, from the same cause since.
I have recommended it to hundreds of others. You have no such.
"Advocate as I am."—Geo. Kendall, Allston, Boston, Mass.
Columbus Advocate, Texas, April 21, 1883. Dear Editor:—I have tried your Hop Bitters, and find they are good for any complaint. The best medicine I ever used in my family.—H. TALENER.

There are 90,000 illiterate persons in Massachusetts.

Thousands Say So.

Mr. T. W. Atkins, Girard, Kas., writes: "I never hesitate to recommend your Electric Bitters to my customers, they give entire satisfaction and are rapid sellers." Electric Bitters are the purest and best medicine known and will positively cure Kidney and liver complaints. Purify the blood and regulate the bowels. No family can afford to be without them. They will save hundreds of dollars in doctor's bills every year. Sold at fifty cents a bottle by C. A. Wright & Co.

Formerely weak, nervous, dyspeptic, and debilitated individuals who found only disappointment in the various bitters and secret quack nostrums, pretended kidney medicines, etc., are agreeably surprised to regain perfect health, and strength of mind and body, and complete heart's ease and freedom from aches and pains by the use of Dr. Guysott's Yellow Dock and Sarsaparilla. It restores every disordered function to a normal condition.

The three outlets of disease are the bowels, the skin and the kidneys. Regulate their action with the best purifying tonic, Burdock Blood Bitters.

ABOUT FURS.

Sealskins, Otters and Beavers Now the Leading Furs in the Market.

To be warmly clad is not only an absolute necessity, but it is also a fact that many a doctor's bill and many a human life may be saved by wisely preparing in the early fall for the cold and wintry weather which is sure to come. And what article of dress is at the same time so suggestive of elegance and luxurious warmth as the garment of fur? It is true that furs are apt to be esteemed as luxuries which can only be indulged in by the rich. But although the first cost of a good fur garment may seem to be extravagant, we should also remember that furs are standard goods, which do not go out of style like cheaper articles of dress. A handsome sealskin sacque or dolman may be worn for many successive winters, and when it has finally lost its pristine beauty it may still be utilized by cutting it over for the little folks or making it up into trimmings. Thus it will be easily perceived that a good fur cloak is not only the most comfortable and the most elegant, but it is also the cheapest cloak any woman can possess.

Fashion has been as busy in dictating styles for furry garments as in other articles pertaining to a lady's wardrobe. As different races of animals become extinct before the merciless hunter's path, the fashions in skins are necessarily changed. The various grades of marten, which were so popular a few years ago, are now seldom seen; and the same is true of other once favorite furs. Sealskins, otters and beavers are now the leading furs in the market, and nothing could be more elegant or more comfortable than the garments manufactured from these skins. The seal-skin sacque promises to be a favorite style for years to come, as it has been for several years past. The best sealskins are of English dye. Very elegant sacques are also made of Hudson Bay otter—of the finest quality—and the beauty and durability of these garments are not to be exceeded by any other. The otter has a still richer and longer nap than the seal; it is darker in color, makes a heavier garment, and costs about one-third more than the sealskin. Many wraps are handsomely trimmed with bands of beaver, either dyed or in the natural color. The sealskin sacque for young misses is made of the best quality of English dressed sealskin, handsomely lined with quilted satin and finished with a sailor collar and cuffs. The sacque for women, on the other hand, is cut with a shawl collar, has cuffs, is richly lined and has four sets of fur buttons and loops. The French paletot is a style that is much admired. It is an elegant fitting, easy and graceful garment, with loose sleeves. This handsome wrap, which is preferred by many to the sealskin sacque, is made of the best quality of English dressed sealskin, and richly trimmed with golden brown beaver. Another favorite style of wrap in sealskin is the long and close-fitting ulster. This very stylish cloak is made of the best quality of English dressed sealskin, handsomely lined, and finished with collars and cuffs.

But the most elegant of all garments manufactured at present in furs is the dolman. There are two styles, the American and the French. The former is made of the best quality of English-dressed sealskin, and trimmed with the natural colored or golden-brown beaver. The lining is handsomely quilted in embroidery patterns, the style of which is entirely new. The French dolman is similar in shape but richer in finish.—American Queen.

GLASSWARE.

An Interesting Account of the Manufacture of Different Kinds of Glass.

Bohemian glass is made with carbonate of potash, as pure and as rich as possible. Hydrate of potash of 54 to 56 degrees is the best for use. Potash used for glass making is extracted from the residuum of beet-root sugar making. In Bohemia a potash extracted from wood ashes comes from Hungary. America also furnishes a good article. All potash used in glass-making should especially be free from soda, as it tends to give glass a green color.

Soda has taken the place of potash to a great extent. It is used as a carbonate or sulphate. Carbonate is yet used in the manufacture of table ware, but in the making of plate and window glass, bottles, etc., the sulphate is almost entirely used, owing to its cheapness. By adding a small quantity of charcoal to sulphate of soda it is decomposed much more easily.

In the manufacture of flint glass lead is used in red oxide form, or sometimes a litharge, but the red oxide gives the best results. Red lead furnishes oxygen, which escapes in melting, and serves to refine the glass and burn the organic matters which may be contained in the mixture of materials. Red lead is prepared from the purest of leads coming from England and Spain, which are comparatively free from the oxides of iron, copper, etc. Lead is used in this country for glass making, by those manufacturers who make a superior quality of glass.

In the manufacture of plate, window or white glass, lime is used as a carbonate or slaked.

It is important that sands should be selected with care, as impure silica has the most detrimental effect upon the color of glass. This is especially important in the manufacture of fine tableware, plate, and window glass. All sands should be free from iron, as this is the fruitful source of the green coloration of all glasses. In Bohemia quartz is used instead of sand. It is first heated, then thrown into water; this breaks it into many pieces, which are subsequently reduced to fine powder by mechanical action in wooden mortars with quartz pestles. By this means the introduction of iron is avoided.

France and Belgium, for the manufacture of fine wares, uses the Fontainbleau sand, not far from Paris; also the sands of Nemours, Chantilly, and from the province of Champagne. These sands are used for flint, plate, and first quality of window glass.

English sands contain a considerable proportion of iron. Silex is sometimes used instead of sand for fine wares. For plate glass making sand from the isle of Wight is used, but for the best qualities of glass the English manufacturer has to import sand from France and this country. Bottle manufacturers, on the contrary, seek sands containing iron and clay, on account of the elements they contain acting as a flux.

Silica is found in the shade of quartz, rock crystal, sand-stone, and quartz sand in the crystalline form; in silex or flint stone in the amorphous state. Silica is one of the most abundant natural substances; it is insoluble in water; and resists the action of most chemicals. Among the acids only one, hydrofluoric acid, is capable of decomposing it; this acid decomposes and dissolves glass entirely. Silica, although infusible at the highest temperature of furnaces, has nevertheless been fused by the use of the oxhydrogen blow pipe. Silica combines with all bases, alkalies, such as potash, soda, and with metals, lead, and bismuth. These give it the property to form vitreous compounds. Lime, magnesia, alumina, form with it infusible compounds; the latter, however, mixed with silicates of potash, soda, or lead, furnishes compounds which are suitable for the work of the glass-blower. It is glass proper. If two infusible silicates are mixed together, they nevertheless produce fusible glass. Fine plate glass has been made with a compound of sand, slaked lime, and carbonate of baryta. This glass, as fine as ever made, contains, on being analyzed: Silica 46.5, baryta 39.2, lime 14.3: total 100.

To produce a glass requiring as little fuel as possible, the glass-maker should introduce as many bases as possible in his mixture, such as potash, soda, lime, magnesia, alumina, oxide of iron, these, however, more particularly in bottle-glass, where color is not so much an object as cheapness. Per contra, in making pots the clay should be as free as possible from a mixture of bases. Simple silicates, such as silica and alumina, are preferable.—Glassware Reporter,

SPRINGS.

How They Should Be Treated to Secure All Their Benefits.

An adequate supply of water conveniently located is of great importance in the country, where a great quantity is necessarily used.

A natural, never-failing-water supply should be utilized whenever it is possible. This can often be done in undulating sections, where a spring is situated higher than the point at which it is to be delivered; and no matter whether it be conveyed in wood, iron or lead pipe, always place the pipe below the action of frost. See also that the inlet pipe is below frost, easy of access and provided with a wire or perforated tin strainer, and place the outlet or discharge pipe where it can be readily protected from freezing by a covering of straw, and uncovered when all danger of frost is over. If by laying a pipe a quarter of a mile from the spring to the house or barn you can obtain a sufficient supply of good water, do not fail to do it, forgotten the expense of digging a well will be quite as much.

By all means satisfy yourself that the supply of water is continuous, and that the flow is full alike in mid-summer and in winter. Also first determine the amount of flow by sinking a barrel or hogshead at the fountain-head, for instances frequently occur both of an increase and a decrease over the usual visible surface overflow. Decide this very important point, therefore, before much expense is incurred. If the dwelling is situated higher than the barn, pass the pipe to the dwelling first, letting the overflow, if a tank be used there, pass on to the barn, or extend the same pipe to that point, regulating the supply of both places by means of a stoep-cock.—L. D. Snook, in N. Y. Examiner.

A DOMESTIC ROW.

Dispute in a Printing-Office, in Which the Shears Were Not Even Mentioned.

One morning the Washington Hand-Press in a Printing Office suddenly flew its Frisket and called out in a loud voice:

"Hear ye! hear ye! But for me the Banner could not be issued each Week!"

"Just hear that! sneered a Case of Burgeois over by the Window. "Where would be the Paper but for its Type?"

"And they never Printed a Paper yet without ink," added the Roller in a Glue and Molasses voice.

"Well, I don't want to Appear Egotistical," observed a Bundle of White Paper lying on the floor, but if you knew how hard it was for the Editor to raise the Cash to buy me, you'd Imagine I was of some little Account Around here."

"Gentleman," added the Imposing Stone, in a marble voice, "I don't claim to own all the corner lots in Town, but if the Chases, Shooting-Stick, Mallet, Quoins and myself were to go on a Picnic-I'd like to see the Banner go to press—I would!"

The Gordon Jobber, Box Stove and several of the Galleys were getting ready to chip in when the Editor entered and asked the cause of the Row. The matter was explained by the Card-Cutter in a Calm and Unbiased manner, and the Editor replied:

"Each and every one of you are valued in your Respective Places, and all combined go to help issue the Leading Newspaper of this county—circulation (when a circus agent comes along) 6,000 copies—Wood Received on Subscription, as Heretofore."

MORAL:

And the Shears lay right there in Plain Sight and were not even mentioned.—Detroit Free-Press.

A Cape Vincent (N. Y.) man learning to play the cornet has picked up brick enough in the front yard and on the balcony where he sits to practice to lay a pavement all around his house. Franklin as a Writer.

His pen was as ready as his purse in the service of all human kindness. And what a pen it was! It could discourse metaphysics so clearly and lucidly as to make them seem plain moralizing. It could tear a sophism to pieces by a mere query: It could make a simple tale read like a subtile argument. He could be grave and he could be gay in a breath. He could spend as much wit and humor on a "Craven Street Gazette"—which was meant only to amuse an old landlady, away from home, and probably out of joint before her return from Rochester—as on a State paper designed to fire America and sting England. In another tone, he translates into human language, for the amusement of a court lady, the reflections, in the garden of her house, of a gray-headed ephemera, full seven hours old, on the vanity of all things. His "Petition of the Left Hand," might have been composed by Addison. In it, the left hand bewails the partiality which educates the right hand exclusively. Some of Franklin's fables and tales have been so absorbed into the thought of the world that their source is absolutely forgotten. Only in this way can we account for what was doubtless an unconscious plagiarism by an eminent sanitary authority, last year, of Franklin's "Economical project for Diminishing the cost of Light." The economy consisted simply in rising at six o'clock instead of nine or ten. Ideas such as Franklin's never become superanuated. Not every one who uses the expression, "to pay dear for one's whistle," knows that the dear whistle was a purchase made by Franklin, when seven years old, with a pocketful of pence. Franklin's store was too abundant for him to mind, though some of his fame went astray. "You know," he tells his daughter, "everything makes me recollect some story." But it was not recollection so much as fancy. His fancy clothed every idea in circumstances. When the illustration had served its turn, he was indifferent what became of it. Franklin did injustice to himself when he fancied he wanted any such mechanical aid. His English had been learned from the "Pilgrim's Progress," and the "Spectator." It had the force of Bunyan without his ruggedness. It had the serene light of Addison with tenfold his raciness and vigor It sparkled with sarcasms as cutting as Voltaire's, but all sweetened with humanity. Many of his inventions or adaptions—such as "colonize"—have been stamped, long since, as current English. But he did not covet the fame of an inventor, whether in language, in morals, or in politics. In language, he was even declared a foe to innovation. Writing to Noah Webster, in 1789, he protests against the new verbs "notice," "advocate," and "progress." He had as little ambition to be classic as to be an innovator in English. He wrote because he had something at the moment to say, with a view to procuring that something should at the moment be done.—Edinburgh Review.

The Youth of Our Land.

There really ought to be some law against the sale of dime novels to young boys. Instances occur almost daily where the minds of young boys have become so distorted by reading trash that they are ready to slaughter their fellow beings in large quantities. A boy who reads about some avenger of the prairie who chops and splits his cord and a half of Indians regular every day, or some pirate whose scuppers run off enough blood every minute to make a hundred dollars worth of blood sausage, gets into an abnormal condition of mind and is wholly unfit for the solid work and low wages of real, every day life. He begins to accumulate pistols, daggers and other old junk, and longs to run a poniard into some false Spaniard, and twist it around, while he hisses through his set teeth some drivel that he has read in a novel. Such a boy will not hoe corn. Near Peru, in Illinois, the other day, a sheriff found a cave where a number of these boys whose minds had become inflated, had established a sort of pirate's glen. The pirates were not at home, being away probably on an expedition to capture a dark-eyed Spanish beauty, or a bantam or shang-hai beauty, and the sheriff entered the place and took an account of stock. All around were the sinister looking weapons of death and the treasures and spoils of war, and among them were twelve bottles of lemon beer. This in itself ought to teach boys that there is no such thing as realizing what novels tell about. There never was a novel yet that told about the duke pacing back and forth with a clouded brow in the elegant drawing room of his castle, and then going to the sideboard and draining a flagon of lemon beer. Not any. The duke always drains a flagon of fine old Rhenish wine, seven hundred years old before he sets out to mutilate a couple of townships of people. A boy ought to see by this that if he is going to try and follow the duke's example he will have to use old Rhenish wine instead of lemon beer And where would be the fun in slaughtering those two townships of people with a skin full of lemon beer or pop? It would be insipid. And not only that, but ridiculous. Suppose the duke should draw his rapier to run a person through the body, and just as he was about to say, "Die, villain," the gas from the lemon beer should come up in his nose. He would feel like a fool. A boy who reads a novel, and becomes all wrought up and excited, never thinks of this. Neither does he think who it is that writes the novel. If he could see the author of the novel—who is some poor devil in a New York garret, who has starved himself half to death for money to buy whisky, and who changes his quarters every month to save rent—he would be ashamed to be seen reading such stuff. The poor broken down scribbler who writes about the brilliant diamonds of inestimable value that flashed upon the bosom of the countess, is probably wearing a sheet of writing paper for a shirt front.—Peck's Sun.

Wonderful Efficacy.

Some people are slow in telling what good things have been done for them but Mr. John P. Daly, of Gillisonville, S. C., says he takes great pleasure in testifying to the wonderful efficacy of Brown's Iron Bitters in dyspepsia, fever and ague, and general debility of the system. He has personally experienced the most satisfactory results from the use of this valuable medicine Make a memorandum of this, all ye whose systems are run down. Brown's Iron Bitters will cure you.

Stop that cough, by the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral—the best specific ever known for all diseases of the throat and lungs. It will soothe the rough feeling in the throat and give the vocal organs flexibility and quality, and enable you to breathe and speak clearly.

It cures fever and ague. This will be glad news to the thousands of sufferers from these distressing maladies, operating with greater certainty than quinine. Mishler's Herb Bitters does not leave behind it any of the unpleasant and even dangerous consequences which frequently follow the use of that long considered specific for diseases of the malarial order. Dr. W H. Frank, of Chesterville, Mo., used it with great success in the patient who was thought to be beyond cure.

The Secret of Wealth.

Broken down invalids do you wish to gain flesh, to acquire an appetite, to enjoy a regular habit of body, to obtain refreshing sleep, to feel and know that every fiber and tissue of your system is being braced up and renovated. If so commence at once a course of Golden Seal Bitters. In one week you will be convalescent. In a month you will be well. Don't despair because you have a weak constitution. Fortify the body against disease by purifying all the fluids with Golden Seal Bitters. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus forearmed. The liver, the stomach, the bowels, the kidneys, are rendered disease proof by this great invigorant. Ruinous bills or medical attendance may be avoided by counteracting the first symptoms of sickness with these Bitters. They are recommended from friend to friend, and the sale increases daily. We warrant a cure. They are a positive cure also for all female complaints. In these diseases they have no equal. Take no others. Sold by Baker & Hall and C. A. Wright & Co.

A THRILLING STORY.

As Told by a Merchant in Troy, N. Y.—A Surgical Operation Avoided—How a Father, Wife and Daughter Escaped an awful Doom.

Of the hundred of accounts of remarkable cures wrought by Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, none have appeared so purely astonishing as the following: The persons mentioned are among the most highly respected in the city of Troy, and the story as told by the father will prove intereseing to all our readers.—ED.

TROY, N. Y.

Dr. Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.:

Dear Sir—My daughter was afflicted with a severe growth of Fungus. To remove it we had resorted to almost every remedy and consulted the most prominent surgeons and physicians. Dr.——, of Troy, said that a surgical operation would be necessary, but fearing fatal results I hesitated. Some of the physicians claimed that it was caused by one thing and some by another. The Fungus was prominent and disfigured her looks. Having heard of Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy working so thoroughly on the blood I determined to try it, to see if this medicine could do what doctors had failed to do and surgeons had hardly dared to undertake. I can say in truth that the result of this trial was the complete cure of my daughter of this dreadful malady. Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy alone effected it. We used nothing else, for other things had completely failed. My daughter to-day enjoys vigorous health and to Favorite Remedy alone is the credit due. My wife also was very poor in health, due to some liver difficulty with which she had suffered a long time until she became very much reduced in flesh. A trial of Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy had resulted in the complete restoration of her health, which she had not enjoyed for years. She had gained in flesh and strength and thus secured perfect health, and this is due entirely to Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy. As for myself, being engaged in the grocery and commission business, which makes it necessary for me to test the quality of different articles like butter, etc., my sense of taste and my stomach were seriously injured, everything seemed to nauseate me, and fearful of dyspepsia in its most severe form I tried Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy. The first bottle afforded immediate relief, and from that day to this I can say that Favorite Remedy has restored me to perfect health. These are facts which I claim prove that Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy is the best medicine in the world for those afflicted with the above difficulties. If any one in the city of Troy doubts the truth of these statements let him come to me and I will prove them. I have recommended Favorite Remedy to hundreds and with the same good results.

Yours, etc., WILLIAM WINDSOR.

AN ANGEL IN A SALOON

[illegible]

"If there are angels on earth, you are one," said the man, "God bless you!" and putting a bill in the hands of the waiter, said: "Please accept this from me as a token of my regard and esteem. The kindness I can never repay. And to you, who never yet are in need, you will find one a true friend at the same time. Long live the noble and good!"

Pressing her child by the hand she turned to go, but pausing at the door, said:

"God bless you, gentlemen. A poor, heart-broken woman for the kindness and courtesy you have shown her. Before any one could reply she was gone.

A silence of several minutes ensued, which was at length broken by the proprietor, who exclaimed:

"Gentlemen, my boy was right and I have sold my last glass of whisky. If any of you want more you will have to go elsewhere."

"And I have drank my last glass of whisky," said a young man who had long been given up as entirely beyond the reach of those who feel a deep interest in his welfare as sunk too low ever to reform. "There is a temperance organization in this city called the Temple of Honor, and at their next meeting I shall send in my name to be admitted. Who will go with me?"

"I, I, and I," several exclaimed in chorus, and fifteen names were added to his.

True to his word, the owner of the saloon in question was [illegible] stock the next day, and is now engaged in a business with his family, and is [illegible] with the [illegible] and prosperous.

[illegible]

"Mamma," said the little child, who I understand had been spoken to by some of the gentlemen present, taking hold of her mother's hand, "these gentlemen wish me to sing 'Little Bess' for them. Shall I do so?"

"Yes, my darling, if they wish you to."

They all joined in the request, and persuaded her to do so, when she sang in a sweet, childlike way the following beautiful song:

[illegible]

Did you ever think how many you know
Are made happy by the same as before
The heart of a mother and the smiles of a child
Make home happy and sweet
Then why not try to make others happy and glad
Instead of drive out and frown as we do?

[illegible]

Let's be happy and good as we go through life
Scattering sunshine and flowers in the path
Of those we meet daily in this world of care
Then when our last sun sinks behind the dark hills
And we are called to our long home to rest
When our last breath is drawn
Our spirits will be
Where there is no more sorrow nor pain.

[illegible]

The scene I shall never forget to my dying day, and the sweet sweet sounds of her voice still rings in my ears, and every word of the song as it dropped from her lips, sank deep into the hearts of those gathered around her.

With her golden hair falling carelessly around her little shoulders, her face of almost ethereal beauty, and looking so trustingly and comforting upon the gentlemen around her, her tearful eyes illuminated with a light that seemed not of the earth, she formed a picture of purity and innocence worthy the genius of a poet or painter.

At the close of the song many were weeping; men who had not shed a tear for years, now wept like children. One young man who had resisted with scorn the pleading of a loving mother and the entreaties of friends to strive to lead a better life, to desist from a course that was wasting his fortune and ruining his health, now approached the child, and taking both her little hands in his, while tears streamed down his pale cheeks, exclaimed with deep emotion,—

"God bless you, my little angel! you have saved me from ruin and disgrace, from poverty and a drunkard's grave.

JOHN G. CARLISLE.

John G. Carlisle, speaker of the present house of Representatives, was born in Campbell Co., Ken., Sept. 5 '35. His early life possesses no particular point of interest. He was compelled to work hard for a living, and his education was mostly attained in the unpretentious atmosphere of a district school, as opportunity afforded. He was a hard student and before he had attained his majority he was earning his living by teaching school. He employed his leisure hours in reading law, and little by little qualified himself for the bar, to which he was admitted in 1858, when but 23 years of age, after a term in a dingy law office, and has since, when not in the national or state service, devoted himself to his profession. In 1859 he was elected a member of the Ky. House of Representatives. During the Secession he inclined to the northern side and was a firm believer in the Union. In 1864 he was nominated as a presidential elector on the Democratic ticket, but declined the honor. In 1866 he was elected to the Senate of his native state and again in 1869. He was present as Delegate at Large from Ky., at the National Democratic Convention, held in New York City in 1868. His nomination for Lieutenant Governor of Ky. in 1871 by the Democrat, Conservatives, caused him to resign his seat in the State Senate, and being elected he served from 1871 to 1875 in that position. He was chosen a Democratic Elector at large for Ky. in 1876. Chosen to represent the famous Covington District in Congress it was soon evident that his constituents had made no mistake in their selection. He was proven a well informed competent, able and diligent member, a skilled debater, and an excellent orator. After an exciting canvass in which his skill for strategy was admirably tested he was elected Speaker of the Forty Eighth Congress, over Sam J. Randall. As to his honesty and capability we concerned Carlisle is the peer of his leading competitors. When a pronounced Revenue Reformer he can scarcely be termed an absolute free trader. He has never concealed his opinions and his CAUSE stand on the question of the Tariff may be gleaned from one of his speeches in which he says: "In the broad and sweeping sense which the use of the term generally implies I am not a free trader, of course that is palpable. I at least should think I will add that in my judgement it will be years yet before anything in the nature of free trade would be even so practical for the United States. When we speak of this subject we refer to the approximate free trade, which has no idea of crippling the growth of home industries, but simply of scaling down the inequalities of the tariff schedule where they are out of proportion to the demands of that growth. After we have calmly stood by and allowed monopolies to grow fat we should not be asked to make them bloated. Our enormous surplus revenues are illogical and oppressive. It is entirely undemocratic to continue these burdens on the people for years after these requirements of protection have been met, and the representatives of these industries have become enriched and wealthy. This is the general position on which I stand. The rest is a mere matter of detail, to be settled with judgment, discretion and caution, but at the same time in a perfectly fearless spirit. The true policy of the Democracy is to meet the issue in a solid phalanx."

ESTATE OF WM. H. POCKLINGTON.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss.

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, on Tuesday, the 3rd day of January, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-five.

Present, Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

On reading and filing the petition of Francis Pocklington and Arthur Pocklington, administrators, praying for the license to sell the interest of said estate in certain real estate therein described, and the respondents to authorize the administrators to sell the interest of said deceased in said real estate, and that the residue of said estate may be assigned to the parties entitled thereto and for their use.

It is ordered that Tuesday, the 24th day of February next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said state, are required to appear at a session of said Court then to be holden, at the Probate office, in the City of Adrian, and show cause why the prayer of said petitioners should not be granted.

And it is further ordered that said Petitioners give notice to the persons interested in said estate, of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Tecumseh Herald, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

MORTGAGE SALE.

DEFAULT has been made in the payment of a certain mortgage made and executed by William M. Clark and Mary E. Clark, of the town of Deerfield, County of Lenawee and State of Michigan, to Francis Kingsley, of the township of Deerfield, County and State of Michigan, bearing date November 22d A. D. 1880, to secure the payment of eight hundred dollars and interest annual at six per cent., which mortgage was recorded November 23, A. D. 1880, in the Register's office for the county of Lenawee, in Liber 90 of mortgages on page 76, and said mortgage was thereafter duly assigned by said Francis Kingsley to William K. Choate, of Adrian, city, Lenawee county, Michigan, by deed of assignment bearing date April 15th A. D. 1881, and recorded in the office of Register of Deeds, for Lenawee county, aforesaid, in Liber 104 of Mortgages, on page 60, and on which mortgage there is claimed to be due and at the date of this notice the sum of eight hundred and seventy-five dollars, principal, and [illegible] dollars in proceedings to foreclose having been taken to recover the payment of the amount secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof, notice is therefore hereby given that Tuesday, the 5th day of May, A. D. 1885, at ten o'clock A. M. of that day, at the front door of the court house, in the city of Adrian, in said county of Lenawee, and state of Michigan, there will be sold at public vendue to the highest bidder the premises described in said mortgage, or so much thereof as may be necessary to satisfy the amount due upon said mortgage, and the interest accruing thereon from the date hereof, and the costs and expenses allowed by law. Said premises being situate in the town of Deerfield, county of Lenawee, and state of Michigan, and known and described as the south half of the south half of the northeast quarter of section twenty-five (25) in town [illegible] south, of range five (5) east containing forty (40) acres, more or less.

Dated Adrian, January 28, 1885.

PUTZ-POMADE!

It is an article introduced into this country for the polishing of GOLD, SILVER, BRASS, COPPER, TIN, ZINC, &c.

As a polish it is a wonder worker, and it is bound to become the favorite. We never yet met one who has occasion to polish metals. With this pomade you can polish a spoon, a cup, a watch, or any similar article while you are stirring the bowl preparing to work with the usual polish. This Pomade will not rub off, and it makes a lasting and durable polish. Consequently it will not give the article a coat of varnish, but will leave the delicate parts of the article as much as it is used.

It is invaluable for the polishing of scales, stoves, cornices, all instruments, and especially metals in the finish surface, where it is difficult to apply liquid or powder polish. It will polish gold, silver, copper, brass, tin, nickle plate or any other metal. It will not scratch, but gives a polish as good as when new. A new polish it is indeed.

A. ANDERSON & SONS, Agents.

Tecumseh, Mich., Jan. 12, 1885.

DEAR SIRS:—Having tried Putz Pomade Polish we cheerfully recommend it as being the most perfect polish we have ever used.

Respectfully, W. & S. W. ANDERSON & Co., Dry Goods and Carpets.

Tecumseh, Mich., Jan. 20, 1885.

Having used the Putz-Pomade in cleaning and polishing metal trimmings on mattress, I can cheerfully recommend it as no humbug, but the best I have used. CHAS. BROWELL, ex-Sheriff.

TECUMSEH, Mich., Jan. 10, 1885.

We have [illegible] Putz-Pomade to be the best article of the kind we have ever seen, and can safely say that Putz is the best. C. A. WRIGHT & Co., Druggists.

TESTIMONIALS

Received by Martin Barley, Agent for Orr Bros., at Adrian.

MRS. F. J. Hough:—"Excellent for brass and silver."

MRS. Chas. Walker:—"Best Polish ever used."

MRS. W. S. Norton:—"The Universal Metal Putz Pomade will polish quicker and easier, and produce a better polish than any other preparation not containing acid or grit."

W. McConnell, dry goods:—"Excellent for tarnished silver."

John Klazek:—"Best ever used."

Fred Barse:—"The best polish I ever used."

Val. Foxa:—"First-class polish for soft metals."

Chas. Humphrey:—"Best I have tried."

It is also highly recommended by Ex-Aldermen Ely, Ex-Mayor Cornell, Rev. A. M. Clark, Geo. Ellis, Ed Swann, Rev. John S. Holmes, Mrs. Dr. A. H. Baker, Mrs. Chas. Hayden, Mrs. Mat. Chittenden, Mrs. Geo. Knight, Mrs. John Mason.

GET A BOX; TRY IT!

And you will get a large increase in business. And then you can put up a sign in your window, and in the office, saying, "Putz-Pomade is good enough for us, and we will fix the office and front door of the coffee-house so that you can see it as a matter of [illegible] this of all the curious sign-boards that have been seen for a long time, this one will be the most striking since there is no humbug about the polish. Now, take your watch, pin, ring, or any article, and polish that and you will feel obliged to find and tell someone of the merits of this wonderful article, and ever afterwards will feel a wedding and a lasting advertisement of the Putz-Pomade.

PUTZ-POMADE

Is useful in the household, in the store, in the workshop, in every place where metal work is to be kept bright. Try it on clocks, jewelry, silverware, harness, trimmings, scales, musical instruments, stove trimmings, door handles, or any kind of metal work. Any dealer will refund your money if you are not satisfied.

ATKINS ELECTRIC LIGHT SOAP SAVES CLOTHES

Wash as you please, and it will make you its friend. Soak, boil and blue, rub, or soak, rub and don't boil. We advocate dispensing, so far as possible, with the washboard, because it wears the clothes out and wears you out. The soap contains no mineral to give it weight, and no pulp to give it size, therefore frequent boiling will not yellow or injure the clothes, but soaking and boiling with ELECTRIC LIGHT SOAP does clean and disinfect them. One thing is certain: it produces glorious results, is an economical soap and is so pure and harmless that the writer washes his head with it without injuring hair and he isn't bald either. Try it in the laundry, kitchen and bath. Ask your grocer for it and take no other.

RIDGEWAY RAMBLES

The groundhog did not see his shadow Feb. 2; just the same.

Was it a hot wave that struck us Tuesday?

Miss Daisy Riggs is quite sick at present.

Dr. Begel and wife from Holloway, were in our village Saturday.

Rev. W. J. Clack is suffering intensely from an attack of neuralgia.

Mr. Geo. Clark, Jr., is visiting his relatives and friends here.

Prof. H. C. Wilson and wife and her mother, Mrs. Willett, of Blissfield, spent a part of Saturday and Sunday at his father's, Mr. W. R. Wilson.

W. E. Barrett, who has been in Kansas the past eight months, came home on Wednesday of last week on business. He is very well pleased with the country there and will return in a few days. Wonder if A—— will accompany him.

As the pastor was not able to occupy the desk Sunday morning, Dr. D. W. Loree read a sermon. There was no service in the evening.

A sleigh load of youngsters went over to the Valley Seminary Saturday and got some of the students that attend from here, and spent the evening with Miss Ida Pocklington. They say the tip-over is what took the cake.

The attendance at the donation Wednesday night was very good. The receipts amounted to nearly $90.

Put this in your diary that January 1885 was the the first January since the new cemetery was bought, that there was not a burial during the month.

The hall was packed to the fullest capacity Friday night. The exercises passed off with interest and success. The declamation by David Gibson was what took the house down.

Those who failed to see Mrs. Waring's cala lilly missed a treat. It was in full bloom last week and was a beauty.

On Saturday afternoon the young ladies of the village enjoyed the afternoon very pleasantly at the home of Mrs. Waring in behalf of Miss Ella Pattison. They report having a pleasant time. Tea was served at the usual hour and Jumbo kept up the interest and amusement the rest of the time.

The social this week will be held at the residence of Mr. H. Williams on Friday evening, and they desire to see all their friends present.

Mr. J. F. Temple has a half-crown silver piece dated 1707. It was in the reign of Queen Anne.

There were some who were opposed to the new school house who forgot the time of school meeting.

The adjourned annual school meeting of Dist. No. 1 was held on Monday evening at the school house. The $1,000 already assessed and partly collected for the the new house is by a two-thirds vote to be returned to the tax payers, and the board will give an order on the town treasurer for the $1,000 already assessed. The kickers with their leaders seem to think they have done a wise thing, but it is a question if the money can be retained in the way they desire. G. W. Jackson, the director, and Dr. R. H. Nelson, moderator, resigned their office at the close of the meeting. A special meeting will be called immediately to fill the vacancies.

RIDGEWAY LITERARY PROGRAM.

The society will hold its next regular meeting Friday evening, Feb. 13, when the following program will be presented:

Music—Society.
Secretary's report.
Reading—Lizzie Clack.
Declamation—Sammie Arner.
Recitation—Emma Bailey.
Music—Lela Sutton.
Declamation—Geo. Sanford.
Recitation—Jennie Osgood.
Inst. Music—Emma Miller.
Reading—Chas. Gove.
Essay on Man.
Recess.
Music—Jennie Underwood.
Debate—Resolved, That the success of Temperance Reform depends as much upon Woman as Man.
Aff.—D. W. Loree, A. E. Palmer.
Neg.—G. P. Waring, W. J. Clack.
Music—Ella Jackson.

All those interested in hearing a good debate should not fail to be present, as a special effort is being made to make that part of the program entertaining.

All political argument excluded. Admission free.

BY ORDER OF EX. COM.

CLINTON CHAPTER.

F. L. Couch, of Bay City, arrived in town Saturday afternoon, remained here until Monday morning, when he left for Tecumseh intending to return home Monday noon. Mr. Couch meets with many a hearty hand shake when visiting Clinton.

Mrs. Albert Lutkins died at her home last Wednesday after an illness of several weeks. The funeral took place Friday. The remains were placed in the Benton cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Olmstead and their two children, of Orwell N. Y. visited in Clinton last week. Mr. Olmstead is on his way to New Orleans. He will first accompany his wife to Coldwater, where she will remain until his return from the south. Mrs. Olmstead is better remembered by her friends here as Ida Davis.

The pink tea social was held as advertised, in the Town Hall last Thursday evening and was said to be quite a success. The program was opened with a recitation by Miss Laura Clark, entitled "The Lost Heir." Miss Blanche Smith then sang "Over the Garden Wall," which was very much enjoyed by the audience. Mrs. C. S. Barroughs followed with the recitation "A Brave Child," and the last on the program was a solo "Janette" by Mrs. Josie St. John. Each one rendered their selections in a very creditable manner as was shown by the applause which followed each performance. Supper was then served in pink dishes which were given to every one present, to be kept as souvenirs. We understand that the orange race was won by Mrs. E. VanDeMark, and in the cigar race, two of the contestants, Thomas Matthews and Charlie Becker were fortunate enough to obtain the required number of cigars so the whole number was divided equally between them.

The children of the Congregational and Episcopal Sunday schools were made happy by a sleigh ride to Tecumseh last Saturday. On the return of the former party the Annual Missionary meeting was held at Mrs. S. W. Demuth's and the children were treated to popcorn, candy, etc.

Mr. and Mrs. John Eddy, of Vinton Iowa, arrived in Clinton last week. Mr. Eddy is to have the management of his father's farm. They will live in the house formerly occupied by P. C. Smith.

Miss Lina Jones has returned from her visit to Battle Creek.

SPRINGVILLE SNUFF.

There has been but little news in these parts the past week, the extreme cold weather being the chief topic of conversation.

The skating rink had a good attendance Friday last. They have come to the conclusion to open it on Wednesday evening of each week.

The last club dance of the season comes off on Friday evening, the 6th. A large turn out is expected.

Thursday afternoon our citizens were shocked by the arrival of the body of W. W. Bloomer who left here in good spirits that morning in company with Mrs. C. E. Jessup to attend a birthday party at J. K. Jeffrey's of Rome. When half a mile west of Rome Center they upset the cutter, but no one was hurt. After righting the cutter Mr. Bloomer went to the horse's head to fix the bridle and suddenly fell back without a struggle dead. His remains were buried under the charge of the Brooklyn Lodge of F. & A. M., on Sunday. Services by Rev. Mr. Crane of Addison. He had resided here for the past seven years, was a genial kind man and had no enemies. His age was 65 years.

We wish to tender sincere thanks to Brooklyn Lodge F. & A. M. for their kindness in taking charge of and attending the funeral of our worthy brother W. W. Bloomer on Sunday, the 1st day of Feb., 1885, and to our friends and neighbors for their kindness and sympathy with us in our affliction.

MR. & MRS. CHAS. E. JESSUP.

[The following letter reached us too late for publication last week.—ED. HERALD.]

The past week has been but a repetition of the past extreme cold with an abundance of snow, highways and rail roads blockaded, making business dull.

The club-dance last Friday evening was a grand success, also, the skating rink, but on Monday evening, on account of the extreme cold but few were out.

Our citizens for the past week have been engaged in filling their ice houses with a splendid article; it is now about 18 inches thick.

Our mails for the past week have been from one to two days late. Our M. & O. road have had more than they could do to keep open but they work with a will.

I see by the papers that there has been a bill introduced in the legislature to return to the old standard of 110 degrees fire test for kerosene oil, which I think just. We would have better oil for light at a cost of at least three cents per gallon. I am in favor of a kerosene tariff for the benefit of the government. It is all right, but when it goes to monopoly like the Standard Oil company the people object. The saving to consumers would be quite a sum in the State.

I learn by the papers there is quite an excitement in Adrian as regards the appointment of Postmaster. I do think if there is any one man more entitled to the same than others, it is Willard Stearns. He has ably sustained a democratic paper for the past years for this county. He took the paper when the democratic paper was in a hopeless minority, and it was about to pass in its checks, and in opposition had the Times, which had all the government patronage including the revenue of the post office to sustain it. It would assist the Press office in making it a still more valuable paper for the Democratic cause in the county.

Wednesday morning 26 below zero.

HOLLOWAY HASH.

[This letter came last week too late for publication. It must have come by way of Chicago, as it was two days on the road.—ED. HERALD.]

Mrs. Begel and both children returned from Hanover sick with catarrhal fever. Miss Jennie was confined to the bed for a couple of days. Doc talks of persuading some of the neighbors to go up there in hopes of their getting sick. A very good scheme it seems to us for getting pay for medicine which he gave his own folks.

F. S. Dunham has moved his family to rooms over the store and Mr. Frarie, the Blacksmith, expects to occupy the house which Mr. Dunham has vacated as soon as he gets back from Jonesville, where he has gone for his goods.

Mrs. Chauncy Saxton is sick with pneumonia.

James Ash bought a cow about ten days ago for which he paid fifty dollars. During the first night after getting her home she got down in the stable herself in such a manner that she died in a few days.

Fred Crowell and Miss Emma Johnson, members of the Friends Church at Hanover, attended the quarterly meeting at Raisin Valley last week, after which they visited Benj. Kelley. Looks as though Uncle Ben was a pretty good fellow by the way people come and stay with him, and perhaps again, it is the kind of hash he serves up that attracts them.

The people of Holloway are at last blessed with a dance house of which they are justly proud. It is not often that such an enterprise is thrust upon the people without warning. There are only two things lacking now to make our town a success, viz: a skating rink and saloon. Who will come to our rescue?

It is a little surprising what a business has sprung up in our midst of late in the way of shipping dressed meat. W. J. Scott and Wm. Kelley are shipping dressed veal and chickens to Detroit. Fred Kopka, Geo. Sherman, Geo. Hayward, P. M. Laying and others are slaughtering cattle and sheep for the Toledo market where they take it with their teams thereby saving freight and commission. They all look good natured, so we judge they are doing well.

MACON MUSIC.

Miss Ella Day, returned from Ohio last week.

Maude Howell will attend the Normal this term.

Jesse Coller, of Milan, was in town last week. He will remain in Milan another year.

The mill-yard is nearly full of logs. This looks as though there will be business for Mr. Sage for a time, at least.

The hop at the Dewdrop last Friday evening was well attended. We presume it was a financial success.

It is asserted by some people here that the snow is several inches deep by actual measurement.

Hon. Geo. Howell and wife returned from Lansing Monday evening to remain about a week. Mr. Howell, I learn, is on the committee to visit the asylums, and this being the week for visiting these places, he is enabled to spend a day or two with us.

John Day was quite seriously injured at Sage's mill Monday last. While working at the mill he made a mis-step and fell several feet, and struck across a piece of timber, injuring his side and hip. Fortunately Dr. Morden just at that time was passing the mill and so was enabled to give prompt assistance. I learn later that he is not any better. All hope for his speedy recovery. His daughter Ella had returned a few days previous from a long visit in Ohio.

The people who attended the donation at the residence of Mr. Collar Thursday evening of last week enjoyed a very pleasant time. It netted over fifty dollars.

TIPTON TOPICS.

Business on the boom.

The station-house is completed and substantial stock yards are being constructed. The former is a neat and commodious building and a credit to the people who have aided in its construction, and to the M. & O. R.R. Co. as well.

B. C. Knapp occupies the store so suddenly vacated by Jerry Tuttle, and Jerry has gone where the wood-twire bindeth, much to the chagrin of various wholesale firms in Detroit, Toledo and Adrian, who have sent several attorneys to investigate. They can find the place where he used to was, but where, oh where is he now? A number of our townspeople mourn his departure to the tune of divers sums of greater or less amount.

Revival meetings on alternate evenings are held at the churches.

Dell Goodrich, agent for the Dayton Hedge Co. says he has orders for nearly five miles of hedge fence in Franklin.

On Wednesday Al. Morseman and Burt Crittenden hitched up their teams and took the children of the Center school in two sleigh loads to visit the octagon school in Adrian township. A great many are taking advantage of the fine evenings and roads by sleigh-ride parties.

BRITTON BUDGET.

A lecture for the benefit of Eaton Post G. A. R. will be given at Britton's Hall, Britton on Tuesday evening Feb. 10th by J. S. Preston, chaplain of the Michigan Department G. A. R. Subject—My Experience in Southern Military Prisons. The lecture will be illustrated by a large painting showing nearly life size representations of Rebel Guard and Union prisoners and a diagram of Andersonville on a scale of 33⅓ feet to the inch, which is pronounced by able critics who were in that prison as the best and only perfect representation of Andersonville and its surroundings that they had ever seen. The lecturer comes highly recommended and sustained by the most flattering press notices. The entertainment is for the benefit of Eaton Post. Admission 15 cents; children 10 cents. Let the hall be filled. The object is a most worthy one. By order of,

JOHN BRITTON, Commander.
ALBERT EATON, Adjutant.

THREE HOURS AT HOLLOWAY.

Having occasion to visit Holloway the other day, we went down on the M. & O. to Britton and thence over the Wabash to Holloway. We availed ourselves of the opportunity to look around the city a little.

Kelly, Hoxsie & Co., are doing a good business and are meeting with good success in their quarter-off sale. Ben. Kelly devotes his time mostly to buying and shipping stock.

Jas. S. Gilman has a nice harness shop and seems to be well supplied with custom.

Dr. Begel has a fine country drug store, and is working up a good practice in that vicinity.

We called at Chester Clark's and arrived there just in time to partake of a good dinner. Mr. Clark is well fixed to enjoy life, has a fine farm with good buildings, and is looked upon as one of the solid citizens of the place.

We made a short call at Mrs. James McIntyre's. Mrs. McIntyre is now selling cream to the Adrian creamery and is much pleased with the new arrangement. She began May 9th, 84, and from that date to the present time, the cream has brought from 14c to 23c per lb. It ranges about three cents above the price of butter.

We found Edmund Hall confined to the house by sickness. He has lived on the same farm forty-nine years the 10th day of this month, and has never been sick but three times. We are glad to state that he is on the gain, and will soon be out again as usual.

We called at Ben Kelly's and John Gordon's but found them away from home.

Having met Dr. North at Mr. Hall's we accepted an invitation to ride home with him. On the road home we halted a moment at Mrs. Wickwire's to enquire after her husband's condition. Mr. Wickwire is still prostrated with paralysis, having been a hopeless invalid for three years, and his wife has a pretty hard time in taking care of him. She has lived on the farm they now occupy 52 years the 27th of next May, and has been thro' all the privations of pioneer life.

The roads were somewhat heavy but the weather was delightful that afternoon and we enjoyed our sleigh-ride home very much.

WITH MANY DIAMONDS.

How a Man Who is Half Dude, Half Cowboy Makes a Show of Himself.

John L. Lighthall, a lawyer, registered from Denver, D. T., has been attracting considerable attention for three days past. The people were given to understand by his exploits in the magnificent and wonderful jewelry which they wore, and could not get into the dining-room, the walks from the corridors without being delayed by gaping boys. In appearance he is a cross between the cowboy of the West and the swell young man of the East. He is about thirty-five years of age and six feet tall, of a nervous, wiry build. His hair, which is curled black, is cut straight across his forehead, and falls in a mass to his shoulders. His clothes are of a fashionable cut, and of rather loud pattern. He wears whole strings of bright watch-chains, ornamented with diamonds, there being fifty-four goodly-sized stones in the set of buttons. His visit to Cincinnati was for the purpose of adding some more stones to his already large collection of jewels. He generally wears more diamonds than any other man in this country, or any other, for that matter.

Mr. and Mrs. Lighthall welcomed a reporter yesterday and seemed nothing loath to show their jewels, which were rather conspicuously displayed. "I am sorry," said he, "that I did not know you were coming, for I would have had some of my small boys and my horses on a show. But this scarf-pin is worth looking at," pointing at the same time to a ring. "Sister of diamonds more than one carat, which almost hid a gaudy necktie which swathed his throat.

"This is probably the largest pin in the United States," he continued. "It contains one hundred and seventy-nine stones, one of which, as you see, weighs six carats. They are clear fully set and the entire workmanship is almost perfect. It was originally a ring, but is too small to come to wear."

"Did you order it made?"

"No. It was the last order of a diamond broker in St. Louis, whose name was Maus. It is said that he went crazy, and I guess he did for no same man, unless he was as eccentric as I am, would order such a ring. Maus took a handful of stones into a workshop and told the foreman to make the finest ring possible out of them, and this is the result."

Lighthall professes to have been fond of jewels ever since a boy, and for the past ten years, since he has been able to gratify his desires in this direction, has been making an extraordinary collection of precious stones. He wears them, he says, because he likes to be odd. Of late years he has been much among the Indians in the West, and affects the manners and actions of a cowboy. He has a sombrero which cost him over two thousand eight hundred dollars. Clusters of diamonds and other gems decorate the crown and rim of the hat, and it is probably the only hat in the United States that is kept in a safe. The same man, just to gratify an ambition to be conspicuous, wore a suit of clothes the buttons of which were made of ten dollar gold pieces. The jewelry which he wore yesterday, in addition to his glaring scarf-pin and diamond vest buttons, consisted of four big rings, a massive gold chain, and three large badges or medals, which were pinned on his vest-front. The setting of one ring was a topaz said to be the largest in the United States. Another was a beautiful sapphire, surrounded by four large diamonds. The others were diamond clusters and were only noticeable on account of their unusual size and the width of the stones.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

A TUSSLE TO THE DEATH.

The Way a Wounded Coyote Fought Tooth and Toe-Nail for Its Life.

Traver, who drives the Bullion stage, had quite an adventure with a wounded coyote on his trip out last Saturday. Just on the other side of the Hot Springs he saw a coyote standing in the road, some distance ahead of his team. Having his rifle with him, Traver fired at the beast and wounded it in the breast, also breaking one of its fore legs. He then drove up to where the coyote was kicking around in the dust of the road and got down from his wagon to finish the job by knocking Mr. Coyote on the head. As he started around the head of his team the coyote made a dash at the nearest horse's leg, which he was about to seize when met by the heavy boot on Traver's right foot. This seemed only to increase the savageness of the beast, which now turned upon the driver, attempting to get at his throat. Traver succeeded in keeping it at bay until he got back into the wagon. He then commenced to put a cartridge in his rifle, but had hardly got started when, happening to look around, he saw the coyote upon the wagon and not two feet from where he stood, making toward him with snapping jaws and bloodshot eyes. Not having time to finish loading Traver clubbed his rifle and by a lucky blow knocked the beast off the wagon. The coyote again made the attempt to reach him, but the gun was soon loaded and its contents sent into the body of the now thoroughly maddened beast. Traver says he doesn't want any more wounded coyote.—Elko Free Press.

A Celestial Joke.

The love of fun is not unknown among the serious-looking Celestials who during the last few years have been collecting in some parts of our Australian colonies. A storekeeper, wishing to advertise his articles in the Chinese language, engaged a celestial to paint him a sign, expecting of course, that it would be a very enticing one.

It did not answer his expectations, however, for the only perceptible effect it had on "the relations of the sun and moon," as the Chinese term themselves, was to excite a grin of the broadest dimensions. At length the storekeeper, by a considerable bribe, obtained a translation in English of the advertisement, and found it to be as follows: "Don't buy anything here; storekeeper a rogue."—Manchester Times.

—Dr. Malins, in a recent lecture at Birmingham, said that the brain requires twelve hours of sleep at four years old, gradually diminishing by hours and half hours to ten at fourteen, and thence to eight hours when the body is full grown and formed. Goethe, in his most active productive period, needed nine hours, and took them; Kant—the most laborious of students—was strict in never taking less than seven. Nor does it appear that those who have systematically tried to cheat nature of this chief right have been in any sense gainers of time for their work. It may be a paradox, but is not the less a truth that what is given to sleep is gained to labor.

"FUTURES."

The Farmers' Duty to the Youth and to American Agriculture.

The thoughtful and intelligent deplore the evils to society and individual lives resulting from such numbers of the rural population, among them a large per cent. of the young, who abandon agriculture and seek employment in other pursuits than dwelling the everflowing current, so rapid, manufacturing centers and crowded cities. Is the promise of pecuniary gain larger and more certain? Are the opportunities for social pleasures more? To those reared in the country, too oft the clamor and strenuous activities of the town deceive the imagination and mislead the mind. They know nothing of the privations and hardships incident to city life, and do not so fully as they ought appreciate the advantages of their country homes till perhaps the lesson has been learned through long and bitter experience. We must overcome this urban inclination—which farmers everywhere observe and regret—by interesting the young people in the work and management of the farm, and in working with us in adorning and beautifying the home.

Farm life is made too monotonous; there is too little effort to awaken and train the fine sensibilities. The energy of the household is too often devoted to the one purpose of accumulating dollars and cents. Continuous cheerless toil bears especially hard upon the young. In the absence of provision to supply the demands of their nature for variety and change, they either grow listless, lose energy and ambition, and become mere farm drudges; or they break away from this unreasonable servitude and plunge into the great outside world, exposed to all its snares. But more of intelligence, that comes through improved educational advantages, together with improved farm machinery, is teaching the farmer that muscle alone is not the only requisite to the best success.

Agricultural literature is a potent influence in breaking down that prejudice and ignorance which so long enslaved and degraded agriculture, and is demanding for it just recognition as the noblest, most useful and inviting of human occupations. These enlightened views of agriculture are the factors that in the future are to induce our young men to pursue with hopeful intelligence the tilling of the soil. Farmers may do much to encourage in their boys a love of rural life by making the home attractive in all its surroundings; also by inducing them to take an interest not only in the necessary work, but in the planning of the work and sharing with them its fruitful returns. This will give employment to mind as well as to hands; the drudgery of doll, thoughtless toil will be avoided and the farmer, as age comes on, will have the heart-warming satisfaction of seeing his sons growing up to the inheritance, with health of body and vigor of mind; becoming intelligent farmers and citizens, a comfort and support to his declining years.—H. L. Leland, in N. Y. Tribune.

CHANGING FEED.

The Kind of Food Which Ought to Be Given to Cattle, Sheep and Hogs in the Winter Season.

As winter approaches and pastures cease to furnish succulent fodder the food of animals is necessarily changed from green and fresh to that of a dry and less digestible nature. It is important that this change should be gradual. One of the supplies which have been abundant this year, and which may be used to advantage in this gradual change, is second-rate apples, or those which are not smooth and fair enough for market or for the table, but which will be equally good for horses and cattle, sheep and swine. Instead of allowing them to rot under the trees they may be gathered and stored in heaps and protected till the approach of severe freezing weather with a thick coat of straw. They may be given in moderate quantities at first and afterwards increased according to the supply. Cows are sometimes fatally choked in their greediness to eat when they first have access to them, but the danger is small after they receive them regularly; but as they are easily sliced or chopped in two caution would indicate avoiding any danger. Horses are fond of apples, and a moderate ration does them good, as dry fodder takes the place of the more succulent. Turnips and carrots answer the same purpose. Since the introduction of ensilage animals fed on it suffer less from exclusively dry feed; but as many farmers do not open their silos until in January something to go between grass and ensilage is desirable. The farmer who keeps an eye to the proper feeding of his animals can use safely such materials as he possesses, if he keeps before him the chief necessity of avoiding sudden changes of food.

It is important in this connection, to provide comfortable quarters against the approaching cold; to secure stables and other places of shelter against cold currents of air, to give animals dry and clean places for eating and rest, and to be sure that they have pure water to drink. Provision for all these requisites must be made before winter closes up the opportunity.

In making all these provisions for winter, the requirements for spring feeding must not be overlooked. As soon as the first warm weather approaches, a gradual supply of succulent food should be given, and increased before turning to grass. We have found nothing better than parsneps. The great advantage of this over other root crops is that the roots may be left in the ground all winter, and in fact they are better for it. The crop is easily cultivated, its spreading leaves shade the ground and keep down weeds, and on rich soils it yields several hundred bushels to the acre. The roots may be plowed and pulled out in spring as required for feeding at intervals from the time the ground is thawed till the grass is a foot high.—Country Gentleman.

AN ARMLESS WOMAN'S FEATS.

"Now, let me show you what I can do. Please wait here in just a moment. Thread a needle." Of course I can see; and suiting the action to the word, Mrs. Thomson picked up a fine needle with the large and second toes of the right foot, held it rightly between the tips, and taking some yarn in her left foot, held the end in her mouth. In a small, smooth space on the wall she fastened the needle, and then, with a pencil held in her right foot, she wrote a few words, the more easily than a pencil held in the hand. Next she took a handkerchief, folded it, and, holding it with her right foot, wiped the pen with it. Then she held the pen with her right foot while with her left she gathered the threads with ease, and, commencing to sew as fast as any lady, sat the sitting room chairs with her soft hands. Her right eye giving her some trouble during this work, she deftly pushed back the spectacles which she wore, and with the second toe rubbed the eyelid. Then she leant forward and brushed back a few stray hairs from her forehead. Taking up the pen between the large and second toe of her left foot, and holding a slip of paper with her right toes, she wrote in a feminine hand, small and rather neat: "He that lends to all shows good will but little sense. Ann E. L. Thomson. Born without arms, December 23, 1869, Ga." This written, she put the pen down, took up a blotter with her left foot, placed it over the writing and dried the ink. Taking up a pair of large scissors with the large and third toe of the left foot, she cleverly cut out the portion of the paper on which she had written.

"Here comes my dinner. Now you can see me eat not that it's such a sight, but you may find it odd to see one eat with toes instead of fingers."

Mr. Thomson spread over a napkin on the platform, and placed on it the dinner of a person in good health. Mrs. Thomson turned around in her seat, took up a cup of tea in her foot, stirred it up with a spoon held in her right toes, and half leaning, half raising the cup to her lips, drank of the tea and placed the cup on the platform. Then she grasped a flat-handled silver knife in her left toes, caught a fork between the first two toes of her right foot, and cut some steak into pieces. Part of it was tough, but she had no more trouble in cutting it than an ordinary person would have. A piece of meat held on the fork was transferred to her mouth, and was followed by a piece of bread broken from a slice by her large and second toes.

As soon as she had finished this novel meal, Mrs. Thomson continued: "I forgot to tell you about my schooling. O, yes, I went to school. The pupils were kind, and I had a little raised platform for my use. I held my books in my toes, and read and studied as well as the rest of the girls. I held a slate in my right foot and the pencil between the toes of my left and managed to figure as well as anyone. My right limb is shorter than my left, and I learned to write with my left foot, as you have seen. I learned all that was taught in the common schools of Georgia before the war."—Detroit Times.

IRON ROADS.

Is It Likely That Our Roadways Will Ever Be Built of Metal?

The co-efficient of friction in the case of a cart or wagon on a very good road indeed is about one-thirtieth of the load—that is to say about seventy-four pounds to the ton; and the co-efficient of friction in the case of a railroad car is about 1-250th of the load—that is to say about eight pounds per ton. From which figures it is apparent that the advantages in traction on the smooth surface of an iron rail over those of the very best road that can possibly be constructed stand to one another as seventy-four to eight.

So far from the roads in the most of the American cities being the very best that can possibly be constructed they are notoriously bad and very rough in surface. And as the American wheel, with its lightness in structure and thinness of tire, is destructive of the best roadways that can be constructed in the ordinary way, the probabilities are that a lower co-efficient of friction than something very considerably above seventy-four pounds to the ton will never be reached on our roads and highways.

Under these circumstances it must have often suggested itself to many the feasibility of assimilating the case of the ordinary carts and carriages on the streets to that of the tramway cars. In the case of these latter friction is reduced to its lowest possible limit; but it is done at the expense of cutting up the streets terribly and injuring them greatly for ordinary traffic.

Although it would be out of the question to lay down lines of rails in the streets on which all carts and carriages could travel; yet there is one way out of the difficulty which must have often occurred to the minds of many as possible, namely, by constructing a roadway of one single rail, or, in other words, constructing it entirely of iron. We are not aware that this has ever been tried anywhere in a satisfactory manner, although we have an impression that cast-iron was, at one time, tried in a certain way in St. Louis. No doubt there would be some objections to it; but still we can not think of any, at the moment, which could not be equally urged against many of the approved road-making materials ordinarily in use. Iron would be hard indeed for the hoofs of horses; but then, nothing could be harder than granite, which is so much preferred.

Anything that would reduce the friction on our roads from about eighty, as it is at present, to eight pounds per ton would certainly be worth a trial, even if it entailed such a revolution as the setting up at our doorway of a veritable, Eisenbahn, or Chemin de Fer, or Via Ferri.—Midland Industrial Gazette.

GIVE ME A CALL.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is unsurpassed for effecting the most wonderful cures, while the most inflammatory, painful with weak sickness, stamps it as one of the greatest benefactors of the age of all ages and climes.

The most distressing cases of inflamed, and the most painful, are speedily relieved to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Burns, Sore Throat, Lameness, Rheumatism, Piles, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Bronchitis, Croup, Sore Throat, Chilblains, Affection of the Spine, Erysipelas, Nervous Irritation, and all disorders accompanied with inflammation.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is exerted over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame, reaches every bone, muscle, vein, nerve and ligament, is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years,

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should be perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Price 25 and 50 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

WHITE SEAL BURNING OIL!

The New York Board of Health estimates that 30,000 lives have been destroyed by the explosive conditions of petroleum. If every household would adopt the White Seal Oil for family use, none of these unfortunate accidents would occur.

WHITE SEAL BURNING OIL

Has none of the defects usually found in common oils. It cannot be exposed, does not clog the wick, will not smoke, emits no offensive odor and prevents the breaking of chimneys.

WHITE SEAL BURNING OIL

Is a rich oil for illuminating purposes. It is as light in color as pure spring water. It gives a strong steady light and burns much longer than common oils.

If this oil is not sold in your vicinity, send your order direct to us for a barrel or a case containing two five gallon cans.

GOING HOME.

How Great Things Grow Little in Our Sight as We Grow Older.

Reader, if you ever left home and went to a great city to seek fortune and fame, or lodging at police head quarters, then come home on a visit after a year or two, did you notice how low the houses once so tall in your eyes appeared?

When fifteen I went forth in the world and found myself at the end of the second day four hundred miles from home in a larger city than I had ever seen. I was soon familiar with its principal points of interest and only lack of funds with which to purchase postage stamps kept me from delaying my school-mates in Illinois with glowing accounts of my wonderful adventures and my bar-breadth escapes.

I remember the first time the fire department was called out after my advent in the city. It was before the extinguishing had become a profession as it is to-day, and the Tiffin department was a volunteer affair, which hauled the old "Seneca Chief" steamer by hand, and ran a hook-and-ladder truck and hand engine by the same motive power.

I was struck with the apparent inefficiency of the outfit, and yearned to right the numerous errors I thought I detected in reducing Penner's barn to ashes. If there is anything a boy with the accumulated wisdom of fifteen long and weary years rankling in his bosom, can detect better than another it is an error in some great enterprise like burning a house or barn, and he is not slow in righting the great wrong to the best of his ability. I thought the fellow that held the helm of the hook-and-ladder truck did not understand his business, so I walked up to him and seized one horn of the dilemma. I never exactly knew whether I fainted, suffered a stroke of paralysis or was kicked by a mule, but when I recovered from my temporary indisposition I was lying on my back in the mud, and one of my eyes had lost its cunning. It was in mourning nearly two weeks after that.

Ever since that occurrence, I have known more about the line of policy pursued by accomplished firemen than I ever knew before. I believe I learned about as much concerning fires on that occasion as I ever care to know, for I wandered around after rising from the scene of my downfall, until I collided with a somewhat persistent stream of water that the hoseman evidently thought useless for any purpose except to extinguish the ardor of over-smart boys. I have since observed that all well regulated fire departments have an engine for that express purpose. A fire has no charms for a first-class fireman, if there is a boy with ideas far in advance of his years in the crowd of bystanders. I have seen a whole department of firemen let thousands of dollars turn to ashes right in front of them, while engaged in dampening the irrepressible ardor of youth. In my opinion it is the duty of every city to pass ordinances prohibiting boys from running to fires, in order that firemen may have time to throw a little water on the fire.

With all my inexperience and advanced ideas, I survived the shocks and rebuffs of an unappreciative world and was spared to return to my home, restoring light, life and comfort to the languishing household. When the train pulled into my father's post-office address—that is about all there was of my native village—I was surprised at the lowness of the two-story brick house that constituted its business district. I had though it the very impersonation of architectural altitude in the good old days, but on my return it seemed a very small affair.

So it was with the hopes of high position among my old school-mates, which I had banked seven or eight stories high before I came home. I found that all that remained of them was the basement, and instead of looking up to me, as I had fondly anticipated, they slapped me on the back in the old familiar way, and when I resented such familiarity they said I was stuck up—and they were right.—Through Mail.

CARRYING THE BANNER

One Way in Which Poor Men Earn Their Bread in a Large City.

"Do you want yer banner carried?" said an indigent fellow to the proprietor of a fifteen-cent eating-house on State Street yesterday.

"No, I've hired a man for the winter."

"I'll do it for grub," again remarked the fellow.

"No, don't want any one."

"What did he mean by 'carrying the banner?'" queried a reporter of the proprietor.

"What did he mean, eh? 'Tis a long story, but I'll give it to you in a nutshell. Do you see that fellow coming up the street," pointing to a man with a bill of fare on his breast.

An answer in the affirmative was made.

"Well, that's carrying the banner. I hire those fellows for carrying my bill of fare, and I've found it to be a good method of advertising."

The reporter bade the proprietor adieu, and was soon in conversation with the banner-carrier. "It's a tough business, but I can't starve," said the latter. "It's the only work I can get to do, as I'm too old to go laboring. All I get is fifty cents a day an' my board, but there are five hundred fellows after the same job. I'm hired for the winter."

"Are there many in the profession?"

"There are over one hundred on the West Side carrying the banner, and they says they's paid well. On this side it is new, but the boys is catchin' on. After all, it's not bad: you get three square meals a day, and can lodge for ten cents; there's forty cents profit."

"Do you save it?"

"Never saved a cent in my life; fifteen years ago I had a hotel on Jackson Street, but the fire busted me. I'se 'specting to brace up soon an' get some good clothes. Then I'll travel."

"What's your name?"

"Slurk, sir; yes, Col'nel Slurk's my handle," and the banner-carrier, with a restaurant bill-of-fare hanging from his shoulders, passed on his way.—Chicago Tribune.

FOUNDED BY NOAH'S SON.

An Extraordinary-Looking Village in the Wilds of Persia.

Our special correspondent with the Afghan Commission thus describes an extraordinary-looking village which he passed at the distance of one hundred miles from Teheran:

"We had not proceeded far on our way when vestiges of the former condition of things met our eyes. It was at a place only one hundred miles from Teheran that we first realized the dreadful state of danger in which the people had lived. We found a most remarkable village at which we encamped. Supposing no information could have been procured, and an archæologist had come upon it by accident, he would have had a profound puzzle to unravel and explain. The name of the village is Lasgird. The people ascribe an immense antiquity to it, and say that Lasgird, the last, a son of Noah, drew on the ground the "gird," or circle, which is the plan of the structure. The hero of this legend is not very familiar to Biblical scholars in the West, but he is not unknown in Afghanistan. The Colosseum at Rome, although an oval, would convey some idea of the general appearance of Lasgird, only it must be conceived as built of mud, which is almost the only building material of this country. It should also be recollected that the one belongs to a period of good architecture, of which it is a celebrated monument, while the other may be said to be entirely destitute of any pretensions of this kind.

"The rude mud walls are thick and solid all round at the base, and rise some thirty or forty feet, where there is a line of doors, with here and there a small window between them. By means of projecting beams, or branches of trees, over which smaller branches are laid, a kind of gallery is produced, bearing a strong resemblance to those simple forms of birds' nests which are formed of sticks placed on the upper branches of trees. The wonder is how the eggs do not roll over, or that the chicks do not tumble down to destruction. So it is with the galleries of Lasgird—there is no protection on the edge, yet we saw women and children, sheep and goats upon them—a more frail and dangerous looking arrangement it would be hard to conceive. There are two tiers of houses all round, and in some places there appeared to be three. All had these galleries in front, either to communicate with the next house, or, as some did not communicate, they were only of use to come out upon to sit or work, or for the children to play upon; to us these places seemed the brink of destruction, while to the women and children it all appeared as safe and comfortable as if they had been monkeys. Of course there was no getting up to these galleries from the outside; that would have suited the Turkomans. The means of going up were all on the inside. In some cases there are rough steps of mud, and in others there are inclined planes, half ladder and half road, made in the same way as the galleries. These lead up to galleries communicating with the houses, which were an exact repetition of those on the outside, the only difference being that they were not so high up, and there were walls at places which did duty as a parapet, hence the certainty of falling over did not seem quite so great from the inside as on the outside. While looking at this strange structure from one of these upper galleries, an old woman, of at least seventy years of age, passed me, with a child stuck in some primitive way on her back; a few yards from me was one of these means of ascent, formed with sticks, with the remains of mud hanging to it. It would have done for fowls to go up to their roosts upon. She clambered up on this to the gallery above, but that was not her destination; her house was one up still, higher in a corner, and to reach it she had to crawl up on the edge of a crumbling mud wall, not above eighteen inches wide, on her left hand was a perpendicular descent, enough to make anyone dizzy, and death at the bottom of it if a fall should occur; although the other side there was only a few feet, if the old creature had slipped, the chances are that she would have rolled down, and fallen over the gallery with the baby on her back. The old lady went up very steadily, and reached her crow's nest in perfect safety. I could not help thinking that a few generations of this kind of thing would undo all our development, and that we would go back again to our original Simian condition.

"The dwellings of the people were all in the upper part of the great circle, and the center was filled up with strange moss structures, which are now falling to decay, as there is no longer any danger from the Turkomans. These places were for containing the grain of the village and for receiving the live stock of the villagers when a raid occurred. One of a number of wells was pointed out to us within a circle, and we were told that they had three or four which were always kept in good order, in the days of danger. There is only one entrance to this circle, and that is by a small entrance scarcely four feet in height, to which there is a stone door working with a pivot and socket similar to the ancient stone doors found in the Hauran and other parts of the Soudan. The stone door of Lasgird is a very rude one, being eight inches thick in some parts, and it tells its tale of the existence of great danger and the necessity for protection. Sir Peter Lansden had a long conversation with the Khet Khodah and some of the principal villagers, and it seemed that they not only ascribed the origin of Lasgird to the son of Noah, 'Nu,' as they called him, but they likened their strange dwelling place to the Ark. Extreme theologians, who identify the church with the Ark, say all who were in the Ark were saved, all without were destroyed. This was exactly the case with Lasgird. When a chupao took place all who got in were secure; all who were left outside became victims. A chronic state of war existed, and this fortified village was the result. The Government either could not, or would not, defend the people, and they had to take means for their own safety."—London News.

A Possible Relic of De Soto.

The Tallahassee (Fla.) Floridian says: A few years ago, about two miles east of Tallahassee, was found a ponderous spur of unique and curious workmanship, the like of which has not been seen in modern times. The burr was one and a half inches in diameter, and the bar proportionately heavy. On either side of the rowel dangled small pendant bells, that gave forth a tinkling sound in response to each step of the wearer—doubtless some steel-clad and bonneted Marion of the long ago. Not many days since, while parties were plowing near the identical spot, a solid, and hapless mass was turned up, which, upon due examination, proved to be an iron stirrup of ancient pattern, as heavy and as massive as the spur spoken of first, and firmly imbedded in a thick coating of clay and rust. When this was removed, the stirrup was found to be in a remarkable good state of preservation. The sides represent two Ethiopian figures standing upon the foot-rest, leaning forward facing each other, while they support with outstretched arms what forms the top of the stirrup, or that part connected with the leather. So unlike are both these relics to anything known to the generations of this day and time, and, both being found so near the same place, it is not unreasonable to ascribe them to the same era and individual. Nor is the supposition at all improbable that one of the knightly followers of De Soto, lured on through this then unknown region and wilderness, like that dauntless son of Spain, by a thirst for the yellow heaps of gleaming gold that loomed up ahead of them in vain visions and heated fancies, here fell a victim to the tomahawk and scalping knife of the wronged and revengeful red; and no doubt, some one of the "Tallahassee Tribe," of which "Tiger Tail" claimed to be a descendant, boasted, as he displayed at his belt a yet bloody scalp, that he had "killed a pale-face."

The druggist who hesitates now is lost for the winter. He should sling together some sweet oil and liquorice and bring out his cough cure at once. Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup does not pay him enough profit.

Japanese Life.

The Japanese is the cleanest of mankind. Cleanliness is, so to speak, more than godliness with him. Though he has no soap, he washes all over at least once a day—he worships but once a week. His candles are made of vegetable wax. He uses a cotton coverlet, well stuffed and padded, for bed covering and mattress. A sort of stereoscope case—made of wood—makes his pillow. He resorts to that, and so does his wife and daughters, that their carefully arranged hair may not be disturbed during sleep. No head-covering is used by the Japanese. No nation dresses the hair so tastefully. Usually it is with the men shaved in sections. They are coming now to wear it in European fashion. They are adopting all European customs.

On levee day I saw the reception at the Mikado's palace in Yeddo. Every one presented had to come in full dress. That dress does not become the Japanese figure. He looks awkward in it. His legs are too short. The tails of his claw-hammer coat drag on the ground, and the black dress trousers wrinkle up and get baggy around their feet. His European-fashioned clothes have been sent out ready-made from America or England, and in no case did I notice anything approaching to a good fit. Yet he smiled and looked very happy though he could not get his heels half way down his Wellington boots, and his hat was either too large or too small for his head. He always smiles and looks pleasant. Nothing can make him grumble, and he has not learned to swear. He is satisfied to be paid his due, and never asks for more. As a New York cabman he would be a veritable living curiosity.

Poison Ivy.

The poison ivy is very poisonous to some persons; they are poisoned by not touching it at all, or even, it is said, passing near it, while others may handle it without being affected by the contact in the least. The poisonous property of the plan is owing to a volatile acid; its effect is an acute inflammation of the skin, often accompanied by a great swelling. The effects remain sometimes for months before the poison is completely removed from the system. The usual remedies are cooling purgatives and an external application of lead water. An application of a solution of hops has been known to prove an effectual remedy when all other remedies failed. The plant has sometimes been mistaken for Virginia creeper, to which it bears no slight resemblance. The distinguishing feature is that the poison ivy has three leaflets, whereas the Virginia creeper's leaves have five leaflets. Persons have been poisoned by mistaking the poisonous for the harmless species. This plant is of the genus rhus or sumac. There is also an upright plant that is poisonous.

War's dread alarms, carry terror to the hearts of peace-loving citizens, but it is safe to say that the number of lives annually sacrificed to liver complaint, in its various forms, greatly exceed those of the most destructive battles. George L. Martinez of Nicaragua, writes: "During my last visit to New York I was presented with half a dozen bottles of Mishler's Herb Bitters, and I cheerfully testify that less than two bottles cured me of liver complaint of five years' standing."

A CALL FROM AN OLD FRIEND.

Last Tuesday afternoon we were quite surprised when Capt. David Boyd, of Greeley, Colorado, dropped into the HERALD office. The Captain was a schoolmate of ours years ago, and will be remembered by many of our older citizens who admired his industry and enterprise in working his way through a High School and University course. He left Tecumseh fifteen years ago, and went to Greeley, Colorado, where he bought a farm and commenced at once "to grow up with the country." That he has succeeded in his undertaking is attested by a few facts which he stated in reply to our inquiries:

"I bought a small farm," said he, upon arriving at Greeley, near the then infant settlement, and a village lot. I have kept my residence in the village, but a few years ago I sold my farm and purchased a larger one six miles out, and now own a fine farm of 480 acres, the care of which keeps me busy. I have three children, all girls, the eldest of whom is a member of the present graduating class of the Greeley High school. The town is just about the size of Tecumseh, and we have a fine graded school there the full course of study being twelve years, the same as your school. Having a little leisure I concluded to visit my old home. I left Greeley about three weeks ago and went direct to New Orleans, where I spent a week very pleasantly at the Exposition. I then turned my face toward Michigan and arrived here last Saturday during the zero weather. I expect to remain here and in Macon during the present week, and shall start for home on Monday next."

The captain is enjoying excellent physical health, and seems but little older than when he left here. His old taste for literary pursuits clings to him still, and he finds time, aside from his farming, to gratify his inclination in this direction. He has served several years upon the School Board of Greeley and was largely instrumental in building up its graded school. Last year he was president of the State Teacher's Association of Colorado. During the last annual session held at Denver he delivered an address entitled "The Ethical Imagination," which was highly commended by the Denver press, and provoked a good deal of comment from teachers and theologians. The Captain has been circulating around among his Tecumseh friends for the past two days and will visit his brother, John Boyd in Macon, the latter part of the week.

A CONLEY REUNION.

A correspondent of the Pontiac Gazette writing from Troy, Oakland Co., gives an account of a family reunion at the home of Stephen G. Conley, in which Rev. C. E. Conley of this village participated.

On Tuesday last, January 13, our much respected neighbor, Stephen G. Conley and wife, was happily surprised. Early in the day their daughter, Mrs. Newel Daniells, of Livingston county, arrived at the old homestead, and suggested to her aged parents that they prepare their toilet, "for I have come to visit you." With not a little urging they acceded to her request. Soon his neighboring friends began to put in their appearance, with baskets loaded with rich delicacies. "What does all this mean?" inquired Mr. Conley. "I don't understand this, but nevertheless I am happy to see you all," soon thereafter, a son, the Rev. Chas. E. Conley and wife, arrived from Tecumseh, to the great delight of the parents. "Now I fully understand, and duly appreciate the entire arrangement," says Mr. Conley. "This is the 50th anniversary of my wedding day; I am indeed happy to see you all. Make yourselves at home." And you may rest assured we did so, and a more pleasant and agreeable afternoon, we have not enjoyed this many a day. The tables were soon arranged for dinner, literally loaded with the most tempting viands. The guests, to the number of 25 or 30, were soon seated at the tables, where they made the inner man glad. Stephen G. Conley was born in Canada, December 17, 1806, and while a small boy moved with his father to Jefferson county, New York. Married, January 10, 1835, to Miss Eliza A. Allen, who was born February 1818, in Montgomery county, New York. Mr. Conley and wife settled in Troy, Michigan, October 16, 1845, was a cooper by trade and worked at that business some ten years after settling in Michigan. In 1849 he bought a small farm, 27 acres, it being the S. part N. W. ¼ of section 15, where he has continued to reside to the present time. Mr. Conley has been a member of the M. E. church for the last 58 years, one of the pillars, strong and always in good standing.

AN INCIDENT OF THE REBELLION.

Mr. E. N. Pierce of Waverly, Mass., has sent us a copy of the Boston Daily Globe containing the following reminiscence of the war in which Capt. Amos P. Foster, now landlord of the Lilley House, figured as the leading character. We feel assured that it will be interesting to Capt. Foster's many friends in Tecumseh and hence we give space to the entire article:

"There was a gathering at the house of Mr. Elisha N. Pierce, of Waltham, last Wednesday evening, to welcome the new year, and the host, to entertain his guests, told an exceedingly interesting story. He said that while on a trip out West last summer he met, as clerk in the Lilley House, at Tecumseh, Mich., Captain Amos Foster, who had been all through the war and had earned the reputation as being one of the bravest officers in the navy. It was this meeting which recalled to him the following story.

It was in April, 1865, that I was attached to the Comodore Perry, under Captain Foster, lying on James river about one half a mile above the Dutch Gap canal. The lines surrounding Lee's army were being drawn tighter and closer and the final blow was about to be struck. On that morning it was my watch on deck. About 4 o'clock Captain Foster, who had been taking an hour's rest, came up from his cabin and asked me if I had heard any firing up the river during his absence. I told that I had not. He thought in silence a moment and said: "Mr. Pierce, I would not be surprised if the end of all this would come within the next twenty-four hours."—Scarcely had he spoken when a sheet of flame shot into the air, followed by a tremendous explosion.

"There," exclaimed the captain, "goes a rebel iron-clad." Two similar explosions followed immediately. After waiting further development Captain Foster ordered his gig away, and, going ashore, climbed to the top of the "Old Crow Nest" signal tower, from which an excellent view could be obtained for miles around. In about an hour the captain returned on board, and in a few minutes the flag-ship signaled the Perry, "Get under way. Take the lead to Richmond. Be very careful of torpedoes."

The old boat had borne the brunt of several severe fights, and that she was now going to clear the James river of torpedoes made the officers and crew hope that they would be the first to reach Richmond. The boatswain's whistle called all hands to weigh anchor, and in a very short time the Perry commenced to move up the river. Boats were sent out in advance. As the old ship made progress up the stream, a little chip was seen floating on the water. It was a torpedo float. The boat crews went to work cutting lines and wires until the infernal box was brought to the surface, then cut open and the contents spilled into the river. In this way fifty-one torpedoes were removed and the James opened to navigation.

On our way we saw large bodies of Confederate soldiers. On one occasion Captain Foster hailed them and found that they were remnants of the famous General Pickett's brigade. Touching at the bank we took them all on board and asked them where their guns were? One of them exclaimed "Damn the guns, we have had all the gunning we can stand." The prisoners were removed to Fort Brody. When the Perry reached Fort Darling she ran aground on obstructions placed across the river. Orders were given the chief-engineer to pay no attention to the engine bells, but to force the vessel forward and backward as hard as possible until she was worked off. There we were, work away, when the United States steamship Malvern, which was Admiral Porter's flag-ship, came up astern of us. We then learned for the first time that President Lincoln was on board, and had made his arrangements to accompany the fleet to Richmond. It being impossible for the admiral's vessel to go by us he determined to take the President to Richmond in his barge. The boat was lowered. The President and Admiral taking seats in the stern sheets, while Lieutenant Barnes, with a body guard of marines, followed in the Malvern's first cutter.

Between the Perry and the shore was a very narrow channel of deep water, and through which the admiral intended the boats to pass. The place however, was found too narrow to use the oars, and so, backing water a little, the crew pulled hard, thinking by the power thus obtained the boat would pass through. The admiral did not take into account the current, however, and those in the boat were surprised to find themselves drifting in the direction of the steamer's immense wheel. Just at this moment the engineer turned the lever, and in a moment the engines were churning up the sea to the alarm of the boat's crew.

The president shouted "Stop her" and the admiral followed suit. The uproar immediately reached the ears of Captain Foster, who with one bound reached the engine room hatch and shouted to the engineer to reverse. In a moment this was done and the boat was safe. When the barge had backed out of her perilous situation—the admiral, rising and blowing the water out of his mouth, called out: "Where is the captain of this vessel?"

"Here I am," said Captain Foster, leaning over the ship rail.

"Well, sir," said the admiral, indignantly, "when you back off from here don't you attempt to go to Richmond, but anchor down below and allow the other vessels to go up before you."

Without a moment's hesitation the captain, in his usual tone of voice, responded, "Aye-aye, sir," and in a moment more the boats went on. After working the engine for some time without avail the captain squeezed the three tugs, which he had used in clearing the river, through the channel. A large hawser was then attached to the Perry from each of the tugs and the captain gave the order that when he waved his handkerchief the tugs should go ahead at full speed. The handkerchief dropped, the tugs started, and the old Perry, putting on all steam, crashed through the obstructions, and in a moment more was floating on the broad stream. Continuing the journey under the full head of steam Richmond was reached, and the Commodore Perry was the first ship bearing national colors to drop anchor before the city. A few hours after the Malvern hove in sight and dropped anchor near us.

At evening the admiral, in company with the president, who had passed the afternoon in the rebel capital, returned on board his vessel, and the greatest ordeal of the whole campaign was now before Captain Foster, as he was obliged to go on board the flag-ship and report the presence of his vessel to the admiral. As he left in the gig his face looked a trifle paler than usual, but his great dark eyes showed determination to face the music like the man that he was. Going on board he was met by Fleet Captain Bruce, who whispered in his ear, "You'll get hell, old fellow, for coming up here." His presence was communicated to the "orderly" at the cabin door, who announced to the admiral that "Captain Foster had come aboard to report." He was accordingly asked into the cabin, where he saw the president and the admiral seated at a small center table. Saluting both, Captain Foster said: "Admiral, I have the honor to report the arrival of the United States steamship 'Commodore Perry, at Richmond."

The admiral, in a very stern voice, replied: "Captain Foster, I thought I told you not to come up to Richmond."

The captain answered: "Sir, I did not understand you so. I thought you told me that when I backed off not to attempt to come up here."

"Well," returned the admiral in the same stern voice, "what of it?"

In the same measured accents which characterized the whole conversation, the captain answered: "Sir, I did not back off, I ran her over bow first."

The admiral turned all shades of red, but before he could utter an accent "Old Abe" saw the joke, and laughingly arose and offered his heartiest congratulations to Captain Foster. The admiral immediately cooled off, and rising said: "Sir, you can now go on board of your vessel; I will see you concerning this matter in the morning." That was the last that ever came of it.

At this point the bells in the steeples struck out 1884 and welcomed 1885.

FRANKLIN AND TECUMSEH FARMER'S CLUB.

The meeting of the "Tecumseh and Franklin Farmer's Club" held at the residence of Hamilton Hoag, on Wednesday eve., Jan. 21, was largely attended, and the following program was successfully carried out:

Music—Club.
Recitation—Maude Poucher.
Essay—Lena Van Ness.
Select Reading, The Newsboy's debt—Mrs. H Hoag.
Essay—Mrs. B. Hurry.

The question for discussion (Are farm wages in just proportion to prices of produce) was opened by Mr. H. Hoag, who took the ground that the wages which were paid for farm help last season were too high, thought farmers should control the matter of farm wages the same as those engaged in other business enterprises, and that there should be a reduction of 25 per cent next year from wages heretofore prevailing. Abner Wilson thought the high prices of labor prevailing for the last five or six years, was largely due to the large amount of rail roads which have been built in the last ten years in the United States, thought there would be a reduction in the next season of from 30 to 40 per cent in the price of farm wages. W. S. Osborn thought we should discriminate in favor of first-class help, some men would earn from ¼ to ½ more than others by working for their employer's interests. The question was discussed at some length by other members of the club, also by the ladies in relation to help in the house, with the general opinion that farm wages were altogether too high in proportion to the price of produce. Meeting adjourned to meet at the residence of Mr. W. S. Osborn, on Wednesday eve., Feb. 4, with the following program:

Music—
Recitation—Jennie Osborn.
Essay—Mrs. Bell Mathews
Rec.—Herbert Munger.
Select Reading—Mrs. Abner Wilson.
Question for discussion, The winter care and management of farm stock. To be opened by George Swarts.

H. WILSON, Sec'y.

MURDEROUS ASSAULT.

From the Adrian Record of Monday we clip the following.

At about half past six o'clock last night occurred a mysterious and deadly assault upon George Dwyer, the assistant operator at the Western Union telegraph office in this city. At six o'clock operator Putnam left for home, leaving Dwyer alone in the office. About half an hour afterward the messenger boy returning, found Dwyer on the floor in the back room of the office, faintly crying "take him off, take him off." Over his temples were two places where he had been struck with something heavy, his pockets were turned inside out, and as he lay convulsively twitching on the floor, he would say, "You didn't get my money, anyway." Four dollars and one cent were found, which from its condition was supposed to have been tightly clutched in his hand. It was not until after nine o'clock that Dwyer recovered consciousness enough to tell a connected story.

After Putnam left, Dwyer received a message, which he telephoned to the parties to whom it was sent. His story is that while turning from the telephone some one who had approached him from behind, struck him a heavy blow on the temple, stunning him, and that while in a dazed way, was trying to defend himself, the person grabbed him by the wrist and struck him once more and over the other temple. He remembered nothing more. On Saturday Dwyer had received his half month's pay from the company, but only had seven or eight dollars about him at six o'clock last evening.

The Legislature is taking a vacation this week to allow the Committees to visit the state institutions.

JOSHUA GUMBO'S SUBSCRIPTION.

There is no little business transaction which better illustrates a man's character, than the manner in which he pays his newspaper subscription.

John Jones, a well to do farmer, walks in, pulls out his weasel skin, asks for a receipt for the coming year, throws down a ten dollar bill to be changed, takes his change with a smiling countenance, remarks that wheat is outrageously low, but pork and beef even the thing up, leaves a local item or two and walks out.

Peter Smith, another farmer, comes in during the dinner hour and wants to trade a load of water soaked wood worth about one dollar, for two dollars which he is in arrears on the paper, consumes half an hour discussing the matter, thinks his wood is worth more than the paper anyway, and finally leaves with emphatic instructions how to stop it.

Lucius Brown, who is a man with a family, comes in with a business air, makes out a list of reading matter which comprises the HERALD, a New York illustrated paper, a Detroit weekly, two agricultural papers, a magazine for his wife, and a juvenile sheet for the children, and asks, "How much for the lot?" We give him the figures and he plunks down the cash. The trade is completed in five minutes and he goes on his way rejoicing over the fact that he will have plenty of reading matter during the year and that it is all paid for.

Yesterday afternoon Joshua and Jerusha Gumbo called to settle up their subscription account. As usually happens on these occasions the woman did most of the talking.

"We have come in," said Mrs. Gumbo, with a cracked voice and tearful countenance, "to look over and see how we stand. I take a pride in perusing good literature and always make it a point to keep some good newspaper in the house. It keeps the children quiet after supper to read the patent medicine cuts and divertisements, and the paper is so handy to cover up the bread pan over night. I like your paper exceedingly well with one exception. I like the story and the local news from all the towns round about, and the dog fights and runaways, and the lectures and Uncle Tom's Cabin shows, and the rink racket—Mr. Gumbo has become infected with the rink fever and says he is bound to learn how to roll on skates—and the beautiful inscriptions of the new houses that are erected—Mr. Gumbo and I intend to build an elegant mansion as soon as our financial liabilities will permit—and the visitors and parties, and the weddings and funerals—you have heart-rending obituary poetry sometimes which does my very soul good to shed tears over—but I decline in totum to devour the patent medicine notices. I am not a believer in patent medicines. I practice the system of hygiene in my family. If you would print them all on one page, I could skip that page, but they are all mixed in. I cannot peruse the ancedotes and the scientific extracts without stumbling over a lot of patent medicine notices, and sometimes I read half way through a nice ancedote and then discover to my disgust that its nothing but a patent medicine notice. If you wouldn't mix them in so, it would be all right, but you don't use any discretion about this matter. But I suppose you are paid for them and I can skip them, only don't mix them in with the anecdotes hereafter. I think you should make the patent medicine men pay enough for their patent notices so you could afford to sell the papers for fifty cents a year. What is the present hiatus of our account, sir?"

"You are three years in arrears, Mrs. Gumbo, which would be $4.50. Add $1.50 for a year's advance subscription and the total account is $6, which will carry you till the first of January."

"Jerusalem," said Joshua, unbuttoning his overcoat and taking off his cap and gloves, "six dollars for a newspaper? Why, hang it, what d'ye take me for? I aint no banker. Good heavens, that's more'n than the cost of a bar'l o' flour. How d'ye expect a man to live in these hard times, if you make him pay three years on a paper all in a lump? I'll law it. Why, hang it, haint you got no gratitude? Haint I read your paper for three years 'n loaned it out to the nabers? Haint I got you a dozen new names on Pochahontas alley? Haint I run down all the tother newspapers in this county of Lenawee and run your'n up? What in thunder d'ye run a paper for anyway? Why, hang it, if you didn't have no subscriptions you wouldn't have no advertisin.' I s'pose you want to charge half price for advertisin' and make it up out of old subscribers. This hull newspaper business is a fraud. Why, hang it, you haint got no business tact. If you sent out your papers free, your subscription list would keep growin'n growin 'n growin, and advertisin would keep comin' in 'n comin' in and rates would keep goin' up 'n goin' up, and your readers would grow happier 'n happier. Why, hang it, young man, you don't know nothin. I've got a bill of $8.00 agin' you for workin' up new names, and you can plank down the $2.00 balance or I'll slap a warrant to you. I've got through foolin'—No hifalutin' editor can impose on Joshua Gumbo. Why, hang it, Jerusha's bin waitin 'n waitin 'n waitin' for three hull weeks to get a piece 'o caliker to begin quiltin' with and now you want to rob me out 'o six dollars. I'll swar out an injunction. I'll petition the Common Council. I'll collect that $2.00, young man, or my name aint Joshua, you bet!"

As the fighting editor was not in, and as the literary editor had an obituary notice to write up for to-day's paper, our reporter, prevailed upon the Gumbos to call again next Saturday morning, when an effort will be made to close up a settlement.

SELL OR EXCHANGE.—One pair trucks. Will exchange for hay or grain. Enquire at HERALD OFFICE.

Isaac Wolcott is assisting Harry Lee at the Ben Farmer shoe store.

Mrs. Meever, of Ann Arbor, has been visiting at her mother's, Mrs. Wm. Tilton's, for a few days. On Tuesday evening last a number of Mrs. Cheever's old acquaintances paid their respects at Mrs. Tilton's residence and a happy evening was passed in recalling old reminiscences.

RINK RACKET.

"Every body skate."

Knapp's band will be at the rink this evening.

One of the best grand marches we have seen this winter was led by Walter Powers and Hannah Heesen Tuesday evening.

L. F. Wheeler invented the new program.

Manager Cash talks of putting in a new gallery at the south end of the rink in the spring and having fancy bicycle and skating exhibitions.

A large crowd attended the rink Tuesday evening, sleighing parties from Clinton and Franklin helping to swell the army of skaters.

The skating of Mr. A. Heywood, of Grand Rapids, was very much admired. He executes a great number of fancy movements and seems to be perfectly at home on rollers.

The orange race Tuesday evening was a decided success, and we think an improvement on the one last week. Of course accidents were expected, but when a young lady prefers to sit on the floor and pick up her orange, it is only a matter of taste. There were but few of such cases. Seven young ladies put their best foot on the mark, and at the word go made a grand rush for the oranges. All were splendid skaters and made good time, but Miss Rose Miller seemed to be the most expert and was the first one to get around, and also to get the largest number of oranges, she having seven. Miss Roland came next with six, and the rest of the ladies secured from three to five each.

THE BAND BENEFIT.

The Tecumseh Cornet Band are preparing an entertainment which will be given in about two weeks. It will consist of music and the two plays heretofore announced. The object is to raise funds to purchase some new instruments and music. We hope the boys will be well patronized. Below we give the cast of the two plays to be presented.

"TOO MUCH FOR GOOD NATURE."

Romeo Jafier Jenkins—in love and pleased with ruin. L. F. Wheeler.
Mr. Adolphus—who intends to have a good time, but nearly gets into a serious fix. Will Blood.
Mr. Spaulding—a mesmerist who has trouble in getting subjects. Walter Fowler.
Matilda J. Chummy—the object of Jenkins affections. Eva Clement.
Mrs. Chummy—who thinks Jenkins ought to be strangled. Stella Cleveland.
Mrs. Adolphus—who thinks her hubby is tricky. Irene Schreder.
Miss Precise—who sees and understands. Emma Conklin.
Betty—the pertinacious housemaid who seems bound to help Mr. Adolphus into a fix. Mrs. Ed. Hand.
Mrs. Jones—who will not have her daughter mesmerized if she knows it. Geddie Spaulding.
Mrs. Spaulding—a woman of animal organization and extraordinary bumps. Walter Heck.
Miss Belinda Ann Jones—willing to be mesmerized. Charlie Whittier.

"POOR PILLICODY."

Mr. Pillicody—afraid his wife's first husband will turn up alive. Mr. L. F. Wheeler.
Capt. O'Scuttle—whose appearance makes poor Pillicody want to shuffle off this mortal coil. Harry Tansley.
Mrs. Pillicody—glad to forget her first. Nellie Reynolds.
Mrs. O'Scuttle—jealous of the bluff old captain. Mrs. Ed. Hand.
Sarah Blunt—Pillicody's right bower; a little off on addition. Eva Clement.

THE TECUMSEH HERALD.

TECUMSEH, MICH., FEB. 5, 1885.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

Kies Bros. inventoried their clothing stock Monday and Tuesday.

Strong & McNair are taking an inventory of their stock this week.

Robert Pitchet, of Cincinnati, Ohio, was in town Monday and gave the Herald a call.

The Tecumseh Cornet Band will accompany manager Cash to the Lake Ridge rink next Monday night.

W. & S. W. Anderson have a new card in to-day's paper. Now is the time to make ready for spring and summer.

Geo. Tansley, Mr. J. S. Kinney's undertaker, went to Addison last week for the purpose of purchasing Eaton's furniture store. The trade will probably take place soon.

We have a new sewing machine at this office which we will sell cheap for cash—one quarter off. Any person wishing to buy a new sewing machine, will do well to call and examine it.

For people wishing to attend inauguration day at Washington, March 4th, the M. & O. railway will sell round trip ticket from all the principal stations commencing February 28th, 1885.

Hotel business seems to be booming. On looking over the register of the Lilley House last Monday, we found that 78 commercial men registered there last week besides 45 from city and country.

Mr. Jonathan Sprague, of Ann Arbor, Past Grand Master of the I. O. O. F., was in Tecumseh last Tuesday attending the lodge. He is introducing a revised digest of the Constitution and By-Laws.

Miss Sunderland, aged twenty, of Dundee, Mich., attempted suicide last Friday night because her father refused to permit her to attend the roller skating rink. She took an ounce of laudanum, and was with difficulty restored.

The senior class of the Tecumseh High School consists of seven members: Frank Hall, Will Hayden, Mabel Hayden, Rose Hendershot, Bert McNair, Lyster Dewey and Maggie Clarkson. The following have been chosen officers:

President—Frank Hall.
Vice Pres.—Rose Hendershot.
Secretary—Mabel Hayden.
Treasurer—Bert McNair.

"Yes," she said to her escort, as they glided around the rink, "I do love roller skating. When we are sailing around this way my soul seems to be floating toward heaven, and—" By some mistake in the program, at this point both her soles floated away toward heaven, while the rest of her smote the hard wood floor with a mighty smote.

Miss Mabel VanCamp, who will return to her home sometime during the present month, has been engaged to teach a number of musical aspirants in Adrian. No doubt she could be secured by her Tecumseh friends to teach a class here. With her great talents and thorough culture much benefit would accrue to the musically inclined among our young people by a course of lessons from her.

Last Friday afternoon just before dark a man was seen driving a team up the Lake Shore track towards the creek bridge. A section hand started in pursuit and overhauled him as he got to the bridge. He had driven through the cattle guard on the north side of Bidwell street and up the track to the bridge where the team stopped and refused to go further. The man's name was Wood and lives near Clinton. He had got bewildered and taken the wrong road.

A letter from O. H. Kellogg, who lives at Otsego Lake in this State, says: "We are said to be on the highest portion of land in Michigan, at an altitude of about 1,100 feet above the Saginaw Valley, and for that reason we have plenty of snow, more than any other county in Michigan. January has been a very cold month; the snow is about two and one-half feet deep, and mercury on the 28th, indicated forty below zero. How is that for an open winter?"

Commander S. P. Hosmer says the prospect is very favorable for the New Orleans excursion which he is engaged in working up. Only twenty-five more pledges are needed to insure it. Many ladies have handed in their names, and all who may wish to go can rely upon receiving first-class accommodations. Mr. Hosmer has secured quarters in New Orleans where board and lodging can be obtained for $1.50 per day. He recently wrote to the G. A. R. officials in the Crescent City making enquiries about board, etc., and in the letter of reply the writer says: The department Commander, Col. Wm. Roy, sends his best wishes and hopes your boys will come. He sends fraternal greeting to all G. A. R., and says the G. A. R. of the Gulf will try and entertain them all. Parties who wish to join the excursion should hand in their names to S. P. Hosmer without delay. It is expected now that the excursion will start about March 1st.

The Tecumseh Cornet Band were out serenading last Friday evening, and made excellent music.

A party of young folks to the number of twelve, took a sleigh ride to Springville last Monday evening, and enjoyed the hospitality of Miss Winnie Rogers.

Will Smallidge, James Curry, John Hibbard and M. M. Clark visited Dundee Lodge of Odd Fellows on Monday evening, at which time, the Dundee and Milan lodges were consolidated.

Geo. Kies had a telephone conversation with Bay City, Tuesday evening. He heard their talk distinctly, but they could not hear all he said. The message must have come via Jackson.

The Club Hop at Armory Hall was not the only party in town last Friday evening as many can testify to having a good time at the party given by Thos. Boyd at his residence west of the village.

The next entertainment of the Library Lecture Course will be given on Thursday evening of next week, Feb. 12th, by the Meigs-Underhill troupe. It will be the best entertainment yet given and we hope to see a crowded house.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Smith of Chicago have been in town three or four days. They were called here on a sad errand, to attend the funeral of Mrs. Smith's father. It was a great satisfaction to her however, to be present during the last hours of his illness.

The young people of the M. E. Church have organized a lyceum and elected the following officers:

Pres.—Rev. G. W. Hudson.
1st. Vice Pres—Miss E. O. Skinner.
2d. " " —Ellsworth Russell.
Sec. & Treas—Hattie Montgomery.
Chaplain—Mrs. G. W. Hudson.

During a call at Clinton yesterday we met Dr. Cameron and learned from him that the interview with him as published in the News of the 22d, was grossly exaggerated and that he was misrepresented. Of course it would be unfair to hold a man responsible for words that he never uttered or for language which originated in the imaginative brain of a correspondent. We take the first opportunity after learning the facts, to make amends to Dr. Cameron for the allusions to him in our retort of last week, and to place him right before the public.

John Wilber is generally a peaceable citizen, but when he is full of hard cider and whiskey he is not near so peacable. He was in that condition last Tuesday afternoon when he went into Cheever's saloon, and immediately got into a row with a man from Dundee. Pool balls seemed to be his only weapon of offense and they were soon lying thick and fast in every part of the bar room, until every body was glad to seek safety in flight and he was soon "monarch of all he surveyed." He stepped out on the curb stone and invited any one to come in and take a drink—of pool balls—but no one seemed inclined to accept the invitation until Marshall Moir came when Wilber was gathered in and taken to the cooler to cool off.

Last Saturday 13 young people of Adrian, from the families of Cambarn, Tallman, Crittenden, Lewis, French and Teachout, determined to pay their respects to the Misses Rector at their home between Tecumseh and Clinton. They prevailed upon Mr. DeWitt Tallman to take them over in a big sleigh. The day was delightful and the sleighing good, and about five o'clock they arrived at Mr. Rector's. Mr. Tallman rounded the corner with the tooting of the horn and with a grand flourish equal to an old time stage driver. The Misses Rector gave them a cordial welcome, and Mrs. Rector proved equal to the occasion in providing refreshments.—With fun and frolic the evening passed quickly, and at ten o'clock, amid laughing good-byes and three cheers for the Rectors and a toot of the horn, the jolly party started homeward.

Progressive euchre is the latest fashionable game, and is springing into popularity about as fast as the roller skating craze. Below is appended a description of the game and its peculiar features:

"Progressive Euchre" is considerably in vogue now in the West as a means of evening entertainment. Here is the way it is played: In the game there are any number of people; but twenty-four who are equally divided: ladies and gentlemen give the best satisfaction. There are then six sets in all, four at each table. The table at the head of the room is the post of honor and the set seated there governs the play. When a game is finished a bell is rung at the first table: Then the two at each table who have won a game move to the next table ahead. This gives a constant change of parties and overcomes the old way of sitting at one table for an entire evening, unpleasant to some extent to those who wish to be sociable to all friends alike. The great object in progressive euchre is to reach the first table and there hold position by winning as long as possible. Although if one couple loses it moves to the foot, as in the old-fashioned spelling matches. The sport is said to be very exciting. A prize is sometimes awarded to the ones winning the most games.

We acknowledge a pleasant call from Rev. St. John, of Clinton, on Saturday.

Grant Hanford is at home on a short visit. He expects to return to Chicago in a few days.

John Saxton, of Clare Co., has been in town a few days, having been called home by the death of his mother.

There was an old fashioned crowd in town last Saturday. The streets were overflowing and business was booming.

C. M. Minor & Son have taken the contract to build Zach. Snell's new house. Temple McClure & Co furnish the lumber.

Tecumseh is getting to be quite metropolitan. It has two brass bands now, and will soon have a second skating rink.

Thos. H. Cowley, of Dundee, has been spending a few days among his Tecumseh friends. He was the guest of Henry Brown last Sunday.

Adrian Times: "Rinkerlate is what the Tecumseh Herald calls it." Not quite. "Rinkulate" is the word. It is not found in Webster at present, but will be incorporated in the next edition.

Manager Sutton, of the Tecumseh Opera House, has decided to put in a new floor suitable for roller skating and establish a skating rink there. It would be a splendid room for skating purposes.

We are indebted to Mr. A. H. Ford for a copy of the proceedings of the 13th annual convention of the Young Men's Christian Association, held at Ionia, Jan. 22-25. The meeting was largely attended and very interesting.

The Free Methodists are holding a series of revival meetings at the Universalist church, which are well attended. They are conducted by Rev. J. A. Ferris, of Jackson, who is an experienced and successful revivalist.

A. P. Codington sold a fatted cow to Herning the other day, which was a six year old half blood Holstein. The carcass made prime beef. People who think Holsteins can not be well fattened should try a slice of the beef.

Mr. Clarkson and H. W. Stevens have favored us with a sample of Bohemian oats. From a careful examination of them through a magnifying glass, we should say that they would make excellent material to pack eggs in.

Clinton Local: We were informed by one of our neighbors that he had 50 bushels of pototoes deposited in a cellar in the village which had stood the weather up to Monday very well, but the cold snap of Monday made them fit timber for bullets.

The Babtist revival meetings are increasing in interest. They are in session each evening this week except Saturday, and will be continued next week. It is expected that Rev. Farmer, of Hudson, will assist the pastor during the coming week.

The Sunday School of St. John's church, Clinton, took a sleigh ride to Tecumseh last Saturday. There were several large sleigh loads of both old and young and they all enjoyed themselves splendidly. It was a beautiful afternoon for a sleighing party.

E. J. Hollister is selling seeds for Isaac F. Tillinghart, of La Plume, Pa. During his absence, the New Orleans excursion enterprise is left in the hands of S. P. Hosmer. We understand that only about twenty-five more pledges are needed to insure the excursion.

R. H. Armstrong has bought a talking machine.—Hudson Gazette. Would not a wife have answered as well and come cheaper?—Adrian Record.—Hardly. A talking machine can be shut off at pleasure, while a wife, like Tennyson's brook, runs on and on forever.

The Club Hop at Armory Hall last Friday evening was a success in a social point of view. Ollie Hunt furnished excellent music, and the participants voted it a most enjoyable party. The attendance, however, did not meet expectations and the committee had to make a voluntary assessment to defray the expenses.

Kyle & Haynes are moving into their new shop—the old Cummins' Carriage Factory—this week, and they will be all ready for business in their new quarters to-morrow. Persons who have been patronizing their shop will please make a note of their removal. With their enlarged facilities, they hope to largely increase their business, and it will be their aim to merit it.

The Orr Bros. are meeting with fine success in selling their Putz Pomade. The greatest trouble they find is the competition of bogus articles which are flooding the market. This polish is made only in Germany, and is imported. None is genuine without the name of Adalbert Vogt & Co., Berlin, Friedrichsburg on the cover. People who wish this polish are cautioned against counterfeits. A German lady who lives at Lake Ridge has used the original article in Germany and knows all about it. The Putz-Pomade is now sold by all the dealers in Tecumseh and the agents are having many calls for township and county rights. They intend to work it for all it is worth.

CLIPPINGS AND CONDENSATIONS.

Mrs. Col. Eldredge goes to Washington this week.

The Bohemian oat men are making a raid on Hudson.

The Adrian Art Loan is to be opened to the public to day.

Morenci is agitating the project of building a new city hall.

A female book agent has been creating a sensation at Morenci.

The Society of Friends have taken steps to organize a church at Adrian.

The farmers up in Rome are investing quite liberally in Bohemian Oats.

The Hudson tub factory is preparing for a big business the coming season.

Chas. Draper, of Riga, has been held for trial at Toledo for circulating "the queer."

The Michigan Farmer prophecies that wheat will be one dollar a bushel before June.

A meeting was called at Hudson to organize a relief society, and two persons were present.

The Democratic state committee have called a convention to meet at Bay City on the 28th inst.

Blissfield boasts of the fact that not a business failure has occured in that town during the past year.

Blissfield people wait for the marshal to shovel the snow from their side walks, but the marshall don't shovel.

Clinton boasts of twenty widows. Some are old and some young. Some are handsome and some homely. But most of them are well off and have a home large enough for two.

Ten magazine readers of Hudson have formed a syndicate, each member paying $5.00 for one of the best monthlies or weeklies, and all having the privilege of reading the entire ten.

Congressman Eldredge, who is on the Washington Monument committee, is sending his friends a beautiful lithograph invitation to attend the dedication ceremonies on the 22d inst.

Hudson Gazette: An enterprising Hudson merchant anticipates things. He sold a couple of stoves to a brace of newly-married young men, and then presented each one with a rattle-box.

Adrian Press: Fairfield has thermometer thieves. Their meanness is about as low below zero as mercury can mark it. So thinks Jerry Ferguson whose heat marker suddenly disappeared lately when he was away from home.

Evening News: Allen P. May, the new manager of the Adrian roller rink, is organizing an "Adrian circuit" in southern Michigan and northern Ohio and Indiana, similar to the Princess circuit, recently established in central and northern Michigan.

Adrian Record: A party of 14 young people had a very pleasant sleigh ride Saturday. They started at two o'clock for the home of Mr. F. Rector beyond Tecumseh, arriving at half past four. At 7 o'clock they were furnished with a very welcome supper of oysters. The remainder of the evening was devoted to games. The party enjoyed themselves thoroughly.

Morenci Observer: We learn that Marshal William Follett finally received last Saturday, the coveted appointment of deputy sheriff in this part of the country. His first official act, upon being sworn in, was to proceed north in search of Morenci's late "detective," "Bill" Miller, who left his wife and left with another man's "female" some weeks since.

One of our merchants bought 30 eggs from a woman and got 2 for 1c. which would make 15 cents. He bought 30 eggs from another lady and got 3 for a cent, which would make 10 cents, or a total of 25 cents for 60 eggs. They put the eggs together, counting 2 for 1 cent and 3 for 1 cent, which would make 5 for 2 cents, which would make the 60 eggs cost 24 cents. What became of the 1 cent? Let some one answer.—Ex.

Adrian Press: Hudson school boys are too sharp for the pedagogues. One day last week the rooms didn't get warm. The boys in the back part of the house complained of freezing cold floors, and the thermometer showed a freezing temperature. School was dismissed, and the boys went off sliding down Piety hill, or skating on Sobriety pond, and were warm as toast, and when the master came to investigate he found a chunk of ice had been put on the bulb of the thermometer. That school room will be warm enough hereafter.

Hudson Gazette: They have watchmakers and tinkers four at Addison; also doctors, lawyers, editors, bankers, dentists and what not, but nary a photographer has dared to plant himself in that thriving village. During the building of the railroad, no doubt, the outside world got the impression that Addison was full of hard cases, and in consequence no man wanted to trust his camera before such toughs. However, we can assure them to the contrary. No better-looking fellows can be found than Fred Curtis, John Stewart, Dr. Bullen, Editor Marvin, Dr. Hyde and Hank Terpening, and every one of them A 1 business men, too.

The leading question in Clinton this week is: Who struck Billy Patterson?

Mrs. N. M. Sutton stopped at Newton, Iowa, last week to visit E. H. Hoag and family on her trip to California.

The following dispatch was received at midnight last night over the M. & O. Cold wave coming, temperature will fall from 14 to 20 degrees in next 24 to 36 hours.

The Lenawee Co. Grange will hol its annual meeting for the election o officers, &c., at Workingmen's Hall in the city of Adrian, on Thursday the 12th day February at 10 A. M.

Mr. E. A. Tribou, the assignee of Woolston Comfort, has completed a schedule of the assets and liabilities of the concern, and it makes a very favorable sho wing. If the real estate can be sold for what it is worth, the creditors will fare much better than usual in such cases.

FLASHES BY C. T. LINE.

Sim Smith is hauling timber from Newburg to his place at Onsted for the purpose of building a house.

With the mercury down to 20 degrees below zero it is a cold time for young doves, but Ben Dove, of Newburg has one nevertheless. It is a boy.

A company assembled at Ambrose Welch's last Friday to visit, eat oysters, etc.

Two and a-half to three cents rather low to sell for sheep, and not many are selling at those prices, preferring to hold later.

Mrs. D. B. Thompson, of Ann Arbor, is visiting at Horatio Keyser's this week.

The annual meeting of the company was held last Monday and the following officers were elected: President, R. B. House; vice president, O. P. Bills; secretary, L. G. North, treasurer, W. B. Keyser, general manager, R. J. W. Bowen. The company now has 15 miles of line and 19 instruments. The company has built in the past year five miles of new line, and the total number of shares now sold is 66, at $10 each. It paid a specific tax of $10 65 the past year to the state. Probably in the spring it will be extended east to Ridgeway, and west to Sand Lake, as it is now within two miles of the lake. The rate of ten cents for each message was raised to twenty cents.

MAKING PAPER PATTERNS.

How Women Who Live Away From the Centers of Fashion are Able to Cut Their Garments as Stylishly as Those in the Big Cities.

One often hears of the severe fashions of "the olden times" of plain skirts and bodices, fine in material for simply constructed, even for "the Sunday best," and yet one can but wonder at astonishment to see the contrast a few years have brought about. Wondering how the great transformation had taken place, a reporter called on a large fashion-bureau to learn the cause. Having stated his object he was conducted to a room of neatly clad, well-mannered young ladies, each occupied with a number of pretty girls, all apparently engaged in cutting and fitting paper.

"What, ladies, do you make these patterns for?" he inquired of the nearest one, who was busily cutting out a pattern.

"Why, sir, we make them for dressmakers who are able to afford dressmakers bills, and who want to keep up with the fashions, but are at a loss to know what to do. The inventive genius of man came to the rescue with paper patterns. The idea gave rise to a large business, which was taken up by a few companies, generally in connection with the sale of sewing-machines, the latter furnishing the advertising power and the latter the two departments. Since then several houses have started independently, and one large firm has even given up the machine department, paper patterns having absorbed all the capital, time, and attention of the company."

"Will you tell me how the patterns are made?"

"When a design has been submitted—designs or styles is a profession by itself—either made up from paper or shown from a French drawing or plate, and has been approved, competent artists imitate the design in cheap muslin, simply basting the parts together, yet being exceedingly careful to obtain a perfect and well-fitting model from which the pattern may be copied. These models, to insure a suit and stylish fit, are fitted to a live model, who wears the ghostly dress till every plait is properly adjusted and the garment made to correspond exactly with the original design. The cloth model is then sent to the description-writer, who carefully rips it apart, at the same time marking each portion that it may be exactly replaced from the directions she writes to accompany each pattern. Next comes the grader, who takes the dissected garment and sets an exact pattern of each part, putting in all the notches and perforations as marked upon the cloth by the description-writer. The latter by this time has sent the directions to the printer, who is fast making ready the envelopes to hold the pattern when completed."

"How are they made to fit different persons?"

"The grader, who has a system of measurement known only to the profession, prepares separate patterns or duplicates of the garment properly enlarged or diminished to suit both great and small. He sends these pasteboard patterns of the different sizes to the cutters, who stand before large tables with immense sheets of tissue paper in layers of fifty spread before them. The pattern is then marked upon them and cut with large shears, and then is handed to girls, who with trained fingers rapidly fold and place them in the envelopes now in waiting.

"Much art work is required in an establishment of this kind, as the cloth model, after fitting, has to be sketched by skillful artists, who are to bring out in the most graceful manner the curves, folds, and various novelties represented in the fashion, to make as acceptable a wood-cut as possible to use in the illustrated catalogue, upon the envelopes and other advertising mediums. Most houses issue a fashion paper, a few spicy and catching notes from the outer world helping the circulation of what without these would be a pure advertising sheet."

"Are these patterns much sought after?"

"Over a million of patterns are sold yearly by one house, agencies being established all over the world, though it is conceded that the most substantial orders are from the growing West and from towns where the facilities for obtaining reliable styles are few and feeble. A love of being a la mode lies either latent or expressed in the heart of every woman, and to the favored one living in the city a walk down the leading street or avenue brings to the mind of both young and old some new idea of dress, with which the country girl can only be blessed by the advent of a city visitor or by the fashion papers brought by the kindly mails. These papers are eagerly waited for and grasped on their arrival. Each new styles is conned and criticised, and the want of the heart filled and happiness made complete by the knowledge that a few cents will bring the requisite pattern and full directions for the making of the garment desired."

"How many new styles are brought out a month?"

"From fifteen to sixty new styles are manufactured monthly, and these sometimes form a nucleus for a two hundred-page magazine partially made up of styles, articles on art decoration, practical housekeeping, etc., forming still another solid medium for farther circulation of the styles manufactured. Twice a year styles are "killed" in order to keep the stock reduced to the proper number. The undesirable fashions are easily detected on examining the orders, which reveal sometimes a fickle and changeable public taste. A stroll through an establishment like this, described is interesting as illustrating a manufacture well repaying the happy inventor of the discoverer of a want long felt and supplied with the little oblong envelopes containing the mysterious angles, curves, and curious shapes of brown tissue, dotted and notched, called paper patterns."—*N. ADVICE TO A YOUNG MAN.

Some Serious Words from a Man Who Usually Writes Very Funny Articles.

I turn over the leaves of an old note book, the pages of which I filled half a score of years ago. On one page I find this note.

"My [illegible] and [illegible] with crowds of people [illegible] to the [illegible] book where I read [illegible] and [illegible] and the [illegible]

And now which page do you turn to this page in the note book, do you know, my boy, how glad I am that I wrote down the words I did? There was no shadow of fear or dread over my little home then. There was no reason why I should feel so tenderly toward the heavy and dusty that stained and wrinkled my pages, and ever kept me from using them for a week at a time, was there? And indeed there was. Indeed there was. Be kind to your books, my boy. Because your books, my son, though you crowd the literary treasures of the world upon your shelves, can never creep into your heart as your wife will, some day, when you find the girl whom the gods have designed shall crown your home. Because we can all always hold the hearts that love us dearer than the petty annoyances of this life. Because the hasty word you speak in [illegible] or impatience may rankle and sting in your heart to rankle for a century ago. Because [illegible] if I could, I would have my [illegible] in all the world just to [illegible] hands that all the [illegible] where I said, [illegible] assent my mind for [illegible]. Hold your tongue and your pen, my boy. Every time you are tempted to say an ugly word, or write an unkind line, just stop [illegible] and twenty years, and think how it may come back to you then.

Let me tell you how I write mean letters and bitter editorials, my boy. Some time, when a man has pitched into me and "cut me up rough" and I want to pulverize him, and wear his gory scalp at my girdle and hang his hide on my fence, I write the letter or editorial that is to do the business. I write something that will drive sleep from his eyes and peace from his soul for six weeks. O, I do hold him over a slow fire and roast him. Gall and wormwood drip from my blistering pen. Then, I don't mail the letter and I don't print the editorial. There's always plenty of time to crucify a man. The vilest criminal is entitled to a little reprieve. I put the manuscript away in a drawer. Next day I look at it. The ink is cold. I read it over and say, "I don't know about this. There's a good deal of bludgeon and bowie knife journalism in that. I'll hold it over a day longer." The next day I read it again. I laugh, and say "Pshaw," and I can feel my cheeks getting a little hot. The fact is I am ashamed that I ever wrote it, and hope that nobody has seen it, and I have half forgotten the article or letter that filled my soul with rage. I haven't been hurt. I haven't hurt anybody, and the world goes right along, making twenty-four hours a day as usual, and I am all the happier. Try it, my boy. Put off your bitter remarks until to-morrow. Then when you try to say them deliberately you'll find that you have forgotten them, and ten years later, ah, how glad you will be that you did. Be good-natured, my boy. Be loving and gentle with the world, and you'll be amazed to see how dearly and tenderly the worried, tried, vexed, harassed old world loves you.—Robt. J. Burdette, in Brooklyn Eagle.

HE STOPPED THE CAR

The Young Man Who Took a Ridiculous Method of Winning a Bet.

The car was going down French's hill, and there were a few jovial passengers aboard. At Prospect street a lady got out. A young man, who, with a few of his friends, were having a bit of quiet fun and had evidently been enjoying themselves, said: "I'll bet cigars for the crowd that I'll stop the car without ringing the bell, speaking to the driver or conductor or asking anyone to stop it."

"O, you'll go outside and slap hold of the brake. You're too smart, you are," remarked one of his companions, smilingly. "You'll cut yourself if you don't mind."

"No, siree. I'll do no such thing. I'll neither touch the brake, nor ask anyone to touch it for me, and I won't ask anybody to stop the car."

The bet was taken.

Up jumped the car-stopper, and seizing one of the straps tugged at it as hard as he could.

The conductor saw him, and concluded that the man was a greenhorn who wanted to get out and was yanking at the wrong tag. He stopped the car and threw open the door.

The man had sat down again.

"Don't you want to get out here?" said the conductor.

"O, dear, no."

"Then why did you pull the strap?"

"I was [illegible] it was firm enough to [illegible] if I happened to come long in the car some night, when I couldn't get a seat."

The door slammed, and the conductor said something as he leaned against the rear brake. It was something not very complimentary to such learned fooling.

But the man had won his bet. He had stopped the car.—Pittsburgh Advance.

ARABIAN SUPERSTITIONS.

A Glimpse at the Folk-lore of the Mohammedans.

Among the many cruel and superstitious customs practiced by the ancient Arabs, and one to which Mahomet effectively put a stop, was that of burying their female children alive, which was apparently most often done to avoid the expense of their maintenance, though sometimes from a mistaken idea of sparing them a life of trouble or disgrace. The following proverbs: "An excellent son-in-law is the grave," and "To bury daughters is an act of mercy," sufficiently indicate the Arab feeling on this point; and even to the present day a Bedawi, if asked how many children he has, replies by only enumerating his sons, for, as a Sinai Arab once said to the writer, in their eyes—El Benat battelch—"Daughters are good for nothing." A terrible story is told of Kais ibn Asim, a chief of the tribe of Taim, who, finding that one of his daughters had been saved at birth and brought up in another family unknown to him, got possession of her and buried her alive. They relate that the only tears that this man was ever known to shed was when he kissed his little daughter before consigning her to her living tomb and she brushed the grave dust off his beard.

THE KING AND THE MADMAN.

A certain King went to visit a madhouse and found there an intelligent-looking youth, who, after replying sensibly to a number of questions put to him by the sovereign; at length addressed the latter, saying: "You have asked me many things; I will now ask you one. At what period does a sleeper enjoy his sleep most?" The King reflected awhile and said: "While he is actually sleeping." "That can not be," said the madman, "for he has no perception while asleep." "Then; before he goes to sleep," said the King. "How can one enjoy anything," said the madman, "before it comes?" "Then," said the King, "after he has been asleep." "Nay," said the madman, "a man can not be said to enjoy a thing that has passed away." So pleased was the King with the other's wit that he determined to make a companion of him, had a table set out in front of the window of the madhouse, and bade his attendants hand a cup of wine to himself and one to his mad friend. "You drink your cup," said the latter, "that you may become like me; but if I drink mine, whom shall I be like?" The King, on hearing this speech, threw away the cup, and remained a total abstainer for evermore.

A CUNNING FOX.

Two travelers had halted in the desert, and had just killed a couple of fowls for their dinner. Before they could dress the birds the hour of prayer arrived, and they turned like good Moslems, to their devotions. A fox, who had been skulking in the neighborhood, seeing them thus engaged, came boldly up and carried off one of the fowls before their eyes. Prayers over, they began lamenting their loss, when, to their amazement, they beheld the thief at a little distance, dragging his tail submissively behind him, and holding the fowl in his mouth. He then deposited it on the ground and slunk away, with every sign of repentance and contrition. They at once hailed the occurrence as a miraculous testimony to their own piety, and ran to pick up the fowl which had been strangely restored to them. On reaching the spot, however, they found that Reynard had only restored the skin with the feathers on, and in the meantime had slyly stolen around to their camp fire and made off with the remaining moiety of their dinner.—Palmer's "Desert of the Exodus," p. 182.

A QUICK-WITTED SHEPHERD.

"A certain shepherd had a dog of which he was very fond, and which having, to his great grief, died, was buried by him with every mark of affection and regret. The cadi of the village, whose ill-will the shepherd had in some way incurred, hearing of this, ordered him to be brought before him on the serious charge of profanity in having mocked the ceremonies of the Mohammedan religion and buried an unclean animal with sacred rites. On being asked what he had to say in his defense, the prisoner thus addressed the magistrate: 'If your reverence will be pleased to hear my story, you will, I am sure, excuse me. My dog's mother died when he was quite a puppy, and he was brought up by a she-goat of my flock, who adopted him. When she died in her turn she left him all her property, consisting of several fine young kids. Now, when my poor dog was taken ill and found himself at the point of death, I asked him what I should do with the kids which belonged to him, and he replied: "Give them to his reverence the cadi." I thought the animal so sensible for this that I gave him Moslem burial.' 'Quite right,' said his reverence. 'What else was the lamented deceased pleased to observe?'"

A CLEVER EPIGRAM.

Animals play an important part in the folk-lore of the Arabs as of other nations, and the Mantik ut tair, or "knowledge of the language of birds and beasts," is regarded as the greatest divine gift, and was expressly vouchsafed, according to the Koranic legend, to Solomon, the son of David. Apropos of this the Egyptian poet, Beha-eddin Zoheir, has written a clever epigram:

A foolish atheist whom I lately found
Alleged philosophy in his defense;
Said he: "The arguments I use are sound."
"Just so," said I, "all sound and little sense.

"You speak of matters far beyond your reach,
You're knocking at a closed up door," said I.
Said he: "You do not understand my speech,"
"I'm not King Solomon," was my reply.

—Philadelphia Call.

—Recent researches show that electioneering was carried on in ancient Pompeii very much as at the present day. Inscriptions have been found informing the public that "a vote for Lentulus is a vote for honest government," and asking all patriotic citizens to vote for "Balbus, the true friend of the people."

—One of the new engagement rings has a garnet heart on it.

MISCELLANEOUS.

—A Connecticut woman sent a feather cushion to endow a chair at Princeton College.

—The recent earthquake did a good thing at Rocky Glenn, Conn., where it had before that been impossible to reach water by digging wells. After the shock the wells filled and the supply has since been abundant.—Hartford Post.

—A Bostonian writes: "I cured myself of an annoying habit of stammering by inhaling a deep breath between every few words and by never allowing myself to speak unless the lungs were fully inflated. A little careful attention soon made the practice a habit, and now I never stammer unless much excited."

—Connecticut papers relate that in two instances at least in that State, during the recent campaign, young men applied for marriage licenses to Town Clerks whose heads were turned by politics, and were given first naturalization papers, the mistake not being discovered until bride and groom had presented themselves to the clergyman.

—A man started to ride home recently from San Jose, Cal. His road lay for miles through fields of pumpkins and squashes. The constant pumpkin panorama finally dethroned his reason, and he reached home a maniac, crying: "See the squashes! see the squashes!" He had to be straight-jacketed and sent to the asylum.—San Francisco Call.

—Lace is lavishly worn again, but in this century the demand for it is confined to woman, whereas in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries men, too, expended huge sums on ruffles and wristbands. In 1690 the expenditure of William III. for lace was $8,015; in 1694, nearly $10,000; in 1695, $12,000. Queen Anne also lavished money on Mechlin and Brussels.

—New York raises annually five bushels of Indian corn for each of her inhabitants, six and a half bushels of potatoes, over two bushels of wheat, a half bushel of rye, seven and a half bushels of oats and a ton of hay. She supplies each person with nearly two pounds of cheese and twenty-two pounds of butter annually, and a pint of milk every day in the year from her dairy herds.—N. Y. Tribune.

—The effect of cocoaine, the new anesthetic, upon the eye is to produce insensibility to pain. A drop is put on the eye-ball, and within a short time the surgeon is able to perform, without hurting the patient, what would otherwise be the most agonizing operation. The drug has been "cornered," and the small quantity in the country is held at $6,000 per pound.—Chicago Journal.

—The good people of Rochester, N. Y., were awakened out of their dreams one night recently by a sound which resembled that of the firing of a cannon. Rushing to the spot from whence the sound issued it was found that a barrel of cider had exploded, sending cider, staves and hoops in all directions and actually undermining one of the brick piers of the house under which the barrel of cider was situated.—Buffalo Express.

—It is much easier to be polite and neighborly than to fly into a passion when things do not suit you. Take this note as an instance, addressed by a lady to a neighbor:—"Dear Madame—Your children, who are numerous, and appear to be disorderly, no doubt deserve the frequent doggings you give them; but, as my nerves are weak, I write this to ask you if you can't do something to 'deaden' the sound—say strychnine!"—Chicago Inter Ocean.

—The territory of Russian Siberia, one and a half times as large as the United States, has belonged to Russia three centuries, yet of the 4,000,000 inhabitants nearly one-half are still pagans. Paganism is fostered by the home Government. The pagan priests are allowed to collect and burn the copies of the Bible with which the missionaries supply the converts, and no missionary may baptise without the authority of the pagan civil authorities, who are allowed to do almost anything to drive Christians from the country.

CONCERNING PATENTS.

Information on a Topic in Which Every Person in the Country is Interested.

The United States Patent Office, as a rule, rarely refuses a patent for any device that has not already been patented. Although the law provides that any device offered for patent should be new and useful, yet there are thousands of articles patented that are certainly not new, although the doubt of their usefulness may be waived. To procure a patent, an inventor, or one who claims to be an inventor, files a specification and drawing of his alleged invention, which he may possibly have copied from some old book or device long in use and presents these to the Examiners who pass upon it. A Patent Office Examiner is not necessarily an expert, for he is appointed more from political motives than from any other qualification, and as the fees of the office are the most considerable object the patent is granted as a matter of course. The consequence is that a deluge of worthless patents and a great many fraudulent ones are spread like a flood over the country, to the great inconvenience of the public. It is in this way that thousands of articles of domestic use and of use in agriculture are patented, notwithstanding that they have been in service for scores of years, and those persons who have been using them for a long time are threatened with claims for royalty, or suits at law to enforce payment if the claims are objected to. In such cases there is no help but to pay the small sums demanded, although in the aggregate these amount to millions of dollars every year. A patent costs, in all, about $60, and this is all the outlay required to give an unprincipled person the power to tax the public at his will. The patent system has been no doubt of incalculable value, but this irritating and injurious defect in it has grown to such proportions that the whole system is suffering in popular estimation. Probably a change will be effected very soon and relief will be afforded. In the meantime patience must be exercised, although it is hard to be patient with such an evil.—New York Times.

Visiting—Hired Girls.

Once on a time I went to spend the afternoon with a neighbor friend, and my visit turned out nothing but apologies, with now and then something said between. She said she had put off baking on account of some sewing she wanted to finish, and thought she would bake in the afternoon. She had to chase the hens and search the barn to get some eggs to bake a cake, as the day before she had sent all she had to market. And then all her wood was outdoors in the rain and snow, and was slow to burn; consequently the cake got sad before it was baked. Her knives and forks she had laid aside in the morning; they then had to be scoured, and then as soon as it got a little dusk she thought of her lamps which had to take its share, etc. But, farmer sisters, here let me say that if ever I am found in such a fix, I will make the best of it, and let visitors eat the same as I do, and try to visit one-half the time any way. I think the better way is to do all necessary work in the morning, and let sewing go until afternoon, as nine-tenths of the visiting people would rather have their chat and partake of a cup of good hot coffee, and plain bread and butter, than to have nick-nacks.

I always have thought that housewives needed help just as much as the men, and think so yet. Let a man get in a hurry and his first thought is, hire a man to help him out, and it is all right. And how many are the times that his worked-down wife is hurried and worried and no help ever thought of for her; and if she should speak of hiring a girl at two dollars, or one and a half a week, the man will say "This girl business counts up like Sam Hill." All this time he keeps his man week in and week out, costing him from five to six dollars a week, and only works from sun to sun, while a girl works from sun until ten at night.—Gemma Bedot.

It May Yet Be True.

When Jules Verne wrote his romance "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," he found it necessary to construct a cigar-shaped steamer that would travel under water while her crew could breathe with the same ease they could on land. If Mr. Verne had waited a few years he might, perhaps, have saved himself the trouble of inventing this submarine craft, as he might then have found it in actual operation. It is at present only proposed to apply a recent invention to a diver's helmet in the following manner: The apparatus, after having been fastened over the nose and mouth of the diver, when he wishes to breathe the air out of his lungs he does so in the ordinary way, and it goes down the tubes into the bottom of the front filter. It then filters through the caustic-charged sponge in front, and passing along an outlet at the top, is ducted over the diver's shoulder into the other case, through which it filters in the same way, and then, ascending into the helmet, mixes with the oxygen that has been let in from its store chamber, and is ready to be breathed again into the diver's lungs. Mr. Fleuss states that if he could only exist under the water, he could remain there for a whole day; as it is, he walked for a quarter of a mile under the sea at Ryde, and when at Brighton he went down during stormy weather into five fathoms of water. This being the case, it is a simple matter to apply the principle to the air-tight submarine ship. The devices for sinking it or for raising it to the surface of the water would be easily arranged, so we may soon have our enterprising excursion managers offering a trip along the bottom of the river to Lake Erie—single tickets, 50 cents; lady and gentleman's ticket, 75 cents.—Detroit Free Press.

How Chickens Get Out of Shells.

Take an egg out of a nest on which a hen has had her full time, carefully holding it to the ear; turning it around you will find the exact spot which the little fellow is picking on the inside of the shell; this he will do until the inside shell is perforated, and then the shell is forced outward as a small scale, leaving a hole. Now, if you will take one of the eggs in this condition from under the hen, remove it to the house or other suitable place, put it in a box or nest, keeping it warm and moist, as near the temperature of the hen as possible which may be done by laying it between two bottles of warm water upon some cotton or wool,) and lay a glass over the box or nest, then you can sit or stand, as most convenient, and witness the true modus operandi. Now watch the little fellow work his way into the world, and you will be amused and instructed as I have often been. After he has got his opening, he commences a nibbling motion with the point of the upper bill on the outside of the shell, always working to the right (if you have the large end of the egg from you, and the hole upward,) until he has worked his way almost around, say with one-half of an inch of in a perfect circle; he then forces the cap or butt end of the shell off, and then has a chance to straighten his neck, and thereby loosening his legs somewhat, and so, by their help forcing the body from the shell.—American Farm Journal.

Fourteen Wonders of the World.

The seven wonders of the world, in ancient times, were the pyramids of Egypt, the Pharos of Alexandria, the walls and hanging gardens of Babylon, the temple of Diana, the statue of the Olympic Jupiter, the Mausoleum of Artemesia, and the Colossus of Rhodes.

The seven wonders of the world in modern times are the printing press, the steam engine, the telegraph, the daguerreotype, the telephone, the phonograph, and the electric light.

The so-called "Seven Wonders" of the ancients were mere trifles compared with those of the present time. The Brooklyn bridge, for example, would make the hanging gardens of Babylon a mere toy, while the whole seven wonders put together would sink into insignificance could the builders have seen a lightning express train at full speed.

Meanest Sneak In Town.

Malarial gases sneaked up through the poorly constructed drains and made baby very sick with malaria fever. Baby would have died but for timely use of Brown's Iron Bitters. There is nothing meaner in its way of coming, nor worse in its effects, than this malaria from the underground regions. Mrs. McDonald, of New Haven, Conn., says, "For six years I suffered from the effects of malaria, but Brown's Iron Bitters cured me entirely." Try it when malaria steals in and undermines your constitution. It will give relief.

GOLDEN SEAL BITTERS are the great blood purifier, liver and kidney remedy and life giving principle, a perfect renovator and invigorator of the system carrying away all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition, enriching it, refreshing and invigorating both mind and body. They are easy of administration, prompt in their action, certain in their results, safe and reliable in all forms of disease. Every moment of our lives, every part of our bodies, is wearing out and is being built up anew. This work is accomplished by the blood. The blood if pure makes the entire circuit of the body every seven minutes. But if it becomes weak or vitiated and does not perform its work properly the system is actually poisoned by the worn-out matter clogging the vital organs instead of leaving the body. Cleanse the blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in pimples, eruptions, sores, etc. Keep the liver in order, the blood pure, health of the system will follow. Take GOLDEN SEAL BITTERS and no others. Sold by Baker & Hall and C. A. Wright & Co.

ACHES! PAINS!

"I ache all over!" What a common expression; and how much it means to many a poor sufferer! These aches have a cause, and more frequently than is generally suspected, the cause is the Liver or Kidneys. No disease is more painful or serious than these, and no remedy is so prompt and effective as,

MISHLER'S HERB BITTERS.

No remedy has yet been discovered that is so effective in all KIDNEY AND LIVER COMPLAINTS, MALARIA, DYSPEPSIA, etc., and yet it is simple and harmless. Science and medical skill have combined with wonderful success those herbs which nature has provided for the cure of disease. It strengthens and invigorates the whole system.

Hon. Thaddeus Stevens, the distinguished Congressman, once wrote to a fellow member who was suffering from indigestion and kidney disease: "Try Mishler's Herb Bitters, I believe it will cure you. I have used it for both indigestion and affection of the kidneys, and it is the most wonderful combination of medicinal herbs I ever saw."

ON THE ENGINE.

Running a Locomotive While Deathly Sick—Something the Passengers Did Not Know—A Physician Saves an Engineer.

TAUNTON, MASS.,

Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.:

DEAR SIR: I am an engineer on the Old Colony Railroad, and run the Fall River boat train between Fall River and Lowell, residing in Taunton. For ten years I suffered everything but death from dyspepsia. Often I had such blinding sick headaches that I could scarcely see. I think this was due partly to irregular habits of eating and partly to the air of the engine. Sometimes my head would snap like neuralgia, and again the pain would settle in my eyes, which would feel as big as a man's fists. My breath was very offensive, and my food soured as soon as it entered my stomach. In fact my stomach felt as though it were a great raw and sore surface, and what agony it gave perhaps you can imagine.

In the summer and fall of 1876 when we had the heavy centennial travel, the constant jar brought on acute attacks nearly every week and I thought I should have to leave the road. But I kept at work until the next spring, when I grew so much worse that I could virtually eat nothing, and concluded that my labor and my life too, were about over.

Remember that I had tried every medicine I heard of, and had been treated by some of the best physicians in Taunton and Lowell. At this critical time Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy was recommended to me. It was new to me, and with my experience of medicines you can easily forgive me for saying that I had not a particle of faith in it.

I had taken it but a few days when I began to get better. The raw and sore feeling left my stomach, and the snapping pains left my head, and soon I was all right, and have been ever since. It is the only thing that ever did me the least good, and it drove every ache, pain and discomfort completely out of my body. Now I keep Kennedy's Favorite Remedy with me on my engine, and it goes wherever I go.

Why, I believe Kennedy's Favorite Remedy will cure anything. One night a while ago, John Layton, an engineer who runs the main line boat train from Boston, came on my engine sick as death. He was worn out with work, had a high fever, and was so nervous he almost broke down crying. "Nonsense, John," I said, "cheer up. I've got something on my engine that will set you up in a jiffy." I took out a bottle of Favorite Remedy, lifted his head and gave him a good dose. He went to bed. Two days after I saw him looking healthy as a butcher. "Dan," he says, "what was that stuff you gave me the other night?" "It was Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, Rondout, N. Y.," said I. "Well I don't care whose Remedy it is, it's the thing for a man on the railroad." So say we all.

Yours, etc., DANIEL FITTS.

This preparation goes to the root of the disease by purifying the blood and rousing every organ into healthy action. It is useful at home, shops, in office—everywhere.

ROBERT GARRETT.

Robert Garrett, the president of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad is the son of the late J. W. Garrett who preceded him in the management of that great trunk line. The Baltimore and Ohio was built to draw the western trade to Baltimore. This trade was diverted from the Monumental City by the building of the great canals Philadelphia and New York were re- [illegible] the lion share of the trade. The first meeting to further the project was called in 1827 and the road was opened to Wheeling in 1853. The first stone was laid in 1828 by Charles Carroll one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence. The house of Robert Garrett and sons was found ed in 1840 and was originally a wholesale grocery house. Here J. W. Garrett received his commercial education. When the Baltimore and Ohio had reached Wheeling its finances were in a deplorable condition. The house of Garrett and Sons bought largely of the bonds, which were offered at low rates. This marks the first [illegible] of the current family with the road. J. W. Garrett was made president of the road in 1858. Since then the stock has sold at the enormous price of $327.00 per share. The house of Garrett and Sons still exists as a banking establishment under the management of T. Harrison Garrett. Robert Garrett at the time of his election to the presidency of the road was twenty seven years of age. He is a graduate of Princeton college and has spent several years in Europe. He has made a special study of railroading and management. He [illegible] to the first vice presidency and during the illness that terminated in the death of his father was practically at the head of the great corporation. The Baltimore and Ohio has extensive western connections and is continually extending its lines. The stock is held by private persons and it is extremely rare that any of it is offered for sale. The Baltimore and Ohio Telegraph Co. the only rival to the Western Union is a corporation of Robert Garrett. He is interested in a number of banks and other financial institutions. He is a robust physique which enables him to perform the jerks one duties of his office without physical injury to himself.

Miss Florence Rich has gone to Jackson where she has obtained a position as book keeper.

Albert Nimocks, of Newton, Kansas, arrived in town last week Wednesday.

We learn from Dr. Tuttle that there are several cases of winter cholera in and about town. Mrs. Carey was one of the sufferers from that disease last week, but is now much better.

John Clark has renewed his contract with the Detroit butter firm. He receives one and two-thirds cents per pound in advance of what he did last year.

Rev. Joseph St. John commenced a series of discourses in explanation of the contents of the prayer book last Sunday evening.

Bainbridge and Hause have purchased the furniture stock of Mrs. L. G. VanDeMark, also the caskets and robes.

Mrs. Jacob Smith and Mrs. P. C. Smith were returning from Tecumseh last week Wednesday and just as they reached the paper mill bridge hearing a strange noise they glanced behind them and saw but a few rods away a team running at full speed, and the driver reeling in his seat having no control over his horses. Mrs. Smith had enough presence of mind to rein her horse to the side of the bridge and as the team passed them the sleigh just grazed the side of their cutter. They had fairly started again when another team with the driver in the same condition come up behind them and their frightful experience was repeated. They reached home safely but considered their escape almost miraculous.

Mrs. J. E. McCollum was pleasantly surprised one evening last week by a party of Tecumseh friends. Their coming was quite unexpected and the evening was passed very enjoyably by all.

There is a certain class of boys in town, some of whom are fast approaching young manhood, who seem to think that the true way to enjoy themselves at an evening entertainment is to whistle, laugh, stomp their feet, imitate the gestures and expressions of the speaker, play on imaginary musical instruments, and all such elevating and ennobling acts. If this is their only way of showing their appreciation of what they hear and see, they would confer a great favor upon the public by staying at home hereafter, or confine their unseemly demonstrations to some time and place where they will be witnessed by no one but themselves. Nearly all of these boys conduct themselves contrary to their home training, and know better. If an appeal to their own sense of right and wrong will not insure their better deportment in the future, a word to the Marshal about their removal from the hall will not be out of place, and such a request will be complied with.

The entertainments given by Alba Heywood last Friday and Saturday evenings were not nearly so well attended as they would have been, had the weather been less severe. Those who were privileged to hear him however will not regret it. His selections were mostly new and those that were not were rendered in such a way as to make them as pleasant to hear as the new ones. An entire change of program was advertised for the second evening, but the "dude" and the "big boy" were so well liked that a repetition of the two characters was requested. Each of his songs elicited an encore, and his presentations were all greeted with rounds of applause.

"Truth crushed to earth must rise again." We, the so-called "being of ordinary intelligence," still have the "effrontery" to make the assertion that we had not called Dr. Burchard's institution a gun-shop at the time he refers to. Any person caring enough about this simple little matter to look it up, can assure themselves of this fact by referring to back numbers of the HERALD. For the benefit of those who do care, and to convince the man who has had "twelve years experience in a literary career, nine years in the medical profession," who has written for the New York Tribune, The Christian at Work, The Elmira Free Press, and The Hornellsville Tribune, "who has officiated as minister of the gospel, who has 'trained the young idea' and who might in short be called "Jack of all Trades and master of none," that for once in his varied existence he has made a slight mistake, we will explain this matter in full. In the HERALD of January 8th, heading the Clinton Chapter, is this item, "Robert Codling is at work for Dr. Burchard in his gun factory." In the next edition of the HERALD, that of the 15th, will be found the article beginning thus. "Last Saturday night about nine o'clock, a fire broke out in J. W. Burchard's gun shop, etc," In the News of the same date appears Dr. Burchard's article, setting forth his grievances in a manner calculated to bring tears of sympathy to the eyes of the News' readers. It will now be plainly seen that at the time Dr. Burchard wrote the pitiful tale of his wrongs, among which was the mention of what was originally a hen-coop, the article where we first spoke of his building as a gun-shop had not been published. We have now proven the first of the three assertions which we were required to prove by Dr. Burchard. As to the second we have no way of proving it except by the statement of his in the News, where he gives his conversation with J. E. Mc Collum, S. Brown and C. S. Burroughs. Dr. Burchard has only to read it over once more to see that we had reason to believe that the ones from whom he had gained his information in regard to the Clinton correspondent, were the above named gentlemen. Nowhere in that article did he mention any responsible man who had told him so, and would not go back on their word," but carried the idea that all the knowledge he had of the matter was what he had gained in his interviews with these gentlemen. What assertions we have made were based upon his own words in black and white. In regard to the "shed filled with straw," our error may have been in saying filled with straw. The shed may not have been full. More straw may have been needed to fill the shed but that there was straw in the shed we are ready to prove by the one who gave us our information, and who was on the spot at the time of the fire. Now, if these things are settled to Dr. Burchard's satisfaction we are ready to receive the one hundred dollars. On second thought, however, if the Dr. has the cash in hand, we will respectfully await our turn, and let those who have claims of so much longer standing have the benefit of his generosity.

In some unaccountable manner Dr. Burchard has possessed himself of the belief that we have offered Mrs. B. our sympathy. We wish him to labor under that delusion no longer. He never was more mistaken in his life. How could he think for a moment, that WE, a simple, insignificant correspondent to the Tecumseh HERALD, should have the audacity to offer our sympathy to the wife of a man who had "twelve years experience in a literary career, nine in the medical profession, who has practiced, no one knows how long, who has been a druggist for the same length of time, a shootist for an indefinite period, a school-teacher, and last but far from least, an inventor of a steam injector." Dr. Burchard censures us for believing every report we hear, and mentions some of the things we have written. With one exception we know those remarks were made by Dr. Burchard himself. Slim enough foundation we admit, to base argument upon. Evidently we have given him credit for having more truth in his composition that he has given himself. He was probably only joking when he spoke of these things. Most likely he was joking when he mentioned his twelve years' experience in a literary, and nine in a medical career. Joking when he make that little mistake about Dr. Cameron. Joking when he wrote his article containing the thrilling account of his search for the Clinton correspondent. Joking when he said he had been offered fifteen thousand dollars for a share in his steam injector. Hereafter we will consider whatever comes from this humorous gentleman, in the light of a joke and let it go for what it is worth. One word about Dr. Cameron. We think Mr. Stacy has made ample reparation to him for anything he may have said in his paper, caused by a false statement of Dr. Burchard's. Dr. Cameron is man who has gained many friends in Clinton during his short stay here. He attends strictly to his business, to his own business, and has become a worthy citizen. We wish him all the success that a man of his energy and preseverance deserves.

In conclusion, we consider ourselves fully justified in the part we have taken, and only regret that it has been over such an insignificant little affair as a news item of two lines. What surprises us most is that a man with such a brilliant mind, and such grand capabilities, who was born to reign in a far greater sphere, and to occupy a position so much higher than that which he now fills, should condescend to engage himself in a controversy with a simple, unlearned, and under ordinary circumstances, extremely peaceable inhabitant of the village of Clinton. We thank him for the honor which he has bestowed upon us. Our great fear now, is, that the interest in the steam-injector will become so great that its inventor will be obliged to tear himself away from Clinton to seek some larger field of labor. The Fates forbid! To lose him is more than our weak nature could endure. Do not leave us. "With all Thy faults we love Thee still."

The Mayor of Oakland, Cal., has ordered the revival of the old custom of ringing the curfew bell at nine o'clock every evening, with responses from all bells on the engine houses, and the police are ordered to arrest all the small boys under fifteen years of age that are in the street after that hour, and lock them up. He says that the city is interested to a certain extent in every boy living within its limits, and therefore the city must take cognizance when necessary of every boy's proneness publicly to form idle and vicious habits, and the aid of the law should be invoked, as far as possible, to compel every boy to eschew all practices that would result in making him a 'bad citizen." This would not be a bad plan to adopt in every city in Michigan, Tecumseh not excepted. There is a large number of boys in this place who are upon the streets day and night, fitting themselves for the work house or some worse place.

Something About T. J. Navin.

The Adrian Times is responsible for the following: The regular New Orleans correspondent of the Chicago Inter Ocean, who signs himself "Wilson," in a letter printed by the Inter Ocean last Saturday, has the following significant paragraph, corroborating some previous statements made by the Times, in regard to a letter found at Rogers City, this state:

"I am told that Tom Navin, the defaultering ex-mayor of Adrian, Mich., is in Cuba, engaged in mercantile pursuits in company with a man who deserted his family at Ann Arbor, Mich., about a year ago."

The Ann Arbor man referred to is probably Edwin Hadley. His deserted family resides there.

One night not long since when the mercury was burrowing into the bowels of the earth, a sleigh load of good templars went from Dundee to Milan to visit the lodge at the latter place. The Milan lodge had shut up shop when the party arrived, and the latter partook of refreshments at the hotel. On the return they got lost several times, woke up nearly the entire population of the north-western part of the county inquiring the way home, traveled about 50 miles instead of 12, and arrived in Dundee about 5 o'clock in the morning. All this causes the suspicious Reporter man to question the good quality of Milan water, and to advise the local lodge to provide a judge of the Dundee article as a guide home upon their future visits to Milan.—Saline Observer.

We have just received from the Rural New-Yorker its Free Seed Distribution for 1885. There are seven different kinds, all of which have been tested on the Rural's Experiment Grounds. We have the Rural's word for it that one kind, the new Evergreen Bean, which was imported by it from France, cost $25 per bushel. These seven kinds of seeds are sent free to every subscriber who applies, and in this way the Rural has introduced many of the most popular and valuable farm and garden seeds, potatoes, etc., in cultivation. Specimen copies explaining this distribution will be gladly sent to any of our readers who address the Rural New-Yorker, 34 Park Row, N. Y.

The romantic story of "The House of Orange" will be told in the next Harper's by Prof. W. T. Hewett, with a series of most interesting portraits of rulers of Holland. There are few threads in all history better worth following than the account of the Dutch rulers succeeding William the Silent, and the recent sad death of the heir-apparent lends an element of present pathos to the story. Among the fine portraits will be those of the present king, the late and the present queen.

THE BOHEMIAN OATS SWINDLE.

The Ohio Farmer, published at Cleveland, Ohio, which is the leading agricultural paper of that state, has the following item on this subject, which should be read and heeded by all farmers. 'In fact, we have yet to see a single word in favor of this enterprise in any agricultural journal. Whatever other papers may say, the advice of agricultural papers ought to have some weight with the farmers.

Some portions of the country are turned upside down this winter, with the Bohemian oats excitement. In Wyandot county this state a few leading farmers made a handsome thing out of them last year, and now we learn, everybody is going into it. We get similar news from other sections of Ohio and from Michigan. We have explained the nature of this swindle—for we can call it by no other name—so often that we need not explain it here. The proprietor of the Buckeye Oatmeal Mills, this city, informs us that they pay one cent per pound for the oats, or about 50 cents per bushel, and they furnish good, pure clean seed for $2.00 per bushel, including sacks. He fully explained the modus operandi of the Bohemian Oat Association. The plan is to get a few prominent influential farmers to raise them one year, and the bonds are all taken up promptly, and the second year a hundred farmers are induced to invest. Here the comedy ends, for the prime movers in the enterprise know where they can purchase the oats at $1 dollar a bushel, and the next association is supplied from this source, while the hundred who raised the crop the year before look in vain for their promised reward. 'Before agreeing to buy oats of these association fellows, make them tell you where the oats are to come from, who raised them the year before. Get the names and post-office address and write to them, before going into it. The Buckeye Mills are furnishing hundreds of bushels at $1 a bushel to parties who sell them at $10. Don't you see where and how the business is a swindle?'

IS ROLLER SKATING INJURIOUS?

The newspapers are discussing this question very generally, and public opinion seems divided on the subject. An exchange has these comments which seem to cover the entire ground of dispute in a few words.

Some ministers denounce the new skating craze in unmeasured terms, while other reverend gentlemen speak of it very favorably. Some physicians oppose the mania as being physically harmful and well calculated to undermine the health. Others of the disciples of Esculapius think it is a good thing. When there is so much disagreement between learned doctors of divinity and wise doctors of medicine who shall decide? Plain, common sense teaches us that skating is both a pleasant and healthy exercise, giving free, full play to the muscular powers, and is a positive benefit when indulged in within the bounds of moderation. But, like every thing else, when indulged in to excess, it is injurious, hurtful to both mind and body. Eating, drinking, sleeping, working, are all necessary adjuncts to one's health and happiness, but any of these may work irreparable injury when Excess usurps the authority of Moderation. Skating is subservient to the same inexorable law.

"The World's Wonders,

As seen by the Great Tropical and Polar Explorers," is the title of a new and valuable book just published by J. S. Goodman & Co. Its object is to "place within the reach of all, in one elegant, finely illustrated volume, all the achievements, discoveries, travels, and adventures of the great explorers; a history of marvelous things on the earth; of strange countries and races of people, of curious animals, birds and reptiles; and the world's great natural phenomena and curiosities." It possesses additional interest in an official history of the late Greely Expedition in search of the North Pole, and is no doubt a book of standard merit and great interest. The publishers claim that it is a complete encyclopedia of exploration, discovery and adventure in all parts of the world, and as such it must possess very great interest for all classes of readers. See advertisement elsewhere.

A Miss Sunderland, one of Dundee's belles, attempted suicide a short time since by taking an ounce of laudanum. The united efforts of two physicians saved her, but she says she will yet take her life. She assigns her father's refusal to allow her to attend the skating rink as the cause.

THE SETTLER'S STRATAGEM.

Without waiting for the stroke to clear [illegible] Stanton leaped forward and [illegible] just gasping in his death strug[illegible] While the Amazon [illegible] He seemed quieted [illegible]

[illegible] and under [illegible] the [illegible] from his dress and [illegible] he was a [illegible]

[illegible] Indian, where he had fallen, stag[illegible] the arrow and [illegible] It was quite dark [illegible] and in [illegible] and My angel, with [illegible] Mrs Stanton [illegible]

[illegible] Mark Stanton had fled [illegible] and reached [illegible] Mrs Stanton [illegible]

"That would [illegible] and making [illegible] may be even now [illegible] that we were safe that one night get [illegible] out through my body."

[illegible] Mark [illegible] Kalarina [illegible] Indians were [illegible]

On opening the door on the morning [illegible] the settler [illegible] the door up. To the [illegible] the door [illegible] and found [illegible] with a rude drawing [illegible] and what was intended to be conveyed.

In one corner of the segment was the [illegible] and from the horse's [illegible] the Stanton [illegible] the fact that it was meant for Mattamp[illegible] one of the noted warriors of the Lenape tribe. Beyond him was [illegible] speeding from it. Under this one was the name of Kalarina. The third figure represented a man with an arrow pierc[illegible] his breast.

The settler's anxiety was not diminished by discovering by the knowledge that he [illegible] of these distinguished [illegible] He knew he had to deal with one of the most crafty and relentless savages of that region, and he knew enough of the Indian character to know that he would [illegible] from his revenge [illegible] the [illegible] after taken in the [illegible]

What crime did Mark Stanton [illegible] Mrs Stanton shielding Annie in [illegible] We may be surrounded by enemies at this moment.

"That is not probable," said her husband. "Kalarina is too much of a [illegible] that Pitawanakwat, his brother, [illegible] alone will seek revenge. He has given me fair warning, and now he will hang [illegible] to accomplishes [illegible] purpose, unless I can contrive [illegible] him. Heathinks he has put me on the rack, and his next step will be to put a rude [illegible] through my heart. But he will work in the [illegible]

"Could I not go to the settlement and [illegible] of your danger?" asked the [illegible] that she knew what the danger was that threatened.

Stanton shook his head [illegible] "You would not be [illegible] that," he answered. "Besides, I would not have you undergo such a risk."

The situation was truly a perplexing one. The stout settler was imprisoned in his own house as surely as though he had been within the walls of a dungeon. The danger was already on his track, and might be even then hidden in the green wood. He felt confident that should he step one foot out of doors his body would be the mark for a bullet.

In the middle of the afternoon Mrs Stanton opened the back door and went to get a pail of water. The spring was situated a few rods from the cabin, near the edge of a wood bushes. As she stooped to fill her pail of water she saw the painted visage of an Indian glaring at her through some whitewood bushes. Though trembling with fear she did not betray a sign that she had observed him and hurried back within with a young girl's lightness into the house. Once within she sat down pale and trembling.

"I have seen an Indian," said she in reply to her husband's questioning. "He is hid in the clump of white woods by the spring. Go not with it, killed." Mark, you will be killed."

Stanton stepped to one of the small loopholes between the logs and looked sharp out. The house in question was not over ten rods from the door. He could see no Indian there, but he knew it was a place where an Indian might hide, and he did not doubt his wife's sight. Kalarina was probably there waiting for his appearance.

The settler's craft did not desert him. He felt easier to know that his enemy was near him, for he could make his plans accordingly. He knew his enemy's position and that knowledge placed him as it were on something like an equality with him.

"Mary," said he to his wife, "I am going to kill that Indian."

"What are you going to do?" she cried in agony of pain and suspense. "The moment you step a foot outside the door you will be shot."

"Of course, if I go out I am sure to get killed, but suppose something should go out that only looked like me, what then?" he asked.

"What do you mean, Mark?" and Mrs Stanton gazed into her husband's face as if to comprehend his meaning.

"I mean that we will send out a man of straw to draw the enemy's fire. After that it will be my turn at the risk. Now do you understand?"

"I think so," and she thought she did.

"Then let us go to work as quickly as possible, before the Indian grows tired of his lurking place."

[illegible] was clear now, and they proceeded to execute it with a will and exactness. The stuffed dummy, clothed in the [illegible] which Mark Stanton wore, was placed upon a pillow in a manner which was intended to represent a human form. Upon this was placed a hat, in which all was completed, it was impossible a looker-on could be deceived. So exactly was this the resemblance that the good wife declared that, had she seen it for the first time in the woods, she should not have known it from her husband.

In order to perfectly carry out the settler's plan a broom handle was fixed to the dummy under the right arm, so that it could be held in an upright position. Mrs Stanton then practiced upon it until she could move it about as if it had life.

When all was ready the settler took his station at the loophole which looked towards the cover of the Indian. He had already his rifle in readiness, and as soon as the muzzle of the piece was in its place, and he was sure of his aim, he gave the signal to his wife.

She opened the door very slowly and [illegible] the threshold stood a moment [illegible] At the same moment Stanton saw a [illegible] Force [illegible] and for painted countenance told [illegible] Indian brave. The settler [illegible] the right eye of painted [illegible] in sight of his rifle.

The [illegible] Mrs Stanton [illegible] The Indian [illegible] a bullet [illegible] Mark Stanton went out to the white wood [illegible] passed [illegible] The red man had fought his last battle.

He turned the dead body of Annie Stance [illegible] as the [illegible] traces of the [illegible] three days [illegible] The attempt upon [illegible] been planned by Kalarina [illegible] and the death of the red rifle warrior was [illegible] to gratify his [illegible]

The settler's pioneer [illegible] there many years and prospered. His children grew up around him to whom the adventures of their grandsire were as interesting as fairy tales. But there was one story they never tired of which [illegible] that was the hunter's stratagem which he called the famous "Dummy."

How they Meet and Part.

[illegible]

Help Yourself.

People who have been bolstered up and relieved all their lives are seldom good for anything in a crisis. When misfortune comes they look around for something to cling to or lean upon. If the prop is not there down they go.

Once down, they are as helpless as capsized turtles, or unhorsed jockeys in armor, and cannot find their feet even with assistance.

Such silken fellows no more resemble self-made men, who have fought their way to position, making difficulties their stepping stones, and showing determination if in defeat, than wires resemble rods of sputtering rush light the stars of heaven. Efforts persisted into are [illegible] man to self-reliance, and when he has proven to the world that he can trust [illegible] of the world will trust him.

It is unwise to deprive [illegible] of the advantages which result to them from their own energetic action by removing over obstacles which they should surmount alone.

It is proposed to use stiff canvas stretchers in place of the ordinary berths in sleeping cars. They are comfortable, and can be so cleverly stowed away during the day that one would think himself in an ordinary drawing-room car. The canal-packet men knew this fifty years ago.

A City of Perfumes.

[illegible] says: "In Tunis Arabs have a passion for flowers and as soon as their spring commences even the poorest and most destitute [illegible] with deeply scented blossoms [illegible] of the stalk resting amid [illegible] of his turban and the flower [illegible] ingrained by dark cheek. I have been told by those who have thirty years' knowledge of these people that when wives sometimes [illegible] to buy flowers. And there is something in the sight of a great bearded Arab whose fair partners may consist of a dozen charming specimens of humanity [illegible] with a bunch of delicate spring blossoms [illegible] a [illegible] and [illegible]

The perfumes distilled at Tunis have been famous from time immemorial, and I really think the Parisians are right when they declare that the grasses grown there [illegible] from all others. There is one very large rather pale rose in particular from which the famous attar is extracted which exhales an odor so powerful and yet so delicate that it seems a figure of speech to speak of the visitors of Paradise, and one can understand that the Mohammedan's heaven would hardly be complete without it. But at Tunis it is not only the rose which is made to yield up its sweet breath, to be afterwards imprisoned in cunning little caskets and sparkling crystal flasks [illegible] suggesting to the [illegible] of the Arabian Nights [illegible] and who is there who is [illegible] haunted by that wonderful [illegible] in eternal silence [illegible] the powers [illegible] man. The [illegible] the ordinary [illegible] are extracted with [illegible] mingle their [illegible] sandal-wood [illegible] sweet smelling woods which [illegible] and such that of [illegible] cedar, sandal [illegible] perfumes are [illegible] the [illegible] perfumes [illegible] the [illegible] perfumes [illegible] the [illegible] perfumes

Coloring a Pine Floor.

The Art Interchange gives the following directions for coloring a pine floor which is to be partially covered with rugs: Buy at any painters store turpentine and linseed oil (not boiled.) Ask them to put a little Japanese dryer in the turpentine. Buy either burnt sienna or Vandyke brown, or both, according to the color of the rugs and the tint on the walls. These colors come put up in tin cans, smaller but otherwise similar to tomato or fruit cans. After your floor has been washed thoroughly clean, is free from dust, and dry begin by opening your can and pouring in another receptacle, the oil, turpentine and paints. Remember, the oil is to thin your paint, the turpentine to dry it. The mixture should be so thin that it will run with rapid readiness. Lay it on with a brush as thick as your hand, stroking the brush the way of the grain of the wood. Let your helper work in sections and go over the floor with a rag. In hard places you will need two rags, one pretty well rubbed with paint, to rub in every crevice, and another rag to rub off any superfluous paint. Mind your steps, my dear, pray, mind in the way you step. Do not step in a straight line across the grain of the wood, but carry your brush irregularly down, taking a hint from nature's lines in the wood you are pressing with paint. By mixing the burnt sienna and Vandyke brown you will secure a rich color without needing to use the paint in a thick form. Your mixture should be so that the grain of the wood will show through. If you have too much turpentine the paint will rub off. If you have too little your room will need more days to dry. Use as much oil as turpentine certainly. Do not economize the oil, and be as prodigal in rubbing as your strength will warrant.

To take the lesson a stained floor it is common to use a week to wipe up the floor with sweet buttermilk or sour

Struggling Lives.

You, reader, who are blessed with a comfortable home—who are well fed and warmly clad and sheltered—you can hardly realize to what straits and make-shifts many a poor mortal is reduced to live honestly, or even live at all. Women there are, delicate, cultured, refined, and all unused to physical labor—women nursed often in the lap of luxury, but thrown suddenly and helplessly upon the world by some social or domestic volcano that engulfed home and friends and left them stranded and alone to struggle with the hard conditions of cruel and relentless poverty. We have seen them thinly and poorly clad, with pinched faces from lack of nourishing food, hoarding themselves in cheerless and isolated rooms, and eking out a bare pittance honestly earned with needle or pen—patient, often, and hopeful in their sad and lonely lot. Let their more fortunate sisters, born to affluence and comfort, with every luxury within their reach, imagine themselves suddenly reduced to such extremities, and can they wonder that many a tempted one is led into a gilded life of sin? Truly, society is out of joint, and there is need for a larger measure of charity in the world. We wonder if the favored son of earth are aware that there is but little [illegible] the goodness of one who has never been sorely tempted.

The demand for chairs that Washington once sat in is keeping the furniture makers very busy.

A man who went on a fool's errand was probably performing one of his own commissions.

"Good morning, Mr. Brown; you're first late; you used to be behind before, but notice you have been early of late."

The latest in pyrotechnics is a figure of Washington holding aloft a flag upon which is inscribed a liver pill advertisement.

The blind man should be the most contented man in the world, because he can have everything he sees.

A correspondent wishes to know if the "Lay on Macduff," was one of Shakspeare's earlier poems.

"Penny wise, pound foolish," soliloquised the man in church, and then he put the penny in the box and the pound in his pocket.

"Now, tell me candidly, are you guilty?" asked a lawyer of his client. "Why, do you suppose I'd be fool enough to hire you if I was innocent?"

A Boston theatrical company recently played a scene laid in a church so naturally that to many of the audience it seemed so real that they went to sleep.

An Illinois chap, in describing a gale of wind, says: "A white dog, while attempting to weather the gale, was caught with his mouth open, and turned completely inside out."

A coquette came out of a fancy goods shop loaded with purchases. "You have renewed your provision," said a rival. "Don't speak of it, I have quite ruined myself! I have bought a thousand things I do not need, among others six tooth brushes." "Ah, one for each tooth," said the other sweetly.

Long visits, long stories, long [illegible] long exhortations, and [illegible] from profit those who have to do with them. Life is short. Time is short. Moments are precious. Learn to condense, arrange, and intensify. We can bear things that are dull if they are only short. We can endure many an ache and ill if it is over soon, while even pleasures grow insipid, and pain intolerable, if they be protracted beyond the limits of reason and convenience. Learn to be short. Lop off branches; stick to the main facts in your case. If you pray, ask for what you would receive, and get through; if you speak, tell your message and hold your peace; boil down two words into one, and three into two. Always learn to be short.

On one occasion while the English naturalist Gould was wandering along the banks of the Thames with a party of friends, a rare laugh was created at his expense. He had climbed a tree for the purpose of exploring the contents of a nest. On suddenly looking down at a hollow formed by two branches of the tree, and which at the time contained a pool of water, he exclaimed: "As I live a living man, if there is not a large owl here in this hole, looking straight at me." The excitement was intense, but was instantly turned to a shout of merriment, when the naturalist on putting down his hand to seize the supposed owl, discovered that it was simply the reflection of his own image in the water.

HOME, FARM AND GARDEN.

Water is death to raspberry canes if it stands around them. It should find a quick means of exit either on the surface or by soaking in other drains. Prairie Farmer.

To horses should drink before eating, for if we wait the water will carry the food from the stomach to the water-stomach or cæcum, undigested.—Horse Journal.

Feeding on the ground is shiftless and wasteful, especially corn and small grain. Always place the dry food in a high, dry spot. Nail a narrow skirting on the platform, to prevent the grain from being spilled off.—Prairie Farmer.

The lawn mower and the massing of showy plants in beds has given a remarkable impetus to gardening in this country. They have driven beyond the village and suburban grounds in place of huge grown, tangled grass and weeds the carpets of emerald, studded with bright jewels.

Rice Waffles. To one cupful and a half of boiled rice add two cupfuls of good milk with milk. The batter must be rather thicker than pancake batter. Add a little salt, then beat two eggs very light and stir them in the last thing. Beat up thoroughly. Bake in waffle irons.—Boston Globe.

An enemy of the grape, in the form of a grape fly, has been discovered. The eggs are deposited by a small insect on the skin of the grape, and the young grub work their way into the matured seeds soon after shelling. The insect is most usually shrivels in mid-summer. The best remedy for the pests is to scatter a quantity of the dotted grass.—Cincinnati Gazette.

Delicious Hot Cake or Toast. Beat two eggs to a froth, add to them half a cupful of sugar. Into one pint of sour cream beat half a teaspoonful of soda dissolved in boiling water. Stir it into the eggs and sugar. Add a pinch of salt and flour enough to make it a thick batter for griddle cakes. Bake in "gem-pans" or shallow biscuit-pans, and serve piping hot.—The Housekeeper.

An excellent dish for a plain boiled dinner is made by stewing some veal until it is tender, thicken the gravy with flour, and season with pepper and salt, and put in enough butter to flavor it; then make a nice crust like biscuit dough, have it when baked an inch and a half thick. Put the veal and gravy into an earthen pudding dish and cover the dish with the crust. Bake and serve hot.—N. Y. Post.

Maturity of stock has been hastened by good breeding, says the New York Times. That is, a pig or a sheep which matured at three years, or a steer which was ready for slaughter at five years formerly, is now ready for the butcher at less than half these ages. Pigs are said to be ready for pork at nine months, wethers for mutton at twenty months, and a steer at two years, though it is feared that these claims are greater than may be justly allowed.

Preserving Eggs.

Several correspondents want to know how to pack eggs so that they will keep good for winter use. There is no need for any one who desires to preserve eggs, either for market or for home use, to pay one cent for any recipe. All the egg preserving recipes that are good for anything have been published over and over again in nearly all the news, agricultural, and poultry papers in the country, and if you send money to any one for a "sure method of preserving eggs so that they can not be told from fresh laid," the chances are that you will get some one of the old recipes, just as it has been published for years or else with the addition of some useless ingredient. One man paid a dollar for a recipe that had been published by every poultry paper in the country; another two dollars for the salt method, and an Ohio woman paid five dollars for a "new and infallible method," which turned out to be the recipe for the old salt and lime way that has been in use for years. Simply packing in fine salt is the easiest and best method for housekeepers who desire to save a few dozen of eggs for winter use, and for poultry-keepers who have only a small number to pack for market. Cover the bottom of a keg, cask, jar, hogshead, or whatever you choose to pack in, with a layer of fine salt two inches deep; upon this place the eggs, small end down, and far enough apart so that they will not touch each other or the sides of the receptacle; then put on another two inch layer of salt, then another layer of eggs, and so on until the package is full. The salt can be used over and over again. Eggs packed in salt took the first prize for preserved eggs at the recent poultry show in Birmingham, England.—Prairie Farmer.

Killing Chickens.

When a chicken is to be killed it should not first be chased all over the neighborhood with boys and dogs and then knocked senseless with a club or stone, and then you should not cut its head off and let it dance around the yard until it is dead. Then you should not scald it to prepare it for picking easily. When picked you should not cut the wings off. Then you should not cut a great hole in the breast in order to get the crop out and another in the rear to get the intestines and gizzard out. Now as we have intimated how not to do, it will be in order to advise how to prepare poultry. The best way to prepare poultry for table use that we know of is in the first place to fatten them well, then keep them cooped up for twenty-four hours previous to being killed. Then when you kill them, instead of chopping their heads off, run a small penknife into their jugular vein by the side of the neck, just under the jowl. Then hold them while bleeding and pick them immediately, picking off all the wing feathers, as well as the others, while warm. Then let the head remain on and let the crop alone. Cut a small place in the rear, just large enough to take out the intestines. Do not remove the gizzard from the place, but if the fowl is very fat, make a large opening, turn the leaves out and fasten them with a small skewer. You will find that poultry dressed in this way will be much nicer than dressed in the usual way.—San Francisco Chronicle.

THE COUNTY AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The annual meeting of the Agricultural society of Lenawee county took place at the armory hall, on Friday last, and was called to order by President Horton. Samuel Wilson, of Franklin, Samuel Hamilton, of Palmyra, and N. J. Strong, of Madison, were appointed a committee on order of business, after which the meeting adjourned until 1 o'clock p. m.

The afternoon session was called to order as per adjournment, and the roll of the executive committee called. All were present.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and accepted, when the treasurer's report was heard, and accepted.

The secretary's report was heard and also accepted, which followed the annual election of officers, with the following result:

President, Geo. B. Horton; secretary, Madison Graves; treasurer, T. J. Tobey. Directors—Adrian, W. H. Wiggins; Blissfield, M. H. Cogswell; Cambridge, Chauncey Cooper; Clinton, D. Woodward; Dover, Edward Beals; Deerfield, Edward Bertin; Franklin, W. S. Osborn; Fairfield, Rufus Baker; Hudson, Geo. D. Moore; Macon, Cyrus Mead; Madison, H. C. Bradish; Medina, P. W. Lewis; Ogden, J. H. Hodges; Palmyra, M. T. Cole; Risingsun, Jacob Rosenstiel; Rollin, S. C. Lombard; Raisin, J. N. Green; Ridgeway, C. L. Lowe; Seneca, Casper Rorick; Tecumseh, Minor Davidson; Woodstock, Arthur Underwood; First ward, Calvin Crane; Second ward, J. H. Reynolds; Third ward, John B. Davis; Fourth ward, J. R. Bennett.

B. I. Laing moved that the officers of this society be authorized to confer with the executive committee of the state agricultural society, in regard to making Adrian a location for the state fair. Laid on the table, on motion of Mr. Harris.

The chair appointed the following committee of three, to act with the executive committee in setting out trees on the new grounds: B. W. Steere, S. B. Mann, D. G. Edmiston.

Ringworm Humor and Salt-Rheum.

LOWELL, MASS., Aug. 12, 1879.

C. I. Hood & Co., Gentlemen: I have had a scaly humor and salt rheum on my body, covered with raw sores, on my face and legs. I have had many doctors and tried many medicines in the last seven years and more of it than I can express. One day my mother was in the city of Taunton, and found one of your book leaflets, and in reading it found many people testifying to cures from the use of your Sarsaparilla and Olive Ointment. I not forced to try it, although I had seen many things advertised that never did any good. I have now taken two small bottles and one large one of Sarsaparilla, and used three boxes of Ointment. I now feel as well as ever. Nothing can be good of the kind but the gin bottles of the same. I shall take two more bottles, and then the cure will be complete.

Yours truly,
EDGAR F. WHITMAN.

Biliousness, Sick Headache.

PITTSFIELD, MASS.

MESSRS. C. I. HOOD & CO.—Please send me by express two bottles Hood's Sarsaparilla and a box Cough Lozenges for constipation. Your Sarsaparilla has worked wonders in the case of my wife, who has been troubled with sick headache and biliousness for years. She only took one half bottle of the other, and has not been so well for five years as now. She found that with a week after taking it she felt very much better and is now entirely free from the severe headaches. She has not taken any of any account since first starting, and what little she did take was some others some good, and we prize it more than the house.

Yours truly,

THE CLINTON MEDICAL EDITOR.

The brilliant medical editor of Clinton, who has served on the staff of the paper founded by Horace Greeley, has gathered himself together and come to the scratch for a second round. Well, we will try to accommodate him. When a man thirsts for a quarrel, we find it policy to give him as much latitude as possible. Again, we are not afraid of medical cranks. We have had some experience with them before. The medical editor renews his attack on the HERALD in last week's News in a communication nearly two columns long. In the biographical portion thereof he announces the startling fact that he has had twelve years experience in journalism. Is it possible? He has enjoyed the honor of writing for the paper founded by Horace Greeley. Is it possible? He has had nine years practice in the medical profession. Is it possible? But there is one important link in his biography which the doctor omits. An anxious public would be glad to know how many years his inventive genius has been employed in shot gun manufacturing. We trust he will favor us with some statistics on this point in his next communication.

At the outset we wish to observe that the HERALD has been drawn into this controversy simply in self-defense. Whether the medical editor owns a gun shop in Clinton, whether it ever caught fire, whether there was any gun shop fire at all, we do not know personally, and care less. Our Clinton correspondent, who is an old resident of that village, is able to paddle his own canoe, without any of our assistance. All this "fuss and feathers" has been raised over a harmless item in the HERALD giving a brief account of an insignificant fire, in an insignificant gun shop, owned by an insignificant doctor, the entire value of the property not being as much as the dynamite would cost to blow it to Halifax. But still, if the medical editor wishes to amuse himself by raking over the ashes of this gun shop fire every week, we have no objections. Like a boy with a new tin whistle, so long as he confines himself to his whistle and does'nt interfere with our business we shall be pleased to let the music proceed. Our business with the medical editor is to repel an attact made upon us—for what? For declining to violate a plain business obligation.

Bro. Field states that he does'nt propose to be drawn into the controversy. We appreciate his courtesy and reciprocate in the same spirit. We have no controversy whatever with the News. The issue is between us and a impertinent correspondent, who has gone out of his way to attack the HERALD for doing its duty. If Bro. Field prefers an open correspondent; if he, for business reasons, wishes to display his correspondent's name in print, that is certainly his privilege. But—and herein lies the gist of this quarrel—if the HERALD correspondent prefers to remain in cog and we choose to protect him, that is equally our privilege. And there is no reason why either the News or the HERALD should be subjected to an insolent attact by a meddlesome correspondent for managing its own business in its own way.

The medical editor suggests that we have made a great mistake. After perusing his autobiography we confess that we have made a mistake, and we humbly beg the doctor's pardon. We attributed his journalistic antics to youthfulness and inexperience, but he has now stripped the veil from our eyes. We feel justified now in discarding harmless burlesque and propounding a few questions to him in plain English.

1. Is it a rule of newspaper etiquette to attack an editor personally for words spoken by a correspondent?

2. Is it considered gentlemanly to attempt to draw from an editor the secret of a correspondent's name and then slander him for declining to reveal it?

3. Is it considered a mark of manly courage for a man to send his wife on an inquisitorial errand which he knows is an impertinence and which he is ashamed to perform himself?

4. Is it considered honorable competition for one journalist to belittle and lie about the charges made by a competitor?

5. Is it considered honorable for a reporter to interview respectable citizens about private affairs and then publish a garbled account of the interview without their knowledge or consent?

During last week we visited Clinton and had a personal talk with Dr. Cameron, whose name was dragged into print without his knowledge in the medical editor's first attack. He assures us that his talk with the medical editor was considered by him to be private, that the reporter gave him no intimation whatever of an intention to publish the statement made, and that the interview appeared in print without his (Dr. Cameron's) knowledge or permission. We have the best reasons for believing that the other three citizens interviewed were imposed upon in like manner. Is this the kind of education the medical editor received when serving on the staff of the paper founded by Horace Greeley? In addition we found that Dr. Cameron had been misreported, as well as imposed upon. Words were credited to him which he never used. He stated our charge as it was. He made no complaint about it whatever. After comparing notes a few moments, Dr. Cameron and ourselves decided that we had both been imposed upon. He had no fault to find with us, and, after learning the facts, we had no fault to find with him. We had a good visit and parted good friends. In fact, the more acquaintance we have with Dr. Cameron, the better we like him. It would afford us much pleasure if we could say the same of the medical editor. The Burchard takes a great interest at present in Dr. Cameron's business. His great big heart grieves over the fact that the HERALD took $2.00 from him for a card. But it does'nt seem to trouble Dr. Cameron any. In his second attack the Burchard re-iterates his false statement about this charge. Well, it is a question of veracity between Dr. Cameron and himself, and from our acquaintance with the two men, we unhesitatingly declare our belief that Dr. Cameron tells the truth. A word in regard to the justice of this charge. Would it be fair to home patrons to fix one rate for Tecumseh advertisers and a much less rate for Clinton, Ridgeway and Holloway customers? Does the HERALD fix its rates for a Toledo ad on the basis of its entire circulation, or on the basis of the few papers circulated in Toledo? Does a Clinton paper fix its rates to a Manchester merchant on the basis of its whole circulation or upon its limited subscription list in Manchester? It was not the fault of the HERALD that there was no local paper in Clinton last fall. When the News was first started in Clinton we politely retired from that field and have made no special effort to cultivate it since, but if these malicious attacks upon us are to continue, we shall make arrangements to till the Clinton vineyard more thoroughly hereafter. If the medical editor has learned as little about medicine during nine years' practice, as about advertising rates during twelve years pushing of the quill, we sincerely sympathize with his afflicted patients.

The medical editor states that his wife's call at this office was "at her own suggestion and of her own free will and accord." Now, doctor, no pettifogging. The lady did not state in exact words that her husband sent her, but her conversation certainly conveyed that impression. Her excuse for coming was that business engagements kept her husband at home. We do not care to bandy words or pettifog on this point. The fact is what we want. The doctor's explanation places us in a most embarrassing dilemma. In viewing this occurence shall we be charitable towards him or his wife? All the circumstances and probabilities of the case incline us to the latter. It would surely be a most extraordinary transaction for a man's wife to sally forth upon an inquisitorial impertinence of that kind without her husband's sanction. We believe that she came upon the errand with the doctor's knowledge, if not absolutely sent by him; we believe he lacked the moral courage to perform the pusillanimous work himself and therefore allowed his wife to do it; we believe that he now seeks to escape from the humiliating position in which he finds himself by shifting the responsibility for his own folly upon his wife's shoulders. We should like to inquire whether his action on this point is governed by the rules of medical ethics.

The doctor kindly informs us that his wife declines to compliment our good looks. Now, that is the most unkindest cut of all. Still, we expect to survive. Her opinion on that point is neither surprising nor offensive to us. In fact we respect her good judgment. A compliment to our personal beauty would certainly be construed ironically. An attack upon our business is construed as such and resented accordingly.

The medical editor whines because, in defending ourselves, we have assumed the offensive. Like most other physicians, he makes a wry face when called upon to take a dose of his own medicine. Well, he has no one but himself to blame. He opened this war on the HERALD without a shadow of excuse. We never provoke a quarrel of this kind, neither do we shrink from the unpleasant duty of defending ourselves from attack, by carrying the war into Africa, if necessary. If we have not been sufficiently explicit to enable the medical editor to make a diagnosis of our views on this subject, we shall be pleased to favor him with another allopathic prescription next week.

THE EXPOSITION.

Visitors to the World's Exposition at New Orleans should not fail to see the magnificent display of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway, located in the government building at the main entrance from St. Charles street. They will find it one of the most attractive features of the great Exposition, handsomely decorated with the agricultural products of the famous Northwest along the line of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway.

The exhibits are chiefly from the Territory of Dakota, with some good samples from Iowa, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Illinois. Among the many products exhibited is a splendid assortment of corn, and it is no exaggeration to say that better corn was never seen in any state in the Union. The wheat, oats, rye, barley, flax and hemp are all of the finest quality; stalks of sugar-cane ten feet in length; cottonwood trees ten feet tall, grown in one season from slips; four stalks of cotton, with numerous balls of cotton on, grown near Elk Point, Dakota; squashes of all varieties, small and large, weighing 185, 128, 126, 120, 114½, and others weighing 100 lbs. each; sweet pumpkins weighing 75 and 100 pounds, and many smaller, also common pumpkins of immense size; turnips; parsnips; radishes; beets; carrots; cucumbers; egg plant; red, green and yellow peppers; watermelons, large and small, one weighing 37 pounds; muskmelons; cantaloupes; citrons and gourds; cabbage; cauliflower; sweet potatoes; asparagus onions; peanuts and tobacco; potatoes of excellent quality, the largest weighing three and one-half pounds; samples of strawberry vines, blue grass, millet, blue stem, timothy, red top, clover, and Dakota cactus and sunflower. Grapes, rich and lucious, lie in baskets, surrounded by a splendid display of native apples; of these, many varieties, from the small Siberian crab apple to the large fine baldwin and Ben Davis.

The fruit, both in appearance and flavor, is equal to that grown in any of the most noted fruit growing states. Peas, beans, and canned fruits of all descriptions, such as blackberries, strawberries, raspberries, cherries, currants, gooseberries, currants etc. Also samples of Sioux Fall granite, large and small; rough and polished.

Most noticeable among the exhibits is a design of a locomotive and tender and a train of cars, consisting of a locomotive and tender, baggage car and coach complete, and a figure of a lady (life size) all made entirely of grain and grasses. Numerous other beautiful designs, showing an unlimited amount of artistic taste and talent, are among the collection. It will please and interest all to look at and examine them, otherwise the visit to the World's Exhibition will be incomplete.

For pamphlets, maps, etc., apply to the agent in charge of the display at the Exposition, or address W. E. Powell, Gen'l Emigration Agent, Milwaukee, Wis.

Why the "Royal" is the Best

The improved method by which it has been made possible to produce pure cream of tartar, has had an important bearing upon the manufacture of baking powder. By the process heretofore generally employed it has been found impossible to remove all impurities, more particularly the tartrate of lime, which remained to such an extent as to greatly impair the quality of the cream of tartar, and to interfere seriously with the strength and wholesomeness of the baking powders into which it entered.

In the new process which is owned by the Royal Baking Powder Company of New York, and exclusively employed in its extensive tartar works, the imported crude grape acid is so treated as to remove all vestige of tartrate of lime or other impurities, giving a product before unknown—a chemically pure cream of tartar.

By the employment of these superior facilities, the Royal Baking Powder Company has made the Royal Baking Powder, as the chemists all certify, of the highest degree of strength, 'absolutely pure' and wholesome, and with an always uniform leavening power. It is for these reasons that the "Royal" never fails to produce bread, biscuits, cakes, etc., that are light, sweet, digestible and wholesome; the eating of which is never followed by indigestion, or any of those physical discomforts attendant upon the partaking of improperly prepared food. In rendering possible the production of a baking powder possessed of these qualifications, the improved method of refining cream of tartar becomes a matter of material importance to the culinary world.

Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly.

For February this presents one of the most interesting numbers of this attractive magazine ever issued. Its articles are brilliant and timely, and cover a range of subjects which can not fail to attract the attention of every one. The opening article is an exceedingly valuable one, on "Fredericksburg, the Home of Washington's Boyhood and the Burial-place of his Mother" and accompanying it are several appropriate illustrations.—"Anecdotes of American Lawyers" is a gossipy and interesting contribution, finely illustrated; and Professor Charles A. Joy's article on "Guernsey, Alderny and Sark" will be prized no less for its interesting descriptions than for its beautiful and characteristic pictures. Mr. M. Seymour contributes a well written article, "From Bismarc to Benton," with nine illustrations; and Oscar W. Rigg's article on "King Cotton at New York," with its seven truthful views, affords an interesting glance at one of the industrial features of our country; while the student of natural history will be especially interested in Ralph S. Tarr's "Animal Life at the Ocean Bottom," beautifully and curiously illustrated. The miscellanious articles, stories and poems maintain the high standard of this favorite magazine. Garret Walker's thrilling romance, "The Death Mark," reaches its twenty-first chapter. The colored plate "Household Pets," is a triumph of artistic color printing. The price is twenty-five cents a number, or $2.50 a year, postpaid. Mrs. Frank Leslie, 53, 55 and 57 Park Place, New York.

The drive well patents expired Jan. 14th. Farmers can now drive wells without fear of prosecution.

Kies Bros. have a new card in today's paper.

Kos Davis is the new manager of the Clinton rink.

The Tecumseh News is moving today to the Montague building on Ottawa street.

Our veteran Clinton correspondent makes up for the shortage from other towns this week.

Miss Carrie Powers, who has been attending school in Wisconsin, is home for a short stay.

Jerome Cleveland has been quite sick for the past two weeks but is improving at this writing.

Next Saturday is Valentine's day. The postoffice clerks will be busy passing out the tender missives.

The band benefit entertainment has been postponed, but will probably come of the last week in this month.

Dyke Wilkinson, of Jackson, U. S. Express agent on the Branch, was visiting friends in Tecumseh, last Sunday.

We acknowledge the receipt of a complimentary ticket to the Adrian Art Loan. We shall endeavor to use it before the exhibition closes.

M. W. Goodrich and Frank Page have started a cigar box factory.—They have both had experience in the business and ought to succeed.

Hugh Richard, of Jackson, was shaking hands with his old Tecumseh friends the first of the week. We acknowledge a friendly call from him on Tuesday.

Lansing had a scorch Tuesday night. Dr. A. L. Dingman was one of the sufferers, and the drug store owned by J. D. Shull, now a resident of Tecumseh, was burned.

The rising generation have had a little taste of "ye olden time" this week. From Monday evening till Wednesday evening without a mail or a daily paper from any direction.

Elwood Comfort and daughter, of Raisin, are spending a few weeks at San Jose, Cal. They have rented rooms and are keeping house by themselves. As Miss Comfort has considerable leisure time she has been attending the sessions of the State Normal school, with both pleasure and profit.

Addison had a serious scorch last Thursday. The M. & O. house, Eaton's furniture store and Powers & Son's drug store were all consumed. The fire caught in the furniture store while Gill Eaton was at dinner and the store was shut. The full particulars of the fire have undoubtedly been sent by our Addison correspondent but the stoppage of trains on the M. & O. has delayed the letter.

THE TECUMSEH HERALD.

TECUMSEH, MICH., FEB. 12, 1885.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

Polo at the rink Wednesday night.

Tecumseh is getting behind the times. We should organize a progressive euchre club.

Our township department is rather slim this week. Trains all blocked in and no mails received.

"How's your thermometer this morning?" has been the general salutation the past two days.

Thank you, if this be a sample of Dakota weather, we have no desire to emigrate to that blessed country.

Temple McClure & Co. shipped out 22 loads of lumber one forenoon last week, 16 of which went to one man in Milan.

Maggie Glasgow entertained a few of her friends at a birthday party yesterday. The little folks had a jolly good time.

The Nationals have called their state convention at Lansing, on Feb. 25th. The Democrats assemble at Bay City the same day.

Geo. W. Lewis, of Adrian, was in town last Monday making arrangements for the wrestling match which is to come off on the evening of the 14th inst.

The revival meetings at the Baptist church continue this week, except on last evening, when the meeting was omitted on account of the severe weather.

The Manchester and Adrian polo teams are old players and all who wish to see a good game of polo should not fail to attend the rink next Wednesday evening. Music by Knapp's band.

Correspondents are specially requested to write names plainly. It is often impossible to make out names as sent in, and errors consequently occur in spite of our efforts to prevent them.

Lavern Wheeler has been drafting a crayon picture representing a news boy on the run, for the Saginaw Courier. It will be used as an original from which to take lithograph copies for advertising purposes.

The young man who will loaf about town, dead-beat his way among his associates, obtain credit from merchants by falsifying, and attempt to live generally beyond his means, is one that will bear watching under all circumstances and in all places.

A sleigh load of students from the Raisin Valley Seminary visited M. P. Brown last Saturday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Brown performed their part as host and hostess to the satisfaction of the company. After supper the young people made a call at the rink.

A letter from "our old friend, Goliah," Mr. John R. Rosebrough, states that he is now residing in Ann Arbor and enjoying himself. The weekly visits of the HERALD are appreciated, being equal to a long letter from home every week.

Will D. Robbins was shaking hands with his old Tecumseh friends last Friday. He went from here to Adrian but returned Saturday night and remained over the Sabbath. Will is yet in the employ of Sigler Bros, of Cleveland and likes his position. His duties keep him on the road most of the time.

We wish to announce to the public that we have a notary's commission in our safe, and are prepared to do swearing with neatness and dispatch. To meet the hard times we have adopted the "one-quarter off" rate. Now, do not misconstrue this; when we say "one-quarter off" we do not mean the whole quarter, but 6¼ cents.

Lavern Bidwell has bought a fine new genuine hack, but the continued sleighing for the past few weeks has compelled him to keep it housed up. It is a beauty however, and in due time will be run to all trains. The axles are made the ordinary carriage length, so it can be used for occasional trips into the country, as well as around the village.

Evening News A Hebrew soap peddler in the streets of Petersburg took in four men $5 worth each by doing up a $10 bill in paper and throwing it into a paper bag 10 feet off. He then offered the bag and contents for $5; bag opened, contained a piece of red paper and four cents.—The brilliant financier started for Deerfield, and the fool killer is wanted to follow him up.

The Adrian Record of last evening has the following: Mr. B. W. Chapman, conductor of the Adrian accommodation, which left Detroit last night and arrived in this city at noon today, was seen at the Lawrence by a Record man, and Mr. C. says: "I had about the worst experience during my railroad career last night. I was 18 hours making a run of 65 miles and shall never forget it. We encountered huge drifts of snow, which had to be shoveled away before the train could move. One finger of my right hand is frozen stiff, also my ears and the right side of my neck, but we arrived and I am glad of it." "Do you go out again today?" "No siree, I dont.—To-morrow, however, I will start my train as usual, 7:45 standard time."

Will you be my Valentine?

Be sure and see the polo game next Wednesday evening at the rink.

E. A. Tribou, assignee of Woolston Comfort, has filed a $50,000 bond in the County Clerk's office, with J. S. Strong and B.J. Bidwell as sureties.

A whip thief has been getting in his work in Riga village. Treat him to some of his booty—catching him first of course—and he won't steal any more immediately.

The Hudson Post thinks that when you want to see an upright citizen of Rollin you must go to Rollin, for all Rollin citizens are not in that condition when they come to Hudson.

The annual crop of valentines is coming to the front in about the same shape as usual. The show windows are full of them, and the woods are full of dudes who will receive them gratis.

H. L. Jones, agent of the U. S. Express Co., has distributed among his business patrons, a pamphlet containing a list of all offices and points reached by that company in the United States.

The M. & O. officials have inspected Muskegon harbor, and it is probable that the road will be extended to Muskegon next summer and a line of steamers run between that point and Milwaukee.

The Tecumseh hotels had a bonanza Tuesdey night. The P.M. train south on the Lake Shore was held here till yesterday, and our hotels had to keep the train load of passengers over night.

Mr. and Mrs. S. A. James, of Detroit, arrived in town Saturday. Mr. James will spend a few days in this vicinity on business connected with his house; meanwhile Mrs. James will remain in Tecumseh.

Yesterday morning was the coldest of the season. At six o'clock several thermometers about town marked 30° below. At eight o'clock the thermometers in front of Whitenack's and Geo. Merritt's stores marked 25° below.

Managers of roller skating rinks say that ladies should never try to learn to skate with high heeled shoes. A shoe with a common sense heel is far preferable and the wearer is not near as liable to fall. No doubt the fair ones will take note of this.

The Clinton Local of last week contains a fine leader upon the duty of every community to sustain their home newspaper. It is excellent both in language and sentiment, and our Clinton friends would further their own interests by heeding its advice.

The Record asks: "Why could not an association of the graduates of Michigan University be organized in Adrian?" We second the motion, with this amendment. That all graduates in the county be invited to participate, and a Lenawee association be organized.

The Meigs—Underhill concert which was advertised for this evening will not take place, the date having been cancelled. The troupe asked to have the date changed to Saturday evening, which the committee did not feel justified in doing, so the engagement was cancelled for the present. A new date will probably be arranged for some time in March.

The "open winter" has proved to be one of the severest experienced for a number of years. Its terrors and rigors have resulted in unnumbered fatalities. Many people throughout the West have been frozen to death, caught in the terrible blizzards that prevailed between the Mississippi and Pacific, while cattle, sheep and hogs have been frozen by thousands. But not only has the severe winter been attended with fatalities in the west.—All over the country hardly a day has passed for the last month or more that does not bring the intelligence of some one dying from want, destitution, starvation and freezing.

James W. Cole is propeietor of the Central Meat Market. Many years experience in the business, a good location, a thorough acquaintance with all the farmers of Northern Lenawee, and a liberal method of doing business, form a combination that holds the lead in his line. His market is always supplied with the best of meats and fish and he keeps a full supply of garden truck and vegetables in their season. The proprietor proposes to keep up with the times in his business and intends to sell more meat than ever during the coming season. His aim is to keep all his old customers and gather in new ones as fast as they come.

The Adrian Times says: If Judge Cooley will accept a nomination as member of the supreme court there is no doubt about his receiving it at the hands of the republican convention, by aclamation. There is a suggestion that his nomination be endorsed by all the parties, and the way in which leading democrats speak of the proposition makes it very prboable that that party would readily support him. Such an endorsement would be but a fitting compliment to the eminent fitness and worth of the man.

We most heartily commend this proposition. Let the people of Michigan honor the man by a unanimous election, whose legal learning and social accomplishments have reflected so much honor upon the State.

Go and see the grand wrestling contest at the Opera House next Saturday evening.

Mr. Henry Burnett started for Cleveland, Ohio, last Saturday, where he has a position in the high school of that city.

Rev. C. E. Conley is quite ill with an attack of erysipelas. He was obliged to remain out of the pulpit last Sunday. The attack however is not considered serious, and he hopes to be about again soon.

The storm of Monday and the blizzard of Tuesday extended over all the northern states. Trains were blockaded and snow bound on all the roads. No regular trains left Chicago on Tuesday upon any railroad.

A violent storm, one of the worst of the season, passed over this section on Monday, and on Tuesday we were given a foretaste of a genuine Dakota blizzard. Business has been dull during the week in consequence.

The East Saginaw Daily Courier appeared last Sunday in an entire new dress. It is a model newspaper, ably edited and skillfully managed, and the fact of its investing in a new suit in these close times shows that it must be thriving. The Courier will continue to hold the lead in the Saginaw Valley.

Mr. Wm. Kniffin and Miss Edith May Morrell were united in the bonds of matrimony on Wednesday evening, Feb. 4th, at the residence of the bride's father, by Rev. B. F. Rapp, of Balch. The presents to the wedded pair, which were both ornamental and useful, were numerous, and were by them duly appreciated.

In the appropriate column will be found the announcement of the marriage of Mr. Isaac C. Wolcott to Miss Sarah E. Swartout. Both the contracting parties have been well and favorably known in this community for many years. They have chosen wisely. We can unite with their friends in extending our heartiest congratulations, and an earnest wish that their happiest anticipations may be fully realized.

Mr. G. W. Lewis has arranged a grand wrestling match, which will take place at the Tecumseh Opera House on Saturday evening next, Feb. 14th. At that time Andre Christol, of France, Ex-Champion United States Græco-Roman, and Chas. Moth, Prussian Champion, will wrestle for a purse of $200. Best three in five, Græco-Roman, Catch-as-catch-can.—They will wrestle until the entire finish. Admission fifty cents to all parts of the house. Reserved seats at Adamson's. Doors open at seven. Performance begins promptly at eight.

George Tansley goes to Addison his week and will soon open a furniture store there in the building formerly occupied by Fred Smiley. His son, Harry Tansley, will assume his father's position as undertaker for J. S. Kinney. Mr. George Tansley will attach an undertaking department to his Addison store. He is a graduate of the Cincinnati embalming school and is thoroughly posted on all the details of that special line of the furniture trade. He is also a good business man and a most genial gentleman. We commend him to the good wishes of the Addison people with confidence that he will be a valuable acquisition to that community. Tecumseh's loss, in this case, will be Addison's gain.

RINK RACKET.

Knapp's sextette band made first-class music last Tuesday evening, if it was cold weather.

George Farnsworth of Adrian attended the rink last Thursday evening.

Next Wednesday evening the Manchester polo team will play a game of polo with the Adrian team at the Tecumseh rink. As both are first-class clubs, a good game is looked for. Knapp's band will furnish the music.

Saturday afternoon seems to be the time for the young man from the country and his best girl, and they were there in full force last Saturday.

That Tecumseh has a large number of good skaters cannot be denied. From the old married man down to the youngster of six years, all are regular attendants at the rink, and all are becoming quite expert on rollers, and a good evening's entertainment can be had by taking a spectator's seat and watching the skaters go around. Among the gents there is W. T. Eccles, who is an easy skater, is "catching on" to lots of fancy tricks, and in leading the grand march, probably has no equal in Tecumseh. Then Walter Powers, Harry Stevens, Al. Heesen all are perfectly at home on skates and improving every day. Young Mont. Roland is small but he gets there every time, and can go through as many steps as any of them. As for Reed and Smith it's their business to skate good and to teach the young ladies also. One of the most graceful lady skaters is Miss Dena Heesen, and her sister, Miss Hannah, is another. Maud Eccles is the fancy skater among the ladies, and Rose Miller carries the medal as the swiftest one. Mrs. Burt Conklin, Misses Cora Jones, Stella Cleveland, Eliza Jones, Mrs. Bidwell, all are easy and graceful skaters.

CLIPPINGS AND CONDENSATIONS.

The "spellin skule" is having a big run down in Morenci.

Ira Weyburn has been appointed deputy sheriff at Hudson.

Col. Bob Ingersoll lectured at Adrian last Monday evening.

The Addison rink will be ready for rollers the last of this week.

The Adrian Art Loan was opened to the public on Saturday last.

The Day Bros. are the new landlords at the Central Hotel in Adrian.

Dr. and Mrs. N. H. Kimball, of Adrian, will visit New Orleans this month.

Adrian wants a big charity ball, but Hudson will be satisfied with a new depot.

Wm. Jibb, of Morenci, has been appointed deputy oil inspector for this district.

The dances at the M. & O. house in Addison will have to be postponed for the present.

The Democratic County Convention has been called for Saturday, the 21st inst.

Eight couples of Tecumseh young people visited the Adrian roller rink last Thursday evening.

The Hudson flour mill has froze up: that is, the water has froze up, and without water the mill refuses to grind.

B. C. Knapp has bought the Jerry Tuttle stock of goods at Franklin Centre and will continue the business at the old stand.

The weather clerk favored this latitude with a snow storm last Monday for a change. It looks now like a run of sleighing.

Morenci had only one representative at the Adrian wrestling match. We regret that Morenci should be so lacking in enterprise.

Rev. E. G. Nock, rector of Christ's Church in Adrian, has resigned, and the vestry have accepted his resignation. He goes to Ionia.

Bro. Spafford of the Clinton Local bought a sausage the other night at the meat market, and while preparing to pay for it, some one made off with the sausage. That celebrated medical, journalistic, shot-gun manufacturer should be watched.

Hudson Gazette: The Bohemian oat men are in our midst. If the State press have it right (and they seem to be pretty general in their warnings to farmers to touch not, handle not,) the yeoman who indulges will repent it more sorrowfully than he did the worst wild oats he ever sowed.

Adrian Press: Some one broke a back window in Wentz's bakery, on North Main street, about 11 o'clock Wednesday evening, passed into the store part, broke open the till and got about $1.00 in pennies. Blood on the money drawer, showed that the thief cut his hands with the glass.

Hudson Gazette: People in this vicinity always knew Addison by the cognomen of "Coontown," and until late years the place was more familiarly known by that name. The place got this appellation in the Clay campaign, when all Addison was almost a unit for that statesman, and as the coon skin was an emblem of that party, hence the name.

Hudson Gazette: The teacher desired to impress upon her scholars the penalty of evil-doing. "Johnnie, where would you go if you should steal?" "To Canada," responded Johnnie, quickly. In the Trinity S. S. of this place, a teacher asked one of her cherubs last Sunday "who St. John was?" "He is a Prohibitionist," was the sanguine reply of the youngster.

The Adrian Times gives this reason why progressive euchre parties are so popular. "It is because they are inexpensive, informal, and afford ample opportunities for sociability, visiting, entertainment and amusement. I think it is fortunate that the simple game has been inaugurated. It leaves a great deal of money which would have been spent in formal receptions for more practical purposes."

An exchange says: "The latest swindle bobbing around the country proves to be a man with a corn sheller. He calls and begs to set up a sheller; the request is granted, when the man leaves it to be tried and takes a receipt for it; another man comes along and the receipt proves to be a note for three or four times the value of the sheller. Who will be the first in this part of the country to bite? Don't miss the chance. It will make you feel so well, and will give your neighbors a chance to laugh at you and pronounce you a fool."

Dundee Reporter: Thomas Lodge of Dundee and Custer Lodge of East Milan, I. O. O. F., were duly consolidated Monday evening by Past Grand Master Sprague, of Ann Arbor, specially deputized by the Grand Master to perform the work. The consolidated Lodge continues as Thomas Lodge, No. 211. The officers elected and installed were the same recently installed by Thomas Lodge with the exception of Vice Grand, Benj. F. Paine of Custer Lodge being elected to that position. By the consolidation Thomas Lodge receives an increase of about 15 members.

RAILROADING IN SNOW DRIFTS.

Not in many years has such a railroad blockade occurred as was occasioned by the last storm. On the M. & O. road there has been a total suspension of all trains since Monday, and on the Lake Shore since Tuesday morning.

The situation on the M. & O. has been briefly this: The freight train eastward, which left Allegan on Monday morning got stalled in a snow drift near Monteith and remained there two days. The west bound passenger train Monday noon stuck in a snow drift two miles this side of Ceresco. The snow plow went up the road Tuesday morning and was engaged Tuesday and Wednesday in extricating this passenger train. The Monday freight westward went to Homer and returned to Toledo the same evening. The trains on this road will resume running on the regular schedule to-morrow.

On the Lake Shore road there was fun. The Tuesday morning freight train north went up the road as usual although late. The noon passenger train north came to Lenawee Junction and remained there that afternoon and all night, and then went on to Adrian. Heavy drifts had filled the track near John Hanley's and T. I. Sutton's, south of the village during the day Tuesday. About noon the snow plow was started from the Junction and came through to Tecumseh. It then started back and got stalled in a big drift opposite Joshua Taylor's farm. The engine of the south bound freight was then summoned from up the road, and the two locomotives went south to extricate the snow plow. But the snow plow was too much for the two locomotives and the three remained in the drift till Wednesday morning. Early Wednesday morning a car load of shovelers was dispatched from Adrian, and by noon the imprisoned train was shoveled out. The snow plow then came back to this village and on north to Jackson. The afternoon passenger southward Tuesday P.M. came as far as this station and remained here over night. It left here about two o'clock yesterday afternoon with one coach and a gang of shovelers and got through safely to Lenawee Junction and Adrian about five o'clock. The Tuesday noon train northward went up the road about five o'clock yesterday afternoon. The track is now cleared and trains are running to-day as usual.

Yesterday forenoon, taking a horse and cutter and an office boy to drive, we started for the scene of operations near John Hanley's. When opposite the Patterson farm the horse halted in a heavy drift. He could neither back out nor turn round and we were compelled to unhitch, turn the cutter round and hitch the horse on again. The boy was sent back with the horse and cutter and we started down the track on foot. About half a mile out we met Joe Russell, who had footed it from Lenawee Junction. He came from Toledo on the Tuesday noon train, on his return from Buffalo with a load of cattle, and had been waiting at Lenawee Junction till yesterday morning, when he got hungry and started for home on foot. From him we learned that the snow plow was at Sutton's. Thinking that a walk of four miles to see a gang of shovelers shovel snow would be paying too dearly for the whistle, we retraced our steps and interviewed the railroad officials at home.

HALL'S Vegetable Sicilian
HAIR RENEWER

was the first preparation perfectly adapted to cure diseases of the scalp, and the most successful restorer of faded or gray hair to its natural color, growth, and youthful beauty. It has had many imitators, but none have yet fully met all the requirements needful for the proper treatment of the hair and scalp. HALL'S HAIR RENEWER has steadily gained in favor, and spread its fame and its success to every quarter of the globe. Its unparalleled success can be attributed to one and the same cause: the entire fulfilment of its promises.

The proprietors have often been surprised at the receipt of orders from remote countries, where they had never made an effort for its introduction.

The use for a short time of HALL'S HAIR RENEWER wonderfully improves the personal appearance. It cleanses the scalp from all impurities, cures all humors, fever, and dryness, and thus prevents baldness. It stimulates the weakened glands, and enables them to push forward a new and vigorous growth. The effects of this article are not transient, like those of alcoholic preparations, but remain a long time, which makes its use a matter of economy.

Talmage on Tobacco.

Rev. De Witt Talmage, in a sermon said of tobacco as follows:

"One reason why there are so many victims of this habit is because there are so many ministers of religion who smoke and chew. They smoke until they get bronchitis, and the dear people have to pay their expenses to Europe. They smoke until the nervous system breaks down. They smoke themselves to death. I could name three eminent clergymen who died of cancer in the mouth, and in every case the physician said it was tobacco. There has been a clergyman whose tombstone was all covered up with eulogy, which ought to have had the honest epitaph 'Killed by too much Cavendish!' Some of them smoke until the room is blue, and their spirits are blue, and the world is blue, and everything is blue.

"Time was when God passed by such sins, but it becomes the duty of the American clergy who indulge in this narcotic to repent. How can a man preach temperance to the people when he is himself indulging in an appetite like that? I have seen a cuspidore in a pulpit where the minister would drop his cud before he got up to read 'Blessed are the pure in heart,' and to read about 'Rolling sin as a sweet morsel under the tongue!' and in Leviticus to read about unclean animals that chew the cud. I have known presbyteries and general assemblies and general synods where there was a room set apart for the ministers to smoke in. I have seen ministers of religion, their beards anointed not with holy oil, such as ran down Aaron's beard, but with poisonous saliva. Oh! it is a sorry spectacle, a consecrated man, a holy man of God, looking around for something which you take to be looking for a larger field of usefulness. He is not looking for that at all. He is only looking for some place where he can discharge a mouthful of tobacco juice!

"I am glad the Methodist Church of the United States in nearly all its conferences has passed resolutions against this habit, and is is time that we had an anti-tobacco chorus in the Presbyterian Church, and the Episcopal Church, and the Baptist Church, and the Congregational Church. About sixty years ago a young man graduated from Andover Theological Seminary into the ministry. He went straight to the front. He had an eloquence and personal magnetism before which nothing could stand; but he was soon thrown into the insane asylum for twenty years, and the doctor said it was tobacco that sent him there. According to the custom then in vogue, he was allowed a small portion of tobacco every day. After he had been there nearly twenty years, walking the floor one day he had a sudden return of reason, and he realized what was the matter. He threw his plug of tobacco through the iron grates, and said—'What brought me here? What keeps me here? Why am I here? Tobacco! tobacco! O, God, help! help! and I'll never use it again.' He was restored. He was brought forth. For ten years he successfully preached the gospel of Jesus Christ, and then went into a blissful immortality.

"There are ministers of religion to-day indulging in narcotics, dying by inches, and they do not know what is the matter with them. I might, in a word, give my own experience. It took ten cigars to make a sermon. I got very nervous. One day I awakened to the outrage I was inflicting upon myself. I was about change settlements, and a generous wholesale tobacconist in Philadelphia said if I would only come to Philadelphia he would, all the rest of my life, provide me with cigars free of charge.

"I said to myself, if in these war times, when cigars are so costly, and my salary is small, I smoke more than I ought to, what would I do if I had gratuitous and illimitable supply? And then and there, twenty years ago, I quit once and forever. It made a new man of me, and though I have since then done as much hard work as any one, I think I have had the best health God ever blessed a man with. A minister of religion can't afford to smoke."

The Leading-Strings Fallacy.

From the moment a child is born, he is treated on the principle that all his instincts are essentially wrong, that nature must be thwarted and counteracted in every possible way. He is strapped up in a contrivance that he would be glad to exchange for a straight-jacket, kept for hours in a position that prevents him from moving any limb of his body. His first attempts at locomotion are checked; he is put in leading-strings, he is carefully guarded from the out-door world, from the air that would invigorate his lungs; from the sports that would develop his muscles. Hence, the peevishness, awkwardness, and sickliness of our young aristocrats. Poor people have no time to imitate the absurdities of their wealthy neighbors, and their children profit by what the model nurse would undoubtedly call neglect. Indian babies are still better off. They are fed on bull-beef, and kicked around like young dogs; but they are not swaddled, they are not cradled, and not dosed with paregoric; they crawl around naked, and soon learn to keep out of the way; they are happy, they never cry. If we would treat our youngsters in the same way, only substituting kisses and bread for kicks and beef, they would be as happy as kids in a clover field, and moreover they would afterward be hardier and stronger. Every week the newspapers tell us about ladies tumbling down stairs and breaking both arms; boys falling from a fence and fracturing their collar bones. From what height would a young Comanche have to fall to break such bones—not to mention Southsea Island children and young monkeys? The bones of an infant are plastic; letting it tumble and roll about would harden the bony tissue; guarding it like a piece of brittle crockery makes its limbs as fragile as glass. Christian mothers reproach themselves with neglecting their duty to their children if they do not constantly interfere with their movements, but they forget that in points of physical education Nature herself is such an excellent teacher that the apparent neglect is really a transfer of the pupil to a more efficient school.

A FEMININE DEFENDER OF TOBACCO.—In support of his stand unearths an article written by Margaret, Duchess of Newcastle, some two hundred years ago. In defense of the seductive weed that lady wrote: "It composes the mind, it busies the thoughts, it attracts all outward objects to the mind's view, it settles and retents the senses, it cheers the understanding, strengthens the judgment, spies out errors, it exasperates follies, it heats ambition, it comforts sorrow, it abates passion, it excites to noble actions, it digests conceptions, it creates fancies, it quickens wit, and it makes reason pleader and truth judge in all disputes or controversies between right and wrong."

Some Physical Fruits of Idleness.

The mind should be always occupied; it is strengthened and preserved in a healthy state by work, whereas it decays or becomes impoverished by disease; or what is even worse, since it is impossible to keep the brain absolutely at rest, its powers should be partially employed, or they react on the system, and give rise to the nondescript ailments, physical, mental, and moral, known as hysteria. This term almost implies that I am thinking of the female sex; certainly, it is to women especially that the want of occupation applies. Young men are forced to get their living whether they like it or not; but a large number of young ladies in a family have absolutely nothing to do. Those brought up in the country have this advantage, that they may always make work for themselves; the village children may be otherwise taught and cared for; bringing not only a blessing upon them, but a healthy body and mind to the benefactor. In town the condition of middle-class girls is to me pitiable. They are too genteel to follow any occupation; they are often too many in a family to assist in domestic duties; they have returned home with some very poor accomplishments; their knowledge of French and German is not sufficient to allow them to converse in those languages; with music just enough to indulge in doleful song or play badly on the piano. They dawdle through the day in a listless way, and fall victims to a thousand little ailments which the doctor is supposed to put right by physic. And the most curious thing is that, should the instincts of the girl force her to put some of her energies into use, she is likely as not to be thwarted by her mother. I am a daily witness to this, and when young ladies are brought to me for advice, the invariable story is that they are overtaxing their strength; the maternal instinct being so perverted that it has become with many the belief that every movement means fatigue, and absolute rest is the way to ensure health. It is against this very erroneous view that I am now preaching. These mothers do not come to the doctor for advice, but come to dictate to him; and they say, "I want you, doctor, to insist on my daughter not playing the organ at church, for it is too much for her; or having the children's class once a week, for she is always ill after it; but order her to have her breakfast in bed, and a glass of port wine about 11 o'clock." It is this fanciful care on the part of parents which is so injurious for the very energy of young people would command them to occupy themselves. I do not know that girls are worse than boys in respect of idleness; for probably the latter would not work unless obliged, and even for them an occupation is good, quite apart from that at which they earn their daily bread.

Sun-Spot Suppositions.

Enthusiasts who make a special study of sun-spots and attendant phenomena believe that the corner-stone of a new science is being laid by discoveries pointing to an intimate connection between solar and terrestrial meteorology. Just what the connection is they are not yet able to clearly define, although electricity is suspected of being the agent through which the effects are manifested upon our planet. It is known that the gaseous envelope of the sun is affected by eruptions of such prodigious magnitude as to be utterly beyond our power of conception, these disturbances appearing to us in the form of rapidly changing spots and protuberances. The eras of the spots—or sun-storms—occur at remarkably regular intervals, a complete cycle of the various stages of activity from maximum to minimum and again to maximum being performed in about eleven years—the so-called "sun-spot period." The sun-spot physicists claim a coincidence of the periods of maximum spots and years of great atmospheric and physical disturbance in the earth. The year 1881 was one of great solar disturbances, while it was marked by violent storms and earthquakes upon our globe. Further than this, these scientists claim to have recently detected by simultaneous observation minor atmospheric changes as the result of corresponding movements in the sun. Many difficulties attend these observations, but the Astronomer Royal for Scotland and others believe that the state of the sun will some day become an important factor in weather forecasts and like calculations.

Home Politeness.

A boy who is polite to his father and mother is likely to be polite to every one else. A boy lacking politeness to his parents may have the semblance of courtesy in society, but is never truly polite in spirit, and is in danger, as he becomes familiar, of betraying his real want of courtesy. We are all in danger of living too much for the outside world, for the impression which we make in society, coveting the good opinions of those who are in a sense a part of ourselves, and who will continue to sustain and be interested in us, notwithstanding these defects of deportment and character. We say to every boy and to every girl, cultivate the habits of courtesy and propriety at home—in the sitting room and the kitchen, as well as in the parlor—and you will be sure in other places to deport yourself in a becoming and attractive manner. When one has a pleasant smile and a graceful demeanor, it is a satisfaction to know these are not put on, but that they belong to the character, and are manifest at all times and under all circumstances.

A Study of Husbands.

BY A WOMAN FOR WOMEN, BUT MEN MAY READ IT WITH PROFIT.

We hear much about the art of winning a husband. Let us take a step further and make a study out of keeping a husband. If he is worth winning he is worth keeping.

This is a wicked world, and man is dreadfully mortal. Let us take him just as he is, not as he ought to be. In the first place, he is very weak. The wife must spend the first two years in discovering all these weaknesses, count them on her fingers, and learn them by heart. The fingers of both hands will not be too many. Then let her study up these weaknesses, with a mesh for every one, and the secret is hers.

Is he fond of a good dinner? Let her lighten the mesh around him with fragrant coffee, light bread and good things generally, and reach his heart through his stomach. Is he fond of flattery about his looks? Let her study the dictionary for sweet words, if her supply gives out. Does he like to hear her talk about his brilliant intellect? Let her pore over the encyclopædia to give variety to the depth of her admiration. Flattery is a good thing to study up at all hazards, in all its delicate shades, but it must be skillfully done. The harpy who may try to coax him away will not do it absurdly. Is he fond of beauty? Here's the rub—let her be bright and tidy; that is half the victory. Next, let her bang her hair metaphorically and keep up with the times. A husband who sees his wife look like other people is not going to consider her "broken down."

Though it is a common sneer that a woman has admitted that her sex consider more, in marrying, the tastes of her friends than her own, yet it must be considered ludicrous that a man looks at his wife with the same eyes that other people do. Is he fond of literary matters? Listen to him with wide open eyes when he talks of them. A man doesn't so much care for a literary wife if only she will be literary enough to appreciate him. If she have literary inclinations let her keep them to herself. Men love to be big and great to their wives. That's the reason why a helpless little woman can marry three times to a sensible, self-reliant woman's none. Cultivate helplessness. Is he curious? Oh, then you have a treasure; you can always keep him, if you have a secret and only keep it carefully.

Is he jealous? Then, woman, this is not for you; cease torturing that fretted heart which wants you for his own, and teach him confidence. Is he ugly in his temper, and faultfinding? Give him a dose of his own medicine, skillfully done. Is he deceitful? Pity him for his weakness, treat him as one who is born with a physical defect, but put your wits to work—it is a bad case. It is well not to be too tame. Men do not waste their powder and shot on hens and barnyard fowls; they like the pleasure of pursuing wild game—quail and grouse and deer. A quail is a good model for a wife—neat and trim, with a pretty, swift way about it, and just a little capricious. Never let yourself become an old story; be just a little uncertain.

Another important fact is, don't be too good; it hurts his feelings and becomes monotonous. Cultivate a pleasant voice, so that this very mortal man may have his conscience prick him when he is in jeopardy; its pleasant ring will haunt him much more than would a shrill one. It is hard to do all this, besides taking care of the babies and looking after vexatious household cares, and smiling when he comes home, but it seems necessary. "To be born a woman is to be born a martyr," says a husband who for ten years has watched in amazement his wife treading the winepress of her existence. It is a pitiful sight to some men.

But if the wife does not make a study of these things, the harpy will, to steal away the honor from his silver hairs when he is full of years and the father of sons and daughters. At the same time, gude-wife, keep from trying any of these things on any mortal man but your own. These rules are only evolved in order to "keep a husband." The poor, weak creature would rather be good than bad, and it is woman's duty to hold him by every means in her power.—The Argonaut.

Shoulder of Veal Braised.

Buy a shoulder of veal, which, according to the locality of your butcher, will cost you from eight to fourteen cents a pound. And let us say just here, that on account of the quantities of immature veal thrown on the market, you had better be sure of your butcher and pay fourteen cents than to buy a suspicious article for eight. Untrimmed it will weigh seven or eight pounds. Have every bit of bone taken out and put them aside for stock. Make a pint bowl full of dressing, flavoring according to taste, but not strongly with any one condiment. Insert this in the pocket made by the butcher. Dot it all over with pieces of butter as large as a hickory nut. About two ounces will be sufficient, and season with pepper and salt. Bits of very nice dripping may be placed in the four corners of the pan. Dredge thoroughly with flour, and place in a good oven. Baste occasionally with the gravy made by the butter, but add no water until the meat is well browned. This will be from half to three quarters of an hour, when you may add a large cupful of boiling water. Baste every fifteen minutes until done. It will require about two hours. Carve down straight through the middle and cut to both ends; serve with spinach. This is a most economical and delicious dish. What is left may be sliced and heated in the sauce, or minced and used for a salad.

A Rare Talent.

The faculty of drawing out of persons with whom one is conversing the best there is in them—brighter things even than they suppose themselves capable of—is the rare gift with which Nature has endowed some women. George Eliot was a most charming person in conversation, though she was a women of few words, because of her intuitive insight into the thoughts of others. A few words would put her in possession, not of what they said, but of what they would fain have said, and she would so improve upon it that ordinary people went away charmed with her who had made them for once at least feel themselves to be wise. Long afterward, perhaps, she would call to their remembrance the wise or witty things which they could hardly believe themselves to have said, and which they assuredly never would have said but for her quickening influence.

Paper can be made quite transparent by spreading over it with a feather a very thin layer of resin dissolved in alcohol, applied to both sides.

Useful Recipes.

Rye Breakfast Cakes.—Two cups of rye meal, one-half cup of sweet milk, one teaspoonful of soda, and a little salt. Bake at once in gem pans.

Lemon Butter for Tarts.—Lemon butter is excellent for tarts. It is made as follows: One pound pulverized white sugar, whites of six eggs and yolks of two, three lemons, including grated rind and the juice. Cook twenty minutes over a slow fire, stirring all the while.

Parsley Sauce.—Wash a bunch of parsley in cold water, then boil it for six or seven minutes in salt and water; drain it, cut the leaves from the stalk and chop them fine. Have ready some melted butter and stir in the parsley; allow two small tablespoonfuls of leaves to one-half pint of butter. Serve with fish and with boiled fowls.

Baked Apple Pudding.—Six apples well stewed, quarter of a pound of butter, half of it stirred into the apples while hot; add sugar to taste; when cold add six eggs well beaten to the apples. Pound and sift six crackers, butter your dish and put in a layer of cracker and a layer of the prepared apple, and thus until you have filled your dish; let the cracker be the upper layer and put the remainder of your butter in small bits upon it. Bake half an hour.

Sauce Tartare.—Mix the following ingredients with a pint of good mayonnaise, and keep the sauce cool until wanted for use: One teaspoonful of chopped shallot or white onion, one tablespoonful each of finely chopped capers, parsley, and pickled gherkins; in the spring and summer add one tablespoonful of chopped green tarragon; in the winter substitute the sprig of tarragon which is always placed in the bottles containing capers, and which, of course, must be finely chopped.

Beef a la Mode.—Take ten or twelve pounds of beef, (rump,) and lard the meat through with ten long pieces of fat bacon; then put it into a long earthen pan with a calf's foot, four onions, two carrots, (if large cut in slices,) a bunch of parsley, two bay leaves, two sprigs of thyme, two cloves stuck into one of the onions, half a teaspoonful of pepper, one of salt, four wine-glasses of sherry, four wine-glasses of water, and a pound of steaked bacon cut in squares; put a cover over the pan, and make it air-tight with a paste of flour and water around the edges; place it in a moderate oven for four hours; then take it out of the pan and dress it upon a dish with vegetables; pass the gravy through a hair sieve and pour it over the meat and serve. This dish is the best eaten cold, when it should not be taken from the pan or the pan opened until nearly so.

Practical Proverbs.

I wouldn't gin a cent for de man who quotes old proverbs an' adopts second-han' mottoes,' began Brother Gardner, of the Detroit Limeklin Club, as the crunching of harvest apples suddenly ceased. "Dis am an aige fur ebery man to hold his own plow, an' who am content to let some one else hold it must be satisfied wid cobs in place of co'n. Ef I was so poo' an' low-down dat I had to pick rags, I would have my own maxims an' mottoes. Instead of sayin' 'Doan' put off till to-morrow what kin be dun to-day,' I would have it: 'Now, ole man, you git right up 'n dust, an' sling mo' rags dis week dan any odder chap kin in a month.' De odder day I met Comeback Jones. You know he am 'bout sixty y'ars old, an' bout as hard up as a woodchuck in a b'ar's grip. I axed de ole man how he was keepin' up wid de purcheshun, an' he replied, "Wall, ize mighty hard up; but dey say it am a long lane dat has no turn." Jist fink of an ole man did one No. 13 in de grave waitin' fur a turn in de lane to bring him heaps to eat an' lots to w'ar?—All frew life he has carried dat second-han' sayin' wid him, an' am yet a believer in it. Why didn't he have one of his own? If he had said forty years ago: "Doan' foller any lane, but cut across-lots," de wolf wouldn't be arter him to-day. A man who hes de will to make a motto hes de pluck to make it a success. 'Buckle down to bizness' am a better motto dan any book kin give ye. Let me, in closin', quote some of de mottoes an maxims belongin' to members of dis club:

Sir Isaac Walpole—'Doan' drap fifteen cents in reachin' fur a dollar.'

Waydown Bebee—'When ye can't dig frew a wall climb ober it.'

Giveadam Jones—'Git dar,' if it takes a leg.

Pickles Smith—'Ye can't swim a ribber by sittin' on a bank.'

Samuel Shin—'Set yer alarm-clock fur six in de mornin'.'

Trustee Pullback—'If de road am up hill, stiffen yer back-bone a little mo'.'

Kyan Johnson—'De man who w'ars his hat on his ear shows de empty side of his head.'

Elder Toots—'Take a job at fust sight, but doan' trade hosses till ye fink it ober.'

Writing for the Press.

There are thousands of young folks who long to write for the papers and get well paid for it. From the first they think they ought to receive three or four dollars a column, valuing their attempts by the labor expended upon them rather than by their capacity for pleasing the public. Now to get handsomely paid one must write handsomely; to write handsomely one must know what the public knows, or would like to know, and be able to tell it in such a style that the public will be eager to hear it. There are thousands who long to write, but have no special aptitude or preparation or resource for writing, just as there are thousands who long to be rich, but cannot compass their desires in that direction, and thousands who long to be beautiful, and vainly exhaust fashion, corsets and all that in the attempt. Meantime, those who are bound to succeed at writing, and "have it in them," to succeed, will keep on steadily and quietly at their books and pens, climbing up slowly, it may be, but steadily, to place and pay, first deserving success and then attaining it—just as men grow rich by small accretions at first and larger accretions afterward. There is an immense reading public, and there must be an immense army of writers to supply the demand. As education and intelligence advance, the demands on writers for higher grades of literary work and newspaper work, will advance, and the more difficult it will be to fill the highest place of honor and emolument in the world whereof the pen is the power. But the lists are open to all, and some must surely succeed. Why not you as well as another?

"Mamie," said he, and his voice was alarmingly low, "will you be my wife? Will you cling to me as the tender vine clings to the—" "Yes, I catch on," said she.

How Does He Sleep?

One of the most important things to know about any man upon whom you are going to place any dependence, is how he sleeps. Sleeplessness may sometimes be involuntary. There may have been some shock to the man's nerves which has made him insomnolent; but sleeplessness is more frequently voluntary. Men choose to push their studies or their work into those hours when they should sleep. It does not matter for what cause any man may do this, the mere fact of not sleeping spoils his case. He may spend his nights in the theater, in the study, or in the "protracted meeting." It will make no difference; the result to the body will be the same. The sleep was not had, and for that the man must pay.

One man may do with a little less sleep than another; but, as a general rule, if you want a clerk, a lieutenant, a lawyer, a physician, a legislator, a judge, a president or a pastor, do not trust your interests to any man that does not take eight good, solid hours of sleep out of every twenty-four. Whatever may be his reason for it, if he does not give himself that he will snap sometime just when you want him to be strong.

The intellectual and moral connections of sleeping have, I think, not been sufficiently appreciated. Men and boys have been praised for "burning the midnight oil." Now this "midnight oil" is a delusion and a snare. The student who is fast asleep at eleven o'clock every night and wide awake every morning at seven o'clock is going to surpass another student of the same intellectual ability who goes to bed after twelve and rises before five. In sleep, the plate on which the picture is to be taken is receiving its chemical preparation, and it is plain that that which is the best prepared will take the best picture.

Men who are the fastest asleep when they are asleep, are the widest awake when they are awake.

Great workers must be great resters.

Every man who has clerks in his employ ought to know what their sleeping habits are. The young man who is up till two, three and four o'clock in the morning, and must put in his appearance at the bank or store by nine or ten o'clock and work all day, cannot repeat this process many days without a certain shakiness coming into his system, which he will endeavor to steady by some delusive stimulus. It is this way that many a young man begins his course to ruin. He need not necessarily have been in bad company. He has lost his sleep; and losing sleep is losing strength and grace.—Rev. Dr. Deems.

Splendid Honors.

The public should note the fact that the only proprietary medicine on earth that ever received the supreme award of Gold Medal at the great International Word Fairs, Industrial Expositions and State Fairs, is St. Jacobs Oil. After the most thorough and practical tests, in hospitals and elsewhere, it has universally triumphed over all competitors, and been proclaimed by Judges and Jurors, including eminent physicians, to be the best pain-curing remedy in existence.

Missed the Train.

It was a colored man. His back was all dirt, one tail of his coat was gone, and every button had been ripped off his vest. He had two limps and a hitch as he came out, and there was a new French shade of sadness in his voice as he toed the mark and said:

"I missed de train, sah."

"Yes, it looks like it. Is your name Gen. Scott Green?'

"Yes, sah."

"What train did you miss?"

"I doan' just remember what train it was."

"Whar was you going?"

"Down the road."

"What road?'

"Dat's what I can't 'member, sah."

"Well do you remember of getting on a drunk?'

"No, sah. Maybe I called fur lemonade an' dey gin me whisky, but I doan' zackly 'member it. All I recollect is dat I missed de train.'

"I think you got the train all right. You were training around pretty lively when the officer got hold of your collar."

"I allus walks in my sleep, sah."

"Well, that's bad for you. You broke a window, kicked in a doo, and raised a big row. Have you observed the state of your wardrobe?"

"I has deserved dat I'm all broke up, sah. Dis suit ob close cost me seben dollars cash, an' I doan't believe it would sell fur six. Did dey roll me down sta'rs?"

"No; you resisted arrest and the officer had to mop you around a little."

"He did? I wish I'd bin dar to seen de fun. Kin I step out an' see my pardner 'bout two minits?"

"No, sir; you can step up to the workhouse for sixty days."

"Shoo! Why, dat upsets me from gwine to Bufferler.'

"Can't help that. Please fall back."

"Can't I settle dis lawsuit fur fifty cents?"

"No, sir. The omnibus will be along for you in about twenty minutes. Call the next case.'—Detroit Free Press.

Experience vs. Inexperience.

It is a matter of regret that in introducing Hood's Sarsaparilla, its proprietors are obliged to overcome a certain distrust by some people who have unfortunately bought worthless compounds mixed by persons ignorant of pharmacy. Messrs. C. I. Hood & Co. are reliable pharmacists of long experience and they make no claims for Hood's Sarsaparilla which cannot be substantiated by the strongest proof. And we say to those who lack confidence, read the unsolicited testimonials in favor of Hood's Sarsaparilla and then prove its merits by actual personal test. We are confident you will not be disappointed, but will find it a medicine of great value, which can be implicitly relied upon. 100 Doses $1.

HOW TO CURE SORE THROAT.—"One who has tried it" communicates the following seasonable item about curing sore throats to the New York Herald: "Let each one of your half million readers buy at any drug store one ounce of camphorated oil, and five cents worth of chlorate of potash. Whenever any soreness appears in the throat put the potash in half a tumbler of water, and with it gargle the throat thoroughly; then rub the neck thoroughly with the camphorate oil at night before going to bed, and also pin around the throat a small strip of woolen flannel. This is a simple, cheap and sure remedy.

"Acted Like a Charm."

This is what Mrs. Mayer; Baronne street, New Orleans, says of Brown's Iron Bitter. A "charm" works quietly, surely, promptly, thoroughly and with delightful effect. That is just the way this wonderful family medicine works on invalids who have been suffering the woes of liver complaint, dyspepsia and impoverished blood. Those who know its worth say it is a complete cure for dyspepsia, weakness, malaria, neuralgia, etc.

An End to Bone Scraping.

Edward Shepherd, of Harrisburgh, Ill., says, "Having received so much benefit from Electric Bitters, I feel it my duty to let suffering humanity know it. Have had a running sore on my leg for eight years; my doctors told me I would have to have the bone scraped or leg amputated. I used instead, three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven booxes Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and my leg is now sound and well." Electric Bitters are sold at fifty cents a bottle, and Bucklen's Arnica Salve at 25c. per box by C. A. Wright & Co.

DR. ELLIS & BIBLE WINE.

Alfred Speer, whose salesroom is at 16 Warren Street, New York, has large vineyards near Passaic, N. J., is extensively engaged in preserving Unfermented Grape juice from the Oporto Grapes and supplies it to many religious societies for Communion purposes. The following is from Dr John Ellis, who has written several works on Bible wine: "The writer obtained from Mr. Speer a bottle of his Unfermented Wine in February, 1883, and found it a very pleasant and nutricious wine. Mr. W. J. Parsons and the writer put a portion of this wine into a retort and distilled and condensed about one third of the contents of the retort. The distilled had neither the smell nor taste of alcohol, nor did chemical tastes indicate any trace of alcohol. Here then we have the unfermented wine actually in the market which the writer thinks is far more palpatable than fermented wine and is unp luted by leaven." Many religious societies are using this wine.

GOLDEN SEAL BITTERS are the great blood purifier, liver and kidney remedy and life giving principle, a perfect renovator and invigorator of the system carrying away all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition, enriching it, refreshing and invigorating both mind and body. They are easy of administration, prompt in their action, certain in their results, safe and reliable in all forms of disease. Every moment of our lives, every part of our bodies, is wearing out and is being built up anew. This work is accomplished by the blood. The blood if pure makes the entire circuit of the body every seven minutes. But if it becomes weak or vitiated and does not perform its work properly the system is actually poisoned by the worn-out matter clogging the vital organs instead of leaving the body. Cleanse the blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in pimples, eruptions, sores, etc. Keep the liver in order, the blood pure, health of the system will follow. Take GOLDEN SEAL BITTERS and no others. Sold by Baker & Hall and C. A. Wright & Co.

OLDEN TIMES

The formula by which Mishler's Herb Bitters is compounded is over two hundred years old, and of German origin. The entire range of proprietary medicines cannot produce a preparation that enjoys so high a reputation in the community where it is made as

MISHLER'S HERB BITTERS.

It is the best remedy for Kidney and Liver Complaints, Dyspepsia, Cramp in the Stomach, Indigestion, Malaria, Periodical Complaints, etc. As a Blood Purifier, it has no equal. It tones the system, strengthening, invigorating and giving new life.

The late Judge Hayes, of Lancaster Co., Pa., an able jurist and an honored citizen, once wrote: "Mishler's Herb Bitters is very widely known, and has acquired a great reputation for medicinal and curative properties. I have used myself and in my family several bottles, and I am satisfied that the reputation is not unmerited."

ON THE ENGINE.

Running a Locomotive While Deathly Sick—Something the Passengers Did Not Know—A Physician Saves an Engineer.

TAUNTON, MASS.

Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.:

DEAR SIR: I am an engineer on the Old Colony Railroad, and run the Fall River boat train between Fall River and Lowell, residing in Taunton. For ten years I suffered everything but death from dyspepsia. Often I had such blinding sick headaches that I could scarcely see. I think this was due partly to irregular habits of eating and partly to the jar of the engine. Sometimes my head would stop like neuralgia, and again the pain would settle in my eyes, which would feel as big as a man's fists. My breath was very offensive, and my food soured as soon as it entered my stomach. In fact my stomach felt as though it were a great raw and sore surface, and what a gong it gave perhaps you can imagine.

In the summer and fall of 1876 when we had the heavy centennial travel, the constant jar brought on acute attacks nearly every week and I thought I should have to leave the road. But I kept at work until the next spring, when I grew so much worse that I could virtually eat nothing, and concluded that my labor and my life too, were about over.

Remember that I had tried every medicine I heard of, and had been treated by some of the best physicians in Taunton and Lowell. At this critical time Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy was recommended to me. It was new to me, and with my experience in medicines you can easily forgive me for saying that I had not a particle of faith in it.

I had taken it but a few days when I began to get better. The raw and sore feeling left my stomach, and the snapping pains left my head, and soon I was all right, and have been ever since. It is the only thing that ever did me the least good, and it drove every ache, pain and discomfort completely out of my body. Now I keep Kennedy's Favorite Remedy with me on my engine, and it goes wherever I go.

Why, I believe Kennedy's Favorite Remedy will cure anything. One night a while ago, John Layton, an engineer who runs the main line boat train from Boston, came on my engine sick as death. He was worn out with work, had a high fever, and was so nervous he almost broke down crying. "Nonsense, John," I said, "cheer up, I've got something on my engine that will set you up in a fifty." I took out a bottle of Favorite Remedy, lifted his head and gave him a good dose. He went to bed. Two days after I saw him looking healthy as a butcher. "Dan," he says, "what was that stuff you gave me the other night?" "It was Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, Rondout, N. Y.," said I. "Well I don't care whose Remedy it is, it's the thing for a man on the railroad." So say we all.

Yours, etc., DANIEL FITTS.

This preparation goes to the root of the disease by purifying the blood and rousing every organ into healthy action. It is useful at home, shops, in office, everywhere.

Dr. David Kennedy, Physician and Surgeon, Rondout, N. Y.

FARMERS' SOCIAL CLUB.

Friday evening, Feb. 6. The Farmers' Social Club met at the residence of Mr. John Gillespie when the following program was carried out:

Music—Grant and Henry.
Essay—Eva Rector.
Declamation—Frankie Gillespie.
Select Reading—Anna Everhart.
Essay—Ellen Fisher.
Chip Basket—Minnie Rector.
Singing—Choir.

The entire program was so well performed that comment from the Secretary is entirely unnecessary. The question, Would it be more profitable to sell our cream than to make it into butter, was discussed by nearly all the farmers and farmer's wives present. Mrs. F. C. Rector had written to parties in Pittsfield who had sold their cream during last season, and who replied, saying that they thought they obtained more for their cream than they could have got by making it into butter. Mrs. Rector had also visited the creamery at Adrian to ascertain if they would come as far out as Clinton township provided they could get any considerable amount, and also how much they would pay for it. She ascertained that they would, and that they would pay as much for the cream that would make a pound of butter as the market price of the butter at the time of gathering the cream. Some parties had talked with Mr. Rossell of Rossa, who sold his cream last summer. He said they got more for their cream than they could have obtained if they had made it into butter, and more than it was to their entire satisfaction. The most of the ladies present were in favor of selling their cream if they could sell it so as to realize enough to make their own butter. Mrs. Rector wished all those who would sell their cream to hand in their names to the Secretary. The following gave in their names: Mrs. F. C. Rector, Mrs. George Griswold, Mrs. R. B. Gillespie, Mrs. F. H. Green, Mrs. Wm. Waldron, Mr. Kellogg and others who will undoubtedly sell when they become satisfied that they can get as much for their cream as they can by making it into butter. Club adjourned to meet in two weeks at the residence of Mr. Jacob Everhart, Friday evening, Feb. 20. Program for next meeting:

Inst. Music—Anna Everhart.
Essay—Grace Gillespie.
Declamation—Phillip Hendershot.
Chip Basket—Lizzie Henderson.
Select Reading—Emma Schreder.
Singing—Choir.

THE ADRIAN ART LOAN.

The Adrian art loan opened Saturday evening under very favorable auspices. Located, as the "Loan" is, in the new Rowley building on South Winter street, and only a step from Maumee, the place must be popular, for where so much superior art is to be conveniently visited, there are people enough in Adrian and the surrounding country who will evince an appreciation of it. The attendance on the opening evening was in full corroboration of the above statements.

At 7 o'clock the doors were unlocked, Mr. Fred H. Knapp being located at the ticket office, and Mr. C. N. Turner received the pasteboards at the door. Three Vanderpoele electric lights made the elegance of the interior very apparent, and caused every portion of the walls to be available for the exhibition, so that from the frowning savage in the rear of the ticket office, around the entire room, to the 56 years old dress behind the door keeper, every foot of space is enabled to be occupied fully and completely.

With so much to admire and praise it will be impossible to particularize to day, at the same time too much cannot be said in favor of the energy and good taste which have so largely contributed to the success of the affair. The display does not consist entirely of the products of the painter's brush, many objects of interest from distant portions of the globe being exhibited. The Chinese exhibit, alone, is well worth the price of admission. Taken altogether the art loan promises to be a valuable institution in Adrian for the next few weeks.

The pictures have all been plainly numbered, and the catalogue, which is now in the hands of the printer, will be ready for distribution in a short time, when the enjoyment of the sights or will be greatly enhanced. Arrangements are being made for various excursions from other towns, so that it is likely that the loan will be attended by a large number of visitors from out of town. It richly deserves to be.—Adrian Times.

$1 00 for 50 cents. Any reader of this paper who will send 50 one cent stamps to the American Rural Home, Rochester, N. Y., before March 15, 1885, will receive that handsome paper, postage free, until Jan. 1, 1886. The Rural is a large eight page, forty-column Weekly paper, now in its fifteenth year, the cheapest farm journal in the world. The price is $1 00 a year in advance, but the above offer of 50 cents in postage stamps will be accepted if sent in before March 15, 1885. This special offer will not appear again in this paper. If you want the Rural Home, subscribe at once. Send for sample copy, and see what a bargain is offered.

Fence builders will do well to read the following. The courts have decided that no boundary fence can be made of barbed wire without the consent of the persons owning the adjacent land, and any man who puts a barbed wire fence along the highway, renders himself liable for all injuries resulting to stock passing along said highway.

O'DONOVAN ROSSA

Few men have been fortunate enough to receive the amount of gratuitous advertisement that O'Donovan Rossa has. Although the journalists on this side of the Atlantic, almost without exception, treat him and his pretentions with contemptuous indifference, he is in England considered as the instigator of all schemes intended to further the cause of Ireland. For years the English press clamored for the punishment of Rossa, as the only effectual means of putting a stop to the dynamite outrages that occurred in England. His real name is not O'Donovan Rossa but Jerry Donovan. He was born in County Cork, Ireland in 1845. He lost his father in 1847 and the family were forced to relinquish their holdings in June of that year. Young Donovan started a grocery store and continued in the business until 1865 when he was arrested for being connected with the Phoenix Society, an organization which was the nucleus of the Fenian brotherhood. He was cast into prison. In 1866 he was again taken into custody and was not released until 1870. After his release, in the latter year he made his way for New York and there went into hotel business. He started the Irish Bystander, a journal which soon became the recognized organ of the Irish party in America. The connection of Rossa with the Land League made his name familiar to every one in the United States. His office became the rendezvous of the so called dynamite party, and his paper published a list of contributors to the fund for the liberation of Ireland. The attempt upon the life of Captain Phelan in Rossa's office is fresh in the memory of the public, and it is believed that Rossa knows more about the motives of the crime than he is willing to tell. His shooting by Mrs. Dudley following so closely upon the other crime, lends greater prominence to the already tragic affair.

ESTATE OF HENRY BURNETT.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee—ss.

At a session of the Probate Court for the county of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office in the city of Adrian, on Friday the 6th day of February in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-five.

Present, Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Henry Burnett, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of William Q. Burnett, a brother of said deceased, praying that administration of the estate of said deceased may be granted to Charles Burridge or some other suitable person.

Thereupon it is ordered, That Monday the 9th day of March next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

PUTZ-POMADE!

Is an article introduced into this country for the polishing of all kinds of metals.

GOLD, SILVER, BRASS, COPPER, TIN, ZINC, &c.

As a polish it is a wonder worker, and it is bound to become the favorite with everyone who has occasion to polish metals. With this pomade you can polish a spoon, a cup, a watch, or any similar article while you are shaking the bottle or getting ready to work with a liquid polish. This Pomade will not run like a liquid, or make a dust like a powder polish, consequently it will not, like them, soil or stain the adjacent parts of any article on which it is used.

It is invaluable for the polishing of scabbs, show cases, musical instruments and especially metals with a rough surface, where it is difficult to apply liquid or powder polish. It will polish gold, silver, copper, brass, tin, nickle plate or any other metal. It will not scratch or injure the finest gold. It will polish quicker and easier than any other article.

TESTIMONIALS.

A few of the many testimonials and references received we give below, which should convince the most skeptical that this polish is all that is represented to be, and no humbug.

Tecumseh, Mich., Jan. 22, 1885.

ORR BROS.—The Universal Metal Putz-Pomade we have given a fair and thorough trial, and find it superior to any we have ever used, and we have tried a good many different kinds. We take pleasure in recommending it to our departments and others in need of a metal polish. We find this pomade free from acid and grit, and it gives a good durable polish, lasting much longer than all others we have tried.

ORR BROS.—Having tried Putz-Pomade I can recommend it as a perfect polish.

JNO. A. HUGHES, Agent L. S. & M. S. Ry.

Tecumseh, Mich., Jan. 13, 1885.

ORR BROS.—I have used Putz Polish. It is the best polish ever used on any kind of metal. It is worth a trial.

F. P. DEGEL,
Prop. Tecumseh Novelty Works.

Tecumseh, Jan. 1, 1885.

ORR BROS., Agents for Putz Polish—The Universal Metal Putz-Pomade will polish quicker and easier, and produce a better polish than any other preparation not containing acid or grit. Would recommend it as the best.

P. J. WELLING, General Repair Shop.

Tecumseh, Mich., Jan. 12, 1885.

ORR BROS., Dear Sirs—Putz-Pomade is as good as recommended.

HOTON & HOSMER,
Jewelers.

Tecumseh, Mich., Jan. 12, 1885.

ORR BROS.—Putz-Pomade is good and can be relied upon for all that it is advertised to do.

GEO. E. ADAMSON, Jeweler.

Tecumseh, Mich., Jan. 8, 1885.

GENTLEMEN—After a thorough trial of Putz Pomade we find it superior to anything else for polishing brass, silver, gold or any other metal. It will not scratch, and gives a polish as good as when new. As a polish it is perfect.

A. ANDERSON & SONS, Grocers.

Tecumseh, Mich., Jan. 12, 1885.

DEAR SIRS—Having tried Putz Pomade Polish we cheerfully recommend it as being the most perfect polish we have ever used.

Respectfully, W. & S. W. ANDERSON & CO.,
Dry Goods and Carpets.

Tecumseh, Mich., Jan 20, 1885.

Having used the Putz-Pomade in cleaning and polishing metal trimmings on harness, I can cheerfully recommend it as no humbug, but the best I ever used. CHAS. BIDWELL, Ex-Sheriff.

TECUMSEH, Mich., Jan. 10, 1885.

We have had some experience in goods of this class and can safely say that Putz is the best.

C. A. WRIGHT & CO., Druggists.

Received by Martin Barley, Agent for Orr Bros. at Adrian.

Mrs. F. J. Hough:—"Excellent for brass and silver."

Mrs. Chas. Walker:—"Best Polish ever used."

Mrs. W. S. Norton:—"The Universal Metal Putz-Pomade will polish quicker, and easier, and produce a better polish than any other preparation not containing acid or grit."

W. McConnell, dry goods:—"Excellent for use at show cases."

John Kinzel:—"Best ever used."

Fred Barse:—"The best polish we ever used."

Val. Fox:—"First-class polish for soda fountain."

Chas. Humphrey:—"Best I have tried."

It is also highly recommended by Ex-Ald Shurtleck, Ex-Mayor Corbin, Ex. Ald. Clark, Geo. R. Allis, Ed Sword, Rev. John S. Holmes, Mrs. Dr. V. H. Baker, Mrs. Chas. Hayden, Mrs. Matt Chittenden, Mrs. Geo. Knight, Mrs. John Mason.

GET A BOX! TRY IT!

And you will soon become interested, and turn your attention to the nickel plating on the stove; then, after skirmishing through the silver ware, you will fix the blackest part of the coffee pot so that you can use it as a mirror. If you can think of any old brass on the premises that has not been cleaned for a generation, shine it up to make sure there is no humbug about the polish. Now give your watch just twenty seconds labor, and by that time you will feel obliged to find and tell some one of the merits of this wonderful article, and ever after you will be a walking and a talking advertisement of the Putz-Pomade.

PUTZ-POMADE

Is useful in the household, in the store, in the workshop, in every place where metal work is to be kept bright. Try it for show cases, andirons, silverware, harness trimmings, scales, musical instruments, stove trimmings, door handles, or any kind of metal work. Any dealer will refund your money if you are not satisfied.

ATKINS ELECTRIC LIGHT SOAP SAVES CLOTHES

Wash as you please, and it will make you its friend. Soak, boil and don't rub; or soak, rub and don't boil. We advocate dispensing, so far as possible with the washboard, because it wears the clothes out and wears you out. The soap contains no mineral to give it weight, and no pulp to give it size, therefore frequent boiling will not yellow or injure the clothes, but, soaking and boiling with ELECTRIC LIGHT SOAP does clean and disinfect them. One thing is certain; it produces glorious results, is an economical soap and is so pure and harmless that the writer washes his head with it without injuring a hair, and he isn't bald either. SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.

CLINTON CHATTER.

Mrs. Geo. A. Kies, of Tecumseh, spent Monday and Tuesday in Clinton.

Bainbridge and Hause attended the funeral of T. T. Romeyn last Friday afternoon.

C. S. Burroughs has just put in a stock of Seaside Libraries, in pocket and ordinary editions, which he will rent or sell.

Mrs. Port Smith was quite sick last week but we are pleased to learn that she is much better.

Thomas Matthews took a sleighload of ladies out to Mrs. James Stewart's last Tuesday afternoon. They report a very pleasant ride and call.

Miss Blanche Smith has commenced a course of vocal lessons under the instruction of Mrs. Josie St. John.

J. B. Hause and wife start this week for Washington, D. C., to be present at the dedication of the Washington Monument. He will visit his sister-in-law, Miss Lizzie Roff, and we believe he intends to remain there until after the inauguration.

Mr. Will Wood and Miss McCall were married last Thursday evening at the bride's home in Flat Rock, Mich. Mrs. Wood, was formerly a Clinton girl and will be warmly welcomed here by her many friends.

The little daughter of Prof. J. B. Lallin, has been quite ill. About three weeks ago she had the misfortion to fall on the stove burning her hands and arms badly. Shortly after she had chicken pox, and has since had a siege with ear-ache. She is now improving, however.

Mrs. Judd, mother of William Judd, of Bridgewater, was taken suddenly ill last Monday night. Dr. Burchard was summoned and pronounced the case paralysis.

The program at the Blue Ribbon Club last Sunday afternoon was unusually interesting. Contrary to the usual custom we believe all who had promised to take part in the exercises were present. The program consisted of choruses, solos, readings, and recitations. We are glad to see so much interest kept up in this organization. It speaks well for the rising generation and the future welfare of this place.

Mr. William Bartlett is visiting Clinton this week.

Last Friday afternoon as a couple of gentlemen from Tecumseh, who had driven up here in the forenoon, were preparing to start for home, the horse became unmanageable and ran down Tecumseh street and by John Smith's cross-walk, turned suddenly, throwing both men out in the snow. No one was hurt and the gentlemen soon took a fresh start and we should think from the appearance of things when they left Clinton that they were likely to reach home safely.

ADDISON ATOMS.

[This letter reached us too late for publication last week.—ED. HERALD.

We were somewhat amused to notice an editorial jotting copied in last week's HERALD from a previous issue of the Hudson Gazette, in which the editor effects to submit an original summary of the people and propensities of our village. Now we have no objections to his so doing, provided he will remember to give us due credit for such of the facts produced as he gleans from our correspondence to the HERALD. "A word to the wise is sufficient."

The most destructive fire occurred here Thursday of last week, that has ever been known in the history of the place. Three valuable structures were reduced to ashes within two hours time, and property to the value of over ten thousand dollars destroyed. At about half past one o'clock in the afternoon the alarm of fire was sounded, and people rushed to the street from all directions, only to find the fire fiend in full possession of R. J. Eaton's furniture and notion store, which was located just west of the creek, on West Main Street. Owing to the combustable nature of its contents, the building was entirely enveloped in flames before an entrance could be effected to rescue the contents. Power & Son's drug store, which stood within a few feet of the burning building, was soon to be doomed to a like fate, and the crowd which had by this time swelled to nearly a thousand people, at once set to work removing its contents, and succeeded in securing about one-fourth of the same in tolerable fair condition, but were prevented from doing anything further by the advancing flames and intense heat.

The Exchange Hotel, a large and well fitted structure, standing on the corner of the block, and about ten feet from the drug store, was next to succumb to the all destroying element. Vigorous efforts were made to prevent this result by drenching the hotel with water, and pushing the wall of the other building from it, but to no avail. Just as victory seemed to appear possible, the flames were seen climbing each other up the heated side and along the cornice of the hotel and for a few moments the excitement was intense. The wind was blowing steadily from the north east and huge sheets of flame shot far out in the street threatening the large stores of G. M. Lewis & Son as well as numerous other places on the south side of the street. Water was used freely on the roof and sides, and another half hour sufficed to proclaim the fact of safety to the remaining portions of the village, and what but two short hours previous was one of the finest business blocks in town, was a mass of smouldering ruins.

The building first named was valued at $800, and the contents at about $2,500 as we are informed by Mr. H. S. Eaton, who was manager. The total amount of insurance is reported to be $2,100. The Michigan Bell Telephone Co. also loose an entire office.

The entire loss to Power & Son will reach fully $2,500. Insurance on stock and building is about $2,000.

The Exchange Hotel is a total loss to Mr. Terpening, there being no insurance whatever. As to the origin of the fire, no satisfactory solution has been produced as yet. Many theories are extant upon the probable or possible source, but still the real cause remains as it doubtless will, shrouded in mystery.

On the evening of the same day there was no little excitement occasioned in Wheatland township, about two miles west, and one mile south of this place by the appearance of a wild animal of the carniverous species, and about three or four times as large as a full grown domestic cat. While Mr. M. Lewis and his brother Mat were passing the Bannister burying ground between this place and North Wheatland in a cutter, the animal sprang out from the road side and attempted to seize the horse by the throat, but as the horse showed fight also, the animal retreated to the hitching-post in front of the fence, and after running along to one end of it, stopped and remained still for a moment. Mr. L. being anxious to learn more of the strange intruder pursued it with his whip, but the animal held his ground with threatening growls and Mr. Lewis wisely withdrew. The animal is probably a wild cat or a young lynx, and the neighborhood excitement he occasions causes an appropriate suspension of all dog fight and society gossip.

HOLLOWAY HASH.

[This letter was snow-bound and failed to reach us last week.]—ED. HERALD.

Charles Sykes, the ten year old son of widow Sykes living on the Wells place with Brad Parker, is very sick with typhoid fever.

Kelly, Hoxie & Co., have sold their goods to Osgood & Dennison of Adrian and are now taking an inventory of the stock on hand. Sorry to part with old friends, but then, if the new firm will just chalk down what few things we shall need to keep soul and body together, we will endeavor not to complain. And why not? Everybody knows that time is money.

Floyd Florence has bought the blacksmith shop and proposes to go into business for himself. That's right, Floyd; nothing ventured, nothing had. But then the question arrises, what is Johnnie going to do?

Mrs. Dora Crum is at home for a while to rest up and also to give the snow a little time to settle.

Wm. Brainard went to Buffalo with stock last week, and expects to go again this week if the weather softens down a little. Says he went across the river, below the falls, on the ice which in some places is seventy feet thick, a large amount of which is produced by the spray.

The dissecting of a dog claiming several owners by the physiology class one day last week, has caused a little ripple of excitement throwing several persons into violent paroxysms of grief. We hope for the sake of peace that the boys will desist from killing any more female perps.

Chas. and Philo Lassing drove some fine steers to Toledo last week. Charlie says he can outrun any steer in Lenawee county, provided always that he don't fall down in the snow.

Burt Mize has been granted a lay off for a few days on account of poor health. The trouble seemed to be that he could not find time to tend to the telegraphing and do justice to his nose at the same time.

BROOKLYN BALLAST.

T. W. Beckett, of the Brooklyn House, has a new wife, and Laura Stowler a sprained foot. The first was acquired at Jackson, the latter at French's rink, and it is safe to say her repentance has begun and if it continues as long as the lameness, will not be transient. Two or three other ladies are disfaciated by sprained wrists and promiscous tumbles, but the yet fortunate disregard the warning.

A snow storm has closed avenues to trade and there is lively complaining of dullness in business except among doctors who are wading among drifts, hunting for turn overs while on their way to visit the sick.

Sudden changes from cold to colder has produced lung troubles, but the epidemic slowest of cure is Word poisoning.

O. Vaughn, of Springville, is said to be located here. He has been a weekly visitor enough to get acquainted with our ladies, and having accepted them merits no more sympathy than any other wifeless fellow.

Charley Lawrence has been missing at roll call for several days. He is wanted to answer present for saying he could stick a certain village into one corner of his favorite town, and leave room enough for the New Orleans Exposition, which is all the same as scandal. A few talk of going to New Orleans, but not any trunks packed yet. If those who have time and money to invest in sight seeing would but tell of things seen instead of committing to paper the indefinite whole, we might get some idea of the world, shipped on consignment, but the vast array seems to daze them and in attempting to tell all at once they bewilder imagination. Glittering generalities make readable letters, having learned it is nice, a description of one palm tree so we may know how it looks, is worth more than enlogies to home stayers.

LAKE RIDGE LACONICS.

This beats the oldest inhabitant for an open winter. Snow two feet deep on an average and mercury down among the twenties.

The Ridge and north and south roads are drifted full, men are shoveling and teams tramping to work a way through.

Ed. Osgood started for Britton with a load of live hogs the 7th inst. upsetting on the Ridge in a snow drift and with the assistance of several neighbors succeeded in reloading and returning home a chilled lot.

Our mail carrier did not put in an appearance from the 7th to the 17th inst.

E. R. Olds started for New York the 8th but got snow bound at Nora where he remained until the 14th when he resumed.

Rev. Dutton, while returning from a funeral at Macon the 9th, got stuck in the snow near Grange hall, leaving his horse and footed it home.

We might relate numerous other similar incidents; in fact the rule is to upset several times in going a few miles. Frozen feet, fingers, ears and noses are also the rule.

Those depending on green wood are in a bad fix.

Stock is suffering considerably from the extreme cold.

Easlick's mill yard is full of logs, but the mill has been shut down during the recent sad affliction of the family.

We notice that Easlick has come out with a new card discounting the price on his premium red tile 10 per cent and white tile 20 per cent during the next 40 days, and giving farmers their dinner and teams to hay. That ought to move tile when the weather and roads will permit.

RIDGEWAY RAMBLES.

No mail was the cause of our delay last week.

Not much of an open winter is it? Wednesday and Thursday morning of last week were the coldest of the season. Mercury tumbled to 30 and 35.

We had no mail over the M. & O. from Tuesday noon of last week until Sunday.

A. R. Amer and Wm. Allen went to Jerome and got snow bound a week ago Monday.

Mrs. Chas. Simmons and her son Don, of Dundee, visited friends here a week ago Saturday.

Mr. Volney Miller was in our village last week and is looking hearty.

Last week Tuesday was something of a genuine Dakota blizzard. We have no love for Dakota now.

The social will be held at the home of Mrs. Chas. Gove this week Friday evening. The committee on conundrums will report and extend a cordial invitation to all.

Mr. Sam Branigan and Miss Jennie McClure of Tecumseh, called on friends here a week ago Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Richard of Dundee, visited friends here last week.

The missionary society held its regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Dr. Loree on Wednesday, Feb. 4th. The attendance was good. Refreshments were served according to the rules and regulations of the society, and all report a pleasant time.

Mr. Ezra Smith, of St. John, Clinton Co., who is attending school at the university, visited friends here Friday.

The Sunday school enjoyed a sleigh-ride to Tecumseh Saturday. The ladies had a grand dinner ready for them on their return.

A number of young folks took a sleigh ride Saturday afternoon to Dundee and spent the evening at Miss Nellie Rappleyea's. They report a pleasant time.

The special school meeting for Dist. No. 4, which was called to fill the vacancies of Director and Moderator, was held on Monday night. Dr. R. H. Nelson was elected Director and T. H. Temple Moderator, by two thirds vote.

Mrs. Richard Wiggins after a short suffering sickness, died on Monday night of last week at her father's, Mr. Alex. Easlick. The funeral was held on Wednesday afternoon at the house. Rev. W. J. Clack officiated and the young friends of the village furnished the singing.

Mrs. Cornelius Exelby, who has been sick for a long time with consumption, passed away on Monday night of last week. The funeral was held at the house on Thursday afternoon. Rev. W. J. Clack officiated. She leaves a husband and mother and a little babe a few weeks old, who mourn her loss.

Sunday afternoon, Mr. Sanford Hause, who has been failing for a long time, passed away. He was an old pioneer, 79 years old. The funeral was held at the church on Tuesday afternoon. Rev. B. F. Rapp preached the discourse.

RIDGEWAY LITERARY.

On Friday evening, Feb. 27, the literary Society will give a public entertainment at Waging's hall. The program is being carefully prepared and in character is more like an exhibition than any heretofore. The dialogue alone will take nearly an hour and promises to be well presented as the characters are well chosen. This undoubtedly will be the best entertainment ever given by our local talent. The following is the program.

Music—Musical Museum.
Recitation—Miss Nellie Freer.
Dec.—David Gibson.
Music—Miss Ida Arner.
Rec.—Miss Ella Cadmus.
Reading—Miss Ada Loree.
Song—J. D. Arner.
Oration—G. H. Hill.
Poem—Frank Temple.
Music—Juveniles.
Paper—G. P. Waring.
Music—Miss Ella Jackson.
Recess.
Music—Comb Orchestra.
Dialogue—Too Much of a Good Thing, nine characters.
Music—Miss Belle Barlow.
Tableaux.

This entertainment will be given to obtain funds to defray the expenses of the past term. An admission of 15c or family tickets for 50c will be charged. Commence at 7:30 promptly.

EX. COM.

FLASHES BY C. T. LINE.

Rev. A. A. Wall of Tipton will preach a sermon to the children next Sabbath to be illustrated by blackboard sketches.

This cold weather is hard on windmill piping as M. D. Alexander and S. V. Hollinbeck have already found out.

Congregational Social at John Joseph's, Franklin, to morrow, Friday afternoon and evening.

Mrs. Margaret Mudgett has been very sick but is some better now.

Dr. Hamilton was summoned by telegraph to visit Mrs. James Osborn of Franklin, last Sunday. She is reported better at this writing.

Frank Buck of Franklin has a very sick child.

The Newberg school closed three days last week on account of the severe cold.

The oldest individual scratches his head and tries to think when it was colder than last week, but young America is ahead this time.

N. K. Bowen was summoned by C. T. wire to attend the funeral of Mrs. Julia Wiggins of Lake Ridge. And also, Mr. Albert Barnes to the funeral of Dr. McFarlane of Blissfield, but neither could get there on account of the bad condition of the roads.

Uncle Tom's son resides at Adrian. Perhaps that is the reason why colored people are excluded from the rink.

MAGIC REVEALED

Mysteries of Ledgerdemain and Second Sight Explained.

Key to the System by Which a Blindfolded Person May See—Some of the Tricks Which Won Success for Heller.

A few years ago the amusement-loving "public" of New York were aroused beyond measure by the second-sight performances of Robert Heller. They were the talk of the town for many days, because they seemed to be outside the pale of ordinary feats of legerdemain, and to have an almost supernatural character. The distrust was better expressed in any authoritative way than current conversation in the ordinary mind, which, as every one formed his own pet theory as to how it was done, which theory was generally upset subsequently by Heller himself.

He (Heller) other did some remarkable things in the way of second sight. He could take a quart of milk that was brought to the theater for the express purpose of puzzling him, and Miss Heller (Heller's blindfolded wife) would tell its name, color and date. While he held the watch in his hand, she would describe its appearance and even give its number, and, lots of all sorts, in the audience opened a book at random Miss Heller would tell the number of the page at which it was opened, and read the contents of the page. This trick especially made credulous New Yorkers believe there was some unknown power at work in the mental or psychological make-up of Miss Heller or Robert Heller, and they were anxious to know how the thing was done. Letters were written to the newspapers purporting to disclose the secret, but falling widely short of the real truth; magazine articles were published on the subject; theatre parties and social clubs found an interesting topic of discussion in this mighty problem; but everybody after awhile, decided, with Dundreary, that it was one of those things that "no fellow can find out."

Robert Heller fully realized the popular perplexity on the subject, and he would occasionally in his witty, chatty style pretend to give the secret away, something after this fashion, at the close of an entertainment: "Ladies and gentlemen: You may say this is magnetism, spiritualism, rheumatism, or what you please, but you will probably decide after all that it is simply Hellerism." This sally, after the curiosity of the audience was whetted with the expectation of being able to pluck out the heart of the mystery, usually brought down the house, and everybody left the theatre with the pleasant sense of having been delightfully puzzled beyond their powers of comprehension.

So long as Heller could make a fortune out of the second-sight business it is not at all strange that the story of his art was never accurately told, and that many bright minds puzzled themselves over it and never discovered the truth is testimony to the remarkable system which was mastered by him and his apt pupil, Miss Heller. It is the purpose of this article, however, to give in brief such an insight into Heller's methods as will enable the veriest tyro to at least understand how the trick was accomplished, even if he should not have the natural ability and quickness of perception to master its details sufficiently well to repeat it before a parlor full of amazed listeners. The disclosures herein made come substantially from a well-known young amateur of Brooklyn, Mr. Harry S. Livingston, who learned from Heller's own lips some of his well-known secrets and from E. J. Dale, who was an assistant of the magician on the stage, or a "confederate," as cynical spectators would say, for some time, and was the assistant of Mr. Livingston for two years. Mr. Livingston, who has followed the pursuit of scientific magic purely from a love of the art, and is seen in public only in connection with entertainments for "sweet charity's sake," has in his $10,000 collection of magical apparatus many articles used by Heller in his performances in the old hall in Twenty-fourth Street, now known as the Madison Square Theater. As Heller is dead, and Miss Heller is reported to be in London delighting Englishmen of the world and American tourists in the role of a dispenser of beverages that delight the interior man, no harm can evidently come to any one by a plain recital of the whole matter. The few magicians who pretend to possess the gift of second sight have much simpler systems, which are far less surprising to the average spectator than Heller's, and in comparison are puerile and unworthy of consideration.

Heller had several methods of performing the trick, which he would change from night to night to prevent discovery at the hands of those persistent persons who attended his seances every evening in order to finally discomfit him by a discovery. By using several methods a night everybody would be more mystified than ever. In the first place, Heller formed as a class [illegible] relations a list of over ten [illegible] persons, [illegible] Heller and his [illegible] the [illegible] which [illegible] the [illegible] the [illegible] Miss Heller [illegible] Heller [illegible] Heller [illegible]

KINDLING WOOD.

A Great Industry in New York City That is Little Thought About.

With winter comes kindling wood. And what an immense amount of it, too! The fires in furnaces, stoves and grates are constantly going out, and as constantly require relighting. The rattle of the sticks dumped from the cart down the coal hole is a sound almost as familiar as a campaign cheer, while in front of every grocery are tall columns of the more aristocratic kindling that is tied up in round bunches and piled one on top of the other.

By the uninitiated kindling wood is considered a mere bagatelle in household arrangements, a convenient domestic economy that utilizes all the odds and ends of wood that will accumulate and otherwise would prove a nuisance. But the odds and ends don't supply the demand, or begin to. The manufacture of this insignificant article is a great and growing industry that employs hundreds of men and consumes as many cords of wood in this city every day.

Where is it all made?

A Herald reporter went to see. Most of the yards are on the West side, in the vicinity of Gansevoort Market, yet there are others, and no inconsiderable number, either, scattered along both water fronts from the Battery to Harlem River.

The reporter, searching for a yard, threaded his way through those narrow, dirty and obstructed streets that branch out of the old Greenwich village, and are cut short in their bewildering course by the North River. The peculiar odor of pine and fresh cut wood greeted him as he went along. Within a couple of blocks of the river was a long row of straggling sheds, with a tall brick chimney rising from their midst. The buildings, chimney and everything connected with the establishment was painted lead color. Sawdust floated everywhere, and the hum of buzz saws drowned all other sounds. Under the eaves of a one-story building were eight little roofs projecting over eight apertures, from which tiffed streams of kindling wood were tumbling into eight carts drawn up underneath. In less than ten minutes a cart was filled, and its place quickly taken by others that were constantly arriving, the streams never stopping meanwhile. Through an archway further down an intermittent procession of one-horse carts was filing up from the docks loaded with straight grained and sound looking cord wood. The reporter followed, a cart into the enclosure.

"Is this all going to be kindling wood?" is the first thought that strikes a beholder. The place was only typical of dozens of others. A description of one will answer for all. A large yard, nearly filled with tiers of cord wood, that rise in steps from the height of a man to over a score of feet. On the steps are laborers, with blue blouses and overalls, passing up the sticks to other laborers above. Under the sheds are rows of sawing machines, from which the chunks, as they come out, are dropped into a slide that places them into an upright position under a "splitter," an arrangement of crossed knives that descend with trip hammer force on the end of the stick. From each cutter is a revolving belt, with brackets attached, that carries the split wood away and dumps it in the carts outside.

In another building are the bundlers, the men who make up the little bundles of short sticks. Each bundler has a reservoir in front of him with an opening in the bottom, from which he takes the pieces to fill the gauge by which they are measured. The deftness displayed by the bundlers in picking out sticks that fit the required crevice, and the rapidity with which they fill the gauges, are remarkable. When full, a lever power is applied by the foot, and the bunch squeezed down to dimensions of about, a foot in diameter. By an ingenious arrangement a cord is in constant readiness to be knotted around the bunch.

"It is a rather odd economy that kindling is made out of one of the most expensive timbers—Virginia pine," said an old dealer.

"What does it cost?"

"Never less than six dollars a cord. It is all brought up here from Virginia in sloops. But it is getting higher and less plentiful each year, and it is only a question of a short time when the supply will give out altogether."

"What will you do then?"

"Oh, get it from some remote point. The center of wood supply has gradually been moving away from New York and the consumption of wood done away with as much as possible."

"The time was," he continued, "when every New York family used to have an open wood fire, and cheerful embers glowed on many hearths—the center of everything home-like. Now we are a city without hearths, and with much less of a home feeling about our abodes than of old. In those days the fuel was brought down from the banks of the Hudson, and it was possible to burn it prodigally and still not be extravagant."

"How much wood is used now in kindlings?"

"I can only give you an idea of what the factories use—and that will surprise you."

"There are about fifty factories in the city. They each use on an average about twenty cords a day at this season. That is, one thousand cords of first-class pine timber are used every day to light the fires in this city. The poor have to stand the brunt of it, too. They have not the room to store a load and so buy it by the bunch at an enormous profit to the dealers. The bunches, which are made from the waste, are sold at from one to two cents each, about four times their actual value. The poor use the most expensive wood to light their fires and pay more for it than the rich. And they will have to pay still more soon, when we are compelled to bring the wood from Manitoba or some other out of the way place."—N. Y. Herald.

The Model Farm.

The Keota (Iowa) Eagle has at last found a western man who is satisfied with a fifty acre farm. His name is Artemus Fisher, and he lives one mile and a half south of Keota. The Eagle tells the story of his management and of his success as follows:

He keeps one team of horses, three first class cows, and a nice little drove of the best hogs. He milks his cows for the creamery, and they made him nearly $200 last year; will perhaps do better this year. He will sell $500 worth of hogs this year, and have thirty stockers to keep over. He has $200 worth of hay stacked to sell; has an abundance of hay and grain to keep his stock in first-class condition during the winter. He keeps everything in apple-pie order about his farm; his cows revel in clover up to their eyes; he attends to feeding, watering and milking as regularly as the clock strikes, hence he gets the best results with the least possible feed. He keeps his stock under cover, and never allows any animal to shiver in the fence corners. He has a barn that is a model of convenience and economy. It is snow-proof, and as warm as the old kitchen. He has a first-class selection of fruit—not a large orchard, but a choice selection of the varieties that thrive and bear the best in this locality. Everything about the farm bears marks of intelligence, thrift and economy. Besides making a living for himself and the "old lady," he will sell at least $800 worth of stuff off his fifty acres this year, and not be exceeding former years either. There is no rush or hurry about this model farm. Everything goes off quietly and regularly. The expenses are very small and the gains sure.

Observe the Birthdays.

Let the birthday of each member of the family be always remembered when it comes. Let there be something a little out of the ordinary routine in the arrangement of the table; cookies fashioned as Johnny likes them best; one of Frank's favorite plum puddings, or Julia's special liking, a loaf of ginger cake; or a wonderful lemon pie, such as only mamma can make.

Then there must be presents. Sometimes people may think they cannot be afforded; but reflect. The little one needs shoes, dresses, aprons and many other things. Purchase one or more for the birthday. It will seem just as much present to the recipients as though they were not obliged to have it.

Next come schoolbooks and storybooks, a set of furs or a pair of skates, should the birthday occur in the winter, a pretty little dinner-basket, or, if the parents can afford it, a little gold band for one of the white fingers, a necklace, a watch with a shining chain, or the pony that has been wished for so long.

Encourage the little ones in giving to each other, and also remember father and mother's birthday; believe me, it will be bread cast on the waters; the days will only be a few ere some returns, and there will be a never-failing supply of pleasure as long as you and your children live.

Roman Remains in London.

Modern London is built on the debris of the London of the times of Julius Cæsar and Agricola, and it is by no means infrequently that 1800-year old relics of the Roman town are found many feet below the surface of the existing streets. There was a rich find recently in the vicinity of Warwick Square at the depth of nineteen feet. The most interesting relic that came to light was hitherto unknown coin, of the the year 50, which lay alongside of about a dozen urns containing the products of cremation. Just think of the pangs which dying would have inflicted on those ancients if they had known that their ashes would have been seen and handled by an unknown race eighteen centuries and a half, nearly, after their demise! The most aristocratic urn was of glass and fifteen inches high. Well executed leaden pots inclosed several of these depositories, and roofing tiles the rest. The use of lead, as well as of tin, by the way, has great antiquity in Britain. Herodotus speaks of the production of tin there. Emblems of more or less significance touching the future state appeared on some of the receptacles. Along with the coin of the year 50 were others of dates between 40 and 300. But the Romans left something besides these useless things to be remembered by. They introduced into Great Britain its chestnut, walnut, peach, pear and cherry trees.

Feathered Slaves

No people are more ingenious than the Chinese in the minor arts of life. That they have succeeded in training birds to fish is a striking example of their ingenuity and patience. Instead of carrying nets, the fishermen provide themselves with a large number of cormorants which perch on the edge of the boats. It is a curious spectacle to see these creatures engaged in fishing, diving into the water and always coming up with a fish in their beaks. As the Chinese fear the vigorous appetites of their feathered servants, they fasten around their necks an iron ring, large enough to allow their breathing but too small to admit of the entrance of the fish they seize; to prevent their straying about in the water and wasting the time desired for their work, a cord is attached to the ring and to one claw of the cormorant by which he is pulled up when inclined to stay too long under water. When tired he is permitted to rest for a while; but if he abuse the indulgence and waste his time, a few strokes of the bamboo recalls him to duty, and the poor diver resumes his laborious occupation. In passing from one fishing ground to another, the cormorants perch side by side, so as not to disturb the equilibrium of the frail vessel.

Location of New School-Houses.

Select a site that is accessible to fresh air and sunlight; those facing to the West and South are the most desirable. 2. See that the location is elevated; not low and damp. 3. If in a city, ascertain whether the building is on natural or "made" soil. The latter is very unhealthy. 4. Have as much open ground around the school-house as possible. A school-house with a yard however small is much more pleasant than one without a yard; and have a garden if possible. 5. Ascertain with a certainty that the drainage is good. 6. Observe whether there are any bodies of stagnant water, or other contaminating influences near, and whether the prevailing direction of the wind will carry unwholesome vapors to the school-house. 7. Never choose a location so thickly surrounded with trees that the sun can never penetrate the rooms. Such places are very unhealthy. 8. Be sure that the water supply is abundant and pure in every respect.

A Pretty Story.

"I believe in a providence," said Victor Hugo to a company gathered around him in the Rue de Clichy, "because I am a providence myself." Being asked for an explanation, the poet replied: "We caught a mouse yesterday evening. His death sentence was already pronounced, when my little granddaughter, Jeanne, with eyes glistening with tears begged for the life of the gray prisoner. Her mother hesitated whether to listen to the dear little advocate or not, and in her doubt said, 'Grandfather shall decide.' So they came to me. For a moment I held the power of life and death over the diminutive creature, and I thought: The heavenly providence may find itself in my situation when the fate of a being of a higher order is to be determined. Naturally I set the mouse free, for when a man undertakes the role of providence on a small scale, he should at least imitate generosity."

What the Sexton Sale.

Mr. Lewis Edwards, Sexton of Mt. Vernon Place Church, Washington, D. C., certifies that for several months past he had been suffering with a severe cough which distressed him day and night. He was very much debilitated, with constant pains in his chest. After trying various remedies he used the Red Star Cough Cure, which gave him entere relief.

GOLDEN SEAL BITTERS are the great blood purifier, liver and kidney remedy and life giving principle, a perfect renovator and invigorator of the system carrying away all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition, enriching it, refreshing and invigorating both mind and body. They are easy of administration, prompt in their action, certain in their results, safe and reliable in all forms of disease. Every moment of our lives, every part of our bodies, is wearing out and is being built up anew. This work is accomplished by the blood. The blood if pure makes the entire circuit of the body every seven minutes. But if it becomes weak or vitiated and does not perform its work properly the system is actually poisoned by the worn-out matter clogging the vital organs instead of leaving the body. Cleanse the blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in pimples, eruptions, sores, etc. Keep the liver in order, the blood pure, health of the system will follow. Take GOLDEN SEAL BITTERS and no others. Sold by Baker & Hall and C. A. Wright & Co.

The Root of the Evil.

To thoroughly cure scrofula it is necessary to strike directly at the root of the evil. This is exactly what Hood's Sarsaparilla does, by acting upon the blood, thoroughly cleansing it of all impurities, and leaving no even a taint of scrofula in the vital fluid. Thousands who have been cured of scrofula by Hood's Sarsaparilla, testify to its wonderful blood-purifying qualities. Sold by all druggists.

AMERICAN BOYS ON THE FARM.

The following communication comes from a friend who feels aggrieved at some strictures made upon hired men at a recent meeting of the Farmer's Social Club. We think our friend has misconstrued some of the remarks made, but as the question has two sides to it, we deem it but fair to give the "American Boy" a chance. We hope to see this question more fully discussed at some future meeting of the Farmer's Club.

EDITOR OF HERALD.—Few sources of information accessible to me give more pleasure than the privilege of seeing your paper once a week. In fact it is about the only medium through which I am informed of the Local News, being bared, 1st. partly by my occupation, 2d. by my inability of taking part in many social entertainments that are organized in our midst, 3d. by the strict society line which is being drawn. What education I have, I obtained at a district school before I was fifteen years old. Since that time I have taken care of myself and given to my kindred and other benevolent institutions such amounts as I could spare from my meager earnings: I say meager when compared to the profits obtained from the product of my labor, for I am a hired man as the farmer's club of Tecumseh calls us. And now, Mr. Editor, it is of this club that I wish to speak and I hope you will not consider this article an intrusion on the patrons of your paper. It has become a proverbial saying throughout the country that neighborhood scandals, domestic unpleasantness, and sensational articles of any kind have never been allowed to appear in the HERALD and the course the management has taken has made the paper an enviable reputation that many of the state papers might covet. Now, inasmuch as the hired man was not represented at the club on the 9th inst. only by an agent of pauper laborers from Europe, I ask the privilege of being heard. One member says "Better get German help, could not get such help as we used to; they wanted too much wages, did'nt care to do much work, would have to import labor or let the farm stop; our American boys wanted to run to town too often and run too much nights; you can't depend upon them." Now, I ask that member of the club to qualify his assertions or answer the following questions.

When you hire a man by the month do you specify how many hours a day he shall work? Is'nt it a fact that the statute provides that ten hours shall be a day's work? Is'nt it a fact that a month hand, many times during the summer, works from twelve to sixteen hours a day? Don't you expect your men to work from five o'clock in the morning until about noon, from May until September? Do you consider that he gives you 7 or 8 solid days work in those ninety days that you do not so much as thank him for? That is for the forenoon. Where I have worked for the last four years we have quit at six in the evening and suppose you do the same. It is probable then that the boy wants to run. What has the boy to amuse himself with? If you have a library, does he have access to it? If you have company does he dine with them. Is he allowed in the domestic circle, as one of the family? What is there about your premises to keep them there or, in your own language, to keep him from "running?" If you have failed to secure good help, you are only to blame. You assail the American boys: you say you cannot depend upon them. I resent it as an "American boy," a boy without a father or a home, my father having died while in the service of the U. S. during the late war, fighting to protect your property, and to leave me the rights and privileges of an American citizen. Who make the laws of our country to day? Who fill the offices of trust and honor? Who are our skilled mechanics? Who have been our Presidents since we have been a Nation but American boys? And it has just become apparent to your mind that you cannot depend upon them. Get your German laborers, my dear sir, and shut yourself up on your farm and the world will not miss you.

THE REFORMED CHURCH IN AMERICA.

MR. EDITOR—Having had occasion recently to prepare for my people a sermon on the Reformed Church, I have condensed the main facts into this article, thinking the subject might be of interest to your readers.

This church, formerly called The Reformed Protestant Dutch Church, had its origin in the Netherlands, at the time of the Reformation. Under Philip II. of Spain the Christian churches of the Reformation were subjected to the fiercest persecution, and called themselves "The Churches sitting under the Cross." Feeling the need of concerted action, they met in a Synod at Wesel, 1568, and adopted as the expression of their faith the Belgic Confession, prepared by Guido de Bres, 1561. Rules of order were also drawn up and agreed to. These formed the beginnings of a constitution. At a subsequent meeting of the Synod, the Heidelberg Catechism was also adopted as a standard. In 1618-19 was held the great Synod of Dort, international in its character, for delegates were present from many foreign countries. The "Articles" of this synod were received as a further expression of the faith of the churches. Just about at this time New York was settled by the Dutch, who brought with them their own ideas of the church. The Dutch church continued to grow with the increase of emigrants from the old country, but until 1792 the church in this country had no separate existence, being simply a part of the classes of Amsterdam. In the above named year, constitutional independence was secured, the church ceasing to be dependent upon that in Holland. Provision was made for the education of ministers here, and for their regular ordination. The churches spread over Long Island and the eastern and central portions of New York, and throughout New Jersey, where they still flourish. More recently they have been established among the settlements of Hollanders in western Michigan, in Illinois, Wisconsin, Iowa and Dakota. Except in the newer settlements, the Dutch language ceased long since to be used in the services, but it is still retained to a large extent in the west.

There are at present in the denomination, 520 churches, 549 ministers, 45,398 families, 81,800 members, 716 sabbath schools with 89,911 scholars. The contributions of the church for the last year were, for benevolent purposes, $224,144.78, and for congregational purposes, $936,390.23.

The form of government of the church is Presbyterian. All ministers of the church stand on the same ecclesiastical footing. The officers, in addition to the pastor, are elders and deacons, chosen for the term of two years, who, with the minister, form the Consistory, the local governing body of the church. The next higher body is the Classis, composed of one minister and one elder from each church in a certain district. The Classis of Michigan comprises all the English speaking churches of the denomination in Mich, and one in Indiana. Next comes the Particular Synod, embracing all the Classis in a certain region. The Particular Synod of Chicago is composed of all the Classis of the West. Finally we have the General Synod, formed of delegates from every classis in the denomination. An event of peculiar interest to the church was the meeting of this body at the west for the first time in the history of the church. The meeting was held at Grand Rapids in this State, in June last.

The benevolent institutions of the denomination are as follows: a Board of Education which gives aid to young men studying for the ministry, a Board of Publication, a Board of Domestic and one of Foreign missions. Three missions are maintained by the church, one in China, one in India, and one in Japan. The missionary force consists of 20 missionaries, 28 assistant missionaries, besides native ministers and helpers.

Its educational institutions are: Rutger's College at New Brunswick, N. J., with 15 professors and 129 students; Hope College at Holland, Mich. with 7 professors and 150 students in college and grammar school; two or three academies; Hope Theological Seminary at Holland, Mich., recently re-established after a suspension of some years; and The New Brunswick Theological Seminary with 5 professors, and 45 students. The organs of the church are the Christian Intelligencer, published weekly in New York; The Sower and Mission Monthly, and the Gleaner. The Characteristics of the church are: A sturdy adherence to sound orthodoxy; a liturgy, the use of part of which is obligatory; instruction of the youth in the Heidelberg Catechism, and its public exposition, which is required of its ministers; and responsibility of its ministers to Classis for soundness in the faith, and faithfulness in the discharge of pastoral duties.

Yours Truly,

CHARLES S. DUTTON,
Pastor Reform Churches of Macon and South Macon.

Frank Leslie's Sunday Magazine

Begins a new serial story entitled, "What She Made of Her Life," especially written for its pages by Mrs. Lydia Hoyt Farmer, of Cleveland, Ohio. This story will continue for about eight months. A notably interesting and timely article is "Alaska, Past, Present and Future," with eight characteristic illustrations. Musical readers will be much gratified with "The Message of Music to Man," Meyerbeer, Lindpainter and Volkmann in "The Sacred Musicians Series," The Bach Bi-centennial," "The Music of The Rose of Sharon," and "Mr. Gladstone on Sacred Music." Dr. F. W. Conrad, of the Lutheran Observer, is the representative religious journalist depicted in the number. "Buddhist Worship and Liturgy" is an exceedingly interesting article, and many will be interested in "Beaconsfield and Gladstone," in which these two English statesmen are compared and contrasted. Dr. Talmage has a characteristic sermon, "From Dungeon to Palace," on the subject of Joseph; and the same subject is treated in the "Glances at Bible History." There are many other good articles and poems, and fine illustrations, which we have not the space to particularize. Published by MRS. FRANK LESLIE, 53, 55 and 57 Park Place, New York, at 25 cents a number, or $2.50 a year, postpaid.

MRS. GUMBO'S QUILTING BEE.

Jerusha Gumbo's earthly ambition is in a fair way of being realized. She has been diligently at work for a month, during the leisure hours which could be spared from building fires, turning slap-jacks and wiping the baby's nose, sending out invitations for a quilting bee. Upon rummaging the bureau drawer she found fifty sheets of mourning paper with envelopes to match, which were left over after little Bobby's funeral, and she utilized these for invitations. After searching all the form books which were accessible, she adopted this style as the most polite and practical.

"Your company is respectfully and tearfully solicited at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Joshua Gumbo, corner of Pottawatamie street and Pocahontas alley, on Wednesday afternoon and evening, Feb. 18th, to assist in the manipulation of a crazy quilt. Each guest is politely requested to provide herself with a thimble, a paper of needles, a spool of colored thread, a pair of pocket scissors, a piece of mince pie, a doughnut and a few cucumber pickles. No presents expected."

Fifty of these were deposited in the post office last week and at two o'clock yesterday afternoon the guests began to arrive. At three o'clock the Gumbo mansion was literally a bee hive of industry. Grandma Brown, who came to this village when Michigaff was a territory and who had assisted in quilting bees in the old Peninsular House fifty years ago, was accorded the post of honor to superintend the work. She divided the company into six squads of eight each and gave each squad a special branch of the business. Squad No. one was to cut the curtain calico into patches, No. two was to sew the patches together with colored thread; No. three had charge of making the lining out of Joshua's old clothes; to No. four was alloted the task of preparing the cotton batting for the filling; No. five had charge of stretching the quilt upon the frame and sewing it together; and to No. six was assigned the important duty of attaching an elegant border of fancy buttons. The way the scissors flew, and the needles run, and the tongues wagged was a caution. All the neighborhood gossip was thoroughly discussed and enough domestic news was gathered to fill the columns of the HERALD for six months. Taken altogether it was the newsiest party that has assembled in this city since the war.

At six o'clock the picnic lunch was served and at seven the work was resumed.

The frame was put up and the quilt was stretched in the kitchen. Mrs. Gumbo, with her usual foresight, had opened the trap door of the cubby-hole in the ceiling to secure better ventilation. Sammy and Sally, who were hustled about under foot, driven from pillar to post and given no chance to see the show, quietly slid up stairs, passed through a small door into the unfinished kitchen attic and stationed themselves on the rafters over the cubby-hole. Here they could listen to the chin music unmolested and feast their eyes upon the beautiful scenery below.

At nine the work was nearly finished. The patches had all been united, the stitches all taken, the buttons all sewed on; nothing remained but to pull out the basting thread and detach the quilt from the frame. Mrs. Gumbo, with tears in her eyes and her best lace cap on, returned thanks to the guests for their kind attendance, for their skillful labor, and for the cold lunch they had left behind. "Ladies," said she, "this is the happiest moment of my chequered existence. For thirty years I have gazed into futurity with a longing for a quilting bee, which has never been satisfied. I can now associate with the first families in the subbubs, and mingle with the elite of society. My cup of enjoyment is full. That quilt would take the first premium at the New Orleans Industrial Expo——"

At this juncture Sally slipped from her seat on a rafter, struck the lath and went through the ceiling. Sammy, in his frantic effort to save her, missed his hold and went through too, and both struck plump in the middle of the quilt, carrying most of the ceiling with them. The scene in that kitchen beggars description. A railroad collision would be a tame affair in comparison. Grandma Brown fainted away and fell into the wood box. Peggy Jones yelled "murder." Susie Smith shouted "fire." Mrs. Bascom leaped upon the kitchen stove and screamed, "Good Lord, deliver us." Sammy and Sally started a bawling match. The quilt was split from corner to corner and the frame shivered into a dozen pieces. Sister Peters, who is an ardent adventist, dropped upon her knees and exclaimed, "I felt it in my bones; the end has come at last." The clock was shaken from the mantel, struck Miss Wiggins on the head and bounded into the flour barrel, taking the lady's wig along. Joshua's bottle of old rye was broken, and the contents emptied into Mrs. Hooper's lap. Nancy Noodle was knocked senseless with a big patch of plastering. Mrs. Bolus fainted and fell against the stovepipe which went rolling over the floor distributing its load of soot amongst the guests. In their haste to escape, some of the ladies were badly trampled upon. During the melee the milk-safe was upset. Mrs. Gumsolus yelled till she was hoarse. 'An earthquake has struck us, an earthquake has struck us.' Mrs. Gumbo at first was paralyzed with fright. On recovering her speech she exclaimed: "Joshua, Joshua, come to me now." The hubbub soon aroused the neighbors, who hastily began to clear away the debris and care for the wounded. A telegram, a telephone, and a special messenger were dispatched simultaneously for Dr. Burchard. Order was finally restored and the guests did not stand upon the order of their going, but went at once. Joshua was at the lodge last night and did not witness the catastrophe. Our reporter left the scene before his arrival.

RINK RACKET.

The latest to learn—Wm. DeMott.

A large delegation of Adrian folks came over to witness the polo game last evening.

Anybody with half an eye could see a considerable difference between the grand march of last Thursday night and that of Saturday night.

The Manchester polo team is a good one, but has to take a back seat for Adrian.

The largest audience of the season turned out to see the polo game last evening between the Adrian and Manchester teams. The game was short, but sharp, the Adrian club winning by three straight goals. Another goal was played for an exhibition, and was also won by the Adrians. Both clubs are good ones, although the Adrians have the advantage of being older and more experienced players.

Mr. Chas. E. Dudley, the wonderful boy bicyclist, will give an exhibition of fancy bibycle riding at the rink next Saturday afternoon at 4 P. M., and in the evening at 8 o'clock. Master Dudley is but 15 years old and one of the best bicycle riders traveling. In addition to the most difficult feats on both wheels, he rides only the large wheel with one hand, with the backbone removed, etc. The admission has been placed at 15c. Skates 10c. The Adrian Times of Dec. 3, '84, has the following in reference to his riding:

The largest audience that has yet assembled at the rink was at that popular resort last evening to witness the wonderful bicycle performances of Chas. E. Dudley, the 15-year-old boy who has won so enviable a reputation as a bicyclist. The audience comprised a large number of our best citizens. With all his difficult mounts, riding performances, dismounts and other feats, it seems impossible that Mr. Dudley can be excelled.

The school teacher's race at the rink has been postponed on account of the aurora borealis portending an unusual quantity of polaric frigidity in the circumambient atmosphere. Clear the floor and form for the grand march!—Hastings Democrat.

The roller skating craze has struck the married ladies of Bay City hard. Matinees of their own, to which the giddy girls are not admitted. The husbands are expected to stay at home and tend the babies.—Muskegon Reporter.

Adrian Record: Even the legislature is capable of licensing knowledge and improving themselves in the art of skating. An Adrian visitor to Lansing last week visited the rink and was delighted to there behold a goodly representation from the lower house—among whom was the Hon. W. H. Wiggins—on wheeles for the first time. They sprawled around and fell down just like ordinary mortals, greatly to the diversion of spectators. When Mr. Wiggins "went to grass" all in a heap a Wayne representative on skates shouted, "The gentleman from Lenawee has the floor." Presently down went the Wayne man and Wiggins, brushing the chalk off from his coat, shouted savagely, "The gentleman from Wayne has the floor." The rink is a good place to shake off the perplexity of legislation, and the legislature is learning to skate.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

Clinton will soon have a new dentist.

Blissfield has a flourishing literary society.

Adrian wants her city charter amended.

The Scientific Society of Adrian is prospering finely.

Mrs. Perley Bills returned last week from a western trip.

The village election will take place on Monday, March 2d.

A lyceum has been organized in the Blissfield east side school.

John R. Clark will lecture at Fairfield next Saturday evening.

Mr. J. W. Nelson has assumed control of the Morenci roller mills.

The village registration board will meet on Saturday, Feb. 28th.

Morenci is agitating the project of a new village Council Building.

M. McDougal, of Bridgewater, was in town yesterday on business.

Our exchanges are all filled with accounts of the terrible storm last week.

Dr. and Mrs. N. H. Kimball, of Adrian, started last Monday for a trip to New Orleans.

The Hudson Gazette says: "If two bands are a criterion for the brass and prosperity of a town, Tecumseh is 'gittin thar.'"

The progressive euchre club met last evening at Henry Smith's. Next Wednesday evening it will meet at H. E. Stout's.

Street commissioner Jordan has been doing a good job cleaning out the gutters on Chicago street preparing for a thaw when it comes.

Another cold wave struck us last Sunday night. The mercury dropped over 40° between 8 o'clock Sunday evening and 8 o'clock Monday morning.

The item of "twenty widows in Clinton" has been going the rounds of all the papers. It is amusing to notice the different comments made thereon.

The Battle Creek News, which was burned out, expects to resume publication soon. Until then, the regular subscribers are supplied with the Sunday Morning Call.

The series of sermons at the Methodist church has reached the 7th commandment. Subject next Sunday, at 7 P. M., "Adultery, or the importance of fidelity to the marriage vow."

Hudson is to have two charity balls. The ladies will manage one and the G. A. R. Post the other. There is considerable rivalry between them, but it is rivalry in a good cause.

Morenci Observer: The "old maids and maidens" of Medina have postponed their entertainment until some future indefinite date. There was a lack of gentleness in the weather for the gentle females.

The following Tecumseh people were invited to the Governor's levee which took place at the Princess Rink Detroit, last Thursday evening, J. R. Cairns, Thos. R. Kyle, A. D. Lawrence, Geo. Merritt, B. F. Reynolds.

Mr. Asel C. Smith, of Macon, went to Grand Ledge, Mich., last Friday for a few days' visit with his daughter, Mrs. Brown. Mr. and Mrs. Brown are well pleased with their location at Grand Ledge and have a fine home there.

A Hudson hardware merchant thus sums up his trade last week:

"Well, I did remarkably well yesday. A fellow came in and bought a key for 5 cents—and that was the extent of trade. The following day was a bad one, for the fellow who bought the 5 cent key brought it back and demanded his money. Trade, did you say? Let's talk about the weather."

Mrs. D. P. Spaulding has a lemon tree in her greenhouse which contains blossoms, half-grown lemons and ripe fruit. Four fine lemons were plucked from it lately, one of which was left at our office. It is a fine specimen of that tropical fruit, 9½ inches in circumference and as fair to the eye and delicious to the taste as the best Florida lemon.

The benefit entertainment to be given by the Tecumseh band has been fixed for Friday evening Feb. 27th. Two plays will be presented, the cast of characters in which has already been given. The persons to take part are among our best amateur performers, and people can rely upon seeing and hearing a good theatrical entertainment. Citizens of Tecumseh, turn out and give the boys a rousing house—They deserve it.

The company controlling and operating the Bell telephone in this state, has stretched a copper wire between Lansing and Detroit, and another between Jackson and Ann Arbor. Another will be strung between Detroit and Toledo, and another between Detroit and Ann Arbor. The wire is four sizes larger than that generally used, and over it conversation can be heard with almost startling distinctness.—Manager Mason is making an effort to have a copper wire strung to connect Adrian with Detroit via. Tecumseh.

DeWitt Tallman, of Adrian, was in town last Tuesday on business.

D. P. Anthony arrived home from New Orleans last Saturday night.

Geo. Bostwick started last Saturday night for Eaton Rapids to visit his old home.

Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Ide, of Detroit, spent last Sabbath with their Tecumseh friends.

Frank Pitcher gives a Washington's Birth day party at Knapp's Hall, Franklin Center, this evening.

Rev. C. E. Conley is daily improving from his indisposition but he is not yet able to be about the house.

Burt Garlinghouse arrived home from New York City last Friday evening. City life seems to agree with him.

Three freight trains passed over the branch Sunday. One of them was a "double header" with 31 car loads of coal.

The lumber for the new floor of the Opera House is going through the planer, and the floor will be laid in a few days.

Mrs. A. A. Kennedy, of Battle Creek, who has been visiting friends in Tecumseh for a week or so, departed for home on Monday last.

Armory Hall was the scene of a pleasant party last Friday evening. About a dozen couples "triped the light fantastic" until the small hours of morning.

The first train on the M. & O. since last week Monday went down last Saturday night at 11:30. It consisted of one box car and caboose. A passenger train was run Sunday.

Harry Hanford, of Detroit, is taking a week's rest and recreation from his business duties among his Tecumseh and Franklin friends. Harry is head book-keeper in the large carriage establishment of Theut & Lutz and is doing finely. He came out last Saturday and will return next Monday.

Dr. H. W. Catlin, of Grand Rapids, was taken seriously ill with an attack of pleuro-pneumonia on Monday of last week. His father, Dr. Samuel Catlin, was summoned by telegram and went out there Saturday, returning Tuesday morning. The attack was a serious one, but has been broken and his father now considers him out of danger. Bert's many friends here will hope for his speedy recovery.

Clinton Local: Rev. W. P. Wastell, met with an accident last Saturday that came very near being a serious one for him. He slipped when going from the house and struck his head against the door step, and was for a time, unconscious. He hardly knew how or when he returned to the room he had left but a short time previous; but we are glad to be able to announce that he has entirely recovere om the injury.

The following extract from a letter written by J. H. Darling, a friend and subscriber in Minnesota, touches the right chord. He looks upon his newspaper subscription in a business like manner. "Don't be backward in notifying me whenever my subscription expires. It is my intention to pay promptly in advance, but don't always keep track of the dates and need to be reminded when the time comes around to renew."

Adrian Record: A long, lank, green fellow, looking like a peeled banana, sloped into Justice Hewlet's office yesterday while the justice was enjoying a fine Havana. He had come all the way from Tiffin, O. After the usual preliminary inquiries he stated that he wanted a certificate. "What for," said the justice. "Oh, for a weddin'," said the man. "Where's your girl?" "Down in Ohio—the old man wouldn't let her come." So. I thought I'd get the certificate. Date it back to last June." The fellow was informed that it would be necessary for the girl to be present at the marriage. He put back to Ohio after the girl, with the avowed determination of getting a Michigan certificate.

Orr Brothers, of Tecumseh, are making quite a stir over the agency of a polish called Putz Pomade, and regard it as a new thing. A gentleman has sold it in this city for the last twelve months, and sells the genuine imported Prussian article.—Adrian Press.

Orr Brothers wish to state that they are the sole agents in this vicinity of the genuine Putz-Pomade. The popularity of their article is attested by the fact that they have sold several gross to Adrian dealers, and it is giving the best of satisfaction wherever used. Whatever gentlemen in Adrian are selling the "genuine imported Prussian article" have obtained their supply from the Orr Brothers. There is a spurious article in the market, but it bears no comparison to the genuine, as anyone can demonstrate for himself by trying the two. The Orr Brothers are pushing the sale of the "genuine article," and they will soon drive all spurious and inferior polishes out of the market. The Pomade is not a new preparation, having been discovered in 1878, and the secret of its manufacture still remains on the other side of the ocean. Adrian parties have tried to procure the agency of Putz-Pomade from the importer but have in each case been referred to Orr Brothers, who have sole control of this territory.

Yesterday was Ash Wednesday.

Harry Snell was at home over Sunday last.

How much does Capt. Foster charge for breakage?

Freight trains were run on the M. & O. last Sunday.

J. L. Traun paid Tecumseh a flying visit last Saturday.

Mrs. Alonzo Clark, of Clinton, paid Tecumseh a visit yesterday.

The two Polo teams both registered at the Lilley House yesterday.

Who struck Billy Patterson? is still the leading question in Clinton.

The prohibition state convention will be held at Lansing Feb. 25th.

B. J. Coller, of Adrian, was in town last Saturday on special business.

Fancy bicycle riding at the rink next Saturday afternoon and evening.

John Nestell, formerly manager of the Tecumseh rink, was in town yesterday.

Mr. Geo. Saxton, of Cayuga Co., N. Y., visited Mrs. Biglow and daughter last week.

The Ridgeway Sunday School took their annual sleighride to Tecumsen last Saturday.

Has Geo. Bostwick left town on a matrimonial errand? We have heard such a report and fear that it may be true.

Miss Mabel VanCamp, of Adrian, has finished her course in the Cincinnati College of Music and returned home.

E. W. Rappleye, of Dundee was in town yesterday. He is still managing the old Alex. Stowell farm near that village.

Curry & Bostwick have placed a cigar show case in their rooms and keep a line of choice cigars for sale at retail. A good idea.

A fine gull was shot on the Globe Mill pond the other day which has been "put up" by G. P. Sparks. Mr. Sparks is quite a taxidermist.

Geo. Exelby, of Ridgeway, has so far recovered from his rheumatism as to be out again. He was in Tecumseh last Friday for the first time in several weeks.

Tecumseh has a progressive eucher club at last. There are twelve charter members, all residing between the creek and the river. The Brownvillians are ahead.

Admirers of fancy bicycle riding should not fail to see Master Chas. E. Dudley, the 15 year old boy bicyclist at the rink next Saturday afternoon and evening. Admission 15 cents.

Chas. A. McNeil is in attendance upon the State Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows which is in session this week at Kalamazoo. He is the duly elected representative of the Tecumseh Lodge.

August Miller, of Lake Ridge, has left at this office a curiosity in the shape of an ear of corn. It consists of one large ear surrounded by ten little nubbins all attached to the central ear, making eleven separate ears of corn on one stalk.

Adrian has organized a base ball association and an effort will be made to raise $2,500 which will enable them to join the Michigan League. If this matter is successful, the following named cities will constitute the Michigan Base Ball league: Adrian, Bay City, East Saginaw, Grand Rapids, Jackson, Kalamazoo, Muskegon, Flint.

Capt. Henry Romeyn arrived in town last Thursday night. He received a telegram announcing his father's death on Monday evening, Feb. 9th. He left Fort Keogh at two o'clock Tuesday morning and arrived here Thursday night just in time to attend the funeral, which was held on Friday. He left here on Monday afternoon for Lyons, N. Y., with his father's remains for final burial.

The recent cold snap has been a severe test on the school furnaces, and upon the Janitor's patience, but both stood the test without flinching.—This is the thirteenth winter that Thos. Wyrill has acted as school janitor, and he has never known as severe a spell of weather during that time. The buildings, however, were kept warm, and it was not found necessary to dismiss school a single hour.

The band entertainment will be given at the Opera House, Friday evening Feb. 27. It is expected that Mr. Alba Heywood will add to the attraction by giving a couple of his impersonations. The boys are negotiating with Miss Mabel VanCamp and it is probable that she will sing a selection. Lavern Wheeler is to have the management of the stage, so we may expect some fine settings, especially in the green house scene in "Poor Pillicody."

Clinton Local: On Friday last Mr. Ezra DePuy got out his team and took a load of ladies to Tecumseh for a sleighride, and upon their return they stopped at Mr. Cobbs where the Missionary Society were in session and took tea, and with one voice they declare it altogether the most pleasant occasion of the season, and unite in pronouncing the repast one that was hard to excel. It was furnished at 5 cents per meal, and the receipts were $2.35.

The thermometer registered 20° below zero again on Tuesday morning. Yesterday morning it was only 11° below.

The Bohemian Oats Association is one of the grandest swindles in the country. Secretary Chamberlain, of the Ohio State Board of Agriculture, says that he knows of a farmer in Summit county who has held three hundred bushels of those oats three years, the Association refusing to take them off his hands.—Central Ohio Review.

Here is a weather item for the "oldest inhabitant" to cut out and paste in his scrap book. The record was made by Dr. North. We have talked with several of the older settlers within the past day or two and they all unite in saying that the like has never been known before in this part of the state, the thermometer below zero for ten mornings in succession:

Mr. J. S. Strong has been repainting and renovating the interior of his residence on Union Street. Every room in the house has been newly papered and the principal ones have been provided with new carpets also. The main hall, double parlor, family room, kitchen and four rooms on the second floor have all been newly papered, both side walls and ceiling. The greater part of the house is done in gilt goods, color, bronz and embossed gilt, finished with first-class borders and gilt moulding. Each room is finished in a different style of paper, to harmonize with the carpet and other furnishings. The interior casings and all wood work is also treated with a fresh coat of hard oil. The paper was furnished by C. A. Wright & Co., and the hanging was done by F. McNeil assisted by E. Blessing. Mr. Strong has a most elegantly furnished dwelling, and he intends to hold the position of having one of the finest residences on Union Street.

THE NEW ORLEANS EXCURSION.

The excursion to New Orleans which has been worked up during the past month, will start on Monday the 2d. day of March. Enough pledges have been secured to warrant the chartering of the necessary coaches, but there is still room for a few more passengers. Although the trip has been arranged with reference to the wants of the G. A. R. boys, still many other citizens will go and also quite a number of ladies. Ladies who may wish to visit the Exposition need have no hesitancy about going with this company. They will be well provided for and will enjoy every convenience necessary to make the journey a pleasant one for them. Persons who may wish to go, or those who desire further information will call upon S. P. Hosmer, of this village, who is prepared to give full particulars, including rates of fare, routes, cost of living at New Orleans, etc. It will be the best opportunity the citizens of this vicinity will have to visit the Exposition at a cheap figure and in a way to enjoy themselves to the best advantage.

THE WRESTLING CONTEST.

The "rassling" contest at the Opera House last Saturday evening was not very largely attended, but those who did go witnessed a good exhibition of strength and athletic skill and were well pleased with the entertainment.

At eight o'clock Knapp's band opened the exercises with some good music, after which manager Lewis made a few remarks and proceeded to introduce the principals and seconds. M. L. Root had been selected umpire for Moth and Frank Wilson for Christol. Mr. Holdridge, of Detroit, acted as referee.

Moth was 26 years of age, six feet and one in. in height and weighed 195 pounds. Christol was 28 years old, five feet, five inches high, and tipped the beam at 162. Both men were stripped to the waist and made a display of muscle calculated to strike terror to the heart of an ordinary man. Moth appeared in white tights and red trunks and Christol wore flesh colored tights and black trunks.—The toss for falls was won by Moth, who chose, Graeco Roman, and won the round in 17 minutes. The second round, catch-as-catch-can, was finished in ten minutes, in which Christol came off victorious. The third was won by Moth and the fourth by Christol, making them two falls each. In the fifth and last round both men went at it hammer and tongs, and one would have thought they were wrestling for a purse of $500. After a hard struggle of about fifteen minutes Moth succeeded in downing his opponent, and was declared the winner of the contest.

The fact of the contest being held on Saturday evening and the awful weather making it impossible to circulate the bills in the country, contributed to the small attendance. Mr. Lewis furnished a good entertainment of the kind and deserved a better house.

AN INTERESTING NEWSPAPER RELIC.

Mr. Geo. S. Tiffany, of this village, possesses an old family relic which is a great curiosity, and is highly prized by him. It is a copy of "The Canadian Constellation," No. 47, of the date, June 21, 1809. The paper was four column folio, columns 15 inches in length, and was published weekly at Niagara (Upper Canada) by S. & G. Tiffany, terms $4 per annum. One of the partners composing the firm was Mr. Tiffany's father's father, and the other was his wife's father's father. One of the firm was the first public printer of Upper Canada. The relic has come down to the present owner from Mrs. Geo. Tiffany's father.

We had the pleasure of inspecting the relic yesterday and noted down a few items which will doubtless be of interest to our readers. It contained news from England for the month beginning March 23d and ending April 23d. The budget of English news contains lengthy dispatches from Lord Nelson and Sir Sidney Smith, who were commanding the British forces on the Mediteranean, giving the terms of a convention between the Grand Vizier and the French general Kieber, by which the French were to evacuate Egypt. The latest news from Boston was dated May 27th.

Among the home items we find this significant paragraph. "A candidate for this county for the ensuing election has been heard to declare that he will not give any liquors or dinners to the electors." A patriotic declaration surely, and one which shows that the liquor question was a troublesome one, even in that early day.

Among the advertisements is this notice: "Ten dollars will be given to any person who will give information to the printers, so that the person or persons may be brought to justice who stole a calf from a lot near the Presbyterian meeting house on Wednesday night last." Calves must have been valuable property in those days.

In the news miscellany is this item. "In the present scarcity of provisions soup shops are established in various parts of London for the accommodation of the poor, where that article is sold to them at a very low price and the following is the bill of a Scotch bricklayer to the treasurer of the soup society for hanging a copper at one of these shops.

The genteelmen of Great Marlow dr. to A. B. To hanging a cooper for to make soup for the poor, £0-15-6."

The word "copper" in the above signifies a copper kettle, and the Scotchman's orthography in his bill makes it read "cooper."

As the season for auctions approaches, we remind the farmers that the place to get their sale bills printed is at the HERALD office. Persons getting their bills printed at the HERALD office will receive a notice in the paper without charge. Abe Hanford's and Ben Rynolds' dates are kept at this office. Any date given for either of them by us will be honored. This arrangement frequently saves people much time and trouble in hunting up an auctioneer.

—FOR SALE: A fine 80 acres of land, being the west 80 of the Stephen V. Miller farm in Macon township, one and one-half miles from Ridgeway and four and one-half miles east of Tecumseh. About seventy acres under plow, balance good timber. No buildings. Fine soil, cultivation and water. Thirty-two acres wheat on the ground. Price, $75.00 per acre, wheat included. One-half or two-thirds payment would give immediate possession. A bargain for somebody. Address L. C. Miller, Pratt, Pratt Co., Kansas, for further particulars.

MICHAEL DAVITT'S CHUM.

The Solitary Auditor to Whom He Delivered a Course of Lectures in Prison.

I was remitted to Portland Prison on the 8d of February, 1881. Shortly afterwards, through the kindness of the Governor, a young blackbird came into my possession. For some months I relieved the tedium of my solitude by efforts to win the confidence of my companion, with the happiest results. He would stand upon my breast as I lay in bed in the morning and awaken me from sleep. He would perch upon the edge of my plate and share my porridge. His familiarity was such that, on showing him a small piece of slate-pencil and then placing it in my waistcoat pocket he would immediately abstract it. He would perch upon the edge of my slate as it was adjusted between my knees, and, watching the course of the pencil as I wrote, would make the most amusing efforts to peck the marks from off the slate. He would 'fetch and carry' as faithfully as any well trained dog. Towards evening he would resort to his perch, the post of the iron bedstead, and there remain silent and still till the dawning of another day, when his chirrup would again be heard, like the voice of nature before the herald of civilization—the clang of the prison bell at five o'clock. One evening as Joe sat upon his perch it occurred to me to constitute him chairman and audience of a course of lectures, and with him constantly before me as the representative of my fellow creatures, I jotted down what I have subsequently reproduced in the following pages.

* * * * * *

The infirmary garden in Portland Prison was aglow with the bloom of the late summer flowers which the Governor had kindly permitted me to sow in the early portion of the year. The English Ivy, with which Julius Caesar, a fellow-prisoner, used to sleep by the storm-beaten cliffs of Dover, as they dash against the rock-bound coast, was in unmolested bloom. From the bedstead upon which the great carved pieces of oak and the exquisite picturesque shadows of the Dorsetshire cliffs flung out upon the boundless sea. Away beyond the green fine appeared harvest fields and homesteads nestling into the distance and so sadly suggestive of what imprisonment was not—liberty, home and friends! contrasting as that so intensely between the bleak cloud and the rose which coloured the lowest mental pain in the punishment of penal servitude. It was a day which would fill one's whole being with a yearning to be liberated—a day of sunshine and warmth and beauty, and the moment had arrived when my resolution to give freedom to my little feathered exiled could no longer be safely postponed. I opened his door with a trembling hand, when quick as a flash of lightning he rushed from the cage with a wild scream of delight, and in a moment was beyond the walls of the prison. The instinct of freedom was too powerful to be resisted, though I had indulged the fond hope that he would have remained with me. But he taught me the lesson, which can never be unlearned by either country, prisoner or bird—that nature will not be denied and that liberty is more to be desired than fetters of gold.—"Leaves from a Prison Diary."

COUNTERFEIT NOTES.

New Processes by Which They Are Made and How to Detect Them—Photography's Aid Called In.

"The photographed counterfeit bank bill is very common," said John S. Dye, Government counterfeit detective, yesterday. "There are two processes, called the 'old' and the 'new.' By the old process the whole of the back of the note is copied and appears in black on the photograph. It is then tinted with pens and brushes by hand. The black, however, can be seen under the tint, which on the seal is blotted and covers the white lines which appear in the genuine note. The numbering is also blurred with color and the whole of the tinting on the back of the note is badly done and incomplete.

"The detection of the photographed counterfeits depends upon a critical observation of their character and appearance. Unless they are perfectly new, they are off color and show the reddish brown, peculiar to faded photographs. By the new process the seal, numbers and color-work on the back, whether pink, carmine, chocolate or green, are first entirely removed from the note to be imitated. A negative is then taken from the black which remains. To produce the color-work an engraved plate of the seal, and the tinted part of the back are used and the tints are clearly surface-printed in their places. The numbers are also printed in colors from separate engraved figures used in combination and changeable. These figures are well done and run in a series, and, unlike the spurious bills made by the old process, are really dangerous.

"All genuine bills are printed from plates made four in a set and letters respectively A, B, C and D, except in a few cases where certain banks have been supplied with bill-lettered respectively E, F, G and H. These are called 'check letters' and appear in various places upon the face of notes or bills, according to their issue and denomination. Now here is the description of a five-dollar counterfeit bill, taken in New York City a few days ago: Check letter A, series 1875, act of March 3, 1863, Treasury number B3429232, plate 22, John Allison, Register; A. U. Wyman, Treasurer. It is one of the 'old style' photographs, printed on plain paper, coarse and heavy. The seal and cyloid work are very pale and the numbering fair. The lithe-work on back and in two counters on the face is so blurred that hardly a line can be seen. The green ink and red numbers are very good so far as the shade of color goes. The note on face has a blurred appearance and is very dark. It is of the same length as the genuine bill. The counterfeit is not dangerous, but well calculated to deceive the inexperienced. Immigrants are the most frequent dupes.

"One of the cleverest engravers of counterfeit plates of modern times is Charles F. Ulrich. In 1875 he lived at Sixth and Cumberland streets in this city. A man named Henry C. Cole was his business partner, and Jacob Ott, a German lithographer, did the printing. In 1877 Ulrich went to live with the Ott family at Oak Lane on the North Penn Railroad, and there finished the plate of a fifty-dollar counterfeit. In the same house the bills were printed. These were imitations of bills on the Central National Bank of New York City and the Third National Bank of Buffalo, N. Y. It so happens also that all the fifty dollar National Bank counterfeits, including eight different banks in the State of New York—seven of which were in the city—were printed from one engraved plate. The simple change from one bank to another was done by the use of skeleton plates.

"One hundred thousand dollars worth of these bills was printed in Ott's house. The greater part of them was sold by Cole and carried to Germany by J. E. Conkling and John Baker and there passed off on the bankers and people. None of them were put in circulation in the United States before they had been circulated in Germany, nor until a large number of them were brought back all at once to New York by immigrants on the German steamer Herder, May 22, 1878.

"The discovery was made by W. Hoffman, the expert at the office of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, at which office a fifty-dollar bill on the National Broadway Bank, of New York City, had been tendered by a Mr. Joseph. He claimed to have received the bill from Israel & Co., bankers at Hamburg, and the emigrants on the Herder were soon found passing similar counterfeits. Subsequently each steamer from Germany brought quantities of these bills, which were 'shoved' in Europe until the capture at Munich of J. E. Conkling and his associates."

"Are there any other methods of counterfeiting besides photography and engraving?"

"Oh yes, but they are easily detected, being generally clumsily executed. There are lithographs, etchings and pen-work counterfeits, spurious one dollar and two dollar United States Treasury notes are of this kind, and it is only on account of their small denomination that they have any circulation. Then, again, the vignette heads are oversoubally cut from notes of small value, the back removed and the face neatly cemented over the inferior work of poor counterfeit fives, which are thus made passable."

"How are the public to discriminate between genuine bills and forgeries?"

"Well, of course, therein lies the possibility of successful forgeries. If the general public was so well acquainted with the appearance of genuine bills as instantly to be able to detect spurious ones the counterfeiter's occupation would be gone. Whenever a counterfeit (with the exception of a photographic, lithographic, acid etching, or pen-made one, any of which frauds should be detected at a glance) of a National Bank bill appears, the genuine bill is as rapidly as possible withdrawn from circulation. The fact that a counterfeit has been 'shoved' is published as soon as it is discovered and it is the duty of everybody to thereafter refuse or be very careful in accepting bills of that denomination. We are even now expecting that in a short time a new spurious bill will be 'shoved.' We have not yet traced it to its origin, but we have our eyes open and are on the look-out."—Philadelphia Times.

EIGHT TONS OF POP CORN.

A Boston Concern's Big Dealings in Corn Candy.

"Novelties in popcorn? Yes, sir," said Boston's only manufacturer of this tooth-some commodity. "There's what we call 'boss corn candy.' It is of assorted flavors, strawberry, chocolate, and vanilla—and such cake is put up in white, waxed paper. We sell it in lots to suit, and it retails for five cents per cake. Then we have a heavy sugared corn in assorted flavors, called 'crumbs of comfort.' As a novelty, also, we get up large guess corn-balls, of any size, for church and society fairs. We made one some time ago containing three bushels of corn, and one quite recently containing over a bushel.

"Any more novelties?"

"Yes, we make what we call 'a return corn-ball,' with elastic attached, which retails for a penny. And we are putting corn of assorted flavors into lace bags of many colors. These retail at five cents per bag. In the last four years we have gotten up no less than eight different styles of penny popcorn prize-packages. For Christmas we get up plain white and red and white sugared corn, of assorted flavors, for stringing. These strings of corn, as you know, are largely used for decorating Christmas trees. We have also what are called coarse corn cakes, made with pure Porto Rico molasses, and put up in glass-front cans, and a ground or fine corn cake, also made with molasses, and put up in tin boxes. The latter are especially for the Southern and Western trade, but there is also a large demand for them in New England."

"Do you sell many goods in the West?"

"We have been in the habit of sending goods to the wholesale grocers and confectioners of St. Louis and Chicago, but owing to the high price of corn for the past year or two, have had to sell them direct to the jobbers of middle-men nearer at home. We bought over seventy tons of corn from one seed-house in Chicago last year, and used altogether perhaps eighty tons. We employ about ten hands all the year round."—Boston Globe.

—After weary waiting, the Australians have at last succeeded in raising salmon in their rivers, thanks to the persistent energy of Sir Samuel Wilson. A number of fish have lately been caught in the river Yarra, near Melbourne, which are believed to be some of the California salmon introduced by him several years ago.

ATKINS ELECTRIC LIGHT SOAP SAVES CLOTHES

Wash as you please, and it will make you its friend. Soak, boil and don't rub, or soak, rub and don't boil. We advocate dispensing, so far as possible with the washboard, because it wears the clothes out and wears you out. Therefore frequent boiling will not yellow or injure the clothes, but soaking and boiling with ELECTRIC LIGHT SOAP does clean and disinfect them. One thing is certain: it produces glorious results, is an economical soap and is so pure and harmless that the writer washes his head with it without injuring a hair, and he isn't bald either. Try it in the Laundry, Kitchen and Bath. Ask your grocer for it and take no other.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

Gathered from All Quarters.

CONGRESS.

SENATE, February 4.—The oath was administered to the Senator from Michigan. A communication was received from the Secretary of War recommending the legislation necessary to place General Grant on the retired list of the United States army. Mr. Hill offered a concurrent resolution which was adopted calling on the Secretary of the Interior for certain reports of special agents on lands in New Mexico. The Interstate Commerce Commission bill was taken up and passed—44 yeas, 12 nays. The bill for the recoinage of the trade dollar was then called up and discussed until adjournment.

HOUSE.—Under the new rule to consider bills to which not more than ten members objected, a number were presented, but as there was the legal objection to all of them, they went over. The committees were called for reports and a number of bills were placed on the calendar. The House then went into committee of the Whole on the River and Harbor bill, which was discussed until adjournment without action. A night session was held, but as there was no quorum present no business was transacted.

SENATE, February 5.—A bill was introduced by Mr. Sherman to provide for the striking of medals to commemorate the completion of the Washington Monument; referred. Mr. Plumb called up a bill to quiet title of settlers on the Des Moines River lands in the State of Iowa. The reading of the exceedingly voluminous report on the bill occupied the time till two o'clock, when the unfinished business, being the bill for the redemption and recoinage of the trade dollar, was taken up, Senator Bowen having the floor, which he occupied in his remarks until adjournment.

HOUSE.—A resolution was offered and adopted requesting the President to cause copies of all communications which have been received respecting the Congo Conference, and especially copies of the text of the commission or power sent by the Government to each of the three American plenipotentiaries or agents, to be immediately transmitted to the House. The House then went into Committee of the Whole on the River and Harbor bill, and when thirty-two of the 1,200 lines of the bill had been gone over the Committee rose and the House adjourned.

SENATE, February 6.—Mr. Sewell offered a resolution calling on the Secretary of War to report the Senate whether any plans or preparations have been matured by the engineer corps of the army or War Department for defending the harbors of our sea coasts and lakes by torpedoes or otherwise, in case of sudden war with any foreign power, and if torpedo stations have been established with the care contemplated for such defense; referred. Mr. Ingalls, according to notice given, moved an amendment to the Senate rule that prohibits general legislation on appropriation bills, the amendment being to permit such legislation as may be germane or relevant to the subject matter of the bill. After a discussion on Mr. Ingall's resolution, the whole subject was referred to the Committee on Rules. The Consular and Diplomatic Appropriation bill was taken up with the Senate amendments, which were agreed to without objection, and the Senate went into executive session and soon after adjourned.

HOUSE.—An adverse report was made on the joint resolution, tendering the thanks of Congress to Commanders Schley and Coffin and Lieutenant Emory, of the Greely relief expedition; laid on the table. Private business having been dispensed with the House went into Committee of the Whole Mr. Hammond in the chair on the River and Harbor bill, which was discussed until a late hour without making any headway, as only seven of the fifty pages of the bill had been gone over.

SENATE, February 7.—A joint resolution was passed accepting, in the name of the United States from W. H. Vanderbilt and Mrs. Grant, and tendering thanks therefor, the trophies presented to General Grant by the different nations of Europe. The resolution provides that they shall be placed in charge of the Librarian of Congress until a suitable Library building is built. The bill creating a Department of Agriculture was presented and placed on the calendar. The House bill providing a retired list for privates and non-commissioned officers was passed—yeas 37, nays 5. The private pension bills were then taken up and discussed until adjournment.

HOUSE.—Another attempt was made to have a number of bills passed under the new rule, but as there was the required number of objections to all of them they went over and the House went into Committee of the Whole on the River and Harbor bill. Various amendments were made to the bill but they were all voted down, and the Committee rose and the House adjourned without making any headway on the bill.

WASHINGTON.

The Chief Justice of the Dominion of Canada was granted the privilege of the United States Senate on the 4th, and was introduced to the Senators individually by Justice Gray, of the Supreme Court.

The Democratic National Committee will hold a meeting in Washington March 2.

A bill was reported favorably in the Senate on the 6th, granting the widow of General George H. Thomas a pension of $2,000 per year.

The Legislative, Executive and Judicial Appropriation bill, which was completed by the House Appropriation Committee on the 5th, provides for the appointment by the Speaker of a Commission of five members of the Forty-ninth Congress to consider the system of Indian education and the manner of expending the appropriation for that purpose, and also to consider the best means of utilizing the Yellowstone Park for the benefit of the public. The Commission is requested to report to the next Congress.

The dairies kept by members of the Greely party during their encampment in the Arctic region have been made public by General Hazen. They show that insubordination and discontent prevailed to some extent and that an occasional theft was practiced. Lieutenant Greely writes that he would have ordered the offenders killed had he thought such action would have been upheld. The diaries, generally, confirm the rumors which have from time to time arisen respecting the difficulties which existed during the encampment.

It is expected that after communicating with President-elect Cleveland, President Arthur will issue a proclamation convening the Senate in extra session on the 4th of March, for the purpose of considering Cabinet and other nominations. Four years ago President Hayes issued about a week before going out of office a proclamation convening the Senate in executive session on the day that President Garfield was inaugurated. The Senate simply met after the inaugural proceedings were over and adjourned until the following day, when the President sent in his Cabinet nominations.

THE EAST.

George Washington Bowen, the celebrated claimant in the Jumel will case, died at Providence, R. I., on the 6th, in his ninety-first year.

Arthur Sherburne Hardy Cheney, Professor of Mathematics at Dartmouth College, son of Hon. Alpheus Hardy Cheney, of Boston, and author of the novel "But Yet a Woman," has been offered the Presidency of Bowdoin College. He has, however, declined the offer.

It is stated by the officers of the Provident Life and Trust Company, of Philadelphia, that the peculations of their defaulting clerk, Glenmore Todd, recently arrested and held in $10,000 bail, will not reach as high a figure as $150,000 and may be considerably less. The exact amount can not be stated until the property recovered from the defaulter, consisting of stocks, bonds and real estate, can be realized upon. It is said that Todd kept the accounts of depositors entirely correct and covered his fraud by an ingenious system of bookkeeping.

Nearly five hundred employes of the Lowell Manufacturing Company, at Lowell, Mass., chiefly weavers and boys, struck on the 6th against a decrease of ten per cent. in wages, and were ejected from the yard.

Traces of poison have been found in the stomachs of John Sullivan and his wife, who were recently found dead in Ansonia, Conn., and the theory of murder by the wife and her suicide is supported by the medical opinion that the husband died twenty-four hours before his wife. The woman imagined that her husband was unfaithful and would desert her, or dying, would leave her but a widow's third of the small estate which was in his name.

At Scranton, Pa., on the 6th Daniel Kullman, an employe in the Lackawanna Coal Company's nail mill, was adjusting a belt connected with the machinery when his clothing caught in the shafting, which was making several hundred revolutions a minute. He was torn to pieces and instantly killed.

Governor Pattison, of Pennsylvania, on the 6th issued a warrant for the execution of Edward Brotheras, of Luzerne County, on April 7. Brotheras was convicted of the cowardly murder of a man named Nichols, under the mistaken impression that he had wrought the ruin of a niece of the culprit.

THE rolling and plate mill of the Nashua (N. H.) Iron and Steel Company was destroyed by fire on the 7th. Loss, $50,000; fully insured.

The value of imports at the port of New York (exclusive of specie) for the week ended February 7 were $5,831,000, of which $3,892,000 was general merchandise and $1,931,000 dry goods.

The house of William Foster, of Pulaski township, Lawrence County, Pa., was entered by burglars on the night of the 7th. After binding and gagging Foster and his family the thieves ransacked the premises, taking $100 in cash and jewelry valued at several hundred dollars. The robbers then went to the barn and taking a horse and buggy drove off.

The Philadelphia News urges the Pennsylvania Legislature not to pass the bill appropriating $10,000 for the New Orleans Exposition, declaring that the expenditure would be worse than useless, "as the exhibition is already considered a failure." It says: "Over $2,000,000 have already been spent on the Exposition, yet it is disorganized and incomplete. Not a cent of all the money has been accounted for, and the management is now asking for $250,000 to pay debts already incurred, part of which is needed at once to pay the employes, who threaten to strike unless paid at once.

Statement of the New York associated banks for the week ended the 7th: Loans increase; $900,000; specie increase, $3,666,000; legal tenders decrease, $2,033,000; deposits increase, $2,075,000; circulation decrease, $207,000; reserve increase, $1,114,000. The banks held $54,985,000 in excess of legal requirements.

WEST AND SOUTH.

The National Stove Manufacturers' Association, at its meeting in Chicago on the 5th, resolved to make the prices for the current year the same as during 1884.

While Sheriff Shivers and a Mr. Boatwright, both citizens of Worth County, Ga., were conversing together on the 4th, they were seen to draw revolvers and, taking hold of each other, fired. Both men fell dead, their arms locked together.

The Union Pacific and Central Pacific Railroads have co-operated to establish a fast freight system between Chicago and San Francisco via Omaha. One thousand air brake cars are ordered to be running by March 1. Through freight transportation will then be reduced to eight days.

William Iliffe, a blacksmith residing in Maryland, has fallen heir to $4,000,000 and an earldom.

The house of Richard Kealy, at Bay City, Mich., was entered by burglars on the 5th, who chloroformed the family, secured $141 in cash, a lot of jewelry, and took a gold ring from Kealy's finger. The theft was not known till the next morning.

A fire at Mt. Sterling, Ky., on the 6th destroyed the opera house and a number of adjoining buildings, entailing a loss of $50,000.

Five members of the Marmaduke family at Marshall, Mo., were reported dangerously ill on the 6th. Mrs. L. Marmaduke, mother of the Governor, her two daughters—Mrs. Yerby and Harwood—Leslie Marmaduke and Miss Celia Harwood, the future mistress of the Executive Mansion, were all confined to their beds with serious illness.

The District Court at Cincinnati has modified its decision in the Campbell disbarment case. The original decision ordered Campbell to pay the costs on all the charges. The latest decision compels the relators to pay the costs on about one-half of the charges, the defendant paying the remainder.

The D. W. Miller Carriage Company, of Cincinnati, has assigned. Liabilities, $160,000; assets, $125,000.

The house occupied by Mike Burns, a few miles from St. Charles, Minn., burned on the night of the 5th. Mrs. Burns saved two children, but two girls, aged seven and eleven years, perished.

Nine convicts were whipped at New Castle, Del., on the 7th, eight for larceny and one for burglary. Later, a negro received twenty lashes and stood for an hour in the pillory. Others received ten lashes.

A boiler explosion at the flouring mills of J. C. Harris in Montgomery, Ind., on the 7th fatally scalded the engineer, John Mattingley, and seriously damaged the building.

S. S. Merrill, General Manager of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad, died at Milwaukee on the 8th.

Henry Kessler, a well-known citizen, ex-Sheriff of Cincinnati, and at one time a member of the Ohio Legislature, died on the 7th.

G. Cassard & Sons' extensive pork-packing establishment at Baltimore, Md., was completely destroyed by fire on the morning of the 8th, involving a loss of $100,000. Four firemen were injured by a falling wall, one or two seriously.

The extensive distillery of Christian Pepper, at Lebanon, Ill., one of the largest in the State, burned on the 8th. The building and contents were a total loss.

The attempted poisoning of the family of Judge Nottingham, at Perry, Ga., a few days ago, created intense excitement in that place. The son of the cook, aged fourteen, confessed that he had placed a large quantity of morphine in the milk for the purpose of killing the whole family, as his mother told him "Dere was too many white folks in de world, and it was time to get shet of some of dem." The guilty woman and her son are in jail.

Pinkney H. Walker, Judge of the Supreme Court for the Fourth District of Illinois, died at his home in Rushville, that State, on the 8th. For two weeks he had been suffering from a carbuncle on the back of his head, which affected his brain and caused death. His age was sixty-nine.

An ordinance has been adopted by the Keokuk (Ia.) City Council licensing the saloons to sell beverages not prohibited by the State law. The license was fixed at $100 per year. A resolution passed recently to enforce the State law was rescinded. The saloons will take out licenses and continue to do business until interfered with by private individuals.

The bronze statute of General Frank P. Blair, ordered by the city of St. Louis, was successfully cast at the Cincinnati Art Foundry on the 7th in the presence of a large assemblage of citizens interested in art. The model was the work of W. W. Gardner, of St. Louis.

It is said that Governor Ireland, of Texas, will ask General McClellan to represent Texas on the joint commission proposed by Congress to decide whether Greer County belongs to the United States or to Texas. The question involves property valued at $50,000,000.

FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

It was stated at the annual meeting of the Nova Scotia Sugar Refining Company a few days ago that the losses on the year's operations was about $200,000, and the dividend was accordingly passed. The loss was caused by buying heavily early in the spring when sugar was down, in expectation that it would rise very shortly, but instead of doing so it kept depreciating. The coming year is brighter, as the market is steadily advancing.

Bismarck's organ, the North German Gazette, urges that an Anglo-German squadron be dispatched to the Congo to vindicate the neutrality laws, and the character of the International African Association.

The prize of $500 offered by General Wolsely for the best time made by any division of the Nile expedition between Harras and Debbeh has been awarded to the Royal Irish Brigade.

On arriving in Rome a few days ago, Michael Davitt went to the hotel chiefly patronized by English travelers and residents. Upon his presence becoming known the English guests notified the landlord that they would not sit at the table with the Irish agitator. Mr. Davitt thereupon withdrew from the hotel.

It is stated that Austria has been asked to join Germany and Russia in the formation of an International Extraditional League, based on the principles of the treaty recently completed between Germany and Russia for the mutual extradition of Anarchists.

Twelve sailors belonging to the French fleet at Matson were shot on the 8th for having engaged in a mutiny on board one of the ships.

It is reported that many of the friendly tribes in the Soudan are showing signs of defection from the British cause since the receipt of the news of Gordon's capture. This is especially true of the powerful Kabbabish tribe. It is feared that if the defection becomes complete it will enable El Mahdi to prevent Wolseley's retreat or reinforcement, at least by the Nile route.

Advices from West Africa state that the Ahwoondi tribe recently attacked Quitta, on the north Guinea gold coast. The natives of Quitta and Houssa were assisted by the English police under Captain Campbell in driving the invaders back. There was a desperate conflict in which three of the white men were killed and Captain Campbell dangerously wounded. Three hundred natives on both sides were slain.

LATER NEWS.

RICHARD SHORT, who stabbed Captain Phelan in O'Donavan Rossa's office a New York City a few weeks ago, was admitted to bail in $3,000 on the 9th, Dennis Corbet becoming his bondsman. Short received a letter from Cork, Ireland, a few days ago, announcing the death of his wife in that city on the 19th of January.

THE jury in the Murphy murder case at New Orleans failing to agree upon a verdict were discharged on the 9th. The jury stood eleven for acquittal and one for conviction.

A MEETING of the board of underwriters and the representative members of the various insurance companies doing business in Pittsburgh will be held shortly for the purpose of considering the advisability of advancing premiums twenty-five per cent.

THE Presbyterian Minister's Association, of Pittsburgh, at their meeting on the 9th, considered the subject of roller-skating rinks. A paper prepared by the Rev. J. T. Gibson was read and adopted as the sentiment of the association and ordered printed in the church papers. The reverend gentleman enters a most vigorous protest against the skating rinks, earnestly exhorting all Christians to cease following the multitude unthinkingly.

THE Kansas Legislature on the 9th passed a joint resolution condemning the action of the State Commissioner at the World's Fair at New Orleans in joining with others in inviting Jefferson Davis to participate in the reception of the Liberty Bell.

THE remains of Ephraim Doolittle and Andrew Bezer were found in the ruins of the starch factory which burned at Peoria, Ill., on the 8th. The loss by the fire will reach $100,000; half insured.

THOMPSON DERR, General State Agent of the Franklin Fire Insurance and Pennsylvania Fire Insurance Companies, the Philadelphia, Hanover, New York, and other companies, died at Wilkesbarre, Pa., on the 8th, at the age of fifty-one. He leaves a fortune of $700,000.

THE Chairman of the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds reported favorably in the Senate on the 9th a bill increasing the appropriation for the erection of a public building in Pittsburgh to cost $1,500,000, which was passed. Mr Cameron (of Pa.) submitted a resolution directing the Committee on Finance to inquire whether any part of the surplus revenue of the Treasury could be beneficially expended for the purpose of reviving American shipping by allowing rebates on tariff duties now imposed. The bill making it unlawful to enclose lands upon the public domain, better known as the Anti-Fencing bill, was taken up and discussed until the morning hour had expired when it went over and the Anti-Silver Coinage bill was called up, and Mr. Beck took the floor and reviewed at length the circumstances connected with the coinage of the trade dollar, and argued in favor of its retirement. At four o'clock the Senate went into executive session and soon after adjourned. The House immediately after the expiration of the morning hour went into Committee of the Whole on the River and Harbor bill, and after discussing it at length adjourned without reaching a vote.

From the Corporal.

From the Marine Barracks, Pensacola, Florida, Corporal Ben. Barger writes of the benefits of Brown's Iron Bitters in that malarious region. He says: "I have used several bottles and must say I am greatly benefited by using it. Several of my comrades use Brown's Iron Bitters, and you may rest assured they all think it is the greatest thing on earth." This kind of testimony comes from all quarters concerning Brown's Iron Bitters, the best tonic.

ON THE ENGINE.

Running a Locomotive While Deathly Sick—Something the Passengers Did Not Know—A Physician Saves an Engineer.

TAUNTON, Mass.

Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.:

DEAR SIR: I am an engineer on the old Colony Railroad, and run the Fall River boat train between Fall River and Lowell, resting in Taunton. For ten years I suffered everything but death from dyspepsia. Often I had such blinding sick headaches that I could scarcely see. I think this was due partly to irregular habits of eating and partly to the jar of the engine. Sometimes my head would shap like neuralgia, and again the pain would settle in my eyes, which would feel as big as a man's fists. My breath was very offensive, and my food soured as soon as it entered my stomach. In fact my stomach felt as though it were a great raw and sore surface, and what agony it gave perhaps you can imagine.

In the summer and fall of 1876 when we had the heavy centennial travel, the constant jar brought on acute attacks nearly every week and I thought I should have to leave the road. But I kept at work until the next Spring, when I grew so much worse that I could virtually eat nothing, and concluded that my labor and my life too, were about over.

Remember that I had tried every medicine I heard of, and had been treated by some of the best physicians in Taunton and Lowell. At this critical time Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy was recommended to me. It was new to me, and with my experience of medicines you can easily forgive me for saying that I had not a particle of faith in it.

I had taken it but a few days when I began to get better. The raw and sore feeling left my stomach, and the snapping pains left my head, and soon I was all right, and have been ever since. It is the only thing that ever did me the least good, and it drove every ache, pain and discomfort completely out of my body. Now I keep Kennedy's Favorite Remedy with me on my engine, and it goes wherever I go.

Why, I believe Kennedy's Favorite Remedy will cure anything. One night, a while ago, John Layton, an engineer who runs the main line boat train from Boston, came on my engine sick as death. He was worn out with work, had a high fever, and was so nervous he almost broke down crying. "Nonsense, John," I said, cheer up, I've got something on my engine that will set you up in a jiffy." I took out a bottle of Favorite Remedy, lifted his head and gave him a good dose. He went to bed. Two days after I saw him looking healthy as a butcher. "John," he says, "what was that stuff you gave me the other night?" "It was Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, Rondout, N. Y.," said I. "Well I don't care whose Remedy it is, it's the thing for a man on the railroad." So say we all.

Yours, etc., DANIEL FITTS.

This preparation goes to the root of the disease by purifying the blood and toning every organ into healthy action. It is use in all climates, in office, everywhere.

OBITUARY.

Thomas Theodore Romeyn was born at Johnstown, N. Y. December 25, 1799, of Holland and Scotch Irish ancestry. The family name has been known in Europe since the 12th century, and the first bearer of it in this country settled in New York in 1661. The subject of this sketch being of the sixth generation in the land. The family has been represented in the clerical, medical and legal profession, having furnished, since its advent in the new world, twenty five ministers of the Gospel, and the name has been in one pulpit that of the First Reformed church of Hackensack, N. J., for three quarters of a century. Some have carried swords in every war the country has seen since their first arrival, and one fell with the colors of his regiment the First New York, in his hands at the Redoubt gate of the City of Mexico.

His grandfather Rev. Thomas Romeyn was settled at what is now Fonda, Montgomery county, N. Y. when it was frontier town and was then far farther west than any settlement in that state. The paternal grandfather of Mr Romeyn was John Mason of Coleraine, Ireland, and an early settler at Cherry Valley, Otsego county, N. Y. He was a staunch patriot, a member of the provincial congress of New York, and its first chaplain, was specially obnoxious to the tories, and in the destruction of Cherry Valley by them and the Indians in 1778 was eagerly sought for as an object of vengeance, but escaped with his family.

Levi, the father of Mr Romeyn removed to Lyons, Wayne county, N. Y. they a stalwart boomer in the midst of an almost unbroken wilderness, and in early years Mr. R. resided forty years, when 1856 he removed to Mt Tabor, and purchased the farm on which he has since resided.

Living up to manhood in a new country, his opportunities for education were limited but he was an assiduous student of standard literature, and he had an ardent love of the better class of poetry. Could repeat cantos and scores from memory and find an appropriate quotation from some poet, to locally figure, for almost every occasion. It was his custom to rise early, and much of his reading was done at that hour. His memory was wonderful, and after he had passed "threescore and ten" he contributed a series of local historical articles for an eastern paper, ranging through over one hundred numbers, surprisingly accurate and entirely from memory.

A whig in politics, down to the organization of the republican party, he never sought office, but was never backward in advocating his principles and his accurate reading and tenacious memory made him a formidable antagonist.

For more than half a century he had been a consistent member of the Presbyterian church, and, till hindered by his last illness, a constant attendant at divine service. Almost his only expressed regret was that he could no longer enjoy church privileges. For several years he has been obliged to use crutches, on account of a fall which fractured his hip, and was during the last years, entirely unable to walk. Of herculean frame and endurance, he long resisted the approach of the destroyer, and lived long after anyone supposed he could do so. In the latter part of his illness he often expressed a desire to depart and be at rest, and that as he had lived "without fear and without reproach."

The funeral services were held at the residence of the deceased in Clinton township on the 13th inst. and the remains were placed temporarily in the vault of the Tecumseh cemetery. Last Monday afternoon they were conveyed to the train and taken to Lyons, N. Y., to find a final resting place by the side of old friends who had gone before. The deceased was the last representative of his family, of his own generation, to pass over to the other shore.

IN MEMORIAM.

Died in Clinton township, on Tuesday, Feb. 5, 1885, Thomas Hendershot, aged 48 years. The deceased was born at the homestead where his entire life was spent. More than twenty-five years ago he lost his health, since which time he has remained an invalid, bearing his afflictions with cheerfulness and without murmuring, and on which account, the sympathies of his relatives and the community were centered upon him. He lived a quiet unobtrusive life, always reciprocating the love and affection which were bestowed upon him by friends and associates. For years he had been the companion and solace of his aged father, whose head is silvered over with the frosts of many winters, and who is now deprived of the last remaining one in his household. Many times has the death-angel entered this family circle, and elder ones, and infants have been removed, and now again the breach is opened which time cannot heal.

The funeral took place at the family residence on Sunday the 8th. Rev. Mr. Kerridge officiating. One sister and three brothers with their father are left to mourn their loss. And now we can follow our friend no farther; the footsteps we so gladly welcomed, the familiar voice, the pleasant smile, the bright expression of the mild eye, we shall see and hear no more.

"Till we pass down the deep dark valley
And greet him on the other shore."

COM.

Mrs. Amanda Keeney, wife of J. R. Keeney, died at the residence of her son in Riley, Michigan, Feb. 9th, 1885, aged 63 years. The deceased for the last 40 years was a resident of Franklin or Cambridge, as the wife of J. P. Keeney, 46 years. She leaves a family of nine sons and daughters, all married. The bereaved husband mourns the loss of a truly good wife. When we look over the record of near and dear friends who have left to be no more, it is right and just to say a few words to commemorate their worthy acts. Our friend and neighbor for full forty years, in the home circle, at church, or sunday school, a very exemplary lady; for many years superintendent of the sabbath school, always one of the leaders in singing; she had many strong friendships, and upon her departure a deep gloom settles down on sweet memories in scores of households for her Christian graces and estimable character. She was a worthy member of the Episcopal Church in that and other circles will be mourned and missed. Farewell, friend of our friends, friend of our children, whose virtuous life and example has left a legacy far richer and more enduring than purest gold or precious gems. The funeral was held at the church in the township of Cambridge, where she had been a member for about thirty years, Rev. Henry Hoyle officiating. Her vacant chair and the church were draped in mourning with many beautiful inclosed flowers. F. A. D.

Died at the parental home in Lake Ridge, Mich. February 9th, 1885, of pneumonia, Mrs. Julia E. Wiggins, wife of D. R. Wiggins, and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Easlick, aged 21 years, 2 months and 2 days. The funeral services were conducted at the house on the 11th inst. at one o'clock P. M. and the remains deposited in Lake Ridge cemetery. Rev. Clark of Ridgeway officiating.

She had been married only about ten months, and had not yet left the old home, and being the oldest of a family of five children was the admitted leader in many of the household affairs especially was this the case in the laundry, sewing and musical departments. In connection with her labor studies, she acquired quite an extensive musical education to which she naturally aspired. The mellow tones of the piano, and the melody of song in connection with her young companions, greatly enlivened the varied social family gatherings. Her active mind and correct orthography, like an ever ready encyclopedia guided the pen of your humble correspondent. Her unassuming friendship and generous social nature endeared her to all. Few have passed away with stronger attachments, or left behind deeper sorrow. The family circle has again been broken. Julia has gone. Sad indeed for husband, parents, brothers and sisters.

In behalf of the near friends we would extend our kindest regards to the many friends and neighbors, who so ministered so lovingly administered to our varied wants in this sad affliction. Turning out through wind and storm, with the mercury 20° to 30° below attending at the bedside of dying friends, braving the highways of the terrible drifts, ladies walking long distances where teams could not be driven—and the Ridgeway choir, who rendered such acceptable service—coming miles to assist in the last sad ceremonies—for all of whom we tender our sincere and most grateful acknowledgements.

Godey's Lady's Book for March presents some very strong attractions. Beside the steel illustration of the story, "Another Alternative," there is a very pretty wood-cut furnished this month, and a novel colored work design. A new story by Miss Rollston, called "Janie," opens in this number. "Under Grey Skies" progresses toward an interesting climax, and Helen Mather's "Dreaming of the Weird Motive," a strong story by M. R. Housekeeper, is one of the unsuccessful MSS. entered for the prize competition. Mrs. V. Sheffey "Haller's" laughable charade, "Dining Room," is concluded this month and several new departures are made in the editorial columns. Godey's comes out every month with some fresh attraction. One would think in time its resources would be exhausted, but they seem to increase and multiply. The latest enterprise of Messrs. J. H. Haulenbeck & Co., the publishers, is the award of books to every person who secures a new subscriber, one book for every subscriber secured. These books are all catalogued and a free choice is allowed. The list comprises many of the standard works of the best authors. It is truly wonderful that for the small price of $2.00 the publishers can afford to furnish their magazine for one year, and a book premium costing in the stores from one to two dollars. But this is one of the problems that Godey's Lady's book has solved successfully, and we accept the result with complete satisfaction. Subscriptions may commence any time.

Representative Howell has written a letter to parties in Blissfield relative to his new drain law in which he says:

I do not think we can have a law so simple as the Ohio law. In Ohio the township and county have the right to take private property for the public benefit. In this state private property can only be taken for the use of the public by a jury of 12 or three commissioners appointed by a court of record. The present law is so defective that it is not safe for a commissioner to attempt to construct a drain. I hope to remedy the matter and at least give you a law that will be clear and easily understood and concise in its meaning, one of which all appeals will have to be made after the commissioners have made their determination in the case and before the work of construction begins, but you know that no legislature can provide against the carelessness of drain commissioners.

DOES FARMING PAY?

FRANKLIN, Feb. 16, 85.

EDITOR OF HERALD.—If you will allow us a little space in the Herald we would like to make a few comments on the article published in your issue of Feb. 5th, headed "does farming pay at present prices" We don't wish to pose as a sore head farmer crank, but have been through the mill, and claim to know what we are talking about. Whether it pays or not, farmers as a rule must keep right on until it does pay. Shifting from one business to another hardly ever pays in the end. There are men that will succeed in most anything they undertake. For example, there is a young man in Franklin but thirty-four years of age, who has an $18,000 farm paid for, and he didn't inherit it either; but that is an achievement but few obtain. The figures in the article make an eighty acre farm produce an income of $1,300 a year. It is figured on a basis of sure crops and no allowance made for drouths and failure of crops that can't be avoided, such as cut worms eating the corn, weevil eating the wheat, etc. A man with years of experience and plenty of money in his pocket to buy all necessaries will make a farm produce much more than one without those means and heavily in debt; but the one with small means is the one which we started out to advise. It is policy for any young man who likes farming to get a farm, for there he is free from the vices and temptations of city life, and is not dependent on any one's trade or patronage. If he has $2000 buy what land that will pay for and no more. A big mortgage on a farm is a tyrannical yoke that will make life burdensome and drag you into a premature grave. Then to succeed, pay as you go; eschew all outside speculations, never sign a paper for a stranger, do your own thinking and work to win, and you will win. The HERALD and other county papers are to be complimented for giving the farmers due warning of the new swindles and dodges.

FAY DEPUY.

THE DETROIT FREE PRESS.

Several weeks ago The Free Press began the issue of a distinct Monday paper to its subscribers in the city, thus furnishing them on the morning of every day in the year with the latest news from all quarters. The reception of the paper was so hearty that steps were taken to place subscribers in the country on an equal footing with those in the city. This has been done, and subscribers to the Daily Free Press, whether in city or country, get the seven daily issues of the paper.

The improvements indicated, while entailing large expense upon the publishers, are made without cost to the subscribers, who reap all the benefit from them. Subscribers in the city and country are entitled to a paper for every day in the week.

The Free Press is and will continue to be the leading representative newspaper of Michigan. It circulates largely in every part of the Union and Canada, and is the medium to which non-residents invariably turn for information of Michigan and its affairs. For half a century The Free Press has been identified with and assisted in building up the vast interests of the State, and with them has grown and prospered. Years of toil, enterprise and expenditure under one management has been the secret of its great success, and won for it its present high position among newspapers and with the public. It challenges comparison with any newspaper published.

The Free Press enjoys special and exclusive news-gathering facilities. With its accustomed enterprise, arrangements were made some time ago to receive its numerous dispatches over its own wires at its own office, a valuable auxiliary of which no other paper can boast. Its corps of correspondents is also very large and effective. In addition to all the news of the day, congressional, legislative, commercial and market reports, state news, etc., the literary features of the paper are especially noteworthy. It numbers among its contributors nearly all the most famous writers of the times, every issue being filled with literary good things. If you want a newspaper clean and pure in tone, that will furnish information, entertainment, and instruction to every member of the family, take The Free Press.

Macon Grange, No. 167, will give an entertainment on Tuesday, Feb. 24th, at 7:30 P. M. The following is the program:

Opening Song—Choir.

The Commercial Bulletin remarks that "the American nose can now be wiped with an American made silk handkerchief, but no American nose can be wiped with a domestic linen handkerchief; and moreover, no American heart beats beneath a domestic linen bosom. Let linen be a little better protected and linens would be sold cheaper in price and better in quality than the imported linens at the present time." Not a yard of linen is made in the United States! And yet no country is better adapted to flax raising or manufacturing!

PUTZ-POMADE!

Is an article introduced into this country for the polishing of all kinds of metals,

UNIVERSAL-METALL-PUTZ-POMADE A. V. & Co. Preis-Medaille Gewerbe-Ausstellung 1879. Schutzmarke. Mit wenig Pomade auf welchem Lappchen wird der Gegenstand fast abgerieben, dann gut abgeputzt u. mit einem trockenen Lappchen nachgerieben.

GOLD, SILVER, BRASS, COPPER, TIN, ZINC, &c.

As a polish it is a wonder worker, and it is bound to become its favorite with everyone who has occasion to polish metals. With this pomade you can polish a spoon, a cup, a watch, or any similar article while you are shaking the bottle or getting ready to work with a liquid polish. This Pomade will not run like a liquid, or make a dust like a powder polish, consequently it will not, like them, soil or stain the adjacent parts of any article on which it is used.

It is invaluable for the polishing of scales, show cases, musical instruments, and especially machines with rough surfaces, where it is difficult to apply liquid or powder polish. It will polish gold, silver, copper, brass, the nickle plate or any other metal. It will not scratch or injure the finest gold. It will polish quicker and easier than any other article.

TESTIMONIALS.

A few of the many testimonials and references received we give below, which should convince the most skeptical that this polish is all that is represented to be, and no humbug.

TECUMSEH, Mich., Jan. 12, 1885.

ORR BROS.—The Universal Metal Putz-Pomade we have given a fair and thorough trial, and find it superior to any we have ever used, and we have tried a good many different kinds. We take pleasure in recommending it to fire departments and others in need of a metal polish. We find this pomade free from acid and grit, and it gives a good durable polish, lasting much longer than all others we have tried.

ORR BROS.—Putz-Pomade is good and can be relied upon for all that it is advertised to do.

GEO. E. ADAMSON, Jeweler.

TECUMSEH, Mich., Jan. 8, 1885.

GENTLEMEN—After a thorough trial of Putz Pomade we find it superior to anything else for polishing brass, silver, gold or any other metal. It will not scratch, and gives a polish as good as when new. As a polish it is perfect.

A. ANDERSON & SONS, grocers.

TECUMSEH, Mich., Jan. 12, 1885.

DEAR SIRS—Having tried Putz Pomade Polish we cheerfully recommend it as being the most perfect polish we have ever used.

Respectfully, W. & S. W. ANDERSON & CO., Dry Goods and Carpets.

TECUMSEH, Mich., Jan 20, 1885.

Having used the Putz Pomade in cleaning and polishing metal trimmings on harness, I can cheerfully recommend it as no humbug, but the best I ever used. CHAS. BIDWELL, Ex-Sheriff.

W. Mecomber, dry goods:—"Excellent for metal show cases."

John Kinzel:—"Best ever used."

Fred Barse:—"The best polish we ever used."

Val. Fox:—"First-class polish for soda fountain."

Chas. Humphrey:—"Best I have tried."

It is also highly recommended by Ex-Ald. Shattuck, Ex-Mayor Corbin, Ex. Ald. Clark, Geo. R. Allis, Ed. Sword, Rev. John S. Holmes, Mrs. Dr. V. H. Baker, Mrs. Chas. Hayden, Mrs. Mart Chittenden, Mrs. Geo. Knight, Mrs. John Mason.

GET A BOX! TRY IT!

And you will soon become interested, and turn your attention to the nickel plating on the stove; then, after skirmishing through the silver ware, you will fix the blackest part of the coffee pot so that you can use it as a mirror. If you can think of any old brass on the premises that has not been cleaned for a generation, shine it up to make sure there is no humbug about the polish. Now give your watch just twenty seconds labor, and by that time you will feel obliged to find and tell someone of the merits of this wonderful article, and ever after you will be a walking and a talking advertisement of the Putz-Pomade.

PUTZ-POMADE

is useful in the household, in the store, in the workshop, in every place where metal work is to be kept bright. Try it for show cases, andirons, silverware, harness trimmings, scales, musical instruments, stove trimmings, door handles, or any kind of metal work. Any dealer will refund your money if you are not satisfied.

CLINTON CHAPTER.

Mrs. Mat Lancaster and children, of Brooklyn, are at the Lancaster House.

Ed. Clark started last week Wednesday for Denver, Colorado.

The M. E. social was held last Wednesday at Munson King's in Bridgewater. Considering the distance and the weather, quite a number were present.

Teachers and pupils enjoyed a half-holiday last Monday. Prof. Laffin and his corps of teachers recognized an excellent opportunity for sleigh-riding of which they were not slow to take advantage.

Miss Lou Reynolds visited Mrs. Will Anspoker, of Manchester, last week Wednesday.

Mrs. William Demuth has been suffering with neuralgia for the past week. She was better at last account.

Clinton has an acquisition in the shape of a dentist. Dr. Finch, of Toledo is in town every Friday, and those wishing dental work done will find him at their service at Dr. Cameron's office over Randall's drug store. He has already done some good work, as Ezra DePuy can testify.

The Baptist society held their social last Tuesday evening at the residence of Mrs. H. M. Keyser. The weather was very favorable and a goodly company was present.

John T. Clark is busily engaged in cutting and drawing his wood from the river bottoms.

We hear that Mrs. Bigelow, the elocutionist, who gave an entertainment here under the auspices of the Literary Society, is soon to be here again. Everyone who can, ought to go, for she is well worth the patronage of all who enjoy fine readings and recitations.

Miss Hessie Cupples, of Tecumseh, spent Sunday with Mrs. J. E. McCollum.

Rev. Mr. Kerridge was called about four miles east of here last Sunday to visit Mrs. David Hibner who is not expected to live.

Mrs. H. Lancaster has been quite sick for the past two weeks but is at present improving.

Mrs. William Matthews received the sad intelligence of her mother's death in England, last week.

Dr. Cameron reports a very good office trade.

E. W. Freese has received some of his spring goods and would be pleased to have his customers examine them and learn prices. He has also just been putting in a new stock of ladies' shoes to the amount of six hundred dollars. All the new styles, and prices to suit "hard times."

Rev. Jos. St. John went to Detroit Monday to be present at the consecration of Rev. Dr. Worthington, Bishop of Nebraska.

The funeral of Mrs. Judd whose sickness was reported last week was held at William Judd's last Monday at twelve o'clock. The remains were placed in the vault. The deceased was the mother of Mrs. Carmer of Clinton, and Mrs. Charles Crane, of Bridgewater. Six years ago Mrs. Judd had a stroke of paralysis and has not been able to walk since that time. She was eighty years of age.

ADDISON ATOMS.

The unusual severity of the weather for the past few weeks has caused the southern fever to rage to a considerable extent here.

The prevailing business at this point is to keep the stove from freezing up and to take weather notes now days.

Dave Hirshman, late with J. D. Sheridan of Brooklyn, has opened a fine line of clothing and gent's furnishing goods in the Swartout block, which he offers at prices which will never fail to stun or astonish.

Dr. Wm. Brown's new drug store is fast nearing completion and when done it will be the finest we have seen in the county.

Last week was remarkable in its record of failures here. The young people's reading circle failed to materialize on Wednesday evening, the union prayer meeting on Thursday, and the Lodge of I. O. G. T's. on Friday night.

Crandall's new skating rink opened on the 19th inst, and has been the nucleus around which the chink and leisure favored people have centered ever since.

Life insurance agents say they are going to "change off," and a surgical institute will probably be the new engagement. Truly the natural fitness of things is admirable, and an eye to "biz" just as necessary an element in the compound of success.

ONSTED ODDS.

[This letter failed to reach us in time for our issue of the 19th.]—ED. HERALD.

News scarce and snow plenty.

Surprise party at P. O. Maxwell's Tuesday night.

There seems to be a good many on the sick list at present.

There has been an abundant ice harvest which is about completed.

C. L. Vaughn has removed his dentist office from Springville to Brooklyn. He talks some of starting a branch office here.

The board of school inspectors have appointed C. E. Jessup township librarian in place of C. L. Vaughn, who has resigned.

Mr. Ira Fish closed his school in district number 9 last week. They say Ira is an excellent teacher and has given good satisfaction.

Mrs. Katie Fulmer started Monday, Feb. 8th, for her new home in Antrim county. She started in a bad snow storm and we have not heard whether she has reached her destination yet or not.

RIDGEWAY RAMBLES.

Poor sleighing for the amount of snow.

Mrs. Sarah Rappleye spent sabbath with Mrs. Erastus Rappleye and family of Dundee.

Rev. S. M. Fowler of Kalamazoo, addressed the Union club, at the Hall, on Wednesday evening of last week, in the interest of Prohibition.

Mr. Louis Thompson is visiting relatives and friends at the village and vicinity.

Agent Frank Allen of Jerome, spent Sunday with his Ransom, Minnie and friends.

Mr. John Emmons of Mattawan is visiting old friends about these parts this week.

Mr. Mitchel of Canada is working up a writing-class here at present.

Miss Emeline Robertson of Adrian is the guest of Mrs. Chas. Gove.

Messrs. Chas. Barneby and Ben. Ranch of Raisinville, called on friends Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

The friends of the Christian church at Britton will give a donation for Rev. S. M. Fowler, who has been filling the pulpit for the past few weeks, on Tuesday evening of next week, at the church in Britton.

Mr. Warren Jones is drawing the brick to enlarge and repair the house of Mrs. Hall, on South church street.

The attendance at the social that was held at the home of Mrs. Gove last Friday evening, was large and all enjoyed the conundrums very much. The next social will be held at the home of Mrs. M. M. Florence next week Friday evening: a special invitation to all.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Gove are visiting friends at Napoleon this week.

Mr. & Mrs. Eldridge Lowe and Mr. and Mrs. Gould of Stoughton, Dane county, Wis., have been visiting relatives and friends here the past few weeks. Mr. Lowe is the telegraph operator for the Milwaukee, Chicago & St. Paul Division, and is stationed at Stoughton, a place of about 2000 inhabitants. We are glad to hear of his success.

We would extend our sincere and heartfelt thanks to the kind neighbors and friends, for their kindness to us in our sad bereavement and death of a beloved husband and father, that has been taken from us, but the Lord was kind in sparing him to us so long, and now in his old age, has just taken him home to rest. Thanks to the choir for the beautiful music rendered at the last service.

MRS. D. CORYELL.
MRS. S. HAUSE.

HOLLOWAY HASH.

Two more cases of typhoid fever, Lourie and Annie Zites, on the Wells farm.

Our new merchant's, Osgood & Dennison, are in full blast with Joe Medic ashead clerk.

Great indignation is felt by the people of this vicinity on account of Kir Clark's manner of wintering stock. It appears that he has allowed his oxen to pick their living all winter keeping them yoked together most of the time. One of them died the other day, the other ox being still fast to him by the yoke, and about as near death's door as could be and live. It is to be hoped that law abiding citizens will look after the matter and see that such things do not occur again in our midst.

John Frary has moved into rooms over Sleeper's store.

Mac Sleeper has been to Toledo with meat twice within the last week.

Rev. Vaughan and wife attend the quarterly meeting at Adrian this week.

Wm. Brainard returned from Buffalo Saturday night on the midnight train. He intended to make the evening train which collided with a freight train near Hand, and was saved from a pretty severe shaking up by being late once in his life.

Rev. Mize is making a trip through the north part of the state.

TIPTON TOPICS.

Clevelands first official act should be to reform the Signal Service: the people have had about all the cold waves they can stand.

A. W. Simmons, who by the way has bred more fast stepping horses than any man in the county recently had the misfortune to lose the mare known as "old Fox." She died from injuries received by a kick from another horse. She was the dame of "Hunter" and several other colts that are bad ones to down.

Bert Crittenden, the original and only genuine, says he don't hanker after hot molasses candy any more.

Fremont Hunter who now resides at Chesterton Ind. spent Sabbath here under the parental roof. His wife who accompanied him hither, will remain for a short time.

The new depot is still unoccupied. Perhaps somebody could rent it for a skating rink.

Miss Etta Jeffrey is reported very sick also, Mrs. J. A. Tuttle.

For the first time in 32 years the surviving members of the family of Wm. Burns Sr. all met at the house of their father on Tuesday.

John Jeffrey has bought the house and lot owned by Thos. Gittins and will occupy the premises in the near future.

Since the departure of Jerry Tuttle the Tipton Postoffice has been without a Postmaster. There are plenty of aspirants for the place but they will all be obliged to wait a little.

The revivals held nightly have made slow progress during the cold weather. Hell would have more terrors if the weather was more torrid.

"American Boy" in last week's issue advocates the rights of his fellows in a manner that indicates he will soon occupy a position more suited to his ability than that of a farmer's boy.

J. R. Keeney shipped 7 good horses to Marshall on Wednesday.

BRITTON BUDGET.

Contracts for building a new school house in Dist. No. 2 will be let on Saturday, March 7th. For particulars see special notice in the HERALD.

John and Ed Allen will give an inauguration party at Britton's Hall, Britton, on Wednesday evening of next week, March 4th. Music by Keyser & Machum's full band. Bill only $1.25. Floor manager, Jos. Mellon. The boys have got good music and a good manager. They ought to have a large crowd and a good time.

A sad accident occurred last Tuesday, by which Robt. Darrow lost his life. Mr. Darrow was at work in Geo. Getty's woods felling trees to be cut into wood. One tree had been wedged, and the choppers expected it to fall in a certain direction. It fell in an entirely different direction and the top of the tree struck Mr. Darrow, crushing him to the earth, and killing him instantly. The deceased lived at Wm. Curry's and was a brother to Mr. Curry's wife. The young man was respected by all and the sad affair has cast a gloom over the whole community.

A HALF DAY'S RESPITE.

We made a brief visit at Holloway yesterday on business.

The new proprietors of the Holloway store, Osgood & Dennison, took possession on Tuesday, and are putting in a complete stock of goods. They are most genial gentlemen, well posted in their business and will undoubtedly succeed in their new field. We call the attention of our Raisin readers to their new card in another column.

J. S. Gilman is doing finely in his harness shop, and invites his friends to call and see him.

Dr. Begel also is prospering. He has a good ride and is working up a good drug trade. He does not deal in tobacco.

We had a pleasant chat with Benj. Kelly in his new home. He has a fine house and is well fixed now to enjoy life. He rents his farm on shares and gives his entire attention to the shipping of stock.

Returning by way of Britton we had about three hours there between trains. Took supper with Willie Britton and found him well and happy.

The store of John Britton & Son is running finely and enjoys a good trade.

The saw mill is running to its fullest capacity, employing a full set of hands.

The two new stores in Exelby's block, E. C. Rauch's and Henry McClure's branch store, are both supplied with fine stocks of goods and seem to be well patronized.

Remember the band benefit to-morrow evening—Give the boys a rousing house.

FARMERS' SOCIAL CLUB.

Friday evening, Feb. 20th, the Farmers' social club met at the residence of Jacob Everhart. Taking into consideration the extreme cold weather, and the state of the roads, there was a very large attendance of our own club, and quite a number of visitors from the Deer Creek and Franklin club. The program was a good one and well carried out, especially the essay written by Gracie Gillespie, which was a great credit to a lady of only 10 years of age. Also, the select reading by Miss Emma Schreder was a first class selection and well read. Music good. A very large part of the farmer's present took part in the discussion of the question, "Is soiling more advantageous than pasturing?"

Mr. F. A. Horton led the discussion, saying that where pasturing was the rule it required about 700 rods of fence to fence an 80 acres farm as it should be to have it convenient for our mixed husbandry. Computed that the cost of 700 rods of reliable fence would be $700; interest on the money invested in fence at 7 per cent, and, counting the same to keep it in repair year after year, $98; than allow each fence one half rod of ground, which he considered worse than lost as in most cases as it was a harbor for weeds and varmin, would make two acres of ground, worth $80 per acre, interest on which at 7 per cent would make the whole cost of interest and maintainance of fencing in order to pasture, about $110.00 per acre. He thought that would more than pay the wages of a man six months at $18 per month to soil the stock in the yard. Besides, where it requires 25 acres to pasture the stock, the same could be soiled from 8 acres, leaving 17 acres for hay or other crops. Besides, thought it would be a great saving in fertilizers, and a great satisfaction to know all the time just where your stock were.

Mr. A. D. Hall said he did not think it advisable to adopt the system of soiling in this country as labor is altogether too scarce and too high to make it profitable. Said soiling was not practiced to any considerable extent except in those very thickly settled states in Europe, where land was very dear, and labor very cheap. Said they could not by any means afford to pasture their land. Thought the first speaker's estimates upon the waste land on account of fences, altogether too high. Thought there was absolutely no lost or waste ground as the grass grew the rankest next to the fence.

Mr. F. C. Rector said he believed it would be to the advantage of the farmers to soil instead of pasturing their whole farms as most of us were doing in the fall of the year, and thereby damaging their seeding to a great extent. Said if we would cut and carry the feed to our stock, and confine them to a reasonable sized yard where they could get exercise and where they could be protected from the scorching rays of the sun, that we could keep our stock on one-fifth the land that we now do, and they would do better, thus we could have the extra ground that we now use in pasture to cut hay or fodder, thus enabling us to keep nearly or quite double the stock we now do.

Mr. Griswold never knew but one man that practiced soiling entirely. Said the man told him that he meant to practice soiling until he could keep a cow for every acre of land he had. Believed he came very near to it.

A. K. Waldron said if he was going to practice soiling should keep his stock entirely upon dry feed with mill feed and grain. Would try to have it all cut fine. Believed they would do better than on green feed.

Mr. Wilson did not believe in soiling without it was horses. Thought it would be more profitable to pasture cattle than soil and was sure it would not do at all with sheep. The discussion being ended the committee on program reported the following for our next meeting which occurs in two weeks, or March 6th, at the residence of Mr. A. D. Hall.

Music—Choir.
Select Reading—Mrs. Hattie Horton.
Recitation—Lena Gillespie.
Singing—Kitt Griswold.
Chip Basket—Anna Everhart.
Inst. Music—Eva Rector and Kitt Griswold.
Declamation—George Henderson.
Essay—I. H. Schreeder.

TWO LITTLE FEET.

[illegible]

RICK AND THE ROCK.

A Bold Scheme That Won a Bachelor a Beautiful Bride.

"I think you've jumped too quickly to your conclusion, Helen. She doesn't care a pin's point for me now, though I was once with a chance.

"A [illegible] Come, you can talk as candidly to me as if I were your mother."

"If I wasn't so sure of your friendship for her I wouldn't dare to," he replied, "for I know you are longing to bring us together again—not merely for my peace of mind, but for hers, too."

"Ah, egotist! How do you know she loves you yet?"

"I—I don't know. I want to find out, and you said you'd help me if I came down."

"But I did not intend to proclaim that fact to the world, stupid—did I? And yet you told it to the girl herself. When I tried to patch it up by saying September is a wonderful month for producing my letter as evidence that I had written the 1st of August. No wonder you always need assistance in everything. You perfect [illegible]"

"Indeed, he suggested meekly.

"Yes, that's the word I was after—to help yourself.

"And that's why I depend so much on you this coming week—for a week is all I can take. Get up some nice scheme that will straighten matters between us and I'll give you my blessing."

"Pshaw! more than that's needed," replied the practical Helen.

"Well, that Pearl locket at Tiffany's you want so much—done, isn't it?" and he held out his hand.

"Yes," she said, meditatively, "I'll think of it. But as I said before, what broke your engagement off?"

"She—she fell in love for the time being with some one else, and—and threw me over for him," said Dick, in a choking voice, as he arose on Mrs. Darcy's suggesting it was near the dinner hour, and obediently took up the camp-chair and followed her to the house.

"Both of them pretty well touched—that's a good sign," she mused. "I'm not the match-maker my friends believe me to be if I don't bring my Rachael to her senses."

At dinner Rick, by Mrs. Darcy's contrivance, was seated beside Dick, and from common politeness was compelled to speak occasionally to him.

It was a very pleasant meal, she could not help confessing to herself. But after dinner they were separated. Of course, Mrs. Darcy had not thought of a scheme so soon, so Dick was obliged to curb his impatience till the next day. But the next day she kept her room with a headache, so it was not till evening that he got a chance for a few words in private.

"How about that scheme, Nell?" he asked anxiously.

"Oh, I don't know," very carelessly.

"You haven't thrown me over, have you?" he exclaimed, in alarm.

Mrs. Darcy laughed.

"By no means. Only I've been thinking I've sold the product of my brains for too little—a pearl locket isn't anything to speak of."

"We'll make it a pair of bracelets," he replied, in desperation, "if you'd only set your brains working on that product."

"So I will—immediately," with a satisfied air. "One can do much better with bracelets in view."

"It's my impression you intend to cheat me, after all," he said, doubtfully. "To-morrow the bracelets will not be enough, and you'll want a bigger bribe. But I warn you, Helen, that I draw the line at bracelets."

"That's all right," with a smile at his serious tone. "They're exactly what I want, and they are to be delivered on your wedding day. I'll trust Rick to pick them out. She knows my taste—Roman gold coils in shape of a snake, with diamond eyes and ruby nose."

Dick groaned aloud, but did not dare to let a word of disapprobation escape him.

"And you'll think it up right away, then," he said humbly, "for I haven't much time at now."

"I'll tell you to-morrow," she said, graciously, and with that he had to be content.

The morrow came. Taking Dick down to the very place where he had first come upon them two days before, Mrs. Darcy unfolded her interesting scheme.

"You remember," she began, impressively, "that it was on this spot you met her again for the first time in all those"

"Months," put in Dick, wearily.

"Well, months isn't so bad. I'm a little absent-minded this morning and thought it was years. Now, I've selected this spot for the reason I've just mentioned, and intend to have her come upon you—reverse matters for sake of change, you know."

"You'll be lying down on the sand, waiting for some one to come and roll a piece of rock off your shoulder, which I will take care to roll on so that you won't be able to extricate yourself. She will think it has fallen on you from the ledge above, while I [illegible] kick it [illegible] to be [illegible] I suppose [illegible] good [illegible] and [illegible] over and [illegible] will [illegible] proposal, and everything will be [illegible] Now, that's what I call a [illegible] I know, if you're going [illegible] and [illegible] in bathing [illegible] of her death and [illegible] and [illegible] But that [illegible] of the story—[illegible] [illegible] Well, if [illegible] [illegible] Dick [illegible] [illegible] and [illegible] size of rock [illegible]

"Dick laughed at Mrs. Darcy's scheme [illegible] for lack of any other [illegible] coming to him, he agreed to adopt it.

"Then we'll [illegible] Dick [illegible] you [illegible] and I'll [illegible] my books a little way off. By those other books send Rick after it, and when you hear her coming just call for help, and she'll come, and her heart will melt at the sight of your suffering, and you can strike while it is in that condition."

Dick obediently stretched himself on the sand as she desired, and Mrs. Darcy gently rolled upon his waist-sized rock and laid it on his chest, having first torn a little off his shirt and put a plentiful sprinkling of sand over him. Then she took a small box out of her pocket, likewise a piece of chamois.

"What's that for?" he asked suspiciously.

"Powder, to put on your face, of course. You see I intend to carry my bracelets, and mustn't neglect a single thing. You must be pale, you know, a red face is too healthy a sign for a man who's been mashed by a rock."

Dick laughed as he skillfully applied the powder, and then declared himself fixed.

"Begin to groan the very minute you hear a footstep, for it's sure to be hers, as all the rest have gone to camp-meeting. Give a trial groan, Dick, just to see if you do it all right."

He gave one.

"Yes, that will do—splendid, you know, as if you could make it louder if you wanted to."

Then she departed, and Dick was left to himself.

Mrs. Darcy had scouts to rarely placed him in the full glare of the sun. It was not very warm there with a light breeze from the ocean sweeping over him, but it gave him a kind of drowsy feeling after he had lain there awhile, listening breathlessly for Rachel's footstep.

Then he began to wonder what he would say—what form the declaration would take. "Why, a confused form," he said to himself, "for I'll naturally be flustered, and probably she'll be the same, and—and rather sorry for me, and will accept while she is confused, and—" with which last word Dick's brain began to get confused itself, and what with all this serious thinking, and the glare of the sun, which was so uncomfortable that he closed his eyes to shield them from it, he gradually fell fast asleep.

It was quite awhile before Mrs. Darcy found Rick. She was not in her room, and it was only after a prolonged hunt through the barn and garden and the shady orchard beyond that she came upon her and dispatched her on the errand. Rick proceeded to the desired place, but instead of sundry groans and sighs issuing from the recumbent figure behind the rocks, there became the sound of a gentle snore.

Rick started, and then went softly round the corner and peered cautiously at the sleeping lover.

The perspiration creeping down in tiny streams upon the powder, gave him a rather unearthly appearance, and Rachel mistook his snores for those sounds which a person at their last gasp beneath a heavy rock might be apt to give. Exerting all her strength, she lifted up the rock with one hand and dragged him from underneath with the other, and then woman-like, fell fainting beside him.

The motion awoke him, and before he could utter a word he was able to realize how matters stood.

Tenderly he lifted her up and carried her down to the sea, where he bathed her face and hands with the clear, cool surf. At length she opened her eyes and looked anxiously at him.

"You are not killed? Oh Dick!" she sobbed, and fell back senseless in his arms.

Dick and Rachel have been married several years, but he has never dared to tell either his cousin or his wife that he fell asleep on that memorable morning, and looks upon the bracelets as simply money thrown away. "For," he argues, "what's the use of any scheme which puts a man to sleep at the wrong time? If it hadn't been for Rachel's presence of mind in fainting when she did I'd never have had a chance to propose."—N. Y. Journal.

She Probably Fainted.

"I was coming up on the car, you know," she rattled away, "and I met that Mrs. Johnson. She is always trying to lord it over me, and I knew by her looks that she had something awful to say. In about a minute she moved along and says, says I,

"'Have you got your costumes?'

"'For what?' says I.

"'For the Governor's veto,'" says she.

"Just think of her ignorance! It stunned me so that I could hardly get my breath. I saw it was my chance to dress her feathers down, so I put on all my dignity, raised my voice so that all could hear, and says, says I,

"'No, madam, I'm not going to the Governor's veto, but when the Governor's message takes place I shall be there.'"

"Great Scots!" exclaimed her husband, "but you didn't say 'message,' did you?"

"Why, of course—what is it?"

"It's the Governor's levee, you idiot!"—Detroit Free Press.

A POST-OFFICE MYTH.

The "Million Postage Stamps" Fraud and Its Amusing Phases.

It is believed by many that there is a standing offer by the Government, or by a "benevolent gentleman," of a large sum of money to be paid to anyone who will devote himself to the collection of a certain postage stamps. The vagary of this strange story would be astonishing were it not for the well-known readiness of a large proportion of the public to accept anything, however improbable, which promises advantage to themselves. Hardly a week passes that postmasters are not requested to forward to the Dead Letter Office, in Washington, a specimen envelope, in the hope that it may be the one which will bring the fortunate finder the million dollars. Sometimes the envelope is offered as a sample, to evidence the fact that wealth is not to be acquired by the laborious exploration of wash baskets and the soaking of old envelopes. As a hoax the "canceled postage stamps" man or boy has come to be considered second to none. The flattering tale of money to be gained, varies somewhat in details. Now it is the Postmaster General who, as they have heard, has issued a proclamation offering a certain sum (ranging from ten thousand dollars to one hundred dollars), to the first who shall bring to the department the fruits of this queer harvest; again it is a benevolent but eccentric old party, male or female, who has held out as an inducement to this stamp-hunting, the promise to furnish a college or academy education to the enterprising individual who shall first prove his or her industry or perseverance by the collection of the mythical million; then it is another philanthropist who has offered to dispatch a fully equipped missionary to Zululand or Patagonia, or to give an organ to a Sunday school on the same terms. Many of the victims of this delusion make no inquiry as to the truth of the tale that has reached their ears, but, calmly assuming it to be gospel, limit their inquiries to the exact address of the person to whom the stamps are to be sent—whether there is any restriction as to the denominations of the stamps—whether foreign stamps will be accepted, etc.

The sober fact is that canceled postage stamps (with the exception of certain ancient issues prized by those afflicted with "Timbromania") have no value save as waste paper, and the collection of them is simply a waste of time. One who has been at some pains to trace the origin of this ensnaring legend, reports that he has discovered it in the fact that about forty years ago an advertisement appeared in an English newspaper appealing to the charitable to send the canceled stamps from their letters to a certain address in Brighton to aid the efforts of a poor lad to cover the walls of his bed room with those defaced effigies of her majesty—the promise having been made by him that on the completion of the task the expenses of his education would be paid for by some wealthy crank. The post-office authorities took the trouble to investigate the matter and found that the advertiser was in fact a lad, but that his education—at least in one branch of learning—was already complete, the stamps sent in response to his appeal, being cleaned by some process he had discovered and disposed of by him at a discount. His "unjust industry" was of course quietly suppressed, and his operations having opened the eyes of the post-office authorities to the danger of extensive frauds, measures were taken to guard against it by the use of fugitive inks, which disappear when any liquid is applied to remove the canceling marks. But although further mischief in that direction was thus prevented the young scamp had laid the foundation for the most annoying of myths.—N. Y. Mail and Express.

TALKS WITH DOCTORS.

Prevalent Throat Troubles—Lighting up a Reporter's Interior Department.

A Journal reporter had a hurried conversation yesterday with Dr. E. F. Hodges: "Yes," said the Doctor, in answer to the reportor's inquiry, "there has been a great deal of sore throat, especially among children, this winter—more than usual the past four weeks. Sore throat turning to diphtheria. The sore throat troubles have been severe, but diphtheria has been for the most part extremely light. There has been a severe type of scarlet fever."

"What would be good domestic treatment for sore throat?"

"A gargle of saturated solution of chlorate of potash, with teaspoonful doses internally. Externally, flannel about the throat, well dampened with port wine, or flannel saturated with camphorated oil, that is, sweet oil and camphor. In scarlet fever, the first thing is to rub the entire body with glycerine, in which a few drops of carbolic acid have been thoroughly incorporated."

"Then send for a doctor?"

"Certainly, send for a doctor."

The reporter next dropped in upon Dr. John M. Dunlap. "The throat," said the Doctor, as the reporter urged him on, "is the gateway of life. Air and food, the two prime necessities, have to travel that road, and it is a matter of the greatest consequence that it be kept in thorough repair. The nose is an intimate part of this system. You speak of catarrh. Twenty or twenty-five years ago catarrh was scarcely known in this part of the country. There was an occasional case only. Now it is exceedingly prevalent. From what cause? From some zymotic cause. There are many theories but little exact knowledge. It is by some attributed to the pollen of plants, the rag-weed being singled out as one. Others say infusoria. To my mind it is not precisely known. It is some poison or other, but difficult to tell exactly what. There are several recognized forms of the disease—the hypertrophic, which is a thickening of the membrane; the atrophic, which is a thinning of the membrane; the ozenic, which is a very disagreeable form, accompanied by great stench."

"The late George Harding," said a listener, "wrote up the ozenic form once. One of Andrew Wallace's boys was discovered to have a terrible case of catarrh. It was significant that no one could stay in the room with him, and he had to take his meals in the stable. One day, in going through the youth's pocket, his mother found about a quarter of a pound of an exceedingly nasty smelling substance, and the youngster owned truly enough to mind that about two months before he had gone, hollow, and for consequence had put his fragrant weapon in his pocket and there they were. His catarrh disappeared in a jiffy under the method adopted."

"The nasal douche," continued the Doctor, "is an old-fashioned idea. And much better. In the last few years physicians have come to use it with great satisfaction. The tube, not in actual contact with the nostrils, is made, on discharge of glycerine and the excess of fluid, to flow out the mouth. The theory is that the fluid may go into the Eustachian tubes, and by the effort of blowing be forced into the tympanic cavity of the ear, and there get up a furious inflammation. A case or two has been reported where death resulted. Not to exaggerate, I think nearly a third of the people here have catarrh in a greater or less degree. The finish of catarrh is usually to invade the pharynx, producing a dry throat condition, or, where there is a scrofulous diathesis, to invade the larynx and produce laryngitis.

"I understand," said the listener, "that a Brooklyn photographer has managed to do what has never been successfully done before, to photograph the human larynx while in motion, that the vocal cords have been photographed while producing falsetto notes. This was done with the pistol camera, by which he took all kinds of throats, snapping impressions of deep inspirations, as well as expirations of contralto, soprano and all kinds of deep and high notes."

"Would you like to take a look at your throat," inquired the doctor pleasantly of the reporter.

"Certainly," said the investigator. He was placed in a chair before a laryngoscope, an instrument consisting of two mirrors, by one of which a light is thrown into the mouth, where, by the other introduced into the pharynx, it is reflected into the larynx, revealing to the eye the part thus illuminated.

It lighted up the cavern, and the reporter gazed down the long red vista in mingled awe and wonder.

"Say a," said the doctor, giving the letter the sharp Western sound, "and if you look closely you can see two small white bands, the vocal cords, in motion."

The reporter did his best, but the flat British a was the best he could do. But the vocal cords were quivering like the hind legs of an expiring frog.

"By the way," said the doctor, "does your throat ever trouble you? You cough some don't you?"

"Oh, a little, but that's from smoking, I presume."

"Not at all! Look at the end of the uvula. Don't you see a pendant piece of flesh there, curling off to one side, three-eighths of an inch long. That's an abnormal growth. I have rarely seen just such a thing. I'll snip it off."

Snip it off he did, and the reporter left, proud that he had been able to make his little contribution to science."—Indianapolis Journal.

REBUKED.

How a Great Songstress Reproved Several Flatterers.

"I am wholly indifferent to the praise of men," boasted a gentlemen. Some one who overheard the remark determined to test the boaster's sincerity. Being an expert in the art of putting things, he said to him, when he had forgotten his boasting words, "I understand, sir, that you are one of those rare persons who can not be flattered."

"Perhaps I am, sir," answered the gentleman, with a smile which betrayed the insincerity of his boast. He was flattered by the reputation of being above flattery.

There is probably no person that is not accessible to a compliment which deliberately knocks for admission. The praise conveyed in an action is more agreeable to a refined person than that which is spoken in his presence. The one simply gratifies his vanity; the other stimulates him to be worthy of the compliment. A delicate taste does not weaken the passion for esteem, but trains it to respond to praise which is simply implied rather than to that which is open and obsequious.

An anecdote of Madame Malibran, the famous vocalist, illustrates the fact that a servile compliment offends good taste. When she visited England, her singing created an intense excitement. One day, in company, several admirers, in order to gratify her—as she was a French woman trained in the Italian school of music—spoke slightingly of the music of England.

"We have no good music; we are forced to go to Italy for it," said these detractors.

Malibran knew that much good music had been composed by Englishmen, but she pretended to agree with the servile critics. Seating herself at the piano, she sang to Italian words a slow, melodious theme, which she adorned with many flourishes.

The listeners applauded her rapturously, and repeated their remarks that there was no music comparable to that of Italy.

Malibran apparently assented and sang more vigorously, quickening the time. The applause was hearty, and the exclamation, "Would we had such music in England!" was heard.

Suddenly Malibran changed the words, and the obsequious auditors heard her sing the old English song,—"Polly, put the kettle on; we'll all take tea."

They had been forced unwittingly to compliment English music, and they stood crestfallen before one whose good sense had rebuked their servile flattery.—Youth's Companion.

AYER'S
Hair Vigor

restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray hair to a natural, rich brown color, or deep black, as may be desired. Brilliant or light hair may by darkened, thin hair thickened, and baldness often, though always, retarded.

It checks mildew of the hair, and stimulates a healthy and vigorous growth. It prevents and cures scalp diseases, and keeps the scalp free from dandruff. As a Ladies' Hair Dressing, the Vigor is unsurpassed. It keeps the hair soft, glossy, and pliable, and imparts a delicate, agreeable, and lasting perfume.

Mr. C. B. Webster writes from Troy, N. Y., that his hair was quite confused and fell out, and in a short time he became nearly bald. He used but one bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor, which stopped the falling of the hair, and started a new growth. He now has a full head of hair of a healthy vigorous growth, and is convinced that but for the use of your preparation he should have been entirely bald.

J. W. Bowen, proprietor of the Mountain Echo, Augusta, Ga., says: "Ayer's Hair Vigor is a most excellent preparation for the hair. I speak of it from my own experience. It has promoted the growth of new hair, and makes it glossy and soft. The Vigor is also a sure cure for dandruff. Not within my knowledge has the preparation ever failed to give entire satisfaction."

Mr. Angus Fairbairn, leader of the celebrated "Fairbairn Family" of Scottish Vocalists, writes from Boston, Mass., Feb. 6, 1886: "Ever since my hair began to give us very evidence of the change which fleeting time produceth, I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor, and so have been able to maintain an appearance of youthfulness—a matter of considerable consequence to ministers, orators, actors, and in fact every one who lives in the eye of the public."

Mrs. O. A. Prescott, writing from 18 Elm St., Charlestown, Mass., April 11, 1882, says: "Two years ago about two-thirds of my hair came off. It thinned very rapidly, and I was fast growing bald. On using Ayer's Hair Vigor the falling stopped and a new growth commenced, and in about a year my head was completely covered with short hair. It has continued to grow, and is now as good as before it fell. I regularly used but one bottle of the Vigor, but now use it occasionally as a dressing."

We have hundreds of similar testimonials to the efficacy of Ayer's Hair Vigor. It needs but a trial to convince the most skeptical of its value.

DR. A. FRASER'S MAGNETIC OINTMENT.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest benefactor of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Burns, Sore Throat, Lameness, Rheumatism, Piles, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Bronchitis, Croup, Sciatica, Chilblains, Affection of the Spine, Erysipelas, Nervous Irritation, and all disorders attendant with Inflammation.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame, every bone, muscle, vein, nerve and ligament, searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years,

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should be perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Price 25 and 40 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

—The number of students in the school of industrial science of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology for the year 1884-5 were 579, against 443 for the preceding year. This year the students are from 33 States, 1 Territory, the District of Columbia, 4 of the British provinces, Scotland, Cuba, Japan, South America, and India.—Boston Post.

Teaching a school for Indian boys in New Mexico is attended with some inconveniences. The other day several Apache braves visited a school in Albuquerque where their sons were pupils, full of wrath and whisky. They wanted to clean out the whole establishment because they had heard that the Indian lads were occasionally punished. And the only way to pacify them was to get them so drunk that they were helpless.

—The University of Pennsylvania has started a "department of physical culture." Dr. J. W. White, who will preside over it, states that his duties will be to examine each student, note wherein he needs physical development, and recommend the proper mode of exercise to induce it. If his back is weak, the rowing machine or boat is advised; if the chest is flat, parallel bars are in order. The ordinary trainer generally picks out for the boat a man who does not need it.—Philadelphia Press.

—"The motive," says the School Journal, "that leads teachers and pupils to work for the rewards of an examination is about as low an ideal of civilized education as can be found." And its effect upon the young mind is bad. Many a man has recalled with profound regret the ruses he adopted, while at school, to increase his percentages. It is very often the case that the student fears to risk original investigation lest he place his chance of securing a prize in jeopardy.—Current.

GOLDEN SEAL BITTERS are the great blood purifier, liver and kidney remedy and life giving principle, a perfect renovator and invigorator of the system carrying away all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition, enriching it, refreshing and invigorating both mind and body. They are easy of administration, prompt in their action, certain in their results, safe and reliable in all forms of disease. Every moment of our lives, every part of our bodies, is wearing out and is being built up anew. This work is accomplished by the blood. The blood if pure makes the entire circuit of the body every seven minutes. But if it becomes weak or vitiated and does not perform its work properly the system is actually poisoned by the worn-out matter clogging the vital organs instead of leaving the body. Cleanse the blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in pimples, eruptions, sores, etc. Keep the liver in order, the blood pure, health of the system will follow. Take GOLDEN SEAL BITTERS and no others. Sold by Baker & Hall and C. A. Wright & Co.

Biliousness

Is very prevalent at this season, the symptoms being bitter taste, breath offensive, tongue coated, sick headache, drowsiness, loss of appetite. If this condition is allowed to continue, serious consequences may follow. By promptly taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, a fever may be avoided or premature death prevented. It is a positive cure for biliousness. Sold by all druggists.

THE WONDER

Is becoming universal as to how such an immense sale could be created in Lowell for Hood's Sarsaparilla. But, my friend, if you could stand behind our counter a week and hear what those say who are using it, the reason would appear as clear as the noon-day sun. The real curative power of Hood's Sarsaparilla demonstrates itself in every case where our directions are faithfully regarded. We would that we might get before the people a fractional part of the confidence that is expressed to us every day in this medicine by those who have carefully noted without prejudice its effects upon the blood and through that upon the whole system, strengthening all the functions of the body to perform the duties Nature requires of them. Try a bottle and satisfy yourself.

Cold Hands and Feet.

Lowell, Feb. 3, 1879.

Messrs. C. I. Hood & Co.: Gentlemen—About one year ago my daughter commenced taking your Sarsaparilla. At that time she had very little appetite; could take no long walks, and her face was badly broken out with a humor. She was low-spirited; troubled with cold hands and feet; her blood seemed to be poor, and she was in a condition which caused us great anxiety. After taking one bottle of your Sarsaparilla she began to improve, and she now has a good appetite and can take much longer walks. Her humor is nothing compared with what it was one year ago. She is in better spirits, is not troubled with cold hands and feet as previously. And I attribute this improvement in her condition largely to your Sarsaparilla. She has taken six bottles, and intends to continue its use. I was inclined to oppose the trial of it at first. I now have great faith in it as a blood purifier. Very truly yours,

ESTATE OF HENRY BURNETT.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee—s.s.

At a session of the Probate Court for the county of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office in the city of Adrian, on Friday the 6th day of February in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-five.

Present, Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Henry Burnett, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of William Q. Burnett a brother of said deceased praying that administration of the estate of said deceased may be granted to Charles Barridge or some other suitable person.

Thereupon it is ordered, That Monday the 9th day of March next at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Tecumseh Herald, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

PUTZ-POMADE!

Is an article introduced into this country for the polishing of all kinds of metals.

GOLD, SILVER, BRASS, COPPER, TIN, ZINC, &c.

As a polish it is a wonder worker, and it is equal to the best English article, while every family has occasion to polish metals. With this pomade you can polish a spoon, a cupe, a watch, or any similar article while you are shaving the barrie a setting ready to work with a liquid polish. This Pomade will not run like a liquid, or make a dust like a powder polish, consequently it will not, like them, soil or stain the adjacent parts of any article on which it is used.

It is invaluable for the polishing of stoves, show cases, musical instruments, and especially metals with a rough surface where it is difficult to apply liquid or powder polish. It will polish gold, silver, copper, brass, tin, or any metal or any other metal. It will not scratch, but gives a polish as good as when new. As a polish it is perfect.

A. ANDERSON & SONS, Grocers.

Tecumseh, Mich., Jan. 12, 1885.

DEAR SIRS—Having tried Putz Pomade Polish we cheerfully recommend it as being the most perfect polish we have ever used.

Respectfully, W. & S. W. ANDERSON & CO., Dry Goods and Carpets.

Tecumseh, Mich., Jan 20, 1885.

Having used the Putz Pomade in cleaning and polishing metal buildings on harness, I can cheerfully recommend it as no humbug, but the best I ever used. CHAS. BIDWELL, Ex-Sheriff.

TECUMSEH, Mich., Jan. 10, 1885.

We have had some experience in goods of this class and can safely say that Putz is the best.

C. A. WRIGHT & CO., Druggists.

Received by Martin Barley, Agent for Orr Bros. at Adrian.

Mrs. F. J. Hough:—"Excellent for brass and silver."

Mrs. Chas. Walker: "Best Polish ever used."

Mrs. W. S. Norton: "The Universal Metal Putz-Pomade will polish quicker, and easier, and produce a better polish than any other preparation not containing acid or grit."

W. McConnell, dry goods:—"Excellent for metal show cases."

John Kinzel:—"Best ever used."

Fred Barse:—"The best polish we ever used."

Val. Fox:—"First-class polish for soda fountain."

Chas. Humphrey:—"Best I have tried."

It is also highly recommended by Ex-Aid Shattuck, Ex-Mayor Corbin, Ex. Ald. Clark, Geo. R. Allis, Ed. Sward, Rev. John S. Holmes, Mrs. Dr. V. H. Baker, Mrs. Chas. Hayden, Mrs. Mart. Chittenden, Mrs. Geo. Knickt, Mrs. John Mason.

GET A BOX! TRY IT!

And you will soon become interested, and turn your attention to the tinsel plating on the stove; then, after skurmishing through the silver ware, you will fix the blackest part of the coffee pot so that you can use it as a mirror. If you can think of any old brass on the premises that has not been cleaned for a generation, shine it up to make sure there is no humbug about the polish. Now give your watch just twenty seconds labor, and by that time you will feel obliged to find and tell some one of the merits of this wonderful article, and ever after you will be a walking and a talking advertisement of the Putz-Pomade.

PUTZ-POMADE

is useful in the household, in the store, in the workshop, in every place where metal work is to be kept bright. Try it for show cases, uniforms, silverware, harness trimmings, scales, musical instruments, stove trimmings, door handles, or any kind of metal work. Any dealer will refund your money if you are not satisfied.

FROM THE LAND OF SUNSHINE.

We are under obligations to Mrs. R. R. Hall for the use of the following letter from Kerr City, Florida. It was written by Mrs. Rufus Raymond, who is the daughter of Edmund Bell, of Raisin. We give the entire letter except a few family allusions which would be of no interest to the public.

Dear sister Jennie and children,—You no doubt have looked for a letter from me long ago, but as we have been making a change since I received your letter it has been impossible for me to write any sooner. Well we came here to Kerr City the week before Christmas to visit Mr. Swan and a gentleman and his wife by the name of Henly, he married Mr. Steers' daughter of Adrian. They are very nice people indeed, you would like them ever so much. They have been at it ever since we left home to come and settle near them, so here we are living in the house with Mr. Swan's people. They live in an old log house or rather two houses, but both are very small. One house has one room, the other has three bedrooms and a sitting room. The sitting room I think is nine feet square, not over that and the bedrooms are like same in proportion. There has been ten in the family nearly every day and night ever since we came here to live. They persuaded us to come right in the house and live with them, as the house that we rent the said James asked of buying was so poor they would not consent it was to rent it, and theirs was not very much better, but here we are three thick, they have three children, the oldest a boy 9 years old, Freddie by name, the next is a little girl 6 years, her name is Katie, and the little ones name is Mary, she is 3 years old and just as mischievous as she can be, but they are nice children but of course make lots of work. They keep a cow and a span of horses and a mule. Mrs. Swan and children and myself take the horses sometimes and sometimes the mule and away we go for a ride. You would laugh to see the style we put on, especially when we go with the mule, we have rope lines and everything else accordingly, we do not get much time to go but when we do we improve it. You would laugh to see how we store the folks away at night. This Mr. Henly is a merchant from Indiana. Their house is a very old log house with fire place and an old stick chimney, with one room in it. They have two beds in the same room and eat in it. Did not have any window in it. They put a half of a window in the door and put up a shanty to put a stove in and have a single bed in that room so to give a place for friends to sleep that come to visit them. They have a lady cousin with them to spend the winter. It is too comical for anything to see how some of the folks live, there is none of the old settler's houses here that have got a window in them, not even the school house had a window in it until two weeks ago Mr. Swan and James put a half of a window in each end. The teacher prized them very highly. Mr. Henly said he would be ashamed to put his horses in such a place up home as he lived in here. He intends to build soon. Some of the people that have lived here very long that have come from the North have very nice homes. It seems like being some where to go in their houses. But we do have lots of fun calling on some of the new comers. Mr. Hause and two other gentlemen were here and stayed over Sunday with us a week ago. He says he does not know but he will come here to live himself yet. He is coming again in two or three weeks and bring his wife, also Mr. and Mrs. Anthony of Raisin are coming with them. I did hate to leave Mrs. Hause, she cried when we came away. I like her ever so much, they have got their house all plastered, papered, painted and carpeted, and they are just as cosy as you please and I hardly think she will want to leave it. She has worked very hard since she came here, but Mr. Hause is quite taken up with the new hotel they have been building here. It is not all finished off above yet. The lady of the hotel who owns it and she is very homesick and wants to sell very much, but her husband does not want to, so I do not know what they will do yet. I would like very much to have them here but I will say I like it better at Sorrento than I do here, but it is much nearer navigation here and that is one reason we ventured to come here. We shall keep our place there yet a while for if the railroad should go through there as is expected the land I think will double in value. I am in no hurry to have it sold. We only moved in our own house on Friday and started here the next Tuesday morning, we did not have our things all unpacked but they are now, and we intend to stay here until we go home. I have to work just about as hard here as I did at home for where there is ten in the family and three of them children, there is lots to do. I do all the bread mixing and bake all the pies. We have a good time any way and get along very nicely together. James and another man that works for them help Mrs. Swan do the washing and I do the house work. James sends love to you and says tell you there is no use for him to write any for I write all the news, but we both wish you could be here sometimes to enjoy oranges, boat riding &c.

THE FARMER'S GARDEN.

In presenting to you this brief paper it is not my intention to exhaust the subject. When such eminent writers as Henderson, Gregory, Rockwell, Parry and a score of others have written volumes it would be utterly futile for me to attempt it. If I can by a few hints at the general subject call forth enough interest so that we will broaden our view and widen our cultivation of those vegetables which make up the great bulk of our daily food, I shall be contented. While we are by your fireside, sheltered and warm, perhaps beneath their kindly mantle of snow our hardy bulbs are awaiting the mild warning in the form of spring, and by a fitting change, perhaps, in the vegetable kingdom the vegetables begin to spring to life, and in a few weeks we shall begin to transplant in the hotbed. We have already planted, when we shall sow oats, peas and barley, where we shall plant corn, and perhaps potatoes, which we will pasture where fallow and when mow, but have we given a thought where we shall have our garden and what we shall plant in it. If not let me say do so at once. Get a catalogue of some reliable seedsman and send for your seeds, so that when the time comes we will not have to wait crowded orders or take undesirable packets from retail boxes.

Let me picture the ideal farmer's garden, and then we will be able to judge which we will have. If we find it with a good picket fence around it, to keep out the chickens, and here let me say poultry and gardens do not go well together, it is too far for the poultry but death to the tender plants. If it is fenced it usually is about four or six rods square, with a row of currant bushes through the middle, a strawberry patch in one corner, and perhaps pear trees and peach trees here and there, and you can not plow a straight furrow the length of it. Another form is between two rows of apple trees, where some plants may do well, but the majority want all the heat and moisture to themselves. And the farmer has a sort of a garden way down in the corn field forty or sixty rods from the house where the women folks have to make weary pilgrimages on hot days if they would have vegetables for dinner. These gardens are usually all planted at once after the corn is planted, as though early and late cabbage, celery, melons, cucumbers, radishes, lettuce and onions, were all equally as hardy and equally as tender. Some will not sow a garden seed until the ground warms up, but will sow clover seed on the snow and oats, peas and barley with their overcoats on.

Let me give you a better plan. In the first place as soon as the frost is out, spade up a bed in some rich corner and sow lettuce, radishes and plant onion sets. These plants are perfectly hardy, and will come up and grow in low temperature, in this way you will have lettuce and radishes in May and June, when otherwise you will have to wait till July and August. In sowing these, put the rows not over a foot apart; a bed of lettuce six or eight feet square will produce enough for a large family. Next select a place as near the house as possible and on the road. If you cannot fence it to keep the chickens out make a park to keep them in. Of course the land must be well drained, either natural or artificial, and if it is sandy so much the better; but if it is clay do not be discouraged, if your neighbor on the sand gets a little ahead of you in the spring you will catch up with him when the drought comes on. Having selected the ground, take a measure and lay out not less than twelve rods long, and four, six or eight rods wide. Draw eight or ten loads of the finest manure you have, some that is a year old or more. Spread it. About the first of May take time to plow. I need not tell you how to plow, every good farmer uses a jointer and will plow as deep and a little deeper than his soil, but what shall we do after plowing? "Aye, there's the rub." Just now the old fashioned gardener will appear on the scene and tell you not to harrow. Why not? The weeds will start. That is just what we want of them, and the sooner the better. If you have the soil in the condition for the little tiny weed seeds to start, your beets, parsnips and peas will start too. Get out your scotch harrow and drag five or six times, riding the drag two or three times. Some one will come along and tell you you are spoiling the land. Spoil away, and if you are in doubt about it you had better drag two or three times more. Take your three-legged corn marker and set it for rows three feet apart, mark out one-half of your garden lengthwise. If you have no strawberry bed, plant two or three rows of strawberries. Then plant four or five rows of early potatoes and the rest of the space marked out sow early peas, beets, parsnips, vegetable oysters and plant early cabbage and such hardy vegetables. Be sure and sow enough seed, as it is better to thin out than to plant over. If you have no garden drill it will be just as well to sow the seeds by hand, covering them with the feet or garden rake. After the settled warm weather has come, that is about corn planting time, drag and mark out the balance of your garden, and plant your sweet corn, melons, cucumbers, squashes, lima beans and golden wax tomato and pepper plants, reserving a space for three or four hundred late cabbage which should be set out about the middle of June. Cultivate as often as once a week with a horse, and if you have none, I would say by all means get a planet cultivator. With this tool you can work so close that but little hand work will be needed. About the middle of July your early potatoes will be dug and early peas gone. Cultivate this space thoroughly and set out your celery plants. Sow a row or two of beets for winter use, and the balance of the space to flat turnips. Do not allow a weed to show its form, and if they do later in the season, after the crop is ripe, take a plow and put them where they will not be seen at least. Now if you have given attention to having good varieties you will not regret having put in a little extra labor.

The Adrian Art Loan is being well patronized, and those who have visited it are loud in the praises of the institution.

WHAT SHALL WE READ?

We present the following essay by Mrs. H. A. Wilson read before the Tecumseh and Franklin Farmers' Club at the last meeting.

What we shall read, is a very important subject for consideration, as the reading of a book often leaves impressions on the mind which time can not efface, and as impressions are more easily made in youth, how much better the result when the foundation is laid by commencing with instructive, as it has entertaining books suited to the capacity of the mind and increasing in wisdom as the mind unfolds to receive it. At an early age narratives and accounts of travel will be found interesting and will aid in preparing the mind for more solid reading. Under this head we would place histories, both ancient and modern, and biographies of the leading men and women of the past and present ages. The works of some of the humorous writers may be interspersed with these to an advantage, but in choosing humorous works a guiding hand is indispensable, as some of them should never reach the eye of the young, for, while Mark Twain and Bob Burdett would interest as well as amuse, Peck's Bad Boy and others of that class are nearly if not fully as bad as the worst dime novel. Romance, poetry and drama should also be judiciously mingled with the solid reading and, as in that province of literature called romance there are so many writers, and of such varied character the lines must of necessity be closely drawn. But by selecting such writers as Sir Walter Scott, Geo. Elliot, Miss Mulock and a host of others, whose writings are of an elevating character, and discarding the promiscuous works of Ouida, Miss Braddon and all that class whose sensational writings have flooded the country, we can safely and profitably indulge in romance. Then, as we wish to keep pace with the times in the progress of literature and art, which knowledge can not be found in books, there are a number of monthly periodicals which will give the desired information. Right here we would say that if you are the recipients of a first class magazine for one year, one whose reading matter is pure and healthy and strengthening to the moral character, you will derive more pleasure and of a more varied nature than can be found elsewhere for the same outlay. News papers will also aid in general information, but must be selected with much discrimination for while there are many papers published, there are comparatively few that should find their way into the home of virtue. The N. Y. Ledger, Saturday Night and all sensational story papers have long been deemed unfit reading for mature minds, while the political papers were considered safe for even the young, and perhaps the time was when they were, but for the past few years there has been a rapid decline in the moral tone and purity of most all political papers until at present there are but few whose columns are not teeming with sensational and licentious news, making them disgraceful to the editors and disgusting to the readers.

Thus we see that while the world is overflowing with literature, our best judgment must be exercised in selecting that which will improve the mind. To the young especially we would say, if you have no taste for solid reading, acquire it; for, by persistantly bending your energies in that direction, you can not fail of success, and in after years you will look back and count the days as golden that were spent in storing your mind with useful knowledge.

Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly for March is an unusually interesting number, combining as it does articles of present interest with those of permanent value. It opens with a careful study by Lisle Lester of Madame Ristori, with a portrait and several illustrations in character. Prof. Chas. A. Joy contributes an article on a Jersey Cattle farm, and Oscanyan furnishes an extremely interesting paper on "The Armenians." "The Story of Queen Matilda of Denmark and Count Struenzee" is a valuable historical contribution by F. St. John Brenon, and "Something about Children's Books," with its quaint facsimile illustrations, shows us the juvenile literature loved by our grandparents when they were boys and girls. "Pate de Foie Gras," by Nugent Robinson will appeal to the gourmet, and "Staten Island, its past and present," by J. Barnitz Bacon, to the local antiquarian, while the naturalist will be equally interested in "The Origin of our Domesticated Animals," by the Rev. M. G. Watkins. The eminent traveler and author, David Ker, is represented by two good articles, both thrilling and interesting. All these articles are fully illustrated. The serial story, "The death mark," reaches its twenty-fifth chapter, and there are several short stories and some beautiful poems. The miscellany is well selected and entertaining. Published by Mrs. Frank Leslie, 53, 55 and 57 Park Place, New York.

Surgeons of the International Throat and Lung Infirmary, Detroit, Mich., will be at the Lilley House, Tecumseh, Saturday, March 7th, where they can be consulted on all diseases of the ear, nose, throat and lungs. This is the only Infirmary in America that treats exclusively throat and lung diseases. Consultation free. See their advertisment in another column.

WINTERING AT SAND LAKE.

Adrian Times of Tuesday: Charley Adam went to his hotel at Sand Lake, the Sand Lake house, which he had locked up for the winter, one day recently, and found three young men comfortably ensconsed in the building. The furniture and stoves were all in the hotel, and the parties, after forcing an entrance, were having what is commonly known as a high old time, in which they were assisted to no inconsiderable degree by a couple of barrels of hard cider, and some chickens belonging to Mr. Adam. He ordered the chaps to depart, to which they replied with an insolence born of their superior numbers. Mr. Adam, accordingly came before Justice Long, in this city, and made complaint for larceny against the trio. Sunday afternoon Sheriff Whitmore armed with the necessary papers, and accompanied by Under Sheriff Bowen and Deputy Burch, moved to Sand lake to capture the bacchanalian revelers, but they had fled. A trail was left in the snow, however, which the officers followed, tracing the miserearts to a club house, on Wampler's lake, of which they had taken possession, and where they were having another picnic at the expense of some unconscious owner. The party was at once arrested, and, although it was an hour past midnight, the officers immediately set out for this city, arriving here at 6 o'clock yesterday morning.

Edwin R. Wood Esq., who has been seriously ill for several weeks has been rapidly failing for the past few days. On Saturday he became convinced that the end was near at hand, gave instructions about his business and family affairs, and calmly awaited the final summons. Since then he has gradually failed, and at five o'clock this morning, his spirit took its flight. In Mr. Wood's death Tecumseh loses a fine lawyer and a most estimable man and citizen. The funeral services will be held at the Presbyterian church next Sunday. The hour is not yet decided. It will be fixed to suit the convenience of the members of the bar who may wish to attend from Adrian. An appropriate obituary notice will appear in a future issue of the HERALD. A meeting of the Lenawee County bar will be held tomorrow (Friday) at two o'clock P. M., at the Court House, to take appropriate action upon Mr. Wood's demise.

RINK RACKET.

Knapp's band at the rink this evening.

That was a good grand march last Saturday evening, but an addition on to the rink would have improved it. Too big for the floor.

Morris Knapp of Adrian was at the rink last Thursday evening. Mr. Knapp was one of the best skaters on the floor.

Chas. Thompson of Clinton, came to see the fancy bicycle riding last Saturday evening.

Tecumseh people do not often witness such an exhibition as was given at the rink last Saturday evening by Master Chas. Dudley with his bicycle. His riding was both easy and graceful and he performed several very difficult feats which were received with repeated applause from the large audience present, especially that of riding on the large wheel alone with the backbone removed. We hope he will favor Tecumseh with another visit.

Manager Cash has arranged for a one mile race next Tuesday evening at the rink. It will be contested by Rosa Millard and Florence Roland. As Miss Millard was the victor in the orange race and Miss Roland came out second, a close and exciting race is looked for. It will be called at 9 o'clock.

A Pinafore aphorism says that "love levels all rank." We have noticed that a skating rink possesses a similar power.—Norristown Herald.

Every person has a roll in life, and some people seem to think the only role they were designed for is a roll at the skating rink.—Boston Courier.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

Village election next Monday.

Village caucus next Saturday afternoon.

One mile race at the rink next Tuesday evening.

Wm. Hayden went to Milan yesterday on business.

Remember the race at the rink Tuesday evening.

The village registration board will meet next Saturday.

Gus Slayton is shipping large quantities of hay from Britton station.

Temple, McClure & Co. shipped one car of lumber to Clinton and one car to Onsted yesterday.

The band boys want some new instruments. Turn out to-morrow evening and give them a lift.

An exciting time is expected at the rink next Tuesday evening in the one mile race between Rosa Millard and Florence Roland.

L. D. Dewey had another paralytic shock last Monday and is now in a critical condition. This winter has been very severe upon him.

I. S. Osborn went to Britton and Holloway yesterday on business. Ivy allows that Holloway ought to be provided with an eating house.

Prof. J. Montgomery, of Kalamazoo college, will occupy the pulpit of the Baptist church next Sunday morning and perhaps in the evening also.

Mrs. G. W. Stacy, of Buffalo N. Y. has been stopping at her son-in-law's Benj. Dove's for the last two weeks, and expects to remain about two weeks more.

M. Graves, Secretary of the County Agricultural Society was in town this morning. He is quite enthusiastic over the present condition and prospects of the society.

Another Progressive Euchre Club has been organized in Tecumseh. They meet for the first game at the residence of Delos Whitenack on Tuesday evening next.

An essay read before the Franklin and Tecumseh Farmers' Club, and a communication in reply to "American Boy," are crowded out this week. They will both keep, however, and will appear in the next issue.

E. M. Hitchcock is stopping at the Patterson House. He is the Deputy Great Commander of the Knights of the Maccabees. Better known as the K. O. T. M. He is intending to organise a tent here of the above order.

A report has gained circulation that The Patterson would close up March 1st. Mr. Delano informs us that this report has no foundation whatever. He intends to remain right along and be prepared to take his share of custom when the spring trade opens.

David T. Phelps, son of Rev. J. Phelps of this village, has been appointed private secretary to the President of the Union Pacific railroad. His headquarters are at Omaha.—David's Tecumseh friends will be pleased to hear of his good fortune.

About fifteen couples attended the party at Armory Hall last evening. The fact that only two days notice was given was probably the reason for such a small crowd. Hubbard & Doty's orchestra furnished the music. We understand the committee intend giving another at an early day.

Mrs. G. F. Drake, of Breckenridge, Gratiot Co. Mich., formerly Miss Nellie Mitchell, has been in town a few days visiting among her old friends. She was accompanied by her husband and the two returned home on Tuesday. Mr. Drake is the proprietor of a large planing mill at Breckenridge and is doing finely in business.

The regular monthly meeting of the Lenawee County Horticultural Society will be held on Wednesday, March 4th, 1885, at 9 o'clock A. M. The first half hour will be given to the "question box." Topics, Trimming and care of ornamental trees, Nursery Stock, Seeds, Question box, etc. Place of meeting, Workingmen's Hall, Adrian.

Chas. E. Williamson has struck a bargain with Frank Bumann for the purchase of his butter and egg business. Frank is one of our staunchest business men and we hope he will conclude to embark in some other line of business here. Still he has transferred his trade to a worthy successor. Mr. Williamson is well equipped with capital and experience to run the business successfully. He will be a valuable addition to the ranks of our business men. Success to him!

Commencing Monday, March 2d, '85, the Toledo, Ann Arbor and North Mich., and Wabash, St. Louis & Pacific Railways will run through solid trains between Toledo and Detroit, daily, except Sunday. No stops will be made except for railroad crossings, and time will be as fast as made by any other line. At first but one train will be run each way, as follows:—Leave Toledo 9:50 A. M., arrive at Detroit 12.00 noon; Leave Detroit 3:20 P. M., arrive at Toledo 5:30 P. M. Additional trains will be added as business increases.

Elbridge Hyde was in town over Sunday.

Rev. Robert Colyer lectures in Adrian this evening.

Mr. and Mrs. S. A. James returned to their home in Detroit last Monday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Walker of Norvell, have been enjoying a few days visit among their Tecumseh friends.

Mrs. F. V. Horton and daughter, Mrs. F. A. Horton, of Clinton township, raised poultry last season that sold for $210.92.

Mr. Alba Heywood will take a part in the band benefit to-morrow evening which will add a very pleasant feature to the program.

"Poor Pillicoddy" and "Too Much for Good Nature," the two plays to be presented at the band benefit to-morrow evening, are well cast and will be finely presented.

A donation visit will be given Rev. G. W. Hudson and family in the basement of the M. E. church, on Wednesday evening, March 4th, 1885. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

Thos. A. Edison, the celebrated electrician, spent last Sunday in Adrian, as the guest of Mr. R. Gilliland, an old acquaintance of Edison's. Edison was en route to the New Orleans exposition.

D. B. Ayers of Brooklyn, was in town last Thursday and favored the HERALD with a call. He came down with a horse and cutter and found plenty of snow on the road. The cutter did'nt strike bare ground a single once on the whole trip.

Dr. Samuel Catlin, B. J. Garlinhouse, Jas. Boyd, Harry Root and Capt. Amos P. Foster were the delegates chosen from Tecumseh to attend the Democratic Convention last Saturday. As Capt. Foster could not attend, he sent Frank Davidson as a substitute.

M. P. Brown left home on Monday noon for Lansing to attend the State Council of the Royal Templar's of Temperance. He goes as a delegate from the Tecumseh Council. While in Lansing he probably took in the Prohibition State Convention which was held there yesterday.

Rev. C. W. Haynes, former pastor of the Tecumseh Baptist church, is now settled at Aurora, Ill. In renewing his subscription to the HERALD, he uses these kind words: "I think more of the paper every week, and I can say as a weekly I prefer it to any paper published in Southern Michigan."

A wrestling match for a purse of $50 will take place at Lake Ridge hotel on Saturday evening, March 7th, between Fred Kolkloesch and Seneca Litchard. Best three in five—two side holds, two collar and elbow and one catch-as-catch-can. After the wrestle there will be a sparring match with gloves.

It is matter of considerable surprise as well as regret among certain circles which are interested in the welfare of outdoor sports in this community at the indifference, or more probably negligence, which some members of the Base Ball Ass'n have exhibited in meeting the assessment which was declared necessary last fall in order to meet all outstanding indebtedness of the Ass'n. The articles of the Ass'n clearly define the responsibility of each member in sharing any losses which may occur and to which each member voluntarily signed his name.

Adrian Record: For some time past Thomas Knight of Franklin, has noticed that his flock of sheep has been gradually growing smaller. Four or five choice sheep have been missed, one at a time. For a long time the thief remained undetected. Finally suspicion settled upon a stranger by the name of Walker, who for some months had lived in a shanty near by, and been regaling himself on choice mutton. Knight started for Tecumseh to have him arrested. Walker got wind of this, and upon Knight's return, he took one of Knights' horses from the stable and put out for the Ohio line. The next morning the horse was found at the gate seeking to get into its old quarters. Sunday night, when Walker purloined it, was such a cold one that the horse is almost ruined. The officers of the county have been notified

THE NEW ORLEANS EXCURSION.

The excursion train will leave Tecumseh on Monday next, March 2d at four o'clock P. M. via the Lake Shore road. It will run to Toledo and thence by the Dayton & Michigan road to Cincinnati. At that point it will take the "Queen & Crescent" route via Chattanooga to New Orleans. The fare for the round trip from Tecumseh is $24.80. The arrangements have all been completed, and unless some unforeseen accident should occur, the excursion will start promptly on time. Although a coach load of passengers has been pledged, still there is room for a few more and people who may yet conclude to go, can secure accommodations up to the day of departure. We wish the excursionists a pleasant trip, an enjoyable visit at New Orleans, a safe return, and can only regret our inability to go with them.

C. D. Bills of Goshen, Ind., was in town a few days this week.

Milo Martin held No. 26, which drew the organ at DePuy's yesterday.

The Brownville Progressive Euchre Club met at the residence of H. E. Stout last evening.

Lillev. Bidwell & Co's bank was decorated last Sunday, in honor of Washington's birthday.

Regular meeting of Tecumseh Lodge No. 69, F. & A. M. to-morrow evening. A full attendance is requested.

At the election of officers of Co. C last Monday night, Emory Doke was elected 1st Lieut and Will Ross 2d.

Mr. J. H. Dodge, an old hotel man and well known to the travelling public, has charge of the office of the Lilley House.

Who struck Billy Patterson? Our Clinton neighbors are still engaged in the laudable undertaking of trying to solve this important historical problem.

The Cornet Band will repeat their benefit entertainment at Goodyear Hall in Manchester on Tuesday evening next, March 3d. The Manchester people can rely upon having a good entertainment.

The Adrian Times of last Saturday says:

At 6 A. M. it was 20 degrees below zero. A letter, received here at noon to-day from Norway, Menominee Co., says the thermometer was 52 degrees below zero at that place one day this week.

Why not make it 82 degrees and have done with it?

Manchester Enterprise: Capt. Byron L. Crouch was in town last evening. He came from the west on the Ypsi branch and stopped at the Goodyear House until the night train for Jackson. He is quite a gentlemanly appearing man and was pleasant and agreeable, ready to talk about the tragedy and trial, or his ranch in Texas.

A Grand Rapids paper says: Forty-two loads of snow are dumped every hour by the teams clearing Monroe and Canal streets. An iron beam and three plow points have been broken since the work commenced. The snow is dumped near the boat landing and has formed an ice bridge, from which fire works will be discharged next fourth of July. The ice bridge is 15 feet high and 300 ft. long.

The Adrian Record is responsible for the following—We second the motion: Representative Howell will do us a good turn by pushing through his bill to confer the right to marry people on notaries public. We have a commission that is good for two years yet that is it may be. It hasn't been worth a "nick" to us yet. It cost us $1.75, and so far we have not realized on the investment. We pray the honorable gentleman will "whoop up" his bill.

The masquerade at the Gem rink New Years night was a grand success. The first prize $2.50 in gold was awarded Mr. Alba Heywood, of Grand Rapids, Mich. His costumes were those of the old lady and the dude. The judges were divided, some favoring the old lady and some the dude, but on learning that they were one and the same, the old lady having disappeared, the dude received the prize.—Morris, Ill. News.

Mr. Heywood will appear at the Band entertainment.

At the Democratic county convention held last Saturday the following delegates were chosen to the state convention:

First District—L. V. Judson, Frank Davidson, Wm. Corbett, R. J. Clark, J. B. Clement, Frank Depuy, J. W. Benedict, John Wyman, Second District—Frank Schiebel, S. W. Beakes, W. Stearns, D. A. Bixby, Seth Bean, E. J. Smith, J. C. Lambie, W. H. Cleveland.

Third District—J. B. Thorne, H. C. Hall, Henry Howd, S. G. Chandler, David A. Pontius, W. H. Shierson, C. H. Dewey, G. B. Woodworth.

Mrs. T. R. Lovett of Oak Park, Ill., sends us the following weather item, which shows that Chicago also felt the effects of the blizzard. Oak Park is a suburb of Chicago.

Wm. F. Harding writing from Albion College, says: "I am very much pleased with my school privileges here. We have a large school, well conducted, with a fine class of young ladies and gentlemen in attendance. There are two college societies in active operation at present. Last Friday evening the Eclectic and Athmaides society held a national convention in their hall. They organized a new party called the Anti Mormon party, the intention being to suppress this terrible blot on our national record. Ten states and territories were represented and a broad platform was adopted amid a great deal of enthusiasm both by the spectators and the convention itself."

AFTER THE QUILTING.

Joshua Gumbo was at the Lodge on the evening of the quilting bee and arrived home about twelve o'clock expecting to meet one of Jerusha's storms. Instead he was met at the threshold by the family physician, Dr. Burchard, who said: "Tread lightly Mr. Gumbo, tread lightly, there is no crape on the door yet, but there may be before morning." Joshua pulled off his boots on the door steps and entered the kitchen in his stocking feet. After the first shock of astonishment had subsided he began to take a survey of the situation. Jerusha was bolstered up in the rocking chair, wrapped in the remnants of the new quilt, with a camphor bandage about her forehead, a smelling bottle in one hand and a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup in the other. Sammy's eyes were both swelled shut and one collar bone was fractured. Sally had four teeth knocked out, and a severe scalp wound, and looked as though she might have been through a battle with the Sioux Indians. The baby had been carried home by one of the neighbors for safe keeping. Nancy Noodle lay on the lounge singing in a half audible voice, "Home, sweet Home." Two of the Robinson girls had kindly volunteered to act as nurses and were assisting the doctor in the necessary surgical work. The doctor had confined his attention to caring for the wounded, and to Gumbo was assigned the task of clearing up the wreck in the kitchen.

The clock was found in the flour barrel, the quilting frame in the wood box, four bushels of plastering were swept up from the floor, the stove pipe was under the lounge, some of the chairs had three legs left and some of them only two, 8 chignons were found in the wood box and twenty four thimbles on the floor, three sets of false teeth were fished out of the coal scuttle, two wigs were discovered under the milk safe, the tin baker and coffee pot had mysteriously traveled into the wood shed, a milk pan full of cucumber pickles was gathered from the floor, mince pie and doughnuts were promiscuously scattered about the four corners of the kitchen.

It took Joshua a full hour to sweep up, put the furniture to rights and properly arrange the relics of bric-a-brac upon the what-not. He then retired to the sitting room to inquire after the patients and confer with the doctor. The Gumbos are exceedingly fortunate in their family physician. He is not only a man of renown in the medical profession, but he possesses literary and military attainments. He has pushed the plumbago for some of the leading periodicals in Gotham, and his inventive genius has lately evolved a patent fire-arm which will receive sixty charges a minute and shoot ten miles and kill. He is also a man of clerical inclinations. He has dispensed the gospel most acceptably during twelve months of his literary career. His theological talents come by inheritance, as he claims to be a lineal descendant of the Rev. Dr. Burchard, of Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Well doctor," said Gumbo, as he filled his pipe and scratched a match on his coat sleeve, "if this don't beat all. Why, hang it, I've kept house more'n thirty year; I've druv stage on the Chicago turnpike; I've tended log rollin's; I've bin to the big dances at Lake Ridge hotel; I've talked with the fat woman in Forepaugh's circus; I've fed Jumbo crackers in Barnum's show; I've fit in the Salvation Army; I've umpired base ball games; I've bin chief jedge at hoss races, but I never seen nothin' like this air quilting bee afore, never. My family affairs has bin goin' from bad to wuss for five year and it seems as if they was gettin wusser and wusser. Why, hang it, it'll take a hull summer's work to fix up that air kitchen ceilin'. With Jerusha and both young 'uns in the dry dock for repairs, I've got to hire a gal to do the housework. Hang it, doctor, what can a feller do?"

"Don't be discouraged Mr. Gumbo," replied the doctor, "I have made a careful diagnosis of all the cases, and they are not necessarily fatal—Sally is suffering from an attack of deuticular vacuosis and a cranial contusion of the capillary cuticle, but her condition is not dangerous. Sammy has the ocularibus stuffibus plasteribus and the collar bustibus. Mrs. Gumbo is prostrated with nervous exhaustion and mental hallucination. All she needs is rest and frequent applications of soothing syrup. My professional cares need me at home now, but if anything new transpires, send a dispatch and I will respond. Provide your patients with good victuals and plenty of ventilation and you need have no fear of any fatal results."

Doffing his Buffalo overcoat the doctor left Gumbo in charge of the hospital and to his own reflections.

Nathaniel S. Wheeler, one of the pioneers of Cambridge, and lately a resident of Adrian, was buried on Wednesday of last week. Among the bearers was Philo C. Mills, formerly of Tecumseh.

The county board of examiners held a meeting at Adrian last Saturday and over one hundred school ma'ams were put through a "course of sprouts."

A FINAL WORD TO DR. BURCHARD.

In the Tecumseh News of Feb. 12th, Dr. Burchard has an item in his Clinton letter raising an issue of veracity between Dr. Cameron and ourselves with reference to a retraction which we made for Dr. Cameron's benefit in the HERALD of Feb. 5th. In last week's News Dr. Burchard drops the discussion, but covers his retreat with an ungentlemanly insinuation against our personal character.

We deem it but just to ourselves to briefly notice these two items, as silence on our part might be construed as a confession of guilt.

The retraction in the HERALD of Feb. 5th was shown to Dr. Cameron in manuscript before its publication and had his approval, and we have no reason to believe that he denied our interview or misrepresented it in his subsequent talk with Dr. Burchard.

With reference to the last item, if Dr. Burchard wishes to provoke a comparison of personal character we are prepared to accommodate him. We are much better posted on his own personal record both in Clinton and elsewhere than he may suppose. We shall not shrink from defending ourselves against any attack of that character.

The Doctor has undoubtedly learned the fact that we have in our possession written statements signed by many of the Clinton citizens whom he imposed upon by publishing an interview without their knowledge and which, if put in cold type, would place him in a very unenviable light before the public. He therefore considers discretion the better part of valor and wisely concludes to strike his colors. These statements were obtained for publication in case the Doctor's continued attacks should render it necessary. In deference to the wishes of the parties we withhold them from the public at present.

The Doctor possesses neither the courage to fight nor the manliness to surrender like a man. But as he elects to "drop the subject," we have no reason for continuing the discussion. It would hardly be fair to keep hammering a man after he is down. Besides, if we should continue the war now, some tender hearted individual might take a fancy to cause our arrest for cruelty to animals. This statement will close the discussion on our part unless Dr. Burchard shall see fit to re-open it.

This is a combination of all that makes good reading inspiring and entertaining, with the purest harmony in music. There is an elocution in singing as well as in reading, and the superior work of these artists illustrates its importance. A good voice is not enough; expression must come by cultivation.—Boston Journal.

KING'S EVIL

Was the name formerly given to Scrofula because it was supposed that the touch of a king could cure it. The world is wiser now, and knows that cannot be cured by a touch, but yet that a certain medicine can be found which will cure it. Among its many manifestations the following are known to be of scrofulous origin: Eczema, Cutaneous Eruptions, Tumors, Boils, Carbuncles, Erysipelas, Purulent Ulcers, Nervous and Physical Collapse, etc. It also leads to or aggravates Rheumatism, Scrofulous Catarrh, Kidney and Liver Diseases, Tubercular Consumption, and various other dangerous or fatal maladies, are produced by it.

SCROFULA

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

is the only powerful and always reliable blood purifier. It is clearly proved that it eradicates from the system Hereditary Scrofula, and the inherited taint of contagious diseases as nothing else can. At the same time it enriches and invigorates the blood, restoring health and action to the vital organs and invigorating the entire system. The great

Regenerative Medicine

is composed of the genuine Honduras Sarsaparilla, with Yellow Dock, Stillingia, Mandrake, Yellow Dock, Burdock, Prickly Ash, Poke Root, Iodide of Potassium and Iron, and is so combined as to be pleasant, compact and concentrated. It is prepared with the skill of years, and is adapted to the most delicate constitution. It is recommended by physicians, and is the best blood purifier and strengthener that medical science can produce. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA is an for all diseases caused by the vitiation of the blood. Its concentration gives it the highest practicable degree, far beyond any other preparation for which like effects are claimed, and is therefore the cheapest, as well as the best blood purifying medicine in the world.

ELIJAH'S ALTAR.

An Interesting Discovery on Mount Carmel, in Palestine.

We are approaching that spot celebrated in Bible story where Elijah sacrificed before the prophets of Baal, and where tradition has placed the altar where he called down the divine fire, and which commands one of the most extensive and interesting panoramic views in Palestine, including almost every point of note in Galilee. Within the last year the Carmelites have started a church on the lofty bluff where this event is supposed to have occurred, and which rising abruptly above the plain of Esdraelon, to a height of one thousand six hundred feet, forms the southeast angle of the mountain, and is a conspicuous object from far and wide. But a modern tradition will convince us that tradition is not correct in assigning this lofty pinnacle as the scene of the occurrence, for we are told that the prophet "said to his servant, go up now, look towards the sea." And he went up and looked, and said there is nothing. And he said, go again seven times." Now there would have been no occasion for Elijah to have given any such directions to his servant had the altar been at the place supposed, for the seas in full view of it, from Affilit to Cæsarea, it is evident, therefore, from the words "go up," that the altar was at a lower elevation. The late Dean Stanley has conjectured that the spot might have been on a plateau still lower down, where there is a well on the south slope of the mountain. But it has seemed to me more likely that it was in a sort of a low amphitheater, which, on account of its greater area, would have been far better adapted for so great a multitude, as that which was assembled to witness the discomfiture of the false prophets, and which lies to the west a little below Mt. Carmel, and commonly called plain on the sea view. There is a point which gives a view of what would be the center of the area, from which the sea is clearly visible. And, our guide enough, hidden away in the bushes, I came now upon a massive collection of square slabs of stone, each averaging three inches square, and eight or nine inches thick, which plainly enough, without cement, make a rude table about twelve feet long and four feet high.

I do not, of course, pretend that this was the original altar, which it is recorded was destroyed at that time, but I am at a loss to conjecture what purpose it could have served, and its position was so exactly that which might have suited the occasion, that the idea was suggested to me by finding it here, that it may be the remains of some erection put up in Jewish times to commemorate the event. There is a path leading from it directly to the Kishon, at the point where the Tel-el-Kisis, or Hill of the Priests, rises from the margin of the brook, and which owes its name to the tradition that it was the scene of the execution of the false prophets. This portion of the mountain was evidently the most populous and most richly cultivated in former times, as it is to-day the most beautiful.—L. Oliphant, in Churchman.

CHINESE WOMEN.

The Strange Inner Life of the Almond-Eyed Women of China.

Chinese ladies wear robes of silk of any or every color—their frightful little feet protrude from the legs of a straight pair of satin pantaloons—much like the European garment in form. The custom of martyrizing the feet always affects the legs, which invariably become thin, atrophied or deformed.

Little feet are not admitted to the imperial court. Only the daughters of Tartar generals are admitted to the Emperor's palace, and these Tartar girls are never subjected to the torture of having their feet deformed. Still, I am told, that the Tartar girls are not at all anxious to go to Pekin, where some dozen of the poor creatures are condemned to the life of a recluse in those huge palace buildings, surrounded by lofty walls.

If you should chance to meet a well-dressed Chinese woman, either walking or in an open palanquin, you may assure yourself that she belongs to the disreputable class. As for the women of the people, they go freely through the streets; they carry packages, merchandise of all kinds, and adopt very successfully, by reason of their uncommonly well-developed muscular power, the trade of porters.

The great Chinese ladies are served by female domestics called "amahs." These servants sometimes perform commissions, but not as a rule. No woman employed in an aristocratic family allows herself to be seen upon the street without good reason.

A mandarin's wife must not show herself under risk of being sullied by the gaze of the populace. She shares the honors of her husband, gives parties in her own house, visits her female friends, but the street is forbidden her.

The Chinese women love their children, and are much loved and respected by them. The story about Chinese infants being thrown into the river is pure humbug. The affection shown to the children by the women of the lower classes is often touching; they carry them strapped to their shoulders even while at work.

In the houses of the rich mandarins there are always several courts—little open yards—through which one has to pass before reaching the female apartments, which are always separated from those of the men. The married people alone occupy the same room; every other member of the family must occupy a separate room.

The most luxurious Chinese upholstery and furniture never invites one to idle repose; in fact the best furnished house is barely comfortable. The bed has no springs, but has a number of little cotton mattresses covered with silk and padded counterpanes which are all rolled up in one mass during the day.

It must not be supposed that one Chinese woman exactly resembles another Chinese woman—it were just as rational to say that all French women look alike. The race-type is the same, but the physiognomy is very different. I have seen fine aquiline noses, long or oval faces. But all these women have bright, intelligent, decided, energetic features. Their costume is simple, very graceful, and some little jewel of jade always glitters in the ear, or on the swarthy arm.

The working woman runs, goes everywhere. She has the bold, brusque manner of a person who is wholly self-dependent, and is conscious of the force to do and dare. She is the exact counterpart of the aristocratic lady who staggers about upon her little feet.

A good example of Chinese high life is shown by the fact that if any one asks what kind of a wife a Chinese Mandarin has married, the answer is always given, with an air of shocked surprise: "Oh a woman with little feet, of course." That is to say, she has not married beneath him.—Figaro.

HATS.

The Kind of Headgear Which Stylish Ladies Wear in Cold Weather.

Felt round hats, fish-wife poke pointed high above the forehead, and turbans of cloth, velvet, or fur, are worn by young girls. The color is chosen to match the jacket or Newmarket coat, which may be worn with various dresses, and the trimmings are of velvet passed around the crown in one plain fold, then missed in loops that stand up against the crown on the left side. Some sharp wings are fitted in these loops, and on the right side is a gilt or silver pin or other ornament. Cloth turbans of the dress goods have folds forming the crown, and a velvet covered brim that rests close against the crown. Felt pokes are the most becoming hats to girls of this age, and seem designed especially for them. The brim has usually a puff of velvet coming over its edge, and the only other trimming needed is a cockade bow of loops and tucked ends of velvet ribbon. Sometimes wood fibre the color of the felt is gathered along the brim, or else forms a rosette on the left side.

A narrow standing linen collar or a frill of muslin or lace is worn around the neck by young girls. White moiré and velvet ribbon bows are used to fasten this, but most girls prefer a simple dress pin that is convenient to wear with any dress. Earrings are now seldom seen on girls in their teens, and many of the rising generation refuse altogether to have holes bored in their ears. The simplest arrangement of the hair is adopted by school-girls, such as hanging braids, or else a braided knot low on the nape of the neck, while the front may be brushed back smoothly from the forehead if it is low, or cut in a bang that may cover part of a high forehead, and perhaps result in inducing the hair to grow lower down. Crimping the hair in pins is always injurious, but especially when it is growing fast in youth; plaiting the back hair in many small braids at night is the safer way of making it light and fluffy. Stockings are chosen to match the dress in color, or else black stockings are worn with any dress. Buttoned gaiters for misses are now made with the low English heels that are becoming popular along with other wholesome English fashions. Calf-skin of light quality is used this winter both for ladies' and for young girls' shoes. For more dressy shoes patent-leathers with colored cloth tops are chosen, and black French kid boots or slippers are worn with light wool or muslin dresses. Tan-colored gloves of either dressed or undressed kid are furnished in misses' sizes, and are appropriate with any dress.—Harper's Bazar.

THE BUSTLE AND CLOCK.

One Instance Where That Hideous Monstrosity Proved Available, if Not Useful.

An amusing story reaches us from Paris. On Friday last a lady having paid her hotel bill, sent away her boxes on a cab and sallied forth on foot. No sooner had she departed than the landlord discovered that the clock had disappeared from the mantelpiece of the room which his late lodger had been occupying, though he remembered to have seen it there subsequent to her trunks being dispatched. Convinced that she must be the thief he rushed out in hot pursuit, and, overtaking her, he charged her with the robbery and gave her into custody, the lady meanwhile protesting loudly against the indignity offered her, and vowing vengeance against the traducer. She was, however, taken before the Judge d'Instruction, to whom she resumed her torrent of indignant denial with the extraordinary volubility peculiar to the daughters of Gaul. Her indignation was at its height when lo! twelve o'clock rang forth in clear tones from the region of madame's dress improver. The expression of consternation depicted on the fair pilferer's countenance, together with the appositeness of the strange phenomenon, were too much for the gravity of the officials, who burst into a fit of uncontrollable laughter. Five minutes later a female warder returned the portable time-piece to its owner. Will Mr. Oscar Wilde still insist upon "the utter uselessness of that hideous monstrosity—the bustle?"—Pall Mall Gazette.

Songs.

Prof. Blackie, in the course of some remarks about songs, recently made a Manchester, Eng., said: "The mixing of music with words—words that stir the soul and instruct the mind—is the most intellectual of all possible entertainments." This suggests that the song-makers of America should exercise greater care in the composition of the words. Many songs have had a brief season of favor in the theaters, which, had the sentiment been as well-expressed in the words as in the music, might have become as thoroughly suggestive of the American nationality as the "Annie Laurie" or "Scots wha hae" of Scotland.—Current.

—A State record has been discovered at Trenton, N. J., showing that one John Fitch launched a steamboat on the Delaware River twenty years before Fulton's steam craft, the Clermont, appeared on the Hudson.

ATKINS ELECTRIC LIGHT SOAP SAVES CLOTHES

Wash as you please, and it will make you its friend. Soak, boil and don't rub; or soak, rub and don't boil. We advocate dispensing, so far as possible, with the washboard, because it wears the clothes out and wears you out. The soap contains no mineral to give it weight, and no pulp to give it size, therefore frequent boiling will not yellow or injure the clothes, but soaking and boiling with ELECTRIC LIGHT SOAP does clean and disinfect them. One thing is certain; it produces glorious results, is an economical soap and is so pure and harmless that the writer washes his head with it without injuring a hair, and he isn't bald either. Try it in the Laundry, Kitchen and Bath. Ask your grocer for it and take no other.

General News Summary.

Interesting Home and Foreign News.

CONGRESSIONAL.

THE CHOCTAW bill before the Senate on the 19th a communication from the Acting Postmaster General in response to a Senate resolution estimating the amount that will be necessary to complete the work for adjusting the salaries of postmasters. A bill was passed authorizing the construction of a bridge across the Great Kanawha below the falls. The bill prohibiting the importation of foreign laborers under contract to perform labor in the United States was laid before the Senate. The pending question being on the motion to strike out section 3 inflicting a fine of $1,000 on any person or company violating the act, one half to go to the person first bringing suit therefor. The motion was discussed until adjournment. In the House Mr Reagan from the Committee on Commerce reported a resolution calling upon the Secretary of the Treasury for such information as he may be able to furnish respecting the cattle traffic of the South West; adopted. The House then went into Committee of the Whole on the Legislative Appropriation bill and after making some minor amendments to the bill the committee rose and the bill was passed.

THE Chair laid before the Senate on the 16th, among other documents, a resolution of the Legislature of Maine, urging the placing of General Grant upon the retired list of the army. The Foreign Contract Labor bill then came up and was discussed at length and after several amendments had been adopted it was passed—yeas 50, nays 9. Those voting in the negative were Messrs. Butler, Groome, Hampton, Hawley, Maxey, Morgan, Saulsbury, Vance and Williams. The House then went into Committee of the Whole on the River and Harbor bill. The committee amendment respecting Galveston Harbor was agreed to—yeas 78 to 56. Various amendments to minor items in the bill were offered by members representing localities interested, some of which, increasing the appropriations by small amounts, were adopted, but as a rule they were voted down. Without reaching the large points in controversy the committee rose and the House adjourned.

THE Senate on the 19th accepted a bust of the late Senator Sawyer, of Connecticut, and ordered it placed on a suitable pedestal in the Vice President's room. The political disabilities of William W. Gardner and A. R. Montgomery, of Georgia, and Alexander W. Starr, of Virginia, were removed. The Texas Pacific Forfeiture bill was then read and passed and the Senate adjourned. Immediately after the morning hour the House went into Committee of the Whole on the Naval Appropriation bill. The first section of the bill, covering the Naval Appropriation proper, was read through, when the committee rose and the House adjourned.

MR. GORMAN made a motion in the Senate on the 20th calling upon the Secretary of the Interior to inform the Senate whether the Pacific railroads, to whom subsidies had been granted, had built telegraph lines and maintained and operated them, and were receiving messages without discrimination of price as required by law. The Agricultural Appropriation bill was taken up and discussed section by section, and only one additional amendment was made, and that was, increasing the appropriation for experiments in making sugar out of sorghum from $20,000 to $50,000. The Postoffice Appropriation bill then came up, and the House amendments making a two-cent stamp carry a letter weighing an ounce instead of one-half ounce, as at present, and reducing second-class postage to one cent a pound were adopted by a vote of 36 yeas to 18 nays. Adjourned. After the morning hour the House went into Committee of the Whole on the Naval Appropriation bill. When the second section was reached Mr. Keiter opened the debate by opposing the plans proposed for strengthening the Navy. He argued that it was better to go on with well-considered plans already passed by the Government, than to invite plans from the geniuses sometimes called "cranks" of the country, and waste valuable time and delay the building of the Navy. The House held an evening session at which forty-nine pension bills were passed which cleared the calendar of cases upon which the committee had made favorable reports.

DOMESTIC.

AN infernal machine was found concealed in one of the corridors of the Westmoreland County court house at Greensburg, Pa., on the 18th. The discovery caused great excitement, as there were about two hundred persons in the building at the time who would undoubtedly have been either killed or injured, had an explosion taken place. The machine contained one pound of dynamite with a fuse attached. Various rumors are afloat as to the designs of those placing it there.

IN response to a resolution adopted by the House, the Secretary of the Treasury has transmitted to that body a schedule of the expenses incurred under the law providing for the appointment of special deputy marshals, supervisors of elections and chief supervisors. The statement shows that during 1876-80-82-84 the expenses for special deputies were $651,830, supervisors $928,534, chief supervisors $393,752. Total $1,973,916.

JOSEPH A. COOK, of Mattoon, Ill., who was studying for the ministry and was a worthy young man, has mysteriously disappeared from the Southern Hotel, at Chicago, where he had lived since January 1. He was last seen February 5, when he had a large roll of money. The proprietor of the hotel thinks Cook has been murdered.

A GENUINE case of oriental leprosy has been discovered in the county jail at Portland, Oregon. The patient is Ah Ping, a Chinese prisoner held for assault. The authorities of the penitentiary refused to receive him and forced him back on the county authorities. He presents a loathsome appearance. He is now isolated from all human habitation.

THE Victoria iron mines and furnaces in Rockbridge County, Va., have shut down on account of overstock, and 1,200 men are thrown out of employment.

THE Pennsylvania Board of Pardons has refused to open the case of Goerson, the Philadelphia wife-murderer, and he will therefore be hanged on the 5th of March. The case has been in court for five years.

A COLLISION between a passenger and freight train occurred on the Virginia & Midland Railway about four miles south of Washington City on the 19th. The engineer and fireman of the freight train and the fireman of the passenger train were killed instantly, and the engineer of the express probably fatally injured. The baggage, postal and smoking cars took fire and were totally destroyed. No passengers were killed, but some were badly bruised and all greatly shaken up.

G. W. TYLER, leading counsel for Mrs. Hill-Sharon, in the Hill-Sharon divorce case; Max Gumpel, the handwriting expert; T. C. Cashman and J. F. McLaughlin, have been indicted by the State Grand Jury for implication in obtaining $20,000 from Senator Sharon's counsel.

A PECULIAR and fatal hog disease is reported to be raging in many sections of Massachusetts. The symptoms are loss of appetite, sight and strength, death invariably resulting in three days. Thousands of hogs are dying off.

A DISPATCH from Irkoutsk, Siberia, states that the exiles to that place recently revolted, and before the outbreak could be suppressed thirty of the participants were killed outright and a large number wounded. Nine out of the soldiers were killed.

THE Postoffice Department has completed the letting of contracts for Star route and Steamboat service in the States of New England, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia. The cost of the service under this letting will be $1,222,311 per annum. Under the former letting the cost was $1,226,255 per annum. The cost of the steamboat service will be $31,159 and at the last letting it was $38,118.

THE Eastern New York Beekeeper's Association held their annual session at Albany on the 19th. The following officers were elected: President, Solomon Vroonman; Vice President, T. Pierce; Secretary, E. W. Philo; Treasurer, H. W. Garrett. The convention decided that shipment of honey by freight was preferable to express; that Alsike clover was the best food for stock, and that a cross between the Italian and Black produced the best race of bees.

A FIRE broke out on the 20th in the five-story brick structure, No. 125 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, occupied by several cotton and wool firms, and before it could be controlled nine large business houses were completely burned out, six were damaged and others incurred heavy losses. During the fire two men were killed by falling walls—John McCormick, a hose-cart driver, and Thomas Marshall, a drayman. The losses aggregate $250,000, distributed among about twenty firms.

THE Gurley building at Troy, N. Y., was destroyed by fire on the 19th. Loss $120,000; nearly covered by insurance.

THERE were 254 business failures reported in the United States for the week ended the 20th, against 373 in the preceding week and 218, 204 and 195 in the corresponding weeks of 1884, 1883 and 1882 respectively.

POSTOFFICE Department officials say the disaster a few days ago on the Midland Road between Washington and Alexandria, caused the heaviest loss of United States mail that ever resulted in a railroad accident. One hundred ordinary mail pouches and thirteen pouches containing through registered letters from the South for large cities in the East, besides considerable miscellaneous matter, were, with all their contents, burned up, and with them probably $100,000.

REV. ROBERT RAYMOND was fatally shot on the steps of his church just after prayer meeting, at Quitman, Ga., a few nights ago by a member named Robinson, who had quarreled with him on a private matter.

TICKETS of admission to the galleries of the House of Representatives at Washington, during the dedication ceremonies on the 21st were issued to between 350 to 450 persons who had furnished satisfactory evidence of relationship with the original George Washington family.

THE roadbed and all the property belonging to the Cleveland, Delphos & St. Louis Narrow Gauge Railroad was sold at auction at the United States Court room, Toledo, Ohio, on the 20th by Major Goodspeed as Master Commissioner. A. W. Jones, of Youngstown, bid $15,000, the lowest that could be offered, and there being no other bid made Mr. Jones was declared the purchaser.

THE Robesonia furnace plant, af Reading, Pa., has been sold to William R. White and Mrs. Henry Borie, of Philadelphia, for $870,000.

DURING the present Congress the Committee on Invalid Pensions, of which Representative Matson, of Indiana, is chairman, has reported to the House adversely and favorably 1,223 cases, which is about equal to the number of bills reported at any three preceding Congresses. Of those 668, all of which were favorably reported, were passed by the House.

A GANG of prisoners working the stone quarry north of Santa Fe, N. M., overpowered the guard and started for the hills on the 20th. Their recapture is improbable as they got a long start.

THREE thousand mill hands employed at Alexander Smith's Sons carpet mills, at Yonkers, N. Y., struck on the 20th. It is alleged that the strike is due to the action of Superintendent Coyne who had some hands dismissed because they joined the New York Trade Union.

While the south-bound passenger train on the St. Louis & Iron Mountain Railroad was running at full speed near Popular Bluffs, Mo., on the 20th the engine exploded, killing the engineer, John P. Kline, and fatally injuring the fireman, Fred Smith.

SUBSCRIPTIONS amounting to $190,000 having been made to the endowment fund of the Yale Divinity School, Mr. Monroe, in charge of the trust funds of the Marquand estate, has, according to promise, paid in $50,000, which makes the total funds of the Divinity School about $470,000 in addition to the present building and the land.

MARVIN'S extensive safe factory on West Thirty-Seventh Street, New York, was totally destroyed by fire early on the morning of the 20th. The loss on stock was $675,000; on machinery $70,000, and on the building $125,000.

PERSONAL AND POLITICAL.

THE proposition to amend the Constitution of West Virginia so as to prohibit the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors was defeated in the House on the 17th.

IN the New York Assembly on the 17th a resolution calling on Congress to pass the Edmunds bill to place General Grant on the retired list was adopted—yeas 71, nays 1.

FOREIGN.

AN Arab who claims to have been an eye-witness of Gordon's death states that when the General was killed he was making for the powder magazine, intending to perish in blowing up the town. The rebels, foreseeing his purpose, intercepted him, and in the melee which ensued he was shot dead.

A TREATY with Samoa was signed by Germany on November 19 at Apia, the ostensible purpose being to secure good government and the certainty of justice for German residents of the islands. The expenses of administering the courts were provided for out of fines and from the revenues of prison labor.

THERE being fears that the Mormons of Utah are negotiating for the purchase of land in Sonora in order to transfer their entire colony there, the Mexican Government has asked for information from the Government of Sonora. Public opinion is strongly against receiving the Mormons.

THE French fleet was repulsed four times before it succeeded in sinking or drawing off the Chinese men of war in the engagement near the Ningpo River.

HOUSES and cows in the Province of Quebec, Canada, are reported to be suffering from a disease known as equine variola, which more injuriously affects horses than cows, but possesses special danger in the latter, as is shown by prominent physicians, who state that children who drink milk from the diseased cows have eruptions closely resembling small-pox.

IT was rumored in London on the 19th that the Canadian voyageurs aboard the transport Poonah, from Alexandria, had mutinied and that a gunboat with a force of marines had been sent to quell the outbreak. It is certain that orders were received at Queenstown to send assistance to the Poonah, but the facts in the matter are suppressed. The voyageurs were to have been transferred to the steamer Hanoverian at Queenstown on the 18th which was to have conveyed them to America.

Two shocks of earthquake were felt at Malaga, Spain, on the 20th, creating consternation among the inhabitants. Many of those who had returned to the city were preparing take their departure again, fearing a recurrence of the awful scenes witnessed a few weeks ago.

LATER.

THE Weston (Va.) Democrat publishes an account of the distress of the inhabitants of Gilmer, Broxton and Calhoun counties in the interior of the State, many miles from railroads. Whole neighborhoods are suffering for the want of food and stock is dying by herds. Many people would have starved but for the fact that food has been hauled by teams across the mountains, a distance of one hundred miles, fifteen days being occupied in making the trip. The Democrat concludes by saying that unless there is a speedy return of warm weather many human lives will be lost. A great deal of sickness prevails now.

JOHN R. MCLEAN, of the Cincinnati Enquirer, has been made receiver of the Cincinnati & Eastern Railway, to succeed Samuel Woodward, resigned.

PASSENGER train No. 21 on the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad, bound for Indianola, on the 23d jumped the track and plunged over an embankment eight or ten feet high, seriously injuring six persons. The passenger coach was turned bottom upward. The baggage car was hurled on its side, bounded back on the track and then plunged over the other side.

IT has been decided that the President-elect will leave for Washington on Tuesday, March 3, accompanied by Colonel Lamont, and on arriving they will go immediately to the Arlington, where rooms have been engaged. The inaugural address is nearly ready and the Cabinet will be decided on certainly before the President-elect leaves home. Those gentlemen who are chosen will be notified of their appointment and will meet the President the morning after his arrival at Washington.

THE only two charges pending against the notorious Frank James in Circuit Court of Cooper County, Mo., were dismissed on the 21st and he is now again a free man. An impression is current that Governor Marmaduke will not grant a requisition from the Governor of Minnesota for James.

ON motion of Mr. Dawes on the 23d the Senate Committee on Indian Affairs was authorized to continue their investigations into the Indian leases, etc., during vacation, with further authority to elicit want changes are necessary in the boundary lines of Indian reservations. The bill to quiet the titles of settlers on the Des Moines River Lands was taken up and passed—31 yeas to 24 nays. The Postoffice Appropriation bill then came up and, after several minor amendments, was passed and the Senate adjourned. In the House Mr LeFevre offered a resolution reciting the exclusion of American pork from Germany and the levying of a discriminating duty on wheat and rye, and that a threatening attitude had been assumed against American petroleum, and directing the Committee on Foreign Affairs to inquire into the propriety of a like discrimination against German products; referred. The Senate amendments to the Texas Pacific Land Grant Forfeiture bill and the bill to prohibit the importation of contract labor were concurred in. The House then went into Committee of the Whole on the Naval Appropriation bill, and after several very important amendments in regard to the completion of the steel vessels now authorized, the bill passed and the House adjourned.

Eczema.

Eczema is one of the ugliest and most troublesome of all blood diseases. It proceeds from humors in the blood which are sometimes very difficult to eradicate. For five weary years M. J. D. Rodefer, of Greendale, Va., suffered terribly from this disease. He writes: "Finding no relief to the many medicines till I used Brown's Iron Bitters. I purchased three bottles: from the use of which I have obtained almost entire relief. I recommend it to every one in my neighborhood for any disorder of the blood and as a general tonic."

There are 50,000 illiterate persons in Massachusetts.

Many of the wines upon the market at this day are a mixture of chemical and water. Speer's wines have established a reputation that is above reproach, they have been endorsed by the leading Surgeons and Hospital nurses of this country and Europe. For sale by C. A. Wright & Co.

PRACTICAL TEST.—Those housekeepers who wish to detect the presence of ammonia in their Baking Powder, can do so by boiling a small quantity in water, when the odor produced by ammonia is quickly detected. It will also leave a presence of starch, flour, or filling of any kind, as nothing but Cream of Tartar and Soda will disappear. DeLand's Chemical Baking powder has none of the above ingredients except Cream Tartar and Soda, which contains all the leavening power necessary to use in the manufacture of Baking Powder. None sold in bulk.

ON THE ENGINE.

Running a Locomotive While Deathly Sick—Something the Passengers Did Not Know—A Physician Saves an Engineer.

TAUNTON, MASS.

Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.:

DEAR SIR: I am an engineer on the Old Colony Railroad, and run the Fall River boat train between Fall River and Lowell, residing in Taunton. For ten years I suffered everything but death from dyspepsia. Often I had such blinding sick headaches that I could scarcely see. I think this was due partly to irregular habits of eating and partly to the jar of the engine. Sometimes my head would shake like neuralgia, and again the pain would settle in my eyes, which would feel as big as a man's fists. My breath was very offensive, and my food soured as soon as it entered my stomach. In fact my stomach felt as though it were a great raw and sore surface, and what agony it gave, perhaps you can imagine.

In the summer and fall of 1876 when we had the heavy centennial travel, the constant jar brought on acute attacks nearly every week and I thought I should have to leave the road. But I kept at work until the next spring, when I grew so much worse that I could virtually eat nothing, and concluded that my labor and my life too, were about over.

Remember that I had tried every medicine I heard of, and had been treated to some of the best physicians in Taunton and Lowell. At this critical time Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy was recommended to me. It was new to me, and with my experience of medicines you can hardly forgive me for saying that I had not a particle of faith in it.

I had taken it but a few days when I began to get better. The raw and sore feeling left my stomach, and the snapping pains left my head, and soon I was all right, and have been ever since. It is the only thing that ever did me the least good, and it drove every ache, pain and disorder completely out of my body. Now I keep Kennedy's Favorite Remedy with me on my engine, and it goes wherever I go.

Why, I believe Kennedy's Favorite Remedy will cure anything. One night a while ago, John Lawton, an engineer who runs the main line boat train from Boston, came on my engine sick as death. He was worn out with work, had a high fever, and was so nervous he almost broke down crying. "Nonsense, John," I said, "cheer up, I've got something on my engine that will set you up in a jiffy." I took out a bottle of Favorite Remedy, lifted his head and gave him a good dose. He went to bed. Two days after I saw him looking healthy as a butcher. "Lawton," he says, "what was that stuff you gave me the other night?" "It was Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, Rondout, N. Y.," said I. "Well I don't care whose Remedy it is, it's the thing for a man on the railroad." So say we all.

Yours, etc., DANIEL

EVILS OF THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC.

At the request of a friend and subscriber, we publish the following extract from the Toledo Blade of Feb. 5th.

Roy L. C. Briggs, Valley Falls, Kas. sends us the following.

Judge John Martin of Kansas, in passing sentence on one convicted of selling liquor contrary to the law made the following address:

For more than twenty years I have had ample opportunities for observing the working and effect of the business of selling intoxicating liquors, and I have not been able to discover a single fact or circumstance, or result that can command it to the favor or the consideration of any decent, respectable or thoughtful man, and in this conclusion I think that you and all agree with me. It cannot even challenge the admiration or approval of ordinary bad men. I cannot conceive of any business or occupation more thoroughly demoralizing in its immediate and ultimate effects or more destructive of public morals. Under cover of public license, and under the guise of selling intoxicating liquors, I do not perceive a sanitary benefit or advantage to be derived from it by a single human being. I cannot imagine a blessing or benefit of any kind that it brings or contributes to the welfare of a community. It brings moral and social death to those who engage in it, as well as those who patronize and sustain it. From its very nature it brings you into contact with the most vicious, the most profane, drunkards and every vicious element and class in society. Your own association, as the chosen ministers of your community, character, intelligence, society or morality, is simply impossible. That such associations will inevitably and always drag others down to a level of your baseness and degradation, is absolutely certain, and under such circumstances, and with the common knowledge which all men must possess, I am utterly unable to understand how it is possible for any man, with any sense of decency or self respect, much less of manhood, if any sentiment of honor or any one having any hopes or aspirations for respectable social or moral standing in the community, or having any reason for the confidence of his fellow men, can be induced himself to take the first step in becoming a common vender of intoxicating liquors. It seems to me it must be a plunge in such a bottomless pit to destroy every crush and banish from the heart forever every sentiment, every hope, every ambition, every element of character that men generally value as being useful and beneficial to the world. It blights and destroys man's intellectual powers, and closes in upon your immortal life, hopes and aspirations. It destroys every sentiment of manhood, decency and honor, and it turns men into demons, it crupt young men, dishonest, and destitute of all sense of honor, and of every obligation of family relationship, friendship and citizenship.

It begets recklessness, carelessness and an utter indifference to, and disregard of, the rights, the interests and the happiness of others. It invites, encourages and necessarily develops all that is base, degrading and dangerous in man and destructive of good government, good order and common decency. It is a nursery for the development and growth of all those wicked practices which lead to the crime of gambling, which after all is but another name for different forms of stealing, theft, robbery, arson, perjury, murder and every sort of public crime, social wrong and private indecency. In other words, it is a school house for the development and cultivation of every species of crime, an institution for the preparation of men and women and children for the gutter, the poor house, the insane asylum, the reform schools, the county jail, the penitentiary and the gallows. But this is not all; while it makes men idiots and imbeciles by robbing them of their reason, and makes drunkards, destroys all self respect, blights and blasts all manly aspirations, it also despoils men of their property, and makes homeless and hungry wives and children, who shiver and starve in winter, and starve and burn in summer; and after all, these are but a few of the long list of crimes and miseries that necessarily flow from the business of trafficking in intoxicating liquors. It may be possible that an honest man of ordinary intelligence may engage in such a business, but to me it seems impossible. A man who wilfully engages in it, deliberately defies the law and at once proclaims himself an enemy to public order, public decency and every interest, public and private, calculated to benefit the state, and that makes for the welfare of humanity. He purposely ignores and contemptuously disregards every interest that men hold to be useful and good, and robs himself of every consideration or plea for mercy or forbearance in his behalf.

He enters the business with his eyes wide open, with the statute book set before him. He reads it and knows that he is engaged in a business that the law forbids. He is fully advised of the dangers and risks he assumes. He is bound to recognize the fact that he is engaged in the business of making criminals and unfortunates of every class and degree. He is thoroughly advised that he is filling the land with widows and orphans; the charitable and other institutions of the country with paupers and other unfortunates; the jails and reform schools with petty criminals; and the penitentiaries with felons of every degree; and yet with a seared conscience and an utter indifference to all these calamities, and for the mean and base purpose of making a few paltry dollars, that will in the end burn his pockets, and bring ruin and disgrace upon him, he deliberately embarks in the disgraceful traffic. The pretended excuse that the law on the sale of intoxicating liquors is in many respects unjust, is no sort of defense or excuse. In this country the laws are made by the people; and our theory of government is that the majority must rule; and when the properly constituted authorities of the state have determined what the law is, then it becomes the duty of every citizen to obey it until its objectionable features can be removed in an orderly and lawful way, and it is particularly the duty of those charged with its administration to see that the law, whatever it may be, is reasonably, justly and fairly enforced, and the public officer who fails or refuses to perform his duty, is simply guilty of perjury, and it is further the duty of such officers to give the moral support of their offices in favor of the observance and enforcement of the constitution and laws of the state, and in favor of good order and decency in the community, in order that the citizens may be properly protected in the enjoyment of life, liberty and property, and the public officer who neglects to perform his duty, ceases to be worthy of the public confidence and forfeits all claim to the support or decent, thoughtful and law abiding citizens. It seems to me that for any public officer to throw the mantle of his high authority, or to use his influence or influence his subordinates to the aid of lawlessness or violence, or to give encouragement and power to the criminal and vicious elements in society, is to become a party to a crime that may be consummated by reason of his assistance. The idea that only such of the laws as you and I may think to be just ones should be enforced, is a betrayal of a sacred trust, and a violation of the very objects and purposes of government. If one may be permitted to set up his individual judgment to the propriety of obeying any particular law, we must accord to any other citizen the same right with respect to any other laws or class of laws, and the inevitable result must be a condition of lawlessness and anarchy. Under such circumstances every man becomes a law unto himself, and the strong will subjugate the rights and interests of the weak to its own pleasure, and thus we have an end of civil government, and the lives, liberties and property of the citizens are absolutely without protection. This is a proposition so plain and simple that it can be readily embraced and appreciated by every man, and appeals to the intelligent wisdom, justice and patriotism of every citizen to stand by the Constitution and laws of the land as being the surest, safest and best protection to all these great interests.

LELAND STANFORD.

One of California's richest and most philanthropic citizens is the Hon. Leland Stanford. His fortune is variously estimated at from 15,000,000 to 20,000,000 dollars. He is deeply interested in schemes for the education of the masses and devotes much time and money to his favorite hobby. Upon the death of his son in 1884 he attracted universal attention to himself through the building of an expensive mausoleum to perpetuate the memory of the departed, whose virtues were extolled far and wide. Leland Stanford was born in New York state, March 9th, 1824. In 1846 he took up the study of law. After his admittance to the bar he removed to Wisconsin and engaged himself in his profession. Soon after the discovery of gold in California he set out for that state, there joining his brothers who had preceded him. Entering upon a mercantile career he was most eminently successful and soon amassed a respectable fortune. In the Republican National Convention of 1880 he was a delegate from California. During the same year he was elected governor of the state. He was the first president of the Central Pacific R. R., and broke the ground for the pioneer line to the Pacific slope. His connection with the prodigious enterprise gave him many opportunities for the accumulation of wealth and he made intelligent use of them. Having been stricken by illness, Mr. Stanford was constrained to relinquish his business pursuits and get rid of all worry and care by a prolonged tour of England and the Continent. He was chosen to the U. S. Senate from California, Jan. 26th, 1885, and will continue in office until 1891. It is said that Mr. Stanford is a believer in spiritualism, and it has been asserted that since the death of his son he has been in frequent communication with mediums. It has been announced that he will, after his death, leave the bulk of his immense fortune to the state and after the payment of the state debt of $3,000,000, the rest is to be used as a fund for a thorough system of popular education. In this way he will not only perpetuate his memory, but will also be the means of accomplishing great and lasting good.

THE NEXT LECTURE

The Meigs Underhill Combination have arranged a new date with the lecture committee and will positively appear on Thursday evening March 5th. It is expected by the management that this will be the best entertainment of the course. The troupe consist of Meigs Sisters Vocal Quartette and Charles F. Underhill, Humorist, Dramatic and Dialect Elocutionist, all of New York.

Last season they appeared on several occasions and made a tour of the principal Summer Assemblies, closing at Chautauqua, Aug. 12th. The same enthusiastic reception was accorded them everywhere.

TESTIMONIALS.

The Meigs Underhill Combination spent several days at Chautauqua this season, to the delight of our great audiences. The Meigs Sisters are highly cultivated singers, rendering the most classical music with ease and effectiveness. Their charming part-song can never be excelled at Chautauqua. Mr. Underhill is a remarkable reader, a master of pathos and humor, and has a repertoire apparently inexhaustible. We expect to have them again next season.

J. H. VINCENT.

In their modesty and charming manner of vocalizing is realized in the highest degree a beauty of character with the highest culture of the voice. The singing is phenomenal in that a single family should produce vocal powers so unlike, and yet in harmony so much alike. Mr. Underhill is one of the most delightful, refined and fascinating elocutionists in the country.—Cleveland Leader.

Their success was instantaneous. The alternation of music and reading make a most enjoyable programme.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

A VISIT TO PRESIDENT CLEVELAND.

Mr. W. H. Cleveland paid a visit to Albany last week and while there he had a personal interview with the President-elect on Tuesday the 17th inst. We gather the following account of his interview from the Adrian Times:

"How did you find Grover?"

"Nicely sir, nicely. I had the pleasure of an hour in his company last Tuesday forenoon, and, although he looked a little more careworn than when I saw him last September, he is in fair health. The prospects? The prospects are for a first-class democratic administration. I visited the president-elect by invitation, my interview was entirely on general affairs, and I am satisfied that we have elected a great man as our chief executive. Of course he has not been before the public long, but he has kept fully abreast of the times. He is entirely patriotic, and lives first for his country, second for his party, and lastly for himself. His conversation with me was as candid and open as you would expect from a friend or brother in whom you had every confidence, and he said to me that his sole desire was to administer the affairs of the country in the best interests of the masses, and to deserve the approbation of the people. He will feel his way with all caution and conservativeness, and there will be no general and indiscriminate slaughtering of office holders. Changes will be made everywhere only for the best for his administration is to be for the whole people. In so far as the cabinet is concerned, Manning, of New York, will be secretary of the treasury. That is settled, as Mr. Cleveland told me himself. Mr. Manning is a highly conservative gentleman, a successful banker—owns the largest bank in Albany—and he is, with all, the personal friend of the president-elect, and the architect of his political fortunes. Owing to Mr. Cleveland's non-acquaintance with most of the great men of the country, his inaugural message will outline his policy on all national matters to a greater degree than that of any president in years. The message is being prepared with great care, and his desires in regard to all departments will be precisely outlined. Then, having named a man for a cabinet office, the candidate must first see and approve the president's plans before he will be accepted. If his views are not congenial, why, the president will look further. Mr. Bayard will be secretary of state, but, up to noon of last Tuesday, no other members of the cabinet had been decided on, as the president informed me.

The March WIDE AWAKE will be prized for its beautiful reproduction of a photograph of the bust of Longfellow which was placed last year in Westminister Abbey, replicas of which have just arrived at Harvard College. The engraving is accompanied by a noble poem from Imogene Louise Guiney. The number opens with a charming drawing by G. F. Barnes, representing a romantic scene in an old English street; this frontispiece serves as illustration for "The Stranger in the Village," a story by Mary E. Wilkins, as fragrant and simple as a pot of damask roses. Natural history is ably touched by Earnest Ingersoll in his pictorial paper on "Wild Horses," and by Mrs. Whitman in a chapter on "Birdings," history by Edward Everett Hale in "King Rich and the Still Boys' Horses," and by Miss Kingsley in "Miss Elizabeth Russell" in her "Westminister Abbey Children" and by Mrs. Jessie Benton Fremont in her sixth "Souvenir" which is full of anecdote about General Jackson, and Thomas H. Benton, with portraits. There are many other artistic features of poem, jingle, picture and article. WIDE AWAKE is $3. a year. D. Lothrop & Co., Boston Mass.

MALCOM MACKENZIE, M.D., F.R.C.S., Eng. Physician-in-chief of the London Infirmary, and inventor of the "Respirometer."

D. WARREN SCOTT, M.D., Physician-in-Chief of the American Branch Infirmary, and founder of the Oxygen Treatment.

What We Treat.

Catarrh, Consumption, Asthma, Bronchitis, Loss of Voice, Spitting of Blood, Enlarged Tonsils, Polypus, and all affections of the Air Passages, Speedily, Positively and Permanently Cured by the use of the Respirometer and our English Remedies.

N. B.—This is the only institute in America that is devoted exclusively to the treatment of Throat and Lung diseases.

CATARRH.

Among the list of chronic diseases of the air passages—and in fact the whole human system—Catarrh is the most prevalent, most offensive, most productive of discomfort and of a variety of distressing and dangerous complications. Its earliest and most prominent symptom is a discharge from the head varying in its nature, in different cases, sometimes thin, acrid and colorless; again thick, tenacious and stringy. Much of this discharge drops back into the throat, collecting as a tough, viscid, tenacious phlegm, which causes a disagreeable hawking to dislodge.

OFFENSIVE BREATH.—In the most advanced stages, the discharges are generally of an offensive odor, causing great annoyance to one's friends, and to the patient himself while the sense of smell remains.

FATAL EFFECTS.—The swallowing of catarrhal secretions deranges the functions of the stomach, causing indigestion and loss of appetite and health. Debility, Paleness, Lassitude, Headache, and disturbance of mind follows.

CONSUMPTION AND DEATH.—Catarrhal affections unchecked by proper treatment are prone to extend by continuity of along the natural air passages to the lungs, thus causing Consumption and Death. In this connection it should also be remembered that the air which enters the lungs of a catarrhal patient is every breath of it poisoned by inhalation from the foul secretions of the diseased surface.

DEAFNESS.

Noises in the head, like the escape of steam, the humming of insects, etc., are sometimes the first and only indications of approaching deafness. In other cases discharges from the ears are the only warning symptoms. In either case no time should be lost in seeking proper treatment ere it is too late.

TO THE DEAF.

The deaf are frequently hopeless because of the failure of the efforts of ignorant pretenders and practitioners, perhaps generally able, but in such cases utterly incompetent. The majority of these cases of deafness are caused by Catarrh of the Inner ear, and can be cured.

CONSUMPTION.

There are very few people who realize that one-tenth of the deaths occuring in the United States is from consumption. Statistics prove this. Men have the incipient stages of this disease years before they realize the danger. They neglect it while it is curable. Men or women who are tall, slim, small in bone or muscle, easy to take cold, subject to cough, etc., should come and have their lungs examined.

The doctors have the best instruments and appliances for a scientific exhaustive and decisive examination of a patient's condition, and can decide beyond all question whether or not a subject has a predisposition to lung difficulties. In its earlier stages it can almost invariably be cured, also an early examination and discovery of its existence would have saved many whom you have loved and lost.

For the benefit of those patients unable to call at the office, one of the doctors will visit any part of the city between 4 and 6 P.M. FREE OF CHARGE.

Cavities in the Lungs from Catarrhal Ulcerations.

For the purpose of more rapidly introducing the Respirometer and our English method of treatment, we will make the following offer:

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.

CLINTON CHAPTER.

Dr. Burchard is reshingling and building a small addition to his gunshop. Henry Starrett is doing the work.

We are sorry to learn that Mr. John Tyrrell has been quite sick for a few days. Dr. John Tuttle is attending him

On Sunday, March 1st, 1885, to Prof. and Mrs. Laflin, a daughter.

Last Friday afternoon Mrs. John Hause and Mrs. Sheldon Demuth were thrown from a cutter as they were attempting to turn around in front of Mrs. Calhoun's residence.—Neither of the ladies were seriously hurt.

Miss Lena Jones, Miss Ida Fullerton, Miss Laura Haggart, Miss May Hunt and Mrs. Charles Clark visited Mrs. Allen Bartlett, of Bridgewater, last Saturday and Sunday.

W.D. VanTuyle's school in the Dorr district closes this week with appropriate exercises.

John Hause went to Albion Saturday night for the purpose of seeing Mr. Chas. Brooks who is sick at that place with heart disease. Mr. Hause returned Monday and reported him a little better.

Mr. and Mrs. John Wood are living with their daughter, Mrs. Will Kimball.

F. D. Lancaster and wife drove over to Ann Arbor last Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. James Hause are expected home the last of this week.

John T. Clark went to Detroit last Monday.

Mrs. E. M. Conklin, of Tecumseh, visited her father, Mr. A. G. Burton, last Saturday.

Benjamin Woodward took his usual ride to Tecumseh last Sunday. Mr. Woodward seems to have become so attached to the scenery between Clinton and Tecumseh that a drive in any other direction would be out of the question.

Mrs. John Hause received news of the death of her sister, Mrs. Sheldon, last Tuesday morning, at Climax, Mich. Mrs. Hause left Clinton on the noon train for that place.

A load of ladies visited Mrs. Will Dorr last week Thursday.

Last Wednesday night P. C. Smith drove over to Ann Arbor after Ed. VanDeMark who had been taken sick there, and on their way home in attempting to pass a team coming from the opposite direction, they were overturned in the snow owing to the condition of the roads. The snow was drifted so high that it was impossible for teams to pass at that point. Mr. Vandemark was quite sick for several days but is out again.

RIDGEWAY RAMBLES.

More like spring for a few days.

Put it in your diary that we had 45 days of the very best of sleighing since New Year's, and fifteen during December.

Mr. Lafe Rapplye is suffering from a felon on the thumb of his right hand.

Rev. W. J. Clack went to Springville to assist in the quarterly meeting services held there, and Presiding Elder Campbell conducted them here on Sunday.

Remember that the social will be held at the home of Mrs. M. M. Florence this week Friday evening.

Mr. Martin Palmer closed a very successful four month term of school at Britton on Friday afternoon. The scholars presented him with a handsome autograph album.

Mr. Frank Temple left Monday afternoon for New Orleans to visit the exposition. He will visit several other places of interest on his return.

Dr. and Mrs. R. H. Nelson went to Legonier, Ind., Wednesday of last week to attend the funeral of his sister, Miss Allie Palmer. She has been a great sufferer from that slow but sure disease, consumption.

Miss Ida Schreder, of Raisin, called on friends here last week.

We are sorry to learn that our old and most respected citizen, Mr. Geo. Boss has a shingle out offering his place for sale, and will move to Holloway in the spring to live near Mr. Warren Holdredge.

Mr. Wm. Howe, of Jackson, stopped with Mr. G. W. Jackson over Friday night.

Miss Ethel Pennington spent Friday afternoon with Miss Ella Jackson.

Mr. Carlisle and Miss Maud Simons, of Raisin, visited Miss Ella Jackson and called on friends here Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Barneby, of Raisinville, are visiting relatives here at present.

Mr. Alden Wickham, who is studying for a physician at Ann Arbor, spent Sunday with friends here.

Mrs. C. A. Sharp of Tecumseh, spent a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Peter Sharp.

The attendance at the entertainment given by the Literary Society on Friday night, last week, was very large. The Hall was packed long before the time to begin arrived, and many that could not get in went away. The exercises passed off successfully and with credit to the society. Treasury was increased $25.70.

The Literary Society will hold its next meeting on Friday, March 13. There will be no regular program but in its place the Rev. J. M. Kerridge, of Clinton, will deliver a lecture, after which the officers for the ensuing term will be elected. The subject of Mr. Kerridge's lecture is "Martin Luther." We do not think it necessary to make any special mention of Mr. Kerridge's ability as a lecturer. All who have heard him pronounce him one of the best, his manner being free and easy and his language well chosen and instructive. Admission free. Let every body come out.

BRITTON BUDGET.

The few pleasant days of last week tempts us to sharpen pencil again and try to let your readers hear from this burg once more. We are ready to hail the coming mild season with some feeling of relief from the frigid condition we have been kept in for several months. Well, let's see what is going on around this energetic city?

Lewis Newcomer is a new comer, and is of the firm of Rauch & Newcomer.

Martin Palmer has just closed a very successful term of school.

Alonzo Bellows and family, of Sylvania, Ohio, who have been visiting his father's family here, returned to Sylvania Saturday.

Labe Babcock is now very busy taking in a very fine stock of stave bolts for the coming season's business.

Clem Holderman, of Roann, Ind., has been installed as night operator at the station, and agent Clark now wends his way homeward at night, wearing a smile that would become a candidate.

The roller skate craze hit us, but not very hard. The sound of wheels can be heard one or two nights a week at Exelby's hall, but not so loud as in days of yore.

There was an Inauguration party at Britton's Hall Wednesday eve.

When will we have a hotel? This is the one thing needed at Britton. Not a saloon, or a whiskey hole, but a first-class public house would be a good investment. No better opening in southern Michigan.

Babies: Score Andrew Cheever one. John Cooper, one.

Frank Deitz hauled up before Justice Bellows, last week, and fined for assault and battery on the nose of Chas. Miller.

Rich Wiggins has sold his house and lot to Geo. Hawks.

Dr. Hallock is having a good ride, and fulfils our prediction of last summer, that the right man had only to step into a good practice. Dr. Hallock is that man.

We have heard it said a number of times, that Britton had got its growth, but almost before the mercury gets above zero, we see evidences of building. The old "red school house," one of the landmarks, must go, to make room for a handsome two story brick school building; John Britton is making preparations to build a residence; John Exelby is also slightly affected with the building fever. Our village physician also, we are told, will soon put up a house, and Labe Babcock and Sid. Winnie—hold on, we came near giving something away.

Our band are working hard and will soon be ready to toot in public.

John, our shoemaker, has been confined to the house nearly all winter with rheumatism, but is able to be out again and we hope will soon be well enough to resume his bench, as we need his services.

We would like to have your Jumbo ic correspondent of the village up the creek, explain what he was driving at a few issues ago, in regard to Britonites saying that the Ridgeway church was going to fall down, building or congregation. If he will give us a clue we will hunt up the author of the report and if proven, will have him hung "omejitly."

Quite a number of our young folks attended the theatrical entertainment given by the literary society of the village u. c., and report a good time. Of course when the management get hold of a good song and dance man and a banjoist, they will be able to offer a better programme.

Sleighing is getting poor but farmers are rushing in the saw logs.

The Cornet Band is improving nicely and will hold a box social at Britton's Hall, Thursday evening, March 12th, and the band will furnish some music for the occasion. All are cordially invited, and the ladies requested to bring a box of eatables.

The supper at the Christian church last night for the purpose of paying Rev. Mr. Fowler for his services amounted to $14.25.

Charles Dubois' sick horse is improving slowly.

Richard Wiggins left for St. John's, Clinton county, to visit friends there.

Who will get the contract for building the new school house?

HOLLOWAY HASH.

Floyd Florence moved back to town last week and has again become a Hollowayite.

Nathan Spencer started for New Orleans last Monday.

Wm. Brainard returned from Buffalo on Monday, where he had been with hogs and sheep for Kelley & Kopka. He reports the poorest market of the season.

Al Macham is hauling lumber from Tecumseh to build over their house. We shall expect to see something pretty fine, as uncle John never does things by the halves.

A collection was taken up here last Saturday night to send one Mrs. Hoops (the widow of the man who died in the woods last fall) to her home in Ohio.

James Ash has bought the little Huber engine belonging to Al. Hoxsie and is now prepared to grind feed for the million. We should like to have been there when the popper blowed out to see Uncle Spall. He said he thought the thing had boosted.

Mr. Mize was taken sick while away and returned on Saturday last having cut his visit short.

Ellery Lyon, who has been visiting at W. J. Holdridge's, started for his home in Wisconsin, on Wednesday by way of Jackson and Mattawan, where he will visit friends. Miss Ettie Robins accompanied him as far as the latter place where her people reside.

ONSTED ODDS.

Mrs. Jibbs is visiting her son, T. J. Jibbs, near Adrian.

Missionary social at J. O. Maxwell's Thursday afternoon.

Mr. L. H. Sheeler is visiting friends in Tecumseh this week.

Mrs. Geo. Onsted has a daughter from the state of New York visiting at her home.

A. J. Monigan and Benj. Howard are limping around on account of making mistakes with their axes.

We made a mistake in our last week's items, in saying that Ira Fish had closed his school. He merely had a vacation of a week on account of the big snow storm.

Mr J. B. Daniels and Miss Alice Reed, daughter of Hon. M. Reed, were married at the residence of the pride's parents on Wednesday, Feb. 25. A large number of friends were present to witness the ceremony.—We unite with their many friends in wishing them a long and happy married life.

MACON MUSIC.

Rev. Mr. Dennis from Hillsdale is holding a series of revival meetings at the Baptist Church, which are very well attended considering the condition of the roads.

Dr. Morden's bright little boy has been very sick, but now, we are very happy to say, is much better.

Mr. Day, who sustained a severe injury sometime ago, is now well enough to be at work in the mill again.

Mr. Spencer Morgan recently met with quite a serious accident. The binding pole of a hay-load struck him in the eye and now he looks like—well he had a bandage over his eye.

Mr. Milan Sage keeps many men and teams busy at the mill.

We are happy to note that Mrs. Wm. Osgood, who has been having a very serious sickness, is slowly improving. We all hope ere the birds come back again she will be able to be out.

Mrs. Isaiah Hendershot is now able to sit up a little, but we fear it will be a long time before she can walk. She seems to have rather more than her share of afflictions.

BROOKLYN BALLAST.

Little has occurred that people wish told of, and the majority are either sick or hunting for excuses to be dissatisfied with the management of everything, from climate arrangements to rink and extra babies.

Smiles were absurdities weeks ago, for Lenten melancholy struck us in advance of calendered time. There is great unanimity in repenting of somebody else's sins; and cross as two sticks, defines our politics, religion and trade. Small favors look insignificant to those who want great, and none seem so thankful for little present good or as willing to share it as are the unfrozen remnant of a flock of English Sparrows. During January's cold, one little one came to the apple branch by a window, and a lady put a handfull of crumbs on a box for him. He tasted, and though growing dusk, he flew away and brought back eight more in a few moments. Since then, they have been regular boarders and at least fifty others have joined the club. They are blue-jays, chickadees, wood and snow birds, besides four little grey fellows, striped with black, about the size of wrens. Cold and hunger have made them peaceable and not even those detested sparrows quarrel one bit. On the contrary no one can watch their proceedings without believing they carry news of relief to their starving cousins. Two or three invariably keep watch in the apple-tree, and post up the rest about Miller's cat.

Dr. Palmer is dangerously sick with rheumatism too hear his heart, and as his heart is sensitive about suffering not his own, there is wide-spread anxiety for his recovery.

The Lyceum, organized by Prof. Norton, and Hillsdale lectures, draw fair audiences, but the amusements are mostly Lent.

G. W. MARSDEN,
Recorder Pro Tem.

VILLAGE OF TECUMSEH, Council Room, March 3, 1885.

At this adjourned session there were present Messrs. Root, Heesen, Adams, Bresie and Marsden.

Minutes of the proceedings of the annual meeting of the Board of Registration of the village of Tecumseh and the statement of the Inspectors of Election read and approved.

Council then proceeded to canvass the returns of the annual election of the Village of Tecumseh, Mich., holden in the Council Building in said village on Monday, March 2d., A. D. 1885 from the certified statement of the Judges of said election here as filed. After a full canvass, the Council declared the result of said election and that the following named persons had been duly elected to the offices written opposite their respective names:

Robert B. House, President.
Frederick B. Wood, Recorder.
Jas. A. Boyd, Treasurer.
William Bresie, Daniel T. Hall, and Enoch G. Cook, Trustees for two years.
Edgar A. Tribou and Jehiel Davidson, Assessors.

The Council then adjourned.

G. W. MARSDEN,
Recorder Pro. Tem.

TO MY CINCINNATI GIRL.

[illegible]

DAD'S JO.

How She Did "Something Big for Dad, So He Would Know.

Just noon of a warm, bright day in Block Island. On the broad, shady piazza of the great hotel there is an unbroken stillness. The noon lambers have left the tables and [illegible] breeze, the lace curtains at the long windows sway gently in and out, the parlors beyond are [illegible] and empty. Up at the beach the waves are complacently lapping the glittering sand, while the bright-colored [illegible] swinging in long lines behind the bathing-houses are the only reminder of the merriment which existed less than half an hour ago. One or two ox-teams are slowly creeping along the road, loaded with trailing seaweed of variegated hues; here and there is a group of bronzed fishermen mending their nets. These are the only signs of life.

Everybody is down on the pier. The "Block Island" is overdue more than twenty minutes, and the rickety boards creak and tremble as the anxious crowd press to the very edge, with eager eyes to catch the first glimpse of the steamer as she rounds Clay Head.

The excitement increases. The fishing-boats huddle closer together behind the breakwater, the band plays a spirited, soothing tune, [illegible] Band in the pavilion on the [illegible] up and yet—

"Here comes Jo!" some one shouts. "I depend on it," he don't be a soon now," says a grizzled, old fisherman standing close by, [illegible] sign. Nigh onto a year since she's seen that boat come in every day, and I never knew her to round the Head unless Jo was here."

All eyes turned toward the road. An antiquated specimen of a carriage is coming down the hill as rapidly as the lean and bony horse in front can drag it along.

It draws up on the wharf beside the more pretentious vehicles, a young girl jumps out, ties the horse, lays her arms lovingly around his neck a moment, then hurriedly pushes her way through the throng to the end of the pier.

A tall, angular girl, clad in a home-made dress of the coarsest material, neat and patched, yet very clean, with a rough straw hat tied down over her hair, which is long, straight and decidedly red. A girl with nothing pretty and attractive about her, but there is such a brave, pathetic look in her great blue eyes, that one involuntarily turns and looks at her again and again.

Swiftly and silently she passes along to the farther end of the pier and, lifting one hand to shield her eyes from the sunlight, gazes steadily at the distant horizon.

"I know he will come to-day," she says, seemingly unconscious that she is speaking aloud. "Just a year ago to-day he went over there, Dad did. He went to get some fixin's for me, and he promised to come back soon, but it has been so long. Oh! he will surely come to-day, won't he?" she asks, turning to a weather-beaten old sailor who is gazing at her with just a suspicion of moisture in his eyes.

"Aye, lass, that he will," he answers. "I've got extras for dinner to-day," she goes on, brightening up, "'cause he'll have a mighty appetite after being at them furrin' places so long, and I've made a cushion for his chair that sets by the window. I brushed up the team, too, and old Bess seemed to know he was coming, for she brought me over in no time."

"Quite likely he'll come to-day," says the old skipper, "and he'll bring you so many smart things that I'm afeared you won't be Jo any longer."

"Yes, I will," replied the girl. "I'll always be Jo to Dad anyway. Dear, old Dad. He's told me many a time how he picked me up out of the water that dreadful night, and when no one seemed to want me, he took me home with him, me, a helpless baby, with nothing in the world but a ring on my finger with 'Jo' scratched on it. Oh, I wish I could do something big for him, so he would know."

"Well, cheer up, lass; he's waiting for some good reason. P'raps he can't find what he wants for you just yet."

"Oh, I know now, that's it. He was going to get me a blue gown with a big collar on it and a great gold star in each corner, but I begged him to try and get a white one; white is so pretty like, and I never had a white dress in all my life," glancing ruefully down at the homespun cotton. "May like he had to go and go, 'fore he could get it."

For a few minutes she gazed earnestly over the water. Is it smoke that long, thin line of gray? Yes, just around the headland something white is coming into view. A few more minutes and the great steamer, gaily bedecked with flags and pennants, burst into sight. Slowly, too slowly for Jo, the boat plows along through the blue water, until all dripping with foam and sparkling in the sunshine, the huge wheels cease revolving and the "Block Island" is in at last. The ropes are fastened, the plank is thrown out and the passengers come ashore.

Into every face Jo peers eagerly. He might have changed in a year so very much, that she must watch closely. One by one they come; friends are greeting friends, they are all off now, and—where is Dad?

With a despairing cry she bounds down the plank and searches for him in the crowd.

[illegible] "What do [illegible]

[illegible]

It's coming. A sullen and fearful roar is its forerunner. The sea has awakened to a roaring, soaring rushes inland to be dashed against the rocks. Up at the great hotel the large drops of rain dash against the windows, and the guests gathered together in the splendid parlor, shudder and tremble at every [illegible] down on the beach the angry surf is roaring in mountains high, and the fishermen are anxiously peering out upon the dark waves as if fearful of what such a storm might accomplish.

Suddenly there comes a vivid dash, a terrific, reverberating roll, and in the awful silence that follows, the group of waiting men gaze with a mirror in each other's faces. Then comes another flash, closer by and then the outer edge of the storm is upon them. Now we see a ship is going to pieces. There comes the sound of a signal gun once, twice. All is confusion now. The life-boat is manned, pushed out and beaten back. Above the angry shrieking of the wind can be heard the shouts of those on the beach, the faint, despairing cries of those on the doomed vessel, and the sobs of the women who are endeavoring to keep back their loved ones from seeking death in those terrible waters.

And it is death. Six stalwart forms, so full of life only a few moments before, are stiffening on the damp sand. It is of no use, no boat can live in such a storm, and hundreds of lives must perish while they stand there unable and powerless to help.

The storm redoubles its fury. One sharp wail of agonizing and a cry goes up from the terrified women. A figure can be seen near one of the dismantled masts, a figure with gray hair and beard flowing in the wind.

It is Jo's Dad.

They must try again. They can not let him die when she expects to see him so soon. Five pairs of hands are ready. Can they have one more? In another moment it will be too late.

But see! Some one is hurriedly advancing toward them through the darkness and meets a slender figure, wrapped in a shawl, with pale face, and eyes that burn like coals in the blackness.

It is Jo.

She springs into the life-boat beside them. Her presence nerves them on, and they push off into the seething water.

They have come back, and have laid her unconscious on the damp sand. Some beam had struck her, and she had not spoken since. The blue eyes are closed, but there is a smile on the pallid white face, and the small hand is firmly clasped in the grasp of a trembling old man, who is stooping over her, and smoothing back the thick masses of hair from her pale forehead.

A hush falls upon them all. Tenderly they take her up and, with her hand still clasped in his, sadly wind their way to the little cottage where she had waited for him so long.

It all happened only last night. The storm had gone down soon after they had carried her home, and the sun is shining brightly, lovingly, as though there is no sorrow, and never a storm or wreck.

They had laid her on the little white bed in her chamber, from which the harbor could be plainly seen, and, save for one or two kind neighbors, had gone away and left them together, she, lying so still, with closed eyes—he, bending over her, silent and unmindful of the presence of others.

Just before noon she slowly opens her eyes and gazes at him in silence. Then, with a little sigh, she says, feebly: "I knew you'd come, Dad; I knew you'd come. 'Twas a hard voyage you had, Dad, and a pretty rough landing; but you'd don't mind it, 'cause your little gal was there."

She is silent for a few moments, and then raising her head, she asks:

"The white dress? You didn't forget it? The white dress with the gold stars on the corners that you were going to get for your little gal?"

"Oh, Jo!" The tears are streaming down the old man's cheeks. "I bought the purtiest one for ye; all soft and white, with stars on it, and a great long sash; but I—lost—it—in the wreck, Jo!"

"And a great, long sash." This is very slowly. "Oh, Dad, if I only could see it. But don't cry, I guess I won't want it; I'm going to leave you a little while, just a little while. I'm going up there where they have lots and lots of white dresses, all shining and pretty, and soon you'll come, too, won't you, Dad? I'll watch for you just as I did here, and there won't be any storms—Dad—the vessel will sail—right in on the blue water—an' I'll be looking for you. I'll have 'em give me—a dress—with a big, shining star on it—an' you'll know me sure—I knew you'd come."

One last feeble pressure of his hand, one little smile, and Jo waits and watches no more on earth.

A strange calm falls upon the old man. They can not persuade him to leave her for an instant. He is utterly deaf to their entreaties, and, kneeling by the bed, he presses from time to time her ice cold hand to his lips. All through the long night he keeps his silent watch, and when another morning breaks they find him still there.

Mechanically he watches them fashion for the last resting-place in pure, white garments that a kind-hearted neighbor has brought unasked, he [illegible] place a few snowy buds in [illegible] hands.

[illegible] door opens softly a [illegible] and [illegible] face with [illegible]

[illegible] "Poor [illegible] like [illegible]

[illegible] Jo! I know it. Some-[illegible] Dear little girl, [illegible] I'm coming! [illegible] heard [illegible] coffin. [illegible] Some one comes in presently and finds [illegible] He is quite dead.

They bury them side by side, in one grave, close by the murmuring sea; and at the head they place a simple, white wooden shaft, with just these two words roughly inscribed upon it—"Dad's Jo."—Bob Bree, in the Argo Carrier.

A DROLL SUIT.

A Singular Breach-of-Promise Case — A Frisky Old Gentleman.

Surely the drollest brea ch-of-promise case ever brought into court is one now pending at Williamsport, Pa. A tough old veteran of eighty became enamored of a buxom beauty of twenty-eight, of the name of Kentner, and promised to marry her. Wind of the affair reaching the son of the old man and the parents of Miss Kentner, they put their heads together and stopped the foolish business. By way of a salve to the lady's feelings she got $3,000 damages. But the octogenarian met his charmer again, memory did bring back the feeling, and they agreed to elope. The lady, like Miss Melnotte in the novel, kept her word and went to Detroit, where her aged lover was to meet her. But he, like Sir Felix, was not on hand. Whether he had the same reasons for not keeping his engagement as that worthless baronet, or whether his sons kept too close a watch on him, we are not informed. We are only told that the lady returned home from Detroit "crazed with grief." Big grief must have changed into the historic fury of the woman scorned when she learned that during her absence, while she was crying "He cometh not!" in her hotel at Detroit, the wretched old man had actually gone off and married another woman.

Something must be done with these old men. Here is an old man of eighty years of age who agrees to elope with one girl and while her back is turned goes off and marries another. Talk of the wildness of youth! It is high time the clergy began a course of lectures to old men on the necessity of moderating their passions. Thomas Hood had no notion of these times when he wrote: "When he is forsaken, withered and shaken, what can an old man do but die?" Do? Why, if he had lived in these times he would have got engaged to a young girl and jilted her. That is better fun than dying. We rather suspect that Willis is somewhat responsible for the astonishing tendency of the modern race of old men to throw their caps over the mill top. He meant well probably when he wrote:

"It stirs the blood in an old man's heart
And makes his pulses fly,
To catch the thrill of a happy voice
And the light of a pleasant eye."

But there are old men nowadays who, when their blood gets stirred and their pulses fly, swoop down on women folk like an Assyrian on the fold and ravage whole city folds. The thing makes one feel like "Benedick": "Hath not the world one man but he will wear his age with assumption? Shall I never see a bachelor of three-score again?"—San Francisco Chronicle.

The Value of Lemons.

The value of lemons is thoroughly appreciated in the South, and now that lemons and oranges from Florida are as common and almost as cheap as apples, their use can not be too much insisted upon. A leading physician recommends that the way to get the better of the bilious system without blue pills or quinine is to take the juice of one, two or three lemons, as appetite craves, in as much cold water as makes it pleasant to drink without sugar, before going to bed. In the morning on rising, at least half an hour before breakfast, take the juice of one lemon in a goblet of water. This will clear the system of humor and bile with efficiency without any of the weakening effect of calomel or Congress water. People should not irritate the stomach by eating lemons clear, the powerful acid of the juice, which is always most corrosive, invariably produces inflammation, after awhile, but properly diluted so that it does its medical work without harm, and when the stomach is clear of food has abundant opportunity to work over the system thoroughly.—Chicago Tribune.

—It is found that canvas can be made as impervious to moisture as leather by steeping it in a decoction of one pound of oak bark with fourteen pounds of boiling water. This quantity is sufficient for eight yards of stuff. The fabric has to soak twenty-four hours, when it is taken out, passed through running water, and hung up to dry. The flax and hemp fibres, in absorbing the tannin, are better fitted to resist wear.—N. Y. Sun.

—A pearl weighing ninety-three karats, the largest known, and valued at $17,000, was found by an Indian diver at Mulege, Lower California, recently, and sold by him for sixty dollars to a person, who shipped it to London.

COUNTRY SCHOOLS.

The Thing Needed to Make Them Entirely What They Should Be.

The National Bureau of Education has just issued a very interesting treatise upon rural schools, tracing their progress in the past and means of improvement in the future. It gives a great stress upon the fact that the rural schools should be made as efficient as possible. They furnish instruction for more than half the school population, and the foundation of life is laid in them. The country school is a fundamental one.

A census compiled of statistics of each several state, gives a fair average from the country schools, and presents a sorry picture. Poor teachers, poor pay, poor school houses, poor apparatus, poor attendance, poor results, no systematic method of study, no classes or progress in regular and orderly fashion, teachers changing every year, taken up with anything but teaching, good factory and trade schools, wise, comfortable, firm, [illegible] and [illegible] many such there are, and these works speak for them. But a school may be targeted in this respect one term and the next pass into the charge of a callow youth, a crude girl or a man or a woman of inferior mind and harsh, unsympathetic nature, who, for a consideration, makes worse confusion of the affairs of the unfortunate pupils. Of superior schools there is little, of inspection, no, and of standards of scholarship and teaching, a mere nothing. Of those who teach, the best of them are none but those the teacher has will enough to supply.

This picture, while it may be drawn too harshly to correctly represent exceptional instances, is certainly truthful in the main. Many of the best and greatest minds in this country started their reputation upon which their fame is founded in the country school, the little red school-house" dear to the heart and celebrated in song and speech; but that the possibilities of the rural school are as explicable as a rule to great improvement is an undoubted fact. One great drawback to the greatest success of the rural schools as educational factors is that the best teachers have not been obtainable. In 1881, in Rhode Island, thirteen per cent. of the teachers had only a common-school education. In Georgia out of 6,128 teachers, 5,000 were possessed of only a limited education. In all the States it has been difficult to find candidates for teachers who can easily pass the moderate grade required. In Michigan, in 1881, the State Superintendent reported that twenty-six per cent. of the applicants failed in the lower grade or first trial, and that twenty-one per cent. were unable to stand the test of the final trial or examination. It is easy to see that there must be better teachers before we can have better schools.

The normal schools are great helps in improving the standard of school teachers, but the normal school system is now far from complete. There are 293,294 school teachers in the United States. Of course a large proportion of these are employed in ungraded schools. There are 98 normal schools in the country, with an attendance of 30,000. As thirty per cent. of the teachers are changed annually, it is easy to see that the normal schools afford but a small part of the provision required for training teachers. No doubt the small salaries usually paid the teachers of country schools has a great effect in lowering the standard of the teachers obtainable. Special training is needed. The teacher who has a normal school education can not be secured for the country schools, because his talent is better paid elsewhere. To obtain better teachers better salaries must be paid, and there must be more schools for the training of teachers. Communities should take a livelier interest in their schools, and aid their teachers by all legitimate means in their power. It is only by united action that the best success can be obtained, and country and city and county and State should work together in harmony, with the same high objects in view. Teachers should not be the creation of accident nor made by the force of circumstances. They should be especially fitted for the great work of education. Though the common schools are among the proudest boasts of the country, yet they may be said to be almost in their infancy as regards their possibilities. Teaching is a profession in itself, and requires aptitude and preparation as much as any other.

There is hardly anything in which time and money can be more profitably spent than in improving the country schools, in teaching and the methods of study, and it is to be hoped that far more attention will be paid to the subject than is now the case.—Burlington Hawk-eye.

THE LAW OF FINDING.

Circumstances Under Which the Article Belongs to the Finder.

The law of finding, says a writer, is this: The finder has a clear title against the world, except the owner. The proprietor of a coach, or a railroad car, or of a shop has no right to demand the property or premises. Such proprietors may make regulations in regard to lost property which will bind their employes, but they cannot bind the public. The law of finding was declared by the King's Bench one hundred years ago, in a case in which the facts were these:

A person found a wallet containing a sum of money on a shop floor. He handed the wallet and contents to the shop-keeper to be returned to the owner. After three years, during which the owner did not call for his property, the finder demanded the wallet and the money from the shop-keeper. The latter refused to deliver them on the ground that they were found on his premises. The former then sued the shop-keeper, and it was held as above set forth, that, against all the world but the owner, the title of the finder is perfect. And the finder has been held to stand in the place of the owner, so that he was permitted to prevail in an action against a person who found an article which the plaintiff had originally found, but subsequently lost. The police have no special rights in regard to articles lost unless those rights are conferred by statute. Receivers of articles found are trustees for the owner or finder. They have no power in the absence of special statute to keep an article against the finder, any more than a finder has to retain an article against the owner.—Indianapolis Journal.

AYER'S
Cherry Pectoral.

[illegible]

A Terrible Cough Cured.

[illegible] Lynn, Prepared by DR. J. C. AYER.

Rockingham, Vt., July 15, 1882.

Croup—A Mother's Tribute.

"While in the country last summer my little boy, three years old, was taken with croup. It seemed as if he would die [illegible] fatal. One of the family suggested the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, a bottle of which was always kept in the house. This was given, and relief followed. A dose or two gave delight in less than half an hour. The little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the antidote for croup had saved my darling's life. Can you wonder at our gratitude? Sincerely yours,

MRS. EMMA GEDNEY."

159 West 125th St., New York, May 16, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL in my family for several years, and do not hesitate to pronounce it the best medicine for coughs and colds we have ever tried. A. H. CRANE."

Lake Crystal, Minn., March 13, 1882.

"I suffered for eight years from Bronchitis, and after trying many remedies with no success, I was cured by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. JOSEPH WALDEN."

Dynamo, Mass., April 5, 1882.

"I cannot say enough in praise of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, believing as I do that it has saved my life. I should long since have died but for its use. I should be [illegible] from lung troubles. E. BRAGDON."

Palestine, Texas, April 22, 1882.

No case of an affection of the throat or lungs exists which cannot be greatly relieved by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and it will always cure when the disease is not already beyond the control of medicine.

OINTMENT.
The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.
It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.
The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.
WHAT IT CURES.
All Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Burns, Sore Throat, Lameness, Rheumatism, Piles, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Bronchitis, Croup, Rheum, Chilblains, Affection of the Spine, Dyspepsia, Nervous Irritation, and all disorders incident with Inflammation.
It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame, every bone, muscle, vein, nerve and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it cures beauty with internal as well as external diseases.
Over 40 Years,
This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should be perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

THE PALLIUM.

History of the Garment Which is Conferred on Catholic Archbishops.

The pallium is a narrow band of wool encircling the shoulders, with pendants in front and behind, and is worn over the chasuble. It is evidently a remnant or a souvenir of an ampler garment. As the sacerdotal stole merely represents a border of an ancient robe of the same name, which enveloped the entire person—all but the embroidered parts being now cast aside—so it is with the pallium.

Various opinions have been held as to its origin; some ascribe it to the Jewish ephod, to the Roman toga, and others to the ordinary mantle of same name worn by Romans. By church authorities it is claimed that St. Paul, the first hermit, near the end of his days receiving a visit from St. Anthony, begged him to procure for him the robe of the great Athanasias that he might be buried in it. On St. Anthony's return with the cloak, he found Paul already dead, and, executing the pious request, took for himself Paul's tunic of palm leaves, and ever afterwards wore it on the high festivals of Easter and Pentecost. It is also narrated that St. Ignatius, patriarch of Constantinople, wore the cloak of St. James the Apostle. Liberatus, the deacon in the sixth century, states that it is the custom at Alexandria for him who succeeds a deceased bishop to keep vigil by the corpse of the departed, and having buried him to take the pallium of St. Mark and place it on his own neck, after which he is held to lawfully occupy his place. According to this writer each succeeding patriarch of Alexandria assumed the pallium of St. Mark and was considered as legitimately inducted into office.

A similar custom prevailed in the Church at Constantinople. These facts, it is argued, establish an antecedent probability that the successor of St. Peter assumed also as the insignia of his office the pallium of St. Peter, and in confirmation of the fact of the early Popes wearing the pallium the protraits of the Popes in the Basilica of St. Paul at Rome, in which the mosaic protraits of the Pope back to St. Leo I, in the year 440, these early Pontiffs are uniformly clothed in the white tunic and while woolen pallium always attributed to St. Peter.

"There is also the old Mosaic of the "Scala Santa," near St. John Lateran's, in which St. Peter is twice represented, first clad in the white pallium, as receiving the keys of the Kingdom, and next handing the pallium to his successor, Pope Leo III.

Each succeeding Pontiff is invested with this badge of sovereign authority, not at the Cathedral of Rome, but at the sepulchre of the Prince of the Apostles.

These Pontiffs conceded this emblem of power and jurisdiction to other bishops in testimony of the unity of the faith and of hierarchial communion From the year 336 the custom of conferring the pallium has extended down to the present era. First to the Bishop of Ostia, then by the Roman Pontiffs to their legates in Gaul, Spain, Germany, Greece, Great Britain and other countries, and thus it passed into a recognized law as far back as 900 years ago.—N. O. Times-Democrat.

DRAFTS ON THE FUTURE.

How the Chinaman Makes Provisions for His Comfort After He Is Dead.

A man in China endowed with much forethought can make some provision for his own future comfort. The priests have considerately organized a bank for the spirit world. To this the provident may remit large sums during their lifetime, and can draw on the bank as soon as they reach the dark country. The priests periodically announce their intention of remitting money on a certain day, and invite all who have any to deposit to bring it. All who feel doubtful of the generosity of their next heirs accordingly come and buy from the priests as much as they can afford of the tinfoil paper money, which is current among the spirits. It is an excellent investment, as for a handful of brass cash, altogether worth about one penny, they will receive sycee, i. e., the boat-shaped blocks of silvery looking tinfoil, bearing a spiritual value of about $30. Paper houses, furniture and clothes may in like manner be purchased and stored beforehand in the happy security that neither moth nor rust shall corrupt them, neither shall thieves break through and steal. When the depositor (probably a poor coolie or an aged beggar) has invested his little savings in this precious rubbish in the ecclesiastical bazar he delivers it to a priest, together with a sum of real money as commission. For this the priest gives a written receipt. All this din is thrown into a large boat. It is a framework of reeds with bamboo mast, and its sails and planking are of paper. When all the depositors have made their payments, the priests walk several times round the boat, chanting some incantation, then simultaneously set fire to both ends, and the paper fabric vanishes in a flash of flame. The priests bid the depositors keep their certificates with all care, and give them to some trustworthy person to burn after their decease, whereupon the said certificates will reach them safely in the dark world, and they can draw the money as required. All this seems to be implicitly believed by a whole great nation, who in all other respects are probably the most astute business race in the world. Such is the strange power of a groveling superstition.—British Quarterly Review.

—The average cost of a marriage license in this country is one dollar and twenty cents. Colorado, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Rhode Island and Wisconsin charge nothing. New Jersey twelve cents, Massachusetts, Maine, Vermont and Connecticut fifty cents, and so on up to Maryland, the highest of the lot, one dollar and fifty cents.

—The Lutheran ministers of Norway were recently assembled in annual convention at Christiania, three hundred pastors being present. They passed resolutions in favor of the introduction of a synodical organization in the place of the hierarchial system.

How They Meet and Part.

A gentleman lately took down verbatim the conversation of two fashionable ladies during a morning call—viz: "How do you do, dear?" "Pretty well, thank you." (They kiss.) "How have you been this age?" Pretty well. How have you been?" "Very well, thank you." "Pleasant to day." "Yes, very bright, but had a shower yesterday." "All your family quite well?" "Quite well, thanks. How is yours?" "Oh, very well thank you. "Have you seen Mary B. lately?" "No, but I have seen Susan C." "You don't say so! is she quite well?" "Yes, very well, I believe." (Rising.) "Must you go?" "Yes, indeed; I have seven calls to make." "Do call again soon." "Thank you; but you don't come near me once in age." "Oh, you shouldn't say so, dear; I'm sure I'm very good." "Good bye." "Good bye, dear."—Exchange.

"Gale Forest gives the following pat reply to the above:

"Yes! and after writing that the gentleman discovered the strain upon his mental faculties had been so severe, he went out to "bruce up." Just as he reached his destination, met a friend from out of town, when the following conversation was overheard and taken down by the writer, as an example for women, of men's "wit and wisdom." "Hellow! old fellow, how are you?" (They shake.) "First rate, how are you?" "Tip-top!" "When dy'e get in?" "Just now." "Have something?" significantly.) "Well—yes, don't care-if-do." (They step into a saloon, after cautiously looking around, to make sure no outsiders are about, to see they are breaking their pledge—pause—they emerge, innocently wiping their mouths, before putting into them their lighted cigars, and being primed," resumed:) "How's yer folks?" "All well; how's yours?" "All flourishing now; youngest boy had diphtheria, but all right now." "Crops good up your way?" "Well, yes, pretty fair." How do politics look?" "Bad—very bad—all democrats up our way; big democratic majority. (Takes out his watch.) "Thunder! ten minutes to 12.—must be off—got to see a man at 12." "Can't you come up to the house and take dinner?" "No, guess not to-day—got several pressing business engagements. Good bye." "Good bye." They again wring hards, and then rush away from each other as if fearing they might have to stand another treat.

Affections of the throat are liable to strike persons at any time of the year, but especially at this season is extra caution necessary in guarding against diseases of this character. Mishler's Herb Bitters is the soverign remedy for all bronchial affections. A Harshbergy, of Cheeseboro and Harshbergy, Prairie City, Ill., writes: "Mrs Harshbergy suffered from bronchitis, and has used three bottles of Mishler's Herb Bitters with the most desirable results. Send me one dozen bottles."

Good Advice for Everybody.

1. Never, under any circumstances assume a responsibility that you can avoid consistently with your duty to yourself and others.

2. Base all your actions upon a principle of right; preserve your integrity of character, and in doing this never reckon on the cost.

3. Remember that self-interest is much more likely to warp your judgment than all other circumstances combined; therefore look well to your duty when your interest is concerned.

4. Never make money at the expense of your reputation.

5. Be neither lavish, or niggardly. Of the two, avoid the latter. A mean man is universally despised, but public favor is a stepping stone to preferment, therefore generous feelings should be cultivated.

6. Say but little; think much and do more.

7. Let your expenses be such as to leave a balance in your pocket. Ready money is a friend in need.

8. Avoid borrowing and lending.

9. Wine drinking and cigar smoking are bad habits; they impair the health and pocket, and lead to a waste of time.

10. Never relate your misfortunes, and never grieve over what you cannot prevent.

11. Cultivate promptness in deciding upon matters that come before you; there are few objects more disagreeable than an undecided, vacillating man. Consider thoughtfully, but decide promptly.

12. Never break a business engagement of any kind, if it be possible to meet it. Let nothing cause you to become careless of business etiquette, integrity and promptitude.

13. Let truth and an unwavering faith in God underlie all your motives and actions.

Is your hair turning gray and gradually falling out? Hall's Hair Renewer will restore it to its original color, and stimulate the follichies to produce a new and luxuriant growth. It also cleanses the scalp, eradicates dandruff, and is a most agreeable and harmless dressing.

Pluck vs. Luck.

In an address delivered before the students of the Spencerian business college, Washington, D. C., June 29, 1869, among other things, Gen. James A. Garfield said:

"Now, young gentlemen, let me address you touching your success in life; and I hope the very brevity of my remarks will increase the chance of their making a lodgment in your minds. Let me beg you in the outset of your career, to dismiss from your minds all ideas of succeeding by luck. There is no more silly thought among young people than the foolish one that by-and-by something will turn up by which they will suddenly achieve fame or fortune. No, young gentlemen, things don't turn up in this world unless somebody turns them up. Inertia is one of the indispensable laws of matter, and things lie flat where they are until by some intelligent spirit (for nothing but spirit makes motion in this world) they are endowed with activity and life. Do not dream that some good luck is going to happen to you and give you a fortune. Luck is an ignis fatuus—you may follow it to ruin, but not to success. The great Napoleon, who believed in his destiny, followed it until he saw his star go down in blackest night, when the Old Guard perished around him, and Waterloo was lost. A pound of pluck is worth a ton of luck.

Young men talk of trusting to the spur of the occasion. That trust is vain. Occasions cannot make spurs, young gentlemen. If you expect to wear spurs you must win them. If you wish to use them you must buckle them to your own heels before you go into the fight. The occasion you may achieve is not worth the having unless you fight for it. Whatever you win in life you must conquer by your own efforts, and then it is yours—a part of your self."

Agreeable to Everybody.

Col. Robert G. King, for ten years Deputy Collector Internal Revenue, Baltimore, Maryland, writes: I endorse the Red Star Cough Cure. I have used it in my family for a violent cough and found it excellent. Its use was entirely free from the depressing effects of other cough remedies It can be readily taken, and agrees with and benefits everybody suffering from throat and lung troubles. The relief is permanet and there is no reaction.

The Secret of Wealth.

Broken down invalids do you wish to gain flesh, to acquire an appetite, to enjoy a regular habit of body, to obtain refreshing sleep, to feel and know that every fiber and tissue of your system is being braced up and renovated. If so commence at once a course of Golden Seal Bitters. In one week you will be convalescent. In a month you will be well. Don't despair because you have a weak constitution. Fortify the body against disease by purifying all the fluids with Golden Seal Bitters. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus forearmed. The liver, the stomach, the bowels, the kidneys, are rendered disease proof by this great invigorant. Ruinous bills for medical attendance may be avoided by counteracting the first symptoms of sickness with these Bitters. They are recommended from friend to friend, and the sale increases daily. We warrant a cure. They are a positive cure also for all female complaints. In these diseases they have no equal. Take no others. Sold by Baker & Hall and C. A. Wright & Co.

The three outlets of disease are the bowels, the skin and the kidneys. Regulate their action with the best purifying tonic, Burdock Blood Bitters.

After the Sunday Dinner.

After the Sunday dinner, what? Well it all depends. A person whose brain is wearied with intellectual work during the week, or whose nervous system is exposed to the strain of business or professional life, ought to sleep within an hour or so after his Sunday dinner, if he can. It is surprising how much like a seven-day clock the brain will work if the habit of a Sunday nap be once formed. Nature will take advantage of it as regularly and gratefully as she does of the nightly sleep, and do her best to make up lost time. People on the other hand, whose work of toil is chiefly physical, may well give their mind activity while their bodies are resting. Two sermons and three or four hours of solid reading are a real rest to some on Sunday, while to others such a course amounts to a positive Sabbath breaking. Sunday is a day of rest, not a day of work, religious or otherwise. It is a day of repose, not for exhaustion. By what the dogmatists on one side and the liberal liberals on the other are apt to overlook is the fact that all men do not rest alike any more than they labor alike, and what may help one may kill another.

Some physicians assert that a hearty meal at midday is injurious to the health. A five or six o'clock dinner, eaten slowly with the members of his own family, is far healthier. A heavy midday meal unfits professional men for carrying on any business in the afternoon, as it makes them heavy and sleepy, for nature requires some kind of repose to aid digestion. Our popular system of eating is wrong. The majority of persons thrust three heavy meals into about ten hours, and leave the body without a fresh supply of food for the remaining fourteen hours of the day and night. Two good meals, morning and evening, would be the proper plan, with perhaps a light lunch or cracker at about one o'clock in the day. This would allow both of the heavy meals an opportunity to digest before the next was taken. As to a heavy midday meal for men who have to tear around as if the next moment were to be their last, it is perfectly ridiculous, as the food, instead of digesting and forming blood, muscle and brain, acts as a block to those forces of nature—choking up a sewer, as it were. It is best to eat lightly in the middle of the day.

I have been a sufferer two years from catarrh or cold in the head, having distressing pain over my eyes. Gradually the disease worked down upon my lungs, my left ear was almost deaf, my voice was failing me. I procured one bottle of Ely's Cream Balm and within five days my hearing was restored, the pain ceased over my eyes, and now I am enjoying good health. I recommended it to some of my friends. One of them sent for a bottle. He told me that half of it cured him. My advice is to those suffering with catarrh or cold in the dead not to delay but try Ely's Cream Balm, as it is a postive cure.—John H. Vansant, Sandy Hook, Elliott Co., Ky.

PURE BLOOD IS THE ABSOLUTE NECESSITY OF HEALTH.

THE marvellous results of Hood's Sarsaparilla upon all humors and low conditions of the blood as proven by the cures effected, prove it the best BLOOD MEDICINE. Such has been the success of this article at home that nearly every family in whole neighborhoods have been taking it at the same time; it eradicates scrofula, vitalizes and enriches the blood, thereby restoring and invigorating the whole system. Hood's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla cures dyspepsia. Hood's Sarsaparilla cures biliousness. A peculiar point in Hood's Sarsaparilla is that it builds up and strengthens the system, while it eradicates disease, and as nature's great assistant proves itself invaluable as a protection from diseases that originate in changes of the seasons, of climate and of life.

ESTATE OF HENRY BURNETT.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee—s.s

At a session of the Probate Court for the county of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office in the city of Adrian, on Friday, the 6th day of February in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-five.

Present, Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Henry Burnett, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of William Q. Burnett, a brother of said deceased, praying that administration of the estate of said deceased may be granted to Charles Burridge or some other suitable person.

Thereupon it is ordered, That Monday, the 9th day of March next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Tecumseh Herald, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

TECUMSEH, MICH., MAR. 5, 1885.

DEATH OF EDWIN B. WOOD.

The old residents of Tecumseh are rapidly passing away. One by one they are falling at the wayside, and the old familiar faces which we have known so many years are gone. Mr. Wood had lived in Tecumseh thirty six years. He had grown with the growth of the village and strengthened with its strength; he had filled many positions of trust and honor among us; he had built up a lucrative practice, the impress of his manhood had been stamped upon many of our public undertakings; he had established a reputation for honest dealing, official and business integrity which time cannot dim; he had become known as one of our most prominent and estimable citizens.

He was not blessed with a rugged physical constitution, but owing to his strictly temperate habits his health was generally good and he was able to perform an immense amount of labor. His final illness fell upon him gradually, and although his friends felt some apprehensions over his condition it was only within a few weeks that he was regarded as dangerously ill. During the severe weather of the last month he grew rapidly worse. On Saturday the 21st ult. he became convinced that his demise was near at hand, and gave final instructions in regard to his business and family affairs. His son Fred had for some time been matrimonially engaged to Miss Louise Hinley, and his daughter Mary was betrothed to Mr. Ed. C. Baird. On Sunday the 22d, Mr. Wood requested that the marriages might be solemnized before he died. It was deemed best to grant his dying request. At 4 o'clock that afternoon the parties stood before his death bed, assumed the marriage vow, and received their father's benediction. It was a most affecting scene. The son and daughter assumed the most important of life's responsibilities, while the father's light was flickering in its socket. From that time Mr. Wood rapidly failed until Thursday morning at five o'clock, when his spirit left its tenement of clay and ascended to the God who gave it.

The funeral obsequies were conducted at the Presbyterian church last Sunday at the usual hour of morning service. A special train came from Adrian carrying the members of the bar and many other citizens, the bar having previously voted to attend the services in a body. The Masonic Lodge of Tecumseh also attended, acting as an escort. The attendance was larger than the accommodations of the church. Many people living miles away came over almost impassable roads to be present at the last sad rites. The services were most impressive. The eloquent sermon by the pastor and the singing by the choir struck a responsive chord in all hearts. The floral offerings were costly and elegant in design—a beautiful crown surmounted by a cross, a sheaf of wheat with a sickle in a stubble field, the gift of the business men of the village; a large cross from his Bible class as a tribute of love; a plaque of roses and callas from Mr. and Mrs. L. Lilley, Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Tribou and Gen. Pittman's family, of Detroit; a white star from Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Tribou and Jas. H. Tribou; a lovely anchor of callas and white flowers from Mrs. H. S. Cheever of Ann Arbor; a pillow with the word "father" in Forget me nots, from the family. The cortege was marshaled by Lucius Lilley Esq. and these personal friends of the deceased officiated as bearers: Webster Anderson, Alfred James, David McNair, Albert L. Brewer, P. S. McKinnon and Chas. Burridge. At the close of the services the spectators were afforded an opportunity to view the remains, after which the procession bore the lifeless body to its final resting place in our beautiful evergreen cemetery.

In place of a formal obituary notice we print the major portion of the Rev. W. H. Babbitt's discourse, and the memorial adopted by the bar. These contain a biographical sketch of the life of the deceased and befitting words of eulogy. The kind words spoken of him are not overdrawn. Those who knew him best, were his warmest and truest friends. In the language of an old citizen, "Mr. Wood's death is a public calamity." His family is deprived of a kind husband and father, but the community is bereft of a noble man and an honored citizen and we grieve with them over our mutual loss.

He was frequently elevated to positions of trust by the suffrages of his townsmen. His services upon the School Board for several years were cheerfully rendered and did much to promote the prosperity of the schools. When the tap of the drum called the reserves to arms and the insurrection impended during the last year of the war, Mr. Wood sprang into the breach, and by his stirring labor Tecumseh's quota was forthcoming and our township was relieved from the draft. In every position to which his fellow citizens called him he filled the full measure of their expectations. He was faithful and never found wanting.

I trust the public will pardon me if I add a few eulogistic words of a personal character. Mr. Wood was almost an elder brother to me. He became a member of my father's family during my boyhood. His winning disposition and kindness of heart soon endeared him to us all. Many a time have I sat upon his knee, felt the warm impress of his cheek, the throb of his brotherly heart, and the grasp of his fatherly hand. I learned to respect him and to love him, to look up to him as an exemplar to guide me in my daily walk and life. And when in after years I began to ascend the rugged path of business, when trouble and disappointment environed me in the absence of my father, I always sought counsel of Mr. Wood, and I never sought in vain. The traits of firmness and gentleness were both strongly developed in his character, a union rarely found in one man. In devotion to duty he was as unyielding as a giant; in acts of charity and kindness, as tender hearted as a child. And through all the intervening years, my heart-strings have clung to him, as to no other man outside of my own family circle. In this dispensation I weep with them that weep. The husband, the father, the friend, the citizen; in all these relations a model man. Those who have leaned upon him for counsel and aid must now fight life's battle alone. I can hardly realize that the friend of my boyhood is dead. Is he dead?

"'Tis ever wrong to say a good man dies."

He is not dead, but gone before. As I stood near his grave and saw the casket containing his lifeless form drop into its earthly bed, I lifted a silent prayer to the Throne of Grace, petitioning the Giver of all Good to deal most tenderly with the spirit of Edwin B. Wood. S. C. S.

Rev. W. H. Babbitt's Discourse.

It will interest this assembly, composed so largely of friends and associates of Edwin B. Wood, to have the leading facts of his life spread before them. He was born at Kingsville, Ohio, Sept. 5, 1825, was left motherless a little more than a year after his birth, and fatherless at the age of 17, with his second mother and others dependent on him for their support. After having engaged in the work of teaching for some time in Ohio and in Kentucky, he came in the year 1847, at the age of 22, to Hudson, Mich., for the purpose of studying law in the office of a boyhood friend, J. C. Sawyer, Esq. In 1848 he was with Judge Beaman of Adrian. It was in 1849 that he made Tecumseh his home, having come to pursue his studies still further in the office of Judge Stacy, into whose family he was received with the welcome of a son. After a partnership with Judge Stacy, he and Mr. Chas. Burridge, of this place, were in business together for a time, after which, until the recent aid afforded by his son, he has worked alone in his profession, and has always been most diligent in it from first to last.

Early in 1854 he was married in Adrian to Miss Carrie Hagerman, of whom in little more than a year he was bereaved. In 1856 he was married to Miss Harriet Hissel, who after years of pleasant companionship finds herself bereaved of a beloved husband by his death. They have shared afflictions in the loss of four dear children, whose forms were laid one by one in the village cemetery, and three survive to mourn a kind father's loss.

It was in 1858 that Mr. Wood made a public profession of his faith in Tecumseh, and united with this church, though his conversion to this faith is to be dated some years previous to his public profession of it. But from the time of his uniting with the church, he identified himself closely with the people of God. Very soon he became teacher of a large Bible class, in which position he continued to labor until failing health imperatively demanded that he should give it up. For years he served as a trustee of the chartered society or congregation worshipping here, and for 20 years at least he has served in the capacity of Ruling Elder, which position he held at the time of his death. In every official relation he was faithful, while as a private member he attended with great regularity the Sabbath services and the weekly meetings for prayer, setting an example thus worthy the imitation of those of fewer cares and bodily infirmities and years than he. He has been largely identified in other ways with the interests of the village which he made his home. For many years he was the village attorney. He served also as member of the council and of the school board, and performed to the full his part of the labor which every public spirited citizen is willing, even without remuneration, to perform for the promotion of the public prosperity and peace. Other positions may have been occupied by him of a yet more honorable character, of which I have not been informed. But the aim of this discourse is not to catalogue honors or to eulogize unduly, but to pay just and proper tribute to departed worth. This mourning household has lost a beloved head, this community a valued citizen, the bar of this county an esteemed associate, and this church a consistent member and an officer, and its pastor has lost one to whom he had become warmly attached, as counselor, brother, and friend. But one expression has greeted me since his death occurred. One and another has said, a good man has gone from us whom we knew not how to spare. It has touched and pleased me to mark the spontaneousness and the unanimity of these kind expressions. These were traits in our brother's character which made them appropriate and not surprising.

1st—His indefatigable industry. He was ever ever busy—busy often beyond his strength. With frail body, compassed with infirmity, he did more than many a one in the enjoyment of good firm health. When he saw what needed to be done, the impulse within him was to put forth his hand and do, or help do the needed work. He worked to win a home, worked for family, for society, for the church, worked for those who committed their interests to his care, until the time came when through excessive taxing perhaps of body and of mind, he was laid aside and found himself in a condition which rendered it impossible he should do more.
